CANNOT TRANSFER TIRES OR TUBES

As rubber automobile tires have a tendency to become increasingly scarce and as their purchase is restricted under priorities administered by tire rationing representatives, the regional office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board points out that the regulations of the Controller of Supplies specifically forbid such a practice as two tire owners combining their tires to operate one vehicle.

Even the gift or loan of a tire or tube, whether new, used or retreaded, by any person other than an authorized dealer to any other person, except an authorized dealer, is not permitted under the regulations. The consumer owner of such a tire or tube cannot legally transfer it to another consumer or mount it on the running wheel or spare rim of a vehicle owned by another person. He can, however, transfer it to an authorized dealer.

It is, moreover, only from such an authorized dealer that any consumer can legally purchase any new, used or retreaded tire, any new or used tube or any retreading services.

In the notice in last week of the marriage of Marion Ella Cavanaugh and Corporal A. L. Dewdy, which was sent in to The Beaver, an error was made in the name of the bride's parents. The parents' name should have been Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Vincent Cavanaugh instead of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Cavanaugh.

FAMILY QUARREL RESULTS IN GAOL TERMS

Mrs. Frank Babcock was sentenced, last Thursday, by Magistrate Garvin, to serve five months in Mercer Reformatory for disorderly conduct. Her husband, Frank Babcock, was given a month's term in gaol for the same offence and their son, Bruce Babcock, paid a fine of $5.00 and costs of $17.50 for assaulting Rupert Sagriff.

The prosecution in the Magistrate's Court of the three members of the Babcock family was the result of a family row which took place at the Babcock home situated on the outskirts of the town on West Mill St. on Saturday evening, July 18th and Sunday, July 19th. Complaints were laid by neighbors who were disturbed throughout the evening of Saturday, July 18th, by quarrelling and swearing. Frank C. Babcock, who lives opposite the Frank Babcock home, and Stanley Richardson and William Richardson who live on the street above, in their evidence stated that at regular intervals for the past five years their own peace had been disturbed by the conduct of the Babcock family. The foulest kind of language was used by Mr. and Mrs. Babcock in their quarrells and some of the language was repeated by witnesses, in court, after the court stenographer had been excused while it was being repeated.

Frank Babcock, the husband, admitted drinking during the evening, but Lottie Babcock, the wife, denied drinking and also pleaded not guilty to the charge.

The charge of assault laid against Bruce Babcock was laid after he had knocked Rupert Sagriff down and struck him in the face. Sagriff said he went to the Babcock home to get a drink and was ordered out of the place. When he refused to go he was beaten up by young Babcock.

The Magistrate, in sentencing Lottie Babcock, told her she was not making any contribution to society and was simply making a nuisance of herself. Her husband was given a less severe sentence, because he has a job and was, apparently, egged on by his wife into quarrelling and fighting.

North Fredericksburgh Organizes For Savings Campaign

The recently appointed committee to sponsor the Sale of War Savings Stamps and Certificates, throughout the Township of North Fredericksburgh, met at the Bay Parsonage, South Napanee, on Friday, with an almost complete representation of members. Mr. W. W. McCabe, reeve of Township, became the chairman with him were Mrs. E. Alkenbrack, Mrs. Fretts, Mrs. G. Burtch, Mr. Beckwith Parks and Rev. A. C. McCallum.

Plans were devised for the selection of Miss North Fredericksburgh to represent the Township in the coming County Rally at the Armouries, Napanee, on Saturday evening, August 1st.

Considerable discussion followed on best methods for the sale of stamps and certificates in the township. It was decided to approach the managers of those factories and canning factories for their co-operation. The committee decided to hold meetings as often as possible.

'THANKSGIVING' MAY BE LATER

TURKEY-PRODUCTION, AND NEW WAR LOAN MAY DETERMINE DATE

Ottawa. — Discussion is going on about the date of Thanksgiving Day and there are indications it may be later than usual this year.

While no date has been determined each year, it has become almost a fixture to have it on the second Monday in October. It used to practically coincide with the United States Thanksgiving, on the last Thursday of November, but that was considered too late in Canada—too near Christmas.

Now the representation by some of the farming community is that the second Monday of October is too early, especially if turkeys have any relation to the festival.

A newer influence entering into the consideration, is that at the usual time of Thanksgiving, a national loan campaign may be in full swing.

PRICES BOARD REVISES ORDER ON DELIVERIES

TIME FOR CORRECTION OF ERRORS EXTENDED TO TWELVE DAYS

Ottawa, (C.P.) — Consolidation and clarification of regulations governing retail sales, deliveries, pick-ups, refunds and exchanges was announced this week by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

The new order, effective Monday, extends the list of exceptions to the regulation that goods to the value of less than $1 may not be delivered.

One provision in the new order allows retailers to deliver orders when several customers have clubbed together to bring the amount of their joint order up to $1 or more. Under the provision, one house address, one apartment, office or one factory may obtain deliveries of any number of small orders, provided the total value of the whole delivery to one address is $1 or more.

PRESCRIPTIONS EXCEPTED

The Board announced that goods to fill medical doctors' prescriptions are added to the list of exceptions to the dollar delivery clause.

It said the complete list of exceptions now includes "eggs, fish, except when canned; fresh fruits and vegetables; bread and bakery products such as cakes and pastries; dairy products including milk, butter, cream, cheese, and ice cream;

"Fuel in any form; meat, lard and shortening; goods from a drug store to fill a medical doctor's prescription; articles such as cement, sand, ice and those too cumbersome or too heavy for the customer to carry; and articles in cases where the customer claims he is too ill or otherwise incapable of calling for the goods or carrying them home.

"Deliveries by freight, express or parcel post; newspapers or magazines delivered by a retailer over a regular route; box lunches or soft drinks delivered therewith ;photographs, blueprints or photostatic copies."

Retailers now are also permitted to deliver items worth less than $1 to replace goods delivered by mistake or forming part of an order previously given and valued at $1 or over, the Board said.

ALL DELIVERY FORMS COVERED

Restrictions contained in the order apply only to sales of goods from a retail store for personal or household use. All forms of delivery are included, since conservation of manpower and of oil, gasoline, rubber and mechanical equipment were among the reasons for undertaking the restrictions.

The announcement said "chief change in the rules regarding exchanges refunds and pick-ups is a provision allowing twelve clear business days in which customers may return goods for refunds or exchanges instead of the six previously allowed. To eliminate possible waste, provision has been made for exchanges or refunds on paint, wallpaper and knitting wool.

"Exchanges, but not refunds, now are permitted when goods are found to be incorrect in size or were sold for the purpose of a gift.

"Sales and deliveries on approval are still forbidden except for individual items or house furnishings retailing at more than $10, collector's postage stamps and sheet music.

"Pick-up of goods for return is prohibited excepting goods delivered in error, found to be defective in material or workmanship and too bulky or heavy to be returned by the consumer in person."

SURGEON IS DECORATED FOR SERVICE IN BURMA

Major Donald M. PAPERS GOING OVERSEAS CURBED

Ottawa, (C.P.) — Mailing of newspapers overseas by individuals will be restricted, effective August 10th, Postmaster General Mulock said in the House of Commons, Friday.

Complete newspapers and periodicals will not be accepted from individuals, who will be asked instead to mail clippings, Mr. Mulock said.

The restriction is intended to conserve shipping space. Publishers have agreed to co-operate in the plan and the matter of newspapers and publications mailed to subscribers now is under consideration, he said.

These restrictions will apply to newspapers and periodicals to both civilians and members of the forces in the United Kingdom and other trans-Atlantic destinations, and in Central and South America, Bermuda and the British West Indies.

NEWSPAPERS HELP INFORM PUBLIC ON WAR REGULATIONS

Warm appreciation of the co-operation and assistance received by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board from newspapers published throughout its Brockville region is expressed by Edwin C. Cossitt, Prices and Supply Representative, who says that without such voluntary support it would be exceedingly difficult for the Board to familiarize the public with its various orders and rulings.

"The part which the press is playing in keeping the public informed of what the Board is doing to maintain the essential economic home front in time of war is quite invaluable," says Mr. Cossitt. "We should be lost without this service and I am fully conscious of the fact that to render it means an expenditure of money as well as of space by the newspapers, five latter small as well as large, have been most generous in devoting space to the activities of the Board in this region from the time our operations began last December and their assistance in this respect, especially when so many other demands are being made upon them, is very much appreciated."

Mr. Cossitt added that business people and consumers would do well to devote close attention to their newspapers since they are the principal means of informing the public by advertisement as well as reading notice, of decisions of the Board which affect large classes of the community.

CHEESE BOX MAKERS PROTEST THE CEILING PRICE ON PRODUCT

Manufacturers Say They Cannot Continue to Produce at Present Prices

Headed by Alpine Woods, Napanee, president of the Central Ontario Cheesebox Makers, a delegation, including boxmakers from all sections of the East - Central part of Ontario, appeared before the Belleville Cheese Board on Friday evening to protest against the ceiling price placed on cheese boxes by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

The delegation informed the Belleville Board that unless the ceiling price of 25 cents was raised to 45 cents, the box makers could not guarantee any further supply of cheese boxes to the cheese factories.

So serious is the situation that the Belleville Cheese Board immediately wired the Federal Department of Agriculture and the Wartime Prices and Trades Board, requesting immediate consideration of the makers' request.

The entire cheese, area between Toronto and Kingston will be affected if the box makers hold good their threat. This district is the heaviest cheese - producing cheese section in Canada and a tie-up in cheese shipments may have far-reaching effects.

Asking the co-operation of the cheese board, the makers stated the situation was not of their own choosing, but one which had been forced upon them by the rise in cost of veneer and heading stock.

W. S. Anglin, Batteresa, told the board it was almost impossible to secure material for boxes. He had purchased 150 cords of headings and had delivery of eighteen only. All the makers declared the ceiling price was insufficient for them to carry on.

Mr. Alpine Woods in discussing the situation in respect to his own factory stated that he had sufficient material to continue manufacture for a short time, but that for several weeks he had been producing at a loss.

The situation in Prince Edward and Hastings is even more serious than in Lennox and Addington. In the attempts to satisfy the Naval army to regain its lost positions.

The British continued to hold the initiative in the Egyptian campaign. Positions gained earlier in the week were consolidated by the British. From 1,500 to 2,000 Japanese troops were landed in New Guinea, thereby causing another threat to Port Moresby, the most advanced Allied base in the South Seas.

RUSSIA'S POSITION GROWS STEADILY WORSE ---CAUCASUS MENACED

British Still on Offensive Against Rommell in Egypt

WEDNESDAY—

There appeared to be very little change in the position of the German and Russian armies in Russia. Around Voronezh the Russians held the initiative but in the south, around Rostov the Red army's position appeared to be serious. Rostov may be abandoned by the Russians for the second time.

• • •

In Egypt the British were holding their line and the Navy and Air Force were smashing hard at the enemy supply lines. The port of Matruh was heavily bombarded and the airdrome at El Daba was also smashed.

• • •

Three more Jap submarines were reported to have been sunk in the Aleutians by the United States. 23,000 Japs were said to have been landed on the island of Kiska, in the Aleutians.

• • •

United States bombers sank two enemy supply steamers at a vital port in the Yangtse River. The Chinese recaptured Lingchwan.

THURSDAY —

The 1,000,000-man German army has driven a deep wedge half-way between Rostov and Stalingrad and the Russians fell back on their last defences of Rostov for a finish fight.

• • •

General Auchinleck launched three attacks in Egypt, which were thought to be part of a general offensive. All attacks made progress and it was believed Rommell may have been started in a general retreat.

• • •

Revolt was reported to be spreading wide in Europe against the Nazis. In Yugoslavia a real war is being conducted against the Axis and in Holland and Norway resistance to the enemy continued to be evident.

• • •

Duisberg, one of the most important Ruhr ports and a great industrial centre was visited by 300 R.A.F. bombers, which dropped 4,000 - ton bombs, leaving the city in flames.

FRIDAY —

The Russians were forced to retreat again about 20 miles from Rostov. But at Voronezh the Russians made new gains despite desperate attempts by the reinforced enemy army to regain its lost positions.

• • •

The British continued to hold the initiative in the Egyptian campaign. Positions gained earlier in the week were consolidated by the British. From 1,500 to 2,000 Japanese troops were landed in New Guinea, thereby causing another threat to Port Moresby, the most advanced Allied base in the South Seas.

TUESDAY —

The Russians were obliged to evacuate Rostov and Novocherkassk, leaving their left flank in peril. They withdrew to the south bank of the Don. The whole of the Caucasus is now in danger of being overrun by the Nazis. The Germans claim to be within fifty miles of Stalingrad.

• • •

The British started another drive forward in Egypt. Rommell's lines of communication are greatly extended and are being given hard blows day and night by the British Navy and Allied Air Forces.

• • •

Germany's greatest port, and the greatest submarine building centre in the world, Hamburg, was heavily bombarded by a force of 600 planes. More than 100 4,000-lb. bombs were dropped and 175,000 incendiaries were also dropped.

• • •

The Japs attempted a raid on Chungking, but were driven off by United States planes.

• • •

Three areas in Britain were bombed by German raiders on Friday morning and the R.A.F. made raids on Northern France.

• • •

An effective attack on the Nazis in the English Channel was made by units of the Netherlands, Polish and British Navy. In the Mediterranean, British subs sank three Axis supply ships.

• • •

SATURDAY—

The Germans claimed the capture of Rostov but admit that "mopping up" operations were still in progress. The truth of the matter is that the Russians moved their main forces across the river and were fighting rearguard actions to cover their retirement.

• • •

were being harrassed by R.A.F. dive was said to be on a front 120 miles long on the Don in the region of Ilovinsk.

• • •

The situation in Egypt remained about the same. The R.A.F. continued to hammer at Axis supply lines and the Navy bombarded Matruh again.

• • •

Duisberg, the Ruhr inland port was again bombed heavily by the R.A.F. Targets in Holland and Belgium were also bombed. About forty planes attacked the east coast of England and the Midlands.

• • •

• • •

MONDAY —

There was very little change in the situation in Russia around Rostov and along the Don, on Saturday and Sunday. Nazi claims of having captured the left anchor of the Caucasus defences have proved premature. In other parts of the line the Nazis were still being held.

• • •

There was also a continued lull in fighting in Egypt. But British and United States airmen were active, bombing Rommell's supply lines.

• • •

Turkey was reported showing signs of nervousness as huge quantities of war materials were being shipped into Bulgaria by the Nazis.

• • •

Allied air-fighters met the new of their own, in a battle over the down nine of them, losing only three of their own, in a battle over the Channel.

• • •

TUESDAY —

The Russians were obliged to evacuate Rostov and Novocherkassk, leaving their left flank in peril. They withdrew to the south bank of the Don. The whole of the Caucasus is now in danger of being overrun by the Nazis. The Germans claim to be within fifty miles of Stalingrad.

GOOD MARKET LAST SATURDAY

CANNOT TRANSFER TIRES OR TUBES

As rubber automobile tires have a tendency to become increasingly scarce and as their purchase is restricted under priorities administered by tire rationing representatives, the regional office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board points out that the regulations of the Controller of Supplies specifically forbid such a practice as two tire owners combining their tires to operate one vehicle.

Even the gift or loan of a tire or tube, whether new, used or retreaded, by any person other than an authorized dealer to any other person, except an authorized dealer, is not permitted under the regulations. The consumer owner of such a tire or tube cannot legally transfer it to another consumer or permit it on the running wheel or spare rim of a vehicle owned by another person. He can, however, transfer it to an authorized dealer.

It is moreover, only from such an authorized dealer that any consumer can legally purchase any new used or retreated tire, any new or used tube for any retreading services.

Mrs. Frank Babcock was sentenced, last Thursday, by Magistrate Garvin, to serve five months in Mercer Reformatory for disorderly conduct. Her husband, Frank Babcock, was given a month's term in gaol for the same offence and their son, Bruce Babcock, paid a fine of $5.00 and costs of $17.50 for assaulting Rupert Sagriff.

The appearance in the Magistrate's Court of the three members of the Babcock family was the result of a family row which took place at the Babcock home situated on the outskirts of the town on West Mill St., on Saturday evening, July 18th and Sunday, July 19th. Complaints were laid by neighbors who were disturbed throughout the evening of Saturday, July 18th, by quarrelling and swearing. Frank C. Babcock, who lives opposite the Frank Babcock home, and Stanley Richardson and William Richardson who live on the street above, in their evidence stated that at regular intervals for the past five years their own peace had been disturbed by the conduct of the Babcock family. The foulest kind of language was used by Mr. and Mrs. Babcock in their quarrels and some of the language was repeated by witnesses, in court, after the court stenographer had been excused while it was being repeated.

Frank Babcock, the husband, admitted drinking during the evening, but stated that Babcock, the wife, denied drinking and also pleaded not guilty to the charge.

The charge of assault laid against Bruce Babcock was laid after he had knocked Rupert Sagriff down and struck him in the face. Sagriff said he went to the Babcock home to get a drink and was ordered out of the place. When he refused to go he was beaten up by young Babcock.

The Magistrate, in sentencing Lot- tie Babcock, said her case was not making any contribution to society and was simply making a nuisance of herself. Her husband was given a less severe sentence because he has a job and was, apparently, egged on by his wife into quarrelling and fighting.

North Fredericksburgh Organizes For Savings Campaign

The recently appointed committee to sponsor the sale of War Savings Stamps and Certificates, throughout the Township of North Fredericksburgh, met at the Bay Passenage, South Napanee, on Friday, with an almost complete representation of members. Mr. W. W. McCabe, reeve of Township, occupied the chair and with him were Mrs. E. Allenbrand, Mrs. Fretts, Mrs. G. Burtch, Mr. Bickwell Parks and Rev. A. C. McCallum.

Plans were devised for the selection of North Fredericksburgh's representative from the Township in the coming County Rally at the Armouries, Napanee, on Saturday evening, August 1st.

Considerable discussion followed on best methods for the sale of stamps and certificates in the township. It was decided to approach the managers of cheese factories and canning factories for their co-operation. The committee decided to hold meetings as often as possible.

'THANKSGIVING' MAY BE LATER

TURKEY-PRODUCTION, AND NEW WAR DATE MAY DETERMINE DATE

Ottawa. — Discussion is going on about the date of Thanksgiving Day and there are indications it may be later than usual.

While the date is determined each year, it has become almost a picture to have it on the second Monday in October. It used to practically coincide with the United States Thanksgiving, on the last Thursday of November, but this changed some years ago in Canada—too near Christmas.

Now the representation by some of the farming community is that the second Monday of October is too early, especially if turkey has any relation to the festival.

Significance, entering into the consideration, is that it is the usual time of Thanksgiving, a national loan campaign may be in full swing.

PRICES BOARD REVISES ORDER ON DELIVERIES

Ottawa. (CP.) — Consolidation and clarification of regulations governing retail sales, deliveries, pick-ups, refunds and exchanges was announced yesterday by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

The new order, effective Monday, extends the list of exceptions to the regulation that goods to the value of less than $1 may not be delivered.

One provision in the new order allows merchants to deliver orders when several customers have clubbed together to bring the amount of their joint order up to $1 or more. Under this provision, one house address, one apartment, office or one factory may obtain deliveries of any number of small orders, provided the total value of the whole delivery in one address is $1 or more.

PRESCRIPTIONS EXCEPTED

The Board announced that goods to fill medical doctors' prescriptions are added to the list of exceptions to the dollar delivery clause.

It said the complete list of exceptions now includes eggs, fish, except when canned, fresh fruits and vegetables; bread and bakery products such as cakes and pastries; dairy products, including milk, butter, cream, cheese, and ice cream.

"Fuel in any form; meat, lard and shortening; medicines in drug store to fill a medical doctor's prescription; articles such as cement, sand, ice and those too cumbersome or too heavy for the customer to carry; and articles in cases where the customer claims he is too ill or otherwise incapable of calling for the goods or carrying them home;

"Deliveries by freight, express or parcel post; newspapers or magazines delivered by a retailer over a regular route; box lunches or soft drinks delivered therewith ;photographs, blueprints or photostatic copies."

Retailers now are also permitted to deliver items worth less than $1 to replace goods delivered by mistake or forming part of an order previously given and not called at $1 or over, the Board said.

ALL DELIVERY FORMS COVERED

Restrictions contained in the order apply only to sales of goods from a retail store for personal or household use. All forms of delivery are included, since experience of motor power and of oil, gasoline, rubber and transportation equipment were among the reasons for undertaking the restrictions.

The announcement said "chief change in the rules regarding exchanges, refunds and pick-ups is a provision allowing twelve clear business days in which customers may return goods for refunds or exchange instead of the six previously allowed. To eliminate possible waste, provision has been made for exchanges or refunds on paint, wallpaper and knitting wool.

"Exchanges, but not refunds, now are permitted when goods are found to be incorrect in size or were sold for the purpose of a gift.

"Sales and deliveries on approval are still forbidden except for individual items or house furnishings retailing at more than $10, collector's postage stamps and sheet music.

"Pick-up of goods for return is prohibited except for goods delivered in error, found to be defective in material or workmanship and too bulky or heavy to be returned by the consumer in person."

NEWSPAPERS HELP INFORM PUBLIC WAR REGULATIONS

Warm appreciation of the co-operation and assistance received by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board from newspapers published throughout the Brockville region is expressed by Edwin C. Fassett, Prices and Supply Representative, who says that without such voluntary support it would be exceedingly difficult for the Board to familiarize the public with its various orders and rulings.

"The part which the press is playing in keeping the public informed of what the Board is doing to maintain the essential economic home front in time of war is quite invaluable," says Mr. Fassett. "We should be lost without this service and I am fully conscious of the fact that to create it means an expenditure of money as well as of space by the newspapers. The latter, small as well as large, have been most generous in devoting space to the activities of the Board in this region from the time our operations began last December and their assistance in this respect—especially when so many other demands are being made upon them, is very much appreciated."

Mr. Fassett added that business people and consumers would do well to follow closely attention to their newspapers since they are the principal means of informing the public of advancements as well as reading notice of decisions of the Board which affect large classes of the community.

CHEESE BOX MAKERS PROTEST THE CEILING PRICE ON PRODUCT

Manufacturers Say They Cannot Continue to Produce at Present Prices

Headed by Alpine Woods, Napanee, president of the Central Ontario Ontario Cheesebox Makers, a delegation, including boxmakers from all sections of the East - Central part of Ontario appeared before the Belleville Cheese Board on Friday evening to protest against the ceiling price placed on cheese boxes by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

The delegation informed the Belleville Board that unless the ceiling price of 35 cents was raised to 45 cents, the box makers could not guarantee any further supply of cheese boxes to the cheese factories.

So serious is the situation that the Belleville Cheese Board immediately wired the Federal Department of Agriculture and the Wartime Prices and Trades Board, requesting immediate consideration of the makers' request.

The entire cheese area between Toronto and Kingston will be affected if the box makers hold good their threat. This district is the heaviest cheese - producing cheese section in Canada and a tie-up in cheese shipments may have far-reaching effects.

Asking the co-operation of the cheese board, the makers stated the situation was not of their own choosing, but one which had been forced upon them by the rise in cost of veneer and heading stock.

W. S. Anglin, Batterseq, told the board it was almost impossible to secure material for boxes. He had purchased 156 cords of headings and has delivery of eighteen cars. All the makers declared the ceiling price was insufficient for them to carry on.

Mr. Alpine Woods in discussing the situation in regard to the box factory stated that he had sufficient material to continue manufacture for a short time, but that for several weeks he had been producing at a loss.

The situation in Prince Edward and Hastings is even more serious than in Lennox and Addington. In Prince Edward County, Mr. Thomas Woods, a veteran cheese boxmaker of Picton, said that in some factories, cheese are piled seven high, waiting for boxes, and as a result, the cheese on the lower tiers were being flattened out and spoiled for shipping purposes.

Mr. Woods said that unless he could secure veneer he could not say when he could be able to fill his orders for boxes.

RUSSIA'S POSITION GROWS STEADILY WORSE ---CAUCASUS MENACED

British Still on Offensive Against Rommell in Egypt

WEDNESDAY—

There appeared to be very little change in the position of the German and Russian armies in Russia. Around Voronezh the Russians held the initiative but in the south, around Rostov the Red army's position appeared to be serious. Rostov may be abandoned by the Russians for the second time.

• • •

In Egypt the British were holding their line and the Navy and Air Force were smashing hard at the enemy supply lines. The port of Matruh was heavily bombarded and the airdrome at El Daba was also smashed.

• • •

Three more Jap submarines were reported to have been sunk in the Aleutians by the United States. 23,600 Japs were said to have been landed on the island of Kiska, in the Aleutians.

• • •

United State bombers sank two enemy supply steamers at a vital port in the Yangtze River. The Chinese recaptured Linchwan.

THURSDAY —

The 1,000,000-man German army has driven a deep wedge half-way between Rostov and Stalingrad and the Russians fell back on the outer defences of Rostov for a finish fight.

• • •

General Auchinleck launched three attacks in Egypt, which were thought to be part of a general offensive. All attacks made progress and it was believed Rommell may have been started in a general retreat.

• • •

Revolt was reported to be spreading wide in Europe against the Nazis. Even in Slavakia a real war is being conducted against the Axis and in Holland and Norway resistance to the enemy continued to be evident.

• • •

Duisberg, one of the most important Ruhr ports and a great industrial centre was visited by 300 R.A.F. bombers. Essen was also hit by bombs, leaving the city in flames.

• • •

FRIDAY —

The Russians were forced to retreat again in the region from the Rostov. But at Voronezh the Russians made new gains despite desperate attempts by the reinforced Nazi army to regain its lost positions.

• • •

The British continued to hold the initiative in the Egyptian campaign. Positions gained earlier in the week were consolidated by the British. From 1,500 to 2,000 Japanese troops were landed in New Guinea, thereby causing another threat to Port Moresby, the most advanced Allied base in the South Seas.

• • •

Three areas in Britain were bombed by German raiders on Friday morning, and the R.A.F. made raids on Northern France.

• • •

An effective attack on the Nazis in the English Channel was made by units of the Netherlands, Polish and British Navy. In the Mediterranean, British subs sank three Axis supply ships.

• • •

SATURDAY—

The Germans claimed the capture of Rostov, but admit that "mopping up" operations were still in progress. The truth of the matter is that the Russians moved their main forces across the river and were fighting rearguard actions to cover their retirement.

• • •

were being harrassed by R.A.F. dive bombers. Jap shipping was also under bomb on the Dei in the region of Lashasso.

• • •

The situation in Egypt remained about the same. The R.A.F. continued to hammer at Axis supply lines and the Navy bombarded Matruh again.

• • •

Duisberg, the Ruhr inland port was again bombed heavily by the R.A.F. Targets in Holland and Belgium were also bombed. About forty planes attacked the east coast of England and the Midlands.

• • •

• • •

MONDAY —

There was very little change in the situation in Russia around Rostov and along the Don, on Saturday and Sunday. Nazi claims of having captured the left anchor of the Caucasus defences have proved premature. In other parts of the line the Nazis were still being held.

• • •

There was also a continued lull in fighting in Egypt. But British and United States airmen were active bombing Rommell's supply lines.

• • •

Turkey was reported showing signs of nervousness as huge quantities of war materials were being shipped into Bulgaria by the Nazis.

• • •

Allied air-fighters met the new air threat with, in a battle over the desert line at Alamein, losing only three of their own, in a battle over the Channel.

• • •

TUESDAY —

The Russians were obliged to evacuate Rostov and Novokerzask, leaving their left flank in peril. They withdrew to the south bank of the Don. The whole of the Caucasus is now in danger of being overrun by the Nazis. The Russian claim to be within fifty miles of Stalingrad.

• • •

The British started another drive forward in Egypt. Rommell's lines of communication are greatly extended and are being given hard blows day and night by the British Navy and Allied Air Forces.

• • •

Germany's greatest port, and the greatest submarine building centre in the world, Hamburg, was heavily bombarded by a force of 600 planes. More than 100 two-ton bombs were dropped and 175,000 incendiaries were also dropped.

• • •

The Japs attempted a raid on Chungking, but were driven off by United States planes.

GOOD MARKET LAST SATURDAY

Several gardeners were offering green corn at 25c and 40c per dozen. New potatoes were 60c per peck, carrots, beets and onions 5c per bunch. Green peas and butter beans were 35c per six-quart basket.

Eggs were 25c, 30c and 35c per dozen, according to grade. Green apples were 25c per 6-quart basket.

THINKING "DAM"

The story is told of a young lad whose father was applying the strap pretty severely. The young fellow protested: "I didn't say anything." "No!" said the irate father, "but you were thinking 'dam'." That's about what happens when any individual or group sets out to intern people for what they believe. There are Communists in Canada who are in concentration camps because of what they believe. Once start that business, and the results are unpredictable. What it finally amounts to, is that the party in power determines what people shall believe, and may even charge them with "thinking 'dam'." Granted that there are those who have, during a war, to be incarcerated because of Fifth Column activities or even suspected Fifth Column activities; yet, that is no justification for wholesale imprisonment of men who hold an economic theory which is displeasing to the party in power.

We do not always agree with Premier Hepburn, as our readers know full well, but he is to be congratulated on the quick way in which he made representation to Ottawa in order to have William T. Lawson released from prison. He was a respectable Ontario citizen. His wife, a graduate of the University of Toronto, is a driver for the Royal Ordnance Corps, in Montreal, and her brother is overseas as an officer with the Canadian Engineers. Yet, W. T. Lawson was kept in prison, where he lost weight and where his whole general health was threatened, because he was a Communist. Because, that is, he thought like those thousands of men in Russia, who are dying in order to save the things which both we and the Russians believe in. It is an outrageous situation. The Parliamentary Committee investigating the position of the Communist Party has recommended that the ban be lifted. Probably before this is read the action will have been taken by Parliament. At any rate, it will be interesting to see the arguments that will be used against adopting the report of the committee when the matter is up for debate.

By all means, those who are opposed to Fascism, and willing to cast in their lot against it should not be denied that privilege, and certainly no man should be kept under lock and key, for thinking "dam", otherwise there would probably be a lot of people ready for jail who are not now there.

HEARTENING

Hon. P. T. A. Cardin, Quebec Leader in the House of Commons, on Thursday last, made a statement which is the most heartening we have heard from Quebec in a long time. Mr. Cardin was speaking on the conscription issue. It was a hot debate, in which the Prime Minister spoke with more than usual vehemence against the Leader of the Conservative Party, Mr. Hanson, and certain newspapers which, he said, were doing all in their power to undermine his influence. But it was Mr. Cardin's statement which, after all, was the most significant, as it forecast national unity if and when the conscription issue becomes law. If this unity forecast of Mr. Cardin is matched there is hope for the future harmonious understanding of each part of Canada with each other. Mr. Cardin's words are worth quoting. He said:—

"The minority cannot rule, but let me say in all kindness to the majority of this country, that I recognize the sovereignty of the majority in Canada and the Province of Quebec will submit to the legislation that is going to be passed. But if the minority cannot dictate its view to the majority, that majority should hesitate, should pause, before setting its iron heel upon the minority in the country.

"The people of the Province of Quebec are law-abiding citizens. They have proved that in the past; they will prove it in this instance."

MOVING SLOWLY

Recently, the Dominion Parliament spent a day debating the liquor situation in Canada. That's an improvement over a year ago, when those who desired a modification in the liquor laws were given no consideration. Mr. Caldwell, Leader of the C.C.F. did not mince matters when dealing with the subject. He pointed out that the head of the largest liquor business in Canada began his business as a bootlegger in a Regina junk yard. There is no guess work about this, the court records bear evidence. Mr. J. W. Noseworthy and Mrs. F. C. Casselman, and others, demanded a change which would end the national scandal which is the liquor business.

The Government tried to pass the buck by saying it was a Provincial matter. But so is the speed limit for cars, but the Dominion Government can override the Provincial Government's prerogative when it so desires. The Government has rationed sugar and gasoline. It has put restrictions on tires, and yet there is no restriction on the sale and use of alcoholic beverages. The problem is one for the Dominion Government to face. Indeed, instead of restricting the liquor trade, the Government has permitted the liquor interests to increase its advertising, ten per cent. Thus the public is being urged, with the consent of the Government, to buy more liquor and not less. This cannot go on. If we are out to win the war, liquor must be curtailed and the Dominion Government must act.

LABOR JOINS C. C. F.

One of the most significant events in the political life of this country was enacted on Saturday, when the great bulk of the Labor Unions decided to unite with the Canadian Commonwealth Federation, for political purposes. This action was taken by 157 delegates from 62 locals of thirty-nine national and international unions, including the A.F. of L. and the C.I.O. The importance of this step can scarcely be overestimated. Since its inception as a Progressive Socialist Party the C. C. F. has attracted the support of a great many forward - looking people, especially among the young, and the co-operatively minded. As a Party, its growth has been steady and progressive. The leaders and elected representatives have gained public confidence, and essential and valuable parliamentary experience.

But it was evident that the Canadian Commonwealth Federation would not make a serious bid for political leadership if it had to face organized labor at the polls. For some time Labor has felt the necessity for adequate political representation in the Provincial Governments, and at Ottawa. To have launched a party of their own would have put them in a position where they would be contending for many of the principles and policies for which the C. C. F. stood. It would have retarded the progressive programme seriously. But, after studying the situation, Labor has decided to throw in its lot with the C. C. F. This will greatly strengthen the position, both of Labor and the Canadian Commonwealth Federation.

There are several considerations which are operating to put the C. C. F. in a very favorable position. The failure of the Conservative Party to choose a strong progressive leader, and to formulate a forward-looking post-war programme, plays right into the hands of the C. C. F. which has youthful leadership and is working assiduously on post-war plans. The Liberal Party is engrossed in conducting the affairs of the nation in the most critical time in history. No matter what it does now, its record will be used against it at the conclusion of the war. Small events will be magnified out of all proportion to their importance in winning the war. These factors favor this new aggressive party.

The Canadian Commonwealth Federation made up of farmers, workingmen, students, and socially-minded young people, will make a good deal of the situation. It will be a good thing for our country whether the C.C.F. ever come into power or not, that Labor and the common man, of whom there are so many, should have larger representation in Parliament. More than once we have suggested that in the place of the present Conservatives and the Liberals may effect some sort of an alliance while the C. C. F. becomes the spearhead of the progressive ideas of the new day. The present union of Labor with the C. C. F. is another straw which shows the way the wind is blowing.

PROSPERITY

The Mad Twenties were so-called prosperous days. Money was made easily and quickly—on paper—people went all out on a gambling orgy. Ticker tapes were watched as now we watch the headlines for news from the seat of war. Everybody was getting rich at the expense of everybody else—or so they thought. But the bubble burst. The booking money was wiped out overnight— and the crash all-but wrecked our whole economic set-up.

Now we are prosperous again. But it is a different kind of prosperity. The farmers in the community are better off to-day than they have been since the last war. Their prices are unrestricted, while the things they buy are not increasing in price. The farmers are spending wisely and well. A brief check-up indicates there is no buying spree in Napanee. People are buying the things they need, and doubtless making good the wear and tear on household effects and on buildings neglected during the depression. Business is steady, but good.

This distribution reflects itself in the town. Napanee never looked better than just now. Property has been repaired, paint has been applied liberally and the whole face of the town lifted. This, supplemented by the verdant foliage, due to good weather conditions, makes our town attractive, indeed.

All of this indicates what has been said a thousand times and which everybody knows but which will bear repeating, and that is, when the farmer is prosperous the whole community is prosperous—prosperous not in any superficial get-rich-quick manner, but in a substantial and permanent way. The prosperity of this county depends on the prosperity of the primary producer; certainly the evidence for that may be seen on every hand. It is to be hoped that the present methods of control of prices and commodities, designed in large part to raise the income of the farmer, will not be suddenly cut off, when the war ends. Doubtless, there will be selfish interests which will bring pressure on the government, to make such a change, but, now in the light of the present situation, it must be clear to all that any economic system which leaves the primary producer at the mercy of powerful financial interests, as has often happened before, will bring disaster to our whole economic life and must be opposed, at all costs.

EDEN VOICES GREAT BRITAIN'S PEACE AIMS

LONDON READY TO ACT WITH U. S. FOR BETTER WORLD

Nottingham, England — (C.P. — Sketching the outlines of the future peace "in one of the gravest hours of the war," Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said, last week, that Britain is ready to meet and work with the United States in shaping the post-war world.

In a speech which was generally regarded as the most definite pronouncement of Britain's after-war policy that has yet been made by a British statesman, Mr. Eden echoed ideas previously expressed by Vice-President Henry Wallace and State Under-Secretary Sumner Welles of the United States and appealed to Britons to give a generous welcome to American soldiers and airmen in this country.

The future of Anglo - American friendship is in the hands of the people of this country," he said.

PRAISES RUSSIA

Making no mention of a second front, he nevertheless praised Russia and asserted "we, together with our Allies, are in this war to the victorious end."

"With the United States, the Soviet Union, China, and other nations, we shall take our part in working for the development of a great world-wide civilization," Mr. Eden continued, naming three urgent problems of peace:

1 Complete disarmament of the aggressor powers.
2 Feeding of the starving populations.
3 Enabling the devastated, impoverished and economically undeveloped countries to restart their industry and agriculture.

PRINCIPLES LISTED

Two principles which should govern the solution of these problems he listed as follows:

1 Receipt of financial and economic aid "must not result in the loss of the independence of any country."
2 Any assistance or guidance given a country "unpractised in the art of self-government must be such as to help it achieve its own development."

Choosing an audience largely composed of factory workers, soldiers, sailors and airmen for his pronouncements, Mr. Eden told them that when the peace will be as hard a task as winning the war but that Britain was "pledged to play a full part in the building of a peaceful active international society."

He continued: "It is therefore most encouraging to have at our side the United States of America the President himself and a number of leading statesmen have repeatedly expressed determination to work for a world in which each country shall be given the opportunity to develop its own life and its own resources to the benefit of all. In this task our American friends can be sure we shall be ready to meet and work with them all the time and all the way."

PLANS BEING LAID

The Government already is laying plans "for our future, both at home and in the international sphere," he said, and the future of the world will depend on our skill in foreseeing and creating the necessary political machinery after the war."

"Never again must we tolerate chronic unemployment, extremes of wealth and poverty and slums and lack of opportunity for so many which have disfigured our national life in the past."

As a result of "recent German successes in the Ukraine and elsewhere," Germany's rulers have cut themselves off from humanity."

With the arrival of American armies of former days, the Romans and the British Isles "we are now entering on a new reasy in friendship," he said. "I am addressing the British Isles and we should establish a consciousness of comradeship in war that will abide by the Peace to come."

The growth of this feeling, he said, would be warmed by stories of Ireland like those at "the recent victory of Midway Island."

The future of Anglo - American friendship, now for the first time in history, is in the hands of the people of this country," he concluded.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, AUGUST 2ND, 1942

ABRAHAM: A PIONEER OF FAITH

Lesson Text: Genesis 12: 1-9. Hebrews 11: 8-17

We are back, in to-days lesson, to the founding of the Hebrew state. As George Washington is looked on by the Americans as father of his country, so Abraham may be regarded as the Father of the Hebrew state. He was a man of some substance who belonged to a clan which had originated in Ur of the Chaldees, i.e. in southern Mesopotamia. The clan had moved to Haran on the upper Euphrates. Hence there originated two very notable men, Abraham received his call—Ur or Horan. The point is of little significance. The important fact is that Abraham was, in some way, directed by God to leave the place in which he was living and journeyed to another place, the location of which he did not know at the time of the journey out.

This raises the question as to whether God actually speaks to men and to man's ability to hear. If the world is one, if it is a universe, then it must be true that God's relationship to man is no different today than it was ten thousand years ago or two thousand years ago. If God spoke to Abraham, to Paul, to Luther, to Wesley and thousands of others, there is no reason why the same process does not continue in the twentieth century. It may be that the difficulties in which, as a generation, we find ourselves, is due to the way in which we have shut out God's voice out of our hearing by other more strident, raucous noises. This is a noisy generation— aeroplanes roar overhead, riveters rattle on the bridges, and in the shipbuilding yards, trains screech and whistle, trucks puff and snort, brakes squeal. To this must be added the roar of guns and the thunderous detonations of a thousand explosions which accompany the dropping of bombs. We are living in a noisy generation. We ancient writer said this, "Be still and know that I am God." Of course God speaks to man but man must cultivate the attitude of receptivity. Only when by contemplation, worship, meditation and prayer, we shut out of our lives the noises which deafen to all spiritual appreciation, will modern man hear God speaking to him. God speaks to a noise-riddled generation. He does to all generations. Man can hear His voice and learn the way of life, and God's purposes as truly now as at any time, if only he will listen.

Abraham heard God speaking to him: how, really does not matter, probably the voice came in the form of an inner prompting, an inner illumination, an imperative spiritual experience. And Abraham heeded the call.

So Abraham, now an old man, left his family, his cattle and his belongings, and struck north. To the Jew it was the beginning of a world of hardy adventure. They asked where he was going. He did not know! To the community it was the seemed sheer madness. It was striking out for some unknown destination, at his age. Caution, prudence, would have counselled the man where there was assured of security among friends and neighbours.

But, not Abraham— he was not knowing whither he went but this he has been called the Father of the Faithful. And in the Epistle to the Hebrews, where the great faith are recounted, Abraham is given the highest place. He was called, obeyed to go out into a place which he was to receive as an inheritance, and he went out knowing whither he went."

The fact is that God's relationship to man is no different today than it was ten thousand years ago or two thousand years ago. If God spoke to Abraham, to Paul, to Luther, to Wesley and thousands of others, there is no reason why the same process does not continue in the twentieth century. NO ALIEN RAG TO DISPLACE OUR FLAGS LIONS INT. HEAR

Adolf Hitler will "be whimpering a plea for peace before snow flies this fall, thinks the new president of the Lions International, Edward H. Paine of Michigan City, Ind., who took office last week.

United States has reached only 20 per cent. of its ability to produce materials for war, whereas Germany has reached her maximum strength, he said. To illustrate the staggering size of the United States war effort, Mr. Paine referred to a Gary, Ind., synthetic rubber plant which will be capable of re-capping 1,500,000 tires a month, after it opens next May.

"I thought it most significant that Winston Churchill said in one of his broadcasts that the final battle of this truggle might be fought in Africa," Mr. Paine said. "The smart thing to do is to draw the enemy as far away from his base as possible and then cut him down."

In his speech, accepting the presidency, Mr. Paine pointed out the significance of the fact that the banners of Lionism which have waved over delegates' heads during the past week represent nations allied in the struggle against the Axis. His message was intended for the whole family of Lions, including those in other countries.

"Within the bright memory of the living, Admiral Dewey hoisted the Stars and Stripes over the Philippines," he will say, "Little did the Filipinos dream that Old Glory would be shot down from the high masts of Manila and Bataan, and that in its place would be flying the emblem of a treacherous, pagan people.

"Little did our English allies ever fear that their Union Jack would be ruthlessly dragged down in Hong Kong or Singapore. But it has happened. The banners of liberty, freedom and human ideals are no longer there. But they will be replaced, and God grant it may be soon.

"This, then, Lions, is our battle cry—in the lands where the eleven flags of freedom fly, and the purple and gold of Lionism shines, no alien foe shall set foot, no alien rags shall adorn the flagstaffs."

for the purpose which its name implies. Soldiers on harvest leave will not be entitled to medical or dental attention, hospitalization or compensation due to illness, injury or death arising out of this leave.

"All personnel granted harvest leave will be required to report back to their units not later than October 31, 1942."

The grant of harvest leave will be limited, as already intimated by Defence Minister, J. L. Ralston, in the House, to the following formations and units:

1 Home War Establishment of depots.

3 Surplus personnel at depots, less those awaiting despatch to training centres or awaiting disposal after completing advanced or trade trainings.

NORWAY BASES AIMS ON ATLANTIC REGIONAL PACTS

By a Staff Correspondent of The Christian Science Monitor

London, — A picture of a new postwar Norway — abandoning its traditional neutrality policy and playing a world role alongside Britain and the United States — is depicted in an official statement of views by the Norwegian Government-in-Exile, in London.

The declaration published in London recently, makes clear that the postwar notion of a defensive bloc of Scandinavian powers which had long epitomized the foreign policies of Sweden, Finland, Denmark, and Norway, is now rejected by Norway.

It states that when war is over, Norway will seek its security in pacts with the Atlantic powers, thereby becoming an active partner in post-war planning and co-operative action.

Moreover, the announcement envisages the Norway of the future as a sort of bridge between the Atlantic powers and the Soviet Union.

The statement was prompted by a move in certain quarters here in the direction of reviving the prewar project of a Nordic defensive bloc.

REGIONAL AGREEMENTS

The Norwegian Government now makes it plain that it flatly rejects any such plan on the ground that it might be used for an eventual Finnish war of revenge against Russia.

Norway is known to be one of the prime movers in the plan for a North Atlantic security pact, modeled along the lines of the recent Anglo-Soviet mutual assistance agreement.

The present statement clearly alludes to Norway's hopes for such a pact. It says: "Norway as an Atlantic power is fighting the same battle as Great Britain and the United States, and must therefore logically look for security in regional agreements with these powers who are its allies today."

It is hoped, the statement continues, that not only the United States and Britain, but Sweden, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, France will be included in the system of regional agreements it envisages.

AMERICAN POLICY AWAITED

The project of this North Atlantic pact is still being urgently advocated by several of the smaller Governments located in London, notably the Dutch and Belgian, in addition to the Norwegian.

The British, however, hesitate to endorse it until the attitude of the United States becomes clearer, and present indications are that Washington is unwilling or unable to go beyond the lend-lease formula for the moment.

Looking further ahead, the Norwegian statement hopes for "a revived and great League of Nations" in which Norway, along with the other Scandinavian democracies, would act as a natural link between the powers grouped in the Atlantic regional accord on the one hand and the Soviet and the countries of Northeastern Europe on the other.

Seagram Gold Cup and Defending Champion, Sam Snead —a Three-time Winner

The smiling gentleman is "Sleeping Sammy" Snead holding the Seagram Gold Cup he won last year at Lambton as Canadian Open Golf Champion. Last year was Sneadi's third victory in the Open and he would like nothing better than a victory this year to tie the record of four open wins now held by Leo Diegel.

The defending champion's entry has not yet been received at local golf headquarters, and for a very good reason. Snead is in the United States Navy, and permission must be secured from his superior officers to allow him to take part in this tournament. A request for this permission has been despatched through the proper channels and it is confidently expected that Snead will tee off with the field at Mississauga on August 6th in quest of his fourth win.

Since the House of Seagram first presented the trophy in 1936, the names of some of America's outstanding golf stars have been inscribed on the parchment scroll. First there was Lawson Little, then "Light Horse" Harry Cooper. Snead's victories came in 1938, 1940 and 1941, with the 1939 crown going to Harold "Jug" McSpaden who is again entered this year.

Standing twenty-two inches from base to top, the Seagram Gold Cup is one of the most coveted trophies in golfdom. It rests on a massive base of onyx which contains a gold casket within which is the inscribed parchment scroll of annual winners. The gold casket is mounted on heavily chased silver feet with a Corinthian column at each corner. Two beavers act as supporters of this casket and the Canadian coat of arms is beautifully executed on the front. The cup itself is of Grecian design and made of gold. The superlative workmanship and exquisite design make this trophy, which was made entirely in Canada, one of exceptional beauty seldom seen in athletic trophies.

The winning players receive a miniature of the cup for permanent possession and have their names inscribed on the parchment scroll which reposes in the base of the trophy.

First prize money in the Canadian Open is $1000.00, with an additional $200.00 if the winner is a Canadian. In all, $2000.00 is allotted to be divided among the first fifteen.

The Canadian Open this year will be held at Mississauga, just outside of Toronto, on August 6th, 7th and 8th, and as in previous years the field will include many famous United States and Canadian Golfing stars.

The entire net profits of the 1942 Canadian Open and all Royal Canadian Golf Association's operations for this year will be donated to the Canadian Red Cross Society.

NO INDIES' OIL FOR JAPS

Japanese claims of using various Indian oil installations in the East Indies, in particular the oil wells and refineries which were destroyed by the retreating United Nations troops, are false. The only wells from which the Japanese are deriving any benefit are the few which escaped destruction, whose production is not sufficient to make any great difference to Japanese economy.

What the Japanese make specific claims, they refer invariably to installations which had not been destroyed. For instance, Tokio announced loudly, with the air of mentioning one of many achievements, its getting destroyed equipment back into operation again, that pre-war paper mills had resumed work. This was hardly a triumph. These mills had not been destroyed. As their produced only about 1% of the Japanese paper consumption, they hardly figured in the Japanese war effort. The dredged war effort. The dredged was of a type never eaten in Indonesia or Japan, and both the markets of these mills cut off. In fact drifting from the dredged ship the Japanese hoped to open them again at all.

The Japanese also pointed to the resumption of rubber production in Malaya. Here, again, they were premature about this, and it is no exaggeration to say that they have done so do in the oil field. Tapping a rubber tree is not a very complicated process, and if it was not of course possible to de-tree all the standing trees in the haste of the retreat.

But oil provides more of a problem. How difficult it is was stated by the Minister of Tokio Navies, in a recent answer to the Japanese military forces in Java. He made a futile broadcast July 9th on the East Indies reconstruction problems, admitting the difficulty with that of rebuilding Tokio after the 1923 earthquake — a job which took many years.

A high-ranking Japanese army officer made a similar admission to the German weekly Weltwoche when he said: "It will be a long time before Japan will be able to make full use of the territories her armies have occupied, as she cannot provide the engineers, technicians and scientific experts needed to replace the many European men whom they have driven out of these regions."

This lack of experts is felt most bitterly in the attempt to exploit the oil fields. When a thorough job of sabotage has been done on an oil well, the quickest way to get it into production again is to drill a new well beside the old one. But the Japanese, who have no oil on their own territory, have neither the men familiar with oil drilling technique, nor the machinery to do the job.

DOES JAPAN LACK SHIPS?

Another piece of news from the East Indies indicates that Japan is at last suffering from a shipping shortage, which is not surprising, considering the heavy tonnage in transports lost during battle in the Java Sea, the Coral Sea and Midway, together with scores of isolated sinkings.

This lack of shipping is evidenced by the requisitioning of all native proahs for transporting foodstuffs and other bulky products. As the proah is a light craft which is seldom able to carry more than 100 tons, not at all adapted to bulky cargoes, it is apparent that the Japanese must be hard-pressed for ships.

There were something like 750,000 tons of motor and steam ships in the inter-island shipping systems of the East Indies, but practically all of it either escaped or was destroyed. The native proahs add up to only 200,000 tons, split up among 4,000 vessels.

Ottawa, (B.U.P.)—Canadian soldiers of the present war receive better pay and their wives get a larger living allowance than in the last war, it was revealed in a return tabled in the House of Commons by Secretary of State Norman McLarty.

Today a married private with no children receives a total of $74 a month in pay and allowances, while back in the 1914-18 war the man would have received only $63 for doing the same job.

That is because he now receives in pay $1.30 a day, whereas in the last war it was $1.00. Today's dependents allowance is $30, plus $5 more for the old separation allowance.

In addition should today's private be a father he receives $12 monthly for each of his first two children and $9 and $6 for his third and fourth child respectively.

Not only his private, but all other non-commissioned ranks in the army have benefited in accordance with the report.

Four examples: A warrant officer, 1st class now receives $166 a month in pay and allowances, plus a married and allowed children. In the last war he would have been paid $104.

Pay rates for commissioned army ranks were not reported in the return.

GANDHI'S PROGRAM IS AMONG GRAVEST THREATS TO BRITAIN

BY DE WITT MACKENZIE

Associated Press War Analyst

With much reluctance one records that among the gravest of the many threats which beset the allied cause this summer is the latest move of the All-India Congress Party backed by Mohandas K. Gandhi.

The quarrel between the Indian Nationalists and the British Raj has ceased to be a family affair and now threatens the security of the whole Allied world.

The working committee of the All India Congress Party has adopted a resolution demanding the withdrawal of Britain from rule of India. Gandhi has supplemented this with the threat that if Britain does not acquiesce he will lead "a mass movement of the widest possible scale and this is understood to mean nonviolent civil disobedience.

Should Britain accede to the demand and withdraw from rule which she won't — it would plunge the country into chaos because of the bitter political, religious and racial conflicts.

No one would for a minute suggest that Gandhi has any thought of injuring the Allied cause, or aiding anyone, for that matter. Indeed the congress resolution states it is not intended that the United Nations be handicapped in fighting the Axis or the way be paved for Japanese aggression against India.

The fact remains, however, if Nationalists have been blinded by their burning desire for freedom, for congress resolution, aimed at crippling India's independence, might be the instrument which would destroy the independence of all the allied friends of Hindustan.

This fateful resolution still has to be ratified by the general committee of the congress at Calcutta August 8th and public reaction among the United Nations make clear there's widespread hope that such drastic action may be postponed until after the war.

Should civil disobedience be augurated it would, as in the past, inevitably result in disorders and bloodshed. India's defence against invasion by the Japs could be made more difficult.

GIRLS, WANTED TO HARVEST PEACH CROP

E. R. Hall, representing the Placement Office of the Ontario Farm Service Force was in Napanee the early part of this week, seeking help to harvest the peach crop in the Niagara Peninsula.

The Ontario Farm Service Force has reported the urgent need of 650 additional High School and Business Girls from the age of 16 years up who will assist in the harvesting of peaches. Application forms may be secured by girls, who are willing to help, at The Beaver Office or the Agricultural Office in Napanee.

Girls who volunteer to help will be paid 25c per hour for nine hours per day. The full period of need is from August 10th to October 31st, but girls who will stay for two weeks will be accepted. All who can remain for three weeks will be given free transportation one way, from Cobourg, to a fruit place of employment in the Niagara District.

The girls will pay $4.50 per week for board and will live in supervised government camps, in private camps supervised by the Red Cross and in private homes inspected and approved by placement officers.

The need for help is very urgent if the peach crop, which promises to be abundant, is to be saved. Any girls who can, are urged to offer their assistance.

VICTORIA W. I.

Much pleasure and profit was derived from the July meeting of Victoria Women's Institute, which was held at the home of Mrs. Fred McFarland, who was a charming hostess to the visiting branch from Tamworth, as well as to the members of her own branch.

The 1st vice-president, Mrs. Jack McFarland, opened the meeting in the usual way and the roll call was answered by Short Cuts for Hot Weather. After welcoming the visitors the meeting was given over to the vice-presidents of the Roblin Institute, Mrs. J. Kimmett. Community singing was enjoyed, after which a reading was given by Lois Kimmett. Mrs. Caswell and Miss E. Richmond played a duet on the piano and received hearty applause. Mrs. Charles Kimmett gave a very effective reading and this was appreciated as it was well given and very appropriate. Mrs. Caswell delighted all with a unique musical composition which was intently listened to and heartily applauded. A paper was well given by Mrs. H. Paul, who also expressed her deep interest in Victoria Branch and unstintingly praised the members for their efforts. A questionaire by Mrs. J. Kimmett was well responded to, being entirely about Canada. A guitar and harmonica selection by Ronnie McFarland, proved a pleasant interlude. This was followed by a humorous reading by Mrs. Volney Wood. A quiz by Mrs. C. Kimmett taxed the memories of the ladies and this number was well received, as was also a novel exhibit by Mrs. Paul, of two pencils of basic printing; done by a local blind girl.

The singing of the National Anthem brought a very pleasant evening programme to a close. Lunch was served very generously by the Victoria ladies and a hearty vote of thanks was tendered them by Mrs. Kimmett, on behalf of her branch.

TINY NEWSPAPERS BRING HOPE TO OPPRESSED

Millions of anti-Nazi miniature newspapers in a dozen languages are printed in Britain and delivered by R.A.F. air mail into the occupied countries of Europe and to Germany itself, it may now be revealed, by a relaxation of censorship regulations.

The midget papers, carried regularly by the Bomber Command on the last two years, include "Le Courrier De l'Air" in French for the French people of both Occupied and Unoccupied France, "La Libre Belgique" in French for the Belgians, "Cri Nederland" in Dutch for Holland, and the "Luftpost" in German for the Germans.

The standard size of these papers is four pages, eight inches long and five inches wide, with three columns to a page. Set in small but clear type they are skilfully displayed and brilliantly edited, packing 10,000 words of news into a tiny sheet which, when rolled, would pass as a cigarette.

Each little paper has its own staff of men and women reporters and editors, many of them internationally famous and with first hand experience with the Nazi regime.

Although each issue is carefully planned and timed on its news, the delivery dates depend on weather conditions. A lull in R.A.F. bombing operations may mean that several editions of each paper will be dropped during the next single delivery.

The papers are printed on modern high-speed rotary presses which automatically fold and count them into "bricks" of 500. Then they are rushed to the bomber stations throughout Britain, loaded into four-engined Stirlings, Lancasters and Halifaxes for France, Holland, Belgium and Germany, and released at the right moment through flare chutes in the bomber floors.

Although it still is forbidden to disclose the contents of these papers — despite the fact that single copies of them are known to have been brought back from Europe by refugees to both Britain and America —it can safely be said that they are a great improvement, both typographically and in their contents, over the early amateurish tracts dropped in Europe during 1939 and 1940. During the earliest leaflet raids, Holland, Belgium and Denmark, all of them then neutral, often were flooded with papers meant for Germany. Since then the R.A.F. has brought leaflet dropping to an exact science, until nowadays the newspaper packets always reach their target areas. Accurate release, as in the case of bombs, nevertheless has to be governed by such factors as height, distance, strength and direction of the wind. The newspapers thus dropped in Europe are doubly welcomed. They not only contain more news than is available in the Nazi-controlled press, but they supplement the underground press of the occupied countries.

The Gestapo does its best to make it virtually impossible to procure Allied papers and ink for anti-Nazi papers, as well as impressing the most severe penalties on those concerned in the distribution of such literature.

Yet work goes on with a new patriot ready to take the place of every pamphleteer removed by the Nazis. Each of these leaflets, like propaganda chief, hates the sight of the R.A.F. mail newspaper. A year ago he was offering a reward of 200 marks to each informer "revealing the secret source" from which the home and keep the newspaper (Luftpost) in his hands, and encouraged over his own country by the R.A.F." In Ghent, the Nazi-controlled paper "Voorpost" announced: "People often collect newspapers and leaflets dropped by English aircraft and read them on their friends. The occupying powers call this a serious punishable offence."

A GHOST TO THE RESCUE

The story of a derelict ship in mid-ocean, manned by a ghost crew and for a dozen British sailors whose ship had been torpedoed, and who were so weak from exposure and lack of food after battling a hurricane for eight days that they could not row any more, was told in the British Broadcasting Corporation's news reel recently, from London. Two men had been injured by the torpedo that had struck their ship; four men were so sick they were helpless and two were swept by cabin boys. When the ship was sighted rockets were fired from the lifeboat, but there was no sign of recognition from the big ship. They had given up all hope of being rescued, but a favorable wind drifted their boat right in its course. The ship did not seem to be moving. On the contrary she was seemingly waiting for the lifeboat and Captain Pinkerton, who was in the latter, decided that she was a derelict. By a great effort the lifeboat was drawn alongside. But the difficulty was to get aboard her. However, a strong young fireman clambered up and let down a rope ladder, by means of which the others eventually got aboard.

"All were in pretty bad shape, with stiffened limbs and swollen feet," said the captain, "and it was some time before we could stand up. But eventually we got better and started exploring the ship. We found food and water but it was now work getting strength back. You don't recover in a few hours from an experience like that. We tried to get the boiler working and after two days got 100 pounds of pressure, and the men came up from the stokehold and fell on the deck — they hadn't any strength.

"It was beyond human endeavor that men so weakened could get the engines under way. But I had to keep the men doing something and for three days we carried on.

"On the eighth day the lookout called out that there was a ship in sight. And so there was, a ship that was a blaze of light — it seemed a strange ship to us. We sent up rockets, and they sent a boat over, and we all transferred to H.—a neutral ship. A few days later we were transferred to another ship and brought to a British port—the two wounded men we left aboard the neutral and they are all well now."

$10.00 BOUNTY OFFERED FOR BEAR PELT

In order to assist in the war-time development of the sheep industry in Northern Ontario, the Provincial Government, through the Department of Game and Fisheries, is prepared to pay a bounty on bears killed under certain conditions. There has undoubtedly been a marked increase in the number of bears, and whether or not because of shortage of other food they appear to have become particularly carnivorous during the last few years and many complaints have been received of serious losses due to their depredations on flocks of sheep, herds of swine and undoubtedly many moose calves and deer fawns are also killed by these predators.

Many farmers in the north have the mistaken idea that the Department of Game and Fisheries is protecting these animals as a tourist attraction. On the contrary, we have sought to encourage non-residents to come to the Province on bear hunts in order to assist them in their control.

A bounty of $10.00 will be paid on the production of a pelt of a bear over one year old which may have been killed in a township or unorganized municipality that has a minimum of 25 per cent. under agriculture in the districts of Algoma, Cochrane, Kenora, Manitoulin, Muskoka, Nipissing, Parry Sound, Rainy River, Sudbury, Thunder Bay, and Timiskaming, and the Counties of Bruce, Prontenac, Halburton, Hastings, Lennox and Addington, Peterborough, Renfrew and Victoria.

It will be noted that this bounty is payable only to the residents of the various municipalities, as it is not deemed advisable at present to pay the bounty to resident or non-resident sportsmen, hunting under license, who visit the various sections where bear are frequently found with the object of hunting game, and certainly they, without encouragement, would make every effort to secure their trophy.

The Department of Game and Fisheries is authorized to pay a bounty of $10.00 in connection with the killing of any bear over the age of twelve (12) months, in accordance with the following provisions, viz.:

(a) Any bear upon which application for the payment of the aforesaid bounty is made shall have been killed in a township or municipality in the districts of Algoma, Cochrane, Kenora, Manitoulin, Muskoka, Nipissing, Parry Sound, Rainy River, Sudbury, Thunder Bay, and Timiskaming, the Provisional County of Haliburton, and the Counties of Bruce, Prontenac, Hastings, Lennox and Addington, Peterborough, Renfrew, and Victoria, or a township in any which Township is included in the territorial districts of Algoma, Cochrane, Kenora, Manitoulin, Muskoka, Nipissing, Parry Sound, Rainy River, Sudbury, Thunder Bay, and Timiskaming, the Provisional County of Haliburton, and the Counties of Bruce, Prontenac, Hastings, Lennox and Addington, Peterborough, Renfrew, and Victoria, in which such bear was killed, in defence or preservation of his livestock or property, except that no provision shall not apply to bear killed by a tourist outfitter or licensed guide rendering service in such capacity to non-residents of the Township in which such bear was provided.

(b) Where in any such Township a person has killed a bear and produces the whole skin of the same together with the three weeks after the killing of the bear before a Magistrate, a Game and Fisheries Officer, or such Officer as the Minister may appoint, together with an affidavit in the form supplied by the Department, stating the place where and the date when the bear was killed and that such bear has been kept in captivity previous to the killing and which affidavit is supplied with such other particulars as may be required, such Magistrate or Officer shall cause the person producing the skin a certificate in the form provided by the Department.

(c) Upon delivery of the said affidavit and certificate properly executed to the Department, the person named in the certificate shall be entitled to receive out of such monies as may be appropriated for the payment of such bounties, the sum of $10.00 as a bounty, on a bear over the age of twelve months.

(d) Any person authorized to give a certificate under these provisions may take any affidavit required to be taken by an applicant for the purpose of obtaining such a certificate.

(e) Before payment of any bounty is made the whole skin of the bear shall be produced before a Magistrate, a Game and Fisheries Officer, or such Officer as the Minister may appoint, and after the skin has been stamped or marked by such Magistrate, Officer or Constable Officer, or such Officer as the Minister may appoint, in a manner satisfactory to the Department it will be returned to the party who originally killed the bear, who shall become his or her property.

(f) Such bounty shall not be paid on bears killed in any other than those specified in clause (a), nor on bears killed in Provincial Parks, Indian Reserves or Crown Game Preserves.

(g) All payments of bounties on bears shall be subject to the discretion of the Department, and which decision shall be final.

RESILIENCY OF YOUTH FORTIFIES RUSSIA

MORE THAN 45 PER CENT ARE STILL IN TEENS — SOVIET COMPRISES UPWARD OF FIFTY VARYING NATIONALITIES

By a Staff Correspondent of The Christian Science Monitor

Washington. — Russia is young. More than 45 per cent. of its near 200,000,000 people are under nineteen years of age. This condition permeates all of the fifty or more nationalities — eight-tenths white — which are included in the Soviet Union.

Thus the nation as a whole has a resiliency of youth which was one of the imponderables which many probably failed to take into account.

This is the conclusion of Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, of the Smithsonian Institution, in a treatise on the races of Russia just issued by the Institution for free distribution as one of a "war background" series.

At first glance the peoples, with various physical characteristics, origins, traditions, and languages—may appear a somewhat chaotic mixture. But Dr. Hrdlicka points out, they have drifted toward a common pattern through the centuries so that today, except for manner of dress and language, few strikingly pronounced differences are noticeable to the lay observer.

Dr. Hrdlicka probes deeply into the origins of the present Russian peoples. They first appear—at least one element of them — in history about 600 B.C. as "Scythian" barbandmen of the Greek historians.

CAME OF FIGHTING STOCK

Who were these "Scythians"? Because of their supposed fighting qualities and their contacts with the Greeks, few peoples of antiquity have been subject to more debate as to their ethnic identity. But archeological evidence now makes fairly certain Dr. Hrdlicka says, that the bulk of them — especially those in the eastern half of their territory, were of a semi-Mongoloid stock belonging to the same general racial complex as the present-day Turkemans and Tartars.

The "Scythians" — Tartar and Slav alike — were overrun by various invaders. First came the Goths. Then the Goths themselves were overrun by the great Hun invasion of the fourth century, probably the most sustained and serious Asiatic incursion of all time. This practically obliterated the old Scythia. The Huns were typical Mongoloid stock. From Southern Russia they extended their incursions over most of Western Europe. But they established nothing permanent and eventually, after the passing of Attila, receded into Asia.

"The Russians proper appear in the historic arena in the ninth century," Dr. Hrdlicka explains. "They refer to themselves as 'Slavs,' from 'Slava' to glorify. Their early history and origin are wrapped in the mists of uncertainty. A considerable group of their tribes was gathered along the Dnieper and its tributaries. The remnants did not differentiate them from the Germans.

HAD TO CALL IN OUTSIDER

"But there was no unity among them. Their dissensions finally led to the proposal that they call home prince of foreign stock, of whom none could be jealous, to merge all the subdivisions into one strong Slav state. The Swedish prince Rurik was admitted and envoys of the various tribes called on other tribes of the Varangians, non-Slavic settlers of Scandinavian origin.

"The Scandinavian Varangians were soon absorbed in the sea of Slavic race and the family of Rurik remained. The Slav element was extremely virile and tenacious and expanded in all directions. Their assistance was not insurmountable. This expansion took place chiefly toward the northeast and northwest where gradually the primitive Finno-Ugrian strains were replaced or largely absorbed.

"This spread continued until early in the thirteenth century when all Southern Russia fell under the great blitz that had yet afflicted it—the final and overwhelming Tartar invasion.

COVERED WIDE AREA

"The invasion covered all of present Ukraina and extended over much of Poland, Galicia, Hungary and some of Eastern Germany. Southern Russia were subjugated to the Tartar or forced to flig. Russia as a whole suffered the direst effects of the invasion for 300 years. The invaders established themselves over the Southeastern part of the country and developed a political entity of their own that lasted until 1783, the year of their final submission to the Russians. To this day a large part of the Russian Army is drawn from the Crimea is more or less Tartaric in composition.

"But the Slavs, somewhat affected by the various invasions which had passed over them, still predominate. From the anthropological standpoint today the Russians belong overwhelmingly to the great body of Slavs in general. Their cradle is the region extending from present Moldavia to the watershed of the Upper Vistula. But the Russian population also includes traces of admixture with Nordics, Finns, Turks, Tartars, and Iranians."

HOW SALMON ARE CANNED

AUTOMATICALLY CLEANED, PACKED AND COOKED BY MACHINE

On arrival at the cannery the salmon are unloaded from the fishing craft or tender to a mechanical elevator which discharges them into bins located in the cannery, the different species being kept separate throughout. From these bins the fish travel to an ingenious machine called the "iron chink," because it has replaced the Chinese labor that used to be employed. The machine is almost human in its performance and to watch its operation is a fascinating experience. The whole salmon is fed into the iron chink just as the fish comes out of the water and when the fish leaves the machine it is thoroughly cleaned. The head, tail and fins have been removed; the cleansing process is completed in an operation at the rate of over sixty fish a minute.

To make sure that the work of the Iron Chink has been properly performed by the iron chink, each salmon as it comes from the machine is inspected so that any defect may be remedied. The fish is then conveyed to a machine known as the "gang knife" and passing through the blades of this apparatus the salmon is cut crosswise into pieces, the proper length to fill the size of can required.

The cut pieces are then transported to a hopper above the machines which fill the cans, fed to them from the floor above. They are entirely automatic and place the proper amount of cut salmon in each can at the rate of about seventy-five cans per minute. A belt conveyor rushes the cans along to weighing scales which automatically turn aside any that are under weight.

While most of the salmon canned in British Columbia is filled by machines there is a large part of the sockeye pack, favored in the export markets, still filled by hand. Machine-filling makes an excellent job, but cans filled by hand have a slightly better appearance when opened, even though quality and quantity of the fish entering the can are similar in each case.

The vacuum closing machine is a complicated device which hermetically seals the cans in the final stage of packing. As a safety measure going against the sealing of cans without a vacuum the machine is predesigned that should anything happen whereby the vacuum in the sealing chamber falls below a certain point, the whole apparatus automatically stops and cannot be started again until the fault is corrected.

Then comes the cooking process in which the cans are subject to live steam turned into a retort until it reaches a pressure of fifteen pounds to the square inch. At this pressure the temperature is about 249 degrees Fahrenheit. Pressure and temperature are maintained constant for ninety minutes while a truck carrying a load of cans is in the retort. The cooking over, the cans are complete except for the label. This is applied, and the delicious food pack is ready for shipment.

BATH

Bath, July 25. — A wedding of interest in the village took place at the parsonage, Sandhurst, when Miss Edna Lennox became the bride of Percy Thompkins. The bride, who was dressed in a very pretty white gown, was given away by her sister, Mrs. Wilfred Thompkins, and the groom was attended by a brother of the bride. Following the ceremony, the bridal party returned to the home of the bride's sister, where a dainty luncheon was served. The happy couple will reside in Kingston, where the groom is employed. Congratulations and good wishes go with them.

What might have proved a serious accident occurred one evening recently as one of the older ladies of the village attempted to cross the street she was knocked over by a bid on a wheel. Neither saw the other. There were no serious injuries other than a bad shaking up.

The funeral of the late Murray Willard, Sr., was held on Thursday from his late residence to St. John's Church. The Rector, Rev. L. G. O. Walker, conducted the service. The deceased had spent his early life on the Island, but for the past few years had lived in Bath, and was a fisherman for years. The floral tributes were many and beautiful. The pallbearers were Messrs. Laidley, Collupy, Hawley, Huffman, Fairbanks, and A. E. Tompkins. Interment took place in St. John's cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Booth and son, Frank; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Booth and children spent the week end with Mrs. Miller and family. Miss Catherine Booth returned with them and will remain for a vacation to spend a few days fishing in the bay.

Mr. Harold Reid is spending his vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Reid.

Mrs. G. Burke and Miss Jean Burke, of Toronto, are guests at the home of Mr. W. J. Calver.

GIFT CIGARET LIMIT IMPOSED

MEN SERVING OVERSEAS MAY NOW ONLY RECEIVE 1,600 EACH MONTH

Somewhere in England. — By a new Canadian Army Overseas order, a limit of 1,600 cigarettes monthly for each officer and man has been placed on gift smokes received from friends.

The order said the step was necessitated because the sale of these cigarettes to civilians by certain individuals had reached "alarming proportions."

The order became effective July 24th. Canadian soldiers have been receiving cigarettes from Canada duty free by virtue of a privilege extended by the British Government on the understanding they would be for personal use and not for sale or distribution to civilians.

Are you positive that the defendant was drunk? asked the judge.

No doubt, growled the officer. Why are you so certain?

Well, replied the officer, I saw him put a penny in the patrol box on Fourth Street, then look up at the clock on the Church and shout: Gawd, I've lost 14 pounds.

— V —

VARIETY IN VEGETABLES

Harvest season brings a rich profusion of vegetables, but whatever the season, Canadian markets are filled with an excellent variety of vegetables. Let them every day, cooked and raw, two or more kinds daily. Learn to eat new kinds, cooked in new ways.

Why Different Kinds

First on the list — dark green leaves, as kale, chard, spinach, beet and turnip tops, dandelion and mustard greens — rich in iron and vitamins.

Dried peas, beans, lentils — don't forget that they contain protein and can be substituted for meat once or twice a week.

Other vegetables — as green beans, green peas, lima beans, onions and celery — give you less minerals and vitamins but are good for you and are a change.

How To Buy Vegetables

Buy vegetables in season — they are cheaper and fresher.

Choose bright, firm, well formed vegetables.

Buy by the pound rather than by the bunch, as carrots and broccoli; it is less expensive.

Vegetables with little waste, as string beans and spinach are cheaper than green peas or lima beans even though they may cost a few cents more a pound.

How To Cook Them

Wash thoroughly, particularly leafy varieties, but do not soak in water for this removes some of the vitamin and mineral content.

Cook in the smallest possible amount of boiling salted water. Leafy vegetables usually have enough water clinging to them from the washing, for others about one - half inch in the bottom of the kettle is enough.

Vegetables are better undercooked than overcooked. Most people overcook. When you get used to undercooked ones you'll prefer them.

Whenever possible, cook vegetables in their skins; skin protects the mineral and vitamins.

Save the water in which vegetables are cooked as an appetizer mixed with tomato juice, as soup or gravies. It contains much of the vegetable's mineral and vitamins, particularly the B family and C.

A postal request to the Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road, Toronto, Ontario, will bring you a five vitamin chart and a booklet "Canadian Vegetables for Every Day."

VEGETABLE STORAGE IN 1942

Hello Homemakers! There is really great strategy being used in the storage of vegetables these days. Because you are in the canning mood, don't get overheated and can all your vegetables. Consider first, some adequate storage methods available to you.

For root vegetables, which will hibernate such as potatoes, carrots, beets, onions, parsnips and turnips store in cool cellars, in shovelled mounds, or in underground pits. Pumpkins and winter squash can also be stored for several months in these places.

The drying method is recommended for peas, lima beans and fuel. Peas, beans and corn may be blanched, put on a cookie pan and left in the warming oven to dry slowly and thoroughly, or, after the oven meal is taken out of the electric range, turn the switches off and put the pan of seeds or kernels in the oven.

Many fruits and vegetables — cherries, berries, peas, corn, etc. may be picked, cooked and put into cartons or suitable containers and frozen in a locker at the cold storage plant in your vicinity.

The pickling or salt curing storage method "pigs down" cabbages, cucumbers and peppers.

Tomatoes are best canned by the oven or water-bath method. The oven method helps to keep the vitamin content.

RECIPES

Oven Canned Tomatoes

Select firm, ripe tomatoes. Wash. Blanch by immersing in boiling water for about one minute. Plunge into cold water and peel at once. Pack into jars. Add one teaspoon salt to each quart jar. Cover with boiling water or tomato juice. Partially seal and process 45 minutes in electric oven preheated to 275 degrees.

Home Canned Spinach

(Requested)

Pick over, leaves carefully. Wash three or four times., lifting out the greens each time, shred as for cooking if necessary. Heat in a well-greased kettle with a very small amount of water over "low" heat until wilted. Stir while heating. Pack into pint jars. Add one-half teaspoon salt to each pint. Cover with boiling water. Partially seal and cook in boiler by water-bath method for three hours.

Home Canned Pumpkin

(Requested)

Wash. Remove seeds and peel. Cut into one-inch cubes. Cook in small quantity of water until soft. Put through a sieve. Reheat to boiling point. Pill pint jars. Seal and process by water-bath method three hours.

TAKE A TIP

1 To cook or bake fillets of fish, wring water out of new piece of cheesecloth; then lay fillets on it. Lifting fillets out with the cloth prevents them from beaking into pieces. Rinse the cloth in warm water and it can be used again.

2 To remove with odor from the pan in which fish is cooked with orange or lemon rind.

3 A piece of orange rind put into water in which suet or steam pudding is being cooked will make the pudding roll out of the cloth easily.

4 To clean a stained enamel kettle cook rhubarb in it. Two ways in one! These foods may be eaten there is no danger.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. W S asks: "Recipe for tasty salad for wedding for 35".

Answer Chicken Salad

Three and three-quarters cups of diced chicken, three and three-quarters cups diced veal, five hard cooked eggs, four cups diced green celery, one and one-half teaspoons salt, one-quarter teaspoon pepper, two and one-half cups peas, one cup chopped lettuce two-thirds of cup minced parsley, one cup chopped onion. Two cups mayonnaise. Mix the ingredients together lightly with a fork. Chill in electric refrigerator. Add nuts if desired after chilling. Carefully stir in mayonnaise.

Mrs. C. M. B. asks: "If a summer cloth dress has been dry cleaned can it be washed afterwards?"

Answer: Yes. But test for washing a belt or pieces off seams. Set color by soaking in salt and water.

Mrs. P. D. suggests: "Let some of your radishes, lettuce, carrots, etc. go to seed and pick when ripe. Do not forget to save flower seeds too."

DELICIOUS RASPBERRY JAM

Two pounds prepared raspberries (three to four-pint boxes); three-quarters pound sugar (one and one-half cups); one cup Crown Brand Corn Syrup.

Pick over berries; wash if necessary by gently dipping the filled colander into a pan of water and lifting the berries out instead of draining them. Reject unsound fruit. Combine fruit with sugar and Crown Brand Corn Syrup in preserving kettle and allow to stand one hour. Stir the mixture over heat until sugar dissolves and mixture comes to a boil. Boil rapidly, stirring frequently, for twenty minutes or until thick and clear; when done a pan of water should remove kettle and cool slightly. (This stage may be tested by dipping a large spoon into the mixture; if two drops come together and hang from the side of the spoon in a "sheet" the jam or jelly is done. If using a thermometer the temperature for jelling is 220 deg. F. to 222 deg. F. Fill hot sterilized glasses to within one-quarter inch of top. Seal, cool, label, and store in dry cool dark place. Yield — approximately two pints.

SUGAR RATIONING REGULATIONS

Retailers are cautioned by the regional office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board against asserting to any suspected abuse of that section of the sugar rationing regulations which permits consumers to purchase sugar in excess of their coupon allowances for the purpose of canning home canning or preserving.

The sugar rationing order of the Board empowers any merchant to refuse to sell sugar to any person who, he believes, has contravened or is attempting to contravene any provision of the order. It is suggested therefore, regional officers point out, that merchants should completely satisfy themselves that requests for additional sugar with which to do home canning or preserving are legitimate. If they do not receive such satisfaction, they may legally refuse to make sales of this description; and, moreover a serious view will be taken of any contravention on the part of merchants in sugar being obtained by such means.

The sugar rationing order permits consumers to obtain sugar beyond their rations by completing, signing and presenting to a merchant at the time of sale a sugar purchase voucher or which sets forth the purpose for which the sugar is required. Under the order sugar for some preserving is defined as sugar to be used in the home for the purpose of preserving or canning any fruit, or for making jam or jelly from any fruit intended for consumption in the home of the purchaser."

These sugar purchase vouchers are supposed to close entirely after the time of their issuance.

Individuals or organizations sponsoring afternoon teas, picnics, suppers, socials or gatherings of similar type are not entitled to draw any special supply of sugar under the rationing regulations now in effect. This is equally true of supplies of tea and coffee, the rationing of which remains under the coupon system. Parliamentary in such events must bring their own sugar, tea and coffee with them, or otherwise obtain a supply from their own stocks by normal allowance.

In the case of farmers, wives and others who bake pies or cakes to sell to local markets or at fairs it has been decided that they cannot be classified as commercial bakers subject to the sugar rationing regulations. Instead they will qualify for preferential sugar supplies for other than household use and, wherever the farmer's wife operates, she will be issued with a non-transferable coupon entitling her to purchase up to 10 lbs. of sugar from their supplier.

The economic officials are quite emphatic in pointing out that no extra supply of sugar will be made available at any time for canning or preserving. Consumers will have to get such sugar as they require for these purposes from their regular allowances. It is to be hoped that the public will show such confidence in the sugar position as to refrain from hoarding. Everyone is quite a small percentage of the total supply in the ways in which it is by first using the fats to make soap itself is an indispensable part in the manufacture of explosives. In all, some 20 different kinds of fats and oils are used in the industry, in addition to supplying many essential explosives. The chief purpose of fats and oils in explosives is to act as a stabilizer, to prevent the explosive from changing chemically. Fats have the property of absorbing nitrogen oxides which are given off by explosives and so tend to destroy them. Fats and oils also act as lubricants.

Salvaged Household Fats Serve Many War Purposes

TURKEY UNDER PRESSURE AGAIN

BY WAVERLEY ROOT

Once more Turkey is on the anxious seat. The closer the Germans come to the Caucasus, the more Ankara fears that she may miss the boat — that instead of signing up with the Axis about to be victorious, and getting what has been promised her, a new Ottoman Empire and leadership in a federation of the Near and Middle East, she may find herself dominated by Germany on her borders, who will be able then to decide any issue. But the crux is not definitely for one side or the other; like Parliament, it is split into two factions.

Many Turkish army officers studied in Germany. They are, as a result, mostly pro-German. But quite as many studied in France and England. They are pro-Allied. Their group is swelled by those who have maintained diplomatic or military contacts with Russia, who are also pro-Allied.

There is one marked difference between the pro-Allies and the pro-Nazis. The former are held to their course only by their own convictions, which might be changed if Turkey's security seemed menaced by holding to the Allies. The latter, some sources claim, are bought by Germany. If so, they are not going to change their views, since from the beginning they have put the rentiers thirty pieces of silver above all other considerations.

If the Germans have paid men even in the army, a military coup d'etat is not out of the realm of possibility. That is a weapon, of course, that can serve only one side or the other; it is military coup d'etat. Democrats can't.

DELIVERIES IMPORTANT

So far one of the strongest factors in favor of the British was their ability to deliver goods while the Germans couldn't. Turkey had recently held up deliveries of goods to Germany under the trade treaty after the Reich became Germany had delivered none of the goods she had promised in exchange chiefly locomotives and freight cars. Meanwhile the British had delivered many products to Turkey — including locomotives and freight cars. The Turks interpreted the situations as indicating a relatively greater industrial strength and better control of materiel commandeering by Britain.

But recently the Germans have started making deliveries to Turkey, while British — because of her commitments in roughly the same area of the world, has been forced to decrease her aid to Turkey. That does not look too good to the Turks, who are simultaneously being offered the military situation in their area.

Children's Snacks Should Be Nourishing

These vacation days when children come round the kitchen for mid-morning and mid-afternoon snacks, mother should be well to the fore with something nourishing is on hand so that young bodies will have extra health and resistance built up when school begins again.

A glass of milk with raisin-filled cookies or tomato juice and graham wafers or toast sticks provides plenty of goodness, or a packet of peanuts and raisins make a convenient bundle.

A good sandwich filler is made of peanut butter thinned with milk and mixed with chopped raisins. Put in this place this will keep for several days. Spread on brown wheat bread, it makes a nutritious sandwich for tea as well as a mid-day snack. Sandwich cheese mixture spread on nut bread is also nutritious.

Any between-meal snack should merely supplement the meals, and should not be regarded as something to stand alone advises Nutrition Services, Department of National Health. If children have enough energy to offset their feeling but should not be given enough to spoil the appetite for the next meal.

NAZIS WANT OIL — BUT SEEK MOST TO CUT OFF SOVIET SUPPLY

BY ROBERT G. WERTHEIMER

GERMANS BELIEVE THAT SOVIET WAR MACHINE INDUSTRY, AND ARMIES, WILL BE FORCED TO STANDSTILL IF THEIR ARMIES CAN SEPARATE RUSSIA FROM ITS MAIN SUPPLY, PETROLEUM

Written For
The Christian Science Monitor

If the Nazi forces are driving for Russia's great oil reserves of the Caucasus, their purpose is not only to secure the oil for themselves, but to deprive Russia of one of its most vital supports in the war.

Germany wants to cut off the oil from the powerful Russian war machine and put out of combat those tanks and airplanes upon which everything depends now and which already have dealt most severe blows at the enemy. Russia has a completely mechanized agriculture which deprived of oil, could not function.

While the huge spaces of Russia will permit its army to withdraw properly, thus evading indefinitely a final German victory, the Germans would attempt to blockade Russia economically and to reduce its fighting power to insignificance.

The Germans are on their way to the Volga and an occupation of Stalingrad and Astrakhan at the Caspian Sea would cut off all communications between the Central Front and the forces which protect the Caucasus. Besides this military threat which as such may be less serious in the case of a strong army defending the Caucasus, the flow of Russian oil toward the industrial centres of European Russia would come to an end.

TEN PER CENT

The Caucasus region has a comparatively minor share in the world production of oil, amounting to 10 per cent or less. But it is the main producer of oil for Russia. Of its oil production of 240,000,000 barrels in 1941, 172,500,000 barrels or 71.2 per cent came from Baku, while the major oilfields of Maikop and Grozny located north of the Caucasus produced an additional 30,000,000 barrels or 12 per cent of the total Russian oil production. Thus, with one stroke Russia would be deprived of 83 per cent of its oil production.

The Maikop and Grozny districts are immediately threatened, considering the short air distance of only 125 miles from Kerch to Maikop and of 400 miles from Taganrog, west of Rostov, to Grozny. Several weeks ago the Nazis were already massing 100,000 parachutists — according to reports from London of May 20 — on the Kerch Peninsula for an airborne invasion of the oil districts.

Maikop and Grozny alone produce as much oil as Germany is credited with producing synthetically. Moreover, they are rich in lubricants, which are most badly needed by Germany.

GOOD DISTRIBUTION

An excellent system of distribution connects the oil fields with the refinery at Krasnodar with a daily capacity of 22,000 tons and also with the immediate path of the German armies, and with the refineries at Groznyy, Tuapse, and Makhach Kala at the Caspian Sea. The three latter have a daily capacity of 273,000 barrels and refine a large part of the Baku oil as well. Other important refineries are at Baku and Batum.

Oilfields and refineries are connected with the Black Sea port of Tuapse and with Baku, Groznyy, Makhach Kala, and the industrial regions of the Ukraine with the pipeline terminal at Nakhichevan near Baku.

The Baku oil district produces six times as much oil as the districts previously mentioned. The oil is partly shipped by a double system of pipe lines to Batum in a distance of 500 miles and most of it in rail barges to Makhach Kala for refinement and further distribution to Astrakhan over the huge river systems of the Volga and Ural.

Baku produces the drilling equipment and many chemical industries including synthetic rubber production have been erected there, using oil as the main raw material.

The Russian Black Sea Fleet has left the fortified bases at Nocorossisk, Tuapse, Poti and Batum on the east coast of the Black Sea. But once the flow of oil from both sources of the oilfields north of the Caucasus and Baku are cut off the fleet would be rendered almost useless.

In spite of the overwhelming importance of the 83 per cent share of the Caucasus oil for the Russian war machine and economy, Russia has opened several new sources of oil which in connection with large oil stocks at hand would mitigate the deadly blow which should be expected from such an amputation.

The eastern shores of the Caspian Sea contain oil and the only recently developed Emba district produced 4,500,000 barrels of oil in 1941 or 2 per cent, of the total Russian production. The oil is piped to Orsk, a distance of 435 miles — for the supply of the industries of the Ural and Western Siberia. A big refinery has been built at Orsk with a daily capacity of 26,000 barrels daily.

SECOND IMPORTANT

At Guryev on the mouth of Ural River large stocks of lubricants are accumulated and ready for shipment. The Emba oil district is over 250 miles east of Astrakhan and a Russian delaying action should be able to hold Germans off the oil districts between the Volga and Ural Rivers. Its case of a German victory would increase the numerous oil barges on the Caspian Sea could withdraw to its eastern shores or be used on the Ural.

The most important oil producer however, after the Caucasus, is not the Emba district but the Volga-Ural district, sometimes called the "second Baku." This district alone produced 27,600,000 barrels of oil in 1941 or 11.2 per cent of the total production. Its output has been boosted by fully 50 per cent over 1940 and further extensions may bring its output to 40,000,000 barrels this year or equal to the Rumanian production. These oil deposits are considered to be as large as those of Transcaucasia and stretch from the southern Urals to the Volga along the Petchora and Kam River to Syria and North Kazak.

The important wells at Ishimbaevo, east of Kuibyshev are connected by a pipeline with the four refineries located at Ufa. Other large refineries are at Syzran and Saratov— 38,000 barrels daily—the latter supplied with the oil from Perm.

While these two refineries are threatened by the German push toward the Volga it can be expected that the oil-producing regions located east of the Volga and even east of Kuibyshev will be most fiercely defended. Thus Perm and Ufa should be regarded safe.

Other oil producing regions are in Turkmen near the southern east coast of the Caspian Sea at Nebit Dag, which would be in danger after the loss of Baku. But the rapidly developing Central Asiatic oil region in the Pergana Valley in South Uzbekistan — south of the Balkash Lake —and on the borders of the Tatar and Bashkir republics are very rich in oil and produced already 6,000,000 barrels of oil in 1941 or 2.5 per cent of the total output. Lack of new refineries could be met by transplantation— of which the Russians are masters — of several of the menaced refineries of the Caucasus or Volga region. Production there could easily be stepped up to 10,000,000 barrels and more.

SAKHALIN DISTRICT

Finally, Sakhalin in the Far East produces 4,000,000 barrels of oil annually divided equally between Russia and Japan and refined at Khabarovsk and a recently built refinery at Nokilaevsk. In view of the Far Eastern situation not much reliance can be put on this source but the Far East has great stocks of oils which would carry its modernized war machines over the most critical months in case of a Japanese move.

Thus even after the loss of the Caucasus and the Caspian Sea oil districts of Emba and Nebit-Dag the Russian oil production could reach 55,000,000 to 60,000,000 barrels each year, and considerably more next year if some of the oil equipment of the Caucasus can be saved in time and transferred to the Central Region by Germany.

Russia would suffer tremendously under the loss of 83 per cent of its oil output. Great stocks of oil have been accumulated, however, and in addition with the increasing production Russia's armies would not be crippled.

War tactics would have to be changed, transportation would have to be curtailed, production neglected, but there would be sufficient oil for the war machine. We must not forget that even the German war machine is considered to run on about than 70,000,000 barrels of oil annual consumption under full warfare. The next winter would permit Russia to reduce its war of movement and thus with much gasoline and permit new stocks to accumulate.

FARMS WOULD SUFFER

Russian agriculture would suffer but could find substitutes for fuels from grain and wood, most abundantly available in Siberia, if would permit the continuation of the use of tractors and vehicles. Finally, more horses would be raised in a relatively short period as the oil stocks would permit the maintenance of the present consumption of oil over a period of several years.

Accordingly, earth policy would deprive Germany of the conquered oil fields not for several months. But it could not be prevented from utilizing the abundant oil resources of the Caucasus sooner or later, once in possession of this region.

From the Caucasus German armies would threaten the oil of Iraq and Iran and make the United Nations position there most precarious. The well-developed Russian river and canal system would permit the distribution of the oil to the Ukraine and even to Poland and Baltic river systems to the consuming centres of Germany.

Even if Russia can withdraw all its 40,000 tank cars and the large number of oil barges, destroy all pipelines and oil wells and save the Black Sea Fleet by the concession of free passage through the Bosphorus to United Nations ports, the whole strategic situation would have to be changed.

Germany would have gained a most important base on her way to India, and its strong air fleet, once supplied with the urgently needed oil, could harass the United Nations supply lines in the Middle East and keep the Russians at bay behind the Urals with the main instrument of the air force and a relatively small land army in the east. Thus, the bulk of the German army would be freed to fight elsewhere.

BRITISH COLONIAL DEPENDENCIES GROWING TOWARD NATIONHOOD

BY SIR DONALD CAMERON, G.C.M.G., K.B.E.

* * * * *

Sir Donald Cameron was Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Tanganyika Territory from 1924-31; was Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Nigeria from 1931-35. He is author of "My Tanganyika Service," published 1939.

A striking fact of the following list is the number of colonies acquired by conquest in the Spanish-French and Dutch Wars of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries; which accordingly were not wars of aggression started by Great Britain.

In some cases, for instance, Mauritius, the islands were made to safeguard Britain's own sea routes against enemy warships which were operating from their bases. At the time, moreover, conquest of territory in war was a well accepted principle. If Britain had lost dependencies in these wars and the enemy had succeeded in winning, the foe would have retained the spoils.

THIRTY-ONE DEPENDENCIES

Another interesting feature is that, apart from the Pacific, Africa and the Mediterranean, so many of Britain's present dependencies had no indigenous inhabitants, or but a small number.

Thirty-one dependencies are included in my list, and of these, nine were acquired by conquest (Jamaica, British Guiana, Trinidad, Grenada, St. Lucia, Ceylon, Mauritius, Gibraltar and Cyprus); two (St. Vincent and Dominica) were in dispute in the eighteenth century between Great Britain and a foreign power and were assigned by treaty to the former; six (Bermuda, Bahamas, British Honduras, Barbados, St. Kitts and Antigua) were "settled" from Great Britain or other colonies, three of them being at that time without inhabitants; four (Uganda, Kenya, Zanzibar and Nyasaland) were occupied (with reluctance) to stop the slave trade; the same consideration applies to part of Nigeria (the old colony of Lagos); one (Sierra Leone) was occupied to establish a home for repatriated African slaves; three (Gambia, Gold Coast and the greater part of Nigeria) grew from trading stations; one (Hong Kong) was ceded by treaty for purposes of trade; three (Fiji, Malaya and Malta) were taken under the British Crown at the request of their rulers or their people (in the case of Malaya, part of this area was acquired by exchange with the Dutch); and two (Falklands and Northern Rhodesia) were occupied, the former being uninhabited and the latter sparsely inhabited.

BAHAMAS Settled from England in the seventeenth century. Then inhabited; the Spanish in earlier years having taken the Caribs to work in the mines of Cuba.

BRITISH HONDURAS Settled in the seventeenth century by adventurers from Jamaica, of which it remained a dependency until late in the nineteenth century. Some persons sparsely occupied by Indians.

BRITISH GUIANA Originally settled by the Dutch, some localities being sparsely occupied by Carib Indians and other tribes. Captured by the British early in the nineteenth century, who paid the Dutch a capital sum for its cession.

TRINIDAD Great Britain being then at war with Spain, captured the island at the end of the eighteenth century. It had a checkered career under the Spanish and appears to have been but sparsely inhabited when they took possession of it.

TAKEN FROM THE FRENCH

GRENADA Captured from the French, at the end of the eighteenth century. In the early years of their occupation they had been continually harried by the Carib inhabitants.

ST. LUCIA Originally occupied by the French, being then inhabited by Caribs. Possession passed to and from the British and French until it was finally captured by the former, in 1803.

ST. VINCENT In dispute between the French and British for over a century and finally left in the possession of the latter by the Treaty of Versailles (1783). Under the Treaty of Aix-la-Chappelle (1748) they had agreed to abandon the island and Dominica to the Caribs on the condition that the latter renounced all claim "to the other islands."

DOMINICA Its early history as between British and French is much the same as that of St. Vincent, save that in the case of Dominica the original settlement had been made by the British, to whom it was finally ceded in 1763.

ST. KITTS The first settled island of the British West Indies (1623). There were Carib inhabitants at the time. Later French settlements were formed, the whole island being assigned to Great Britain by the Treaty of Versailles (1783.)

ANTIGUA Settled by the British in 1663 and after an interval of French occupation declared a British possession by the Treaty of Breda (1666). Probably some Caribs at the date of the first occupation.

CEYLON Captured from the Dutch in 1796, the Sinhalese government in the interior having been overthrown in 1815.

MAURITIUS Captured from the French in 1810. There were no indigenous inhabitants.

HONG KONG The colony, they a desolate island sparsely inhabited by fishermen, was ceded to Great Britain by China, in 1841.

MALAYA:

1—THE COLONY (Straits Settlements)—

Malacca exchanged with the Dutch for the British Settlements in Sumatra (1824).

PENANG ceded to the Rajа of Kedah by the East India Company at the end of the eighteenth Century, mainly for the purpose of suppressing piracy.

SINGAPORE Taken possession of in 1819 by the British, being then very sparsely inhabited by virtue of a treaty with the Johore prince.

2—The FEDERATED STATES

PERAK Having regard to the anarchy and high rate of taxation, which should be acted upon on all questions other than those touching Malay religion and customs." The Sultan had, in the previous year asked that a British Resident should be sent to help him.

SELANGOR As in Perak (1874) anarchy prevailed among the Malay chiefs and pirates ravaged the coasts and trade. The Sultan's difficulties were such that he was glad to come under British protection.

NEGRI SEMBILAN In 1874 the leading Sultan invited the assistance of the British Government. He maintain his rule.

PAHANG In 1888 the Sultan applied for and obtained British protection.

3—THE UNFEDERATED STATES

KEDAH PERIS. TRENGANU and KELANTAN By a Treaty of 1909 the suzerainty over these four States was transferred from Siam to Great Britain.

JOHORE In 1895 the Sultan undertook to receive a British Agent having the functions of a consular officer; in 1910 the Sultan, having had an unofficial adviser for some years, reorganized his government with assistance of the Straits Settlements government.

The British Government in each case is the adviser and the protector. In the Federated as well as the Unfederated States the status of the Sultans as ruling princes has always been recognized and respected.

FIJI In 1859, the most powerful chief offered the sovereignty of the Islands to Great Britain, an offer that was refused. After years of grave disorder and strife the British Government, in October 1874, accepted a cession of the sovereignty from the principal chiefs, from whom the offer had come earlier in the year.

EAST AFRICAN COLONIES:

UGANDA, KENYA ZANZIBAR and NYASALAND. Great Britain, with reluctance and halting steps, first acquired power in these dependencies for one reason only, that is to stop the slave trade, her efforts to do so by sea having proved ineffective.

NORTHERN RHODESIA The country was occupied by the British South African Company (Royal Charter 1889) and administered by them as part of their territories, until taken over by the Crown in 1924. Generally speaking the "penetration" by the company of what is now Northern Rhodesia was peaceful.

WEST AFRICAN COLONIES:

GAMBIA Founded purely for trading purposes, the original "patent" having been granted in 1588 by Queen Elizabeth. Recognized as British by the Treaty of Paris (1814). Great Britain having given up other trading settlements on the adjoining coast to the French.

SIERRA LEONE Founded at the end of the eighteenth century as a home for repatriated slaves and other destitute Africans from overseas. The protectorate was not added until 1896 apparently as one of the consequences of the "partition of Africa" amongst the great European powers in accordance with the Berlin Conference of 1885.

GOLD COAST This colony grew from trading settlements founded by the Danes, the Dutch and the British. The Danes ceded their possessions to the British in 1850, the Dutch following the same course in 1872. The Gold Coast and Nigeria below afford outstanding example of the maxim that those you have established order in one small corner of the world you are compelled by the very need of protecting your own hardwork to the establishment of order in all your frontiers.

NIGERIA Originally three dependencies—Lagos—2- the territory administered by the Royal Niger Company, mainly on the River Niger, and 3- the country to the east of 2- administered as a protectorate by the British Government. Lagos also occupied in 1861 in order to suppress the chief centre of the slave trade in the Bight of Benin. The king who was restored to power by the British being represented by a consul, signed a treaty together with his principal chiefs, agreeing to abolish the export of slaves. Being subsequently unable to adhere to the terms of the treaty owing to internal dissensions led by the slave party and fomented by Portugese slave traders, the king's successor ceded the sovereignty of Lagos and its resident territories to the British Crown in 1861.

As in the case of the Gold Coast the rest of the territory, (2- and 3- above grew from trading settlements the boundaries being defined with Germany and France by treaties governed generally by the principles laid down by the Berlin Conference of 1885.

GIBRALTAR Captured by the British from Spain in 1704 and ceded to the former by the Treaty of Utrecht (1713).

MALTA The islands were captured by the French in 1798, from the Knights of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, on whom they had been bestowed by the Emperor Charles V in 1530. The French surrendered to the Maltese assisted by the British in 1800, and at the request of the people the government was placed in the hands of Great Britain. The islands being finally annexed to the British Crown by the Treaty of Paris in 1814.

CYPRUS
CEDED BY TURKS

CYPRUS After many changes of sovereignty in its somewhat checkered and lengthy history, the island was captured in 1571 by the Turks from the Republic of Venice. It was ceded by the Turks to Great Britain in 1874 for administrative purposes connected with the Ottoman Empire and on the declaration of war by Turkey on Great Britain in 1914 the island was annexed to the British Crown.

FALKLANDS Somewhat sporadic attempts at settlements (and garrisons) in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries were made by the French, the Spaniards, the British and Buenos Aires, the last named having established a settlement in 1820, which was destroyed by the United States of America, in 1831. The islands being then devoid of settlements by other powers and otherwise uninhabited, their occupation was resumed by the British Government in 1833.

In these diverse manners Great Britain acquired her present-day dependencies. Some of them have been under the British Crown for centuries, others for more decades. It would be useful here to look at the whole British Empire as it is constituted today.

The British Empire, as it is popularly called, would be better described as the British Commonwealth of Nations and Peoples, together with India, Newfoundland and Southern Rhodesia; those two terms "nations" and "peoples" being used with a purpose to describe two different stages in constitutional development.

In the first, the nations have attained the status of full self-government and embrace the free and independent members of the British Commonwealth, with their own independent parliaments and fiscal systems; each with its own sovereign, although owing to the accident of history, that sovereignty is vested in one person, each with its own diplomatic representation abroad. They comprise the governments of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, of Canada, of Australia, of New Zealand, of South Africa and of Eire (although the last named is not in all respects constitutionally the same as the others.) The Government of Canada, for instance, is "His Majesty's Government in Canada," and is quite separate from, and independent of "His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom."

India and Burma have been set on the same path to self-government; Southern Rhodesia is practically self-governing — for example, the decision as to the extent she should participate in the war depended on her own free choice, expressed in her own free parliament; and in Newfoundland there is at the moment a form of transitory government which will disappear with her financial embarrassments (the United Kingdom came to her aid), restoring her again to the status of an entirely-self-governing nation, or Dominion, as the members of the Commonwealth are commonly designated.

So much for the nations of the Commonwealth and the countries which are approaching full self-government. Now I come to the "peoples" of the British Commonwealth, comprising what is known as the Dependent Empire; to the colonies, the protectorates and the mandated territories, not yet risen to that state of political and economic development which would permit them "to stand by themselves" as free self-governing constitutional entities. Some of them are obviously too small to become by themselves self-governing nations.

ULTIMATE OBJECTIVE IS FREEDOM

Each of those dependencies has a guardian power who acts, in the modern conception, if British colonial administration, as its trustee until the ward can attain full manhood and stand alone. But it is not alone as in the large territories, of the part of a federation or constitutional grouping in the case of the smaller dependencies. Again, through what we may call the "accident of history," most of the dependencies are grouped under His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom but the governments of Australia, New Zealand and South Africa now have their colonial wards also.

The frequently avowed policy of His Majesty's Government, expressed from time to time in the House of Commons and elsewhere, is to build up and foster the development of each dependency with the ultimate objective of its becoming a free nation or part of a free nation, however long the process must be under the complications of local laws and conditions.

INTERIM
NATIVE COUNCILS

In the African dependencies, where developments of native institutions as they are understood in Britain cannot be the force of circumstances be rapid, a system has been introduced of local (native) administration whereunder the chief and his council of advisers, selected according to local institutions, with the addition of educated Africans, administer the affairs of their people under the general guidance of British officers. These units of local administration have their own treasuries and their own revenues (in the main a proportion of the direct taxation), their own courts of justice (graded according to their proved capacity for dealing with native) their own social services, such as public health and education, in supplement to the services of the central government.

These native administrations are gradually being built up into, first, regional, and thereafter provincial councils for the discussion of the affairs of the people, and it is thought by some persons that constitutional development may take shape along these lines instead of following more rigidly the pattern of parliamentary government as it has developed through the centuries in the United Kingdom.

It is clear that this approach must afford a more expeditious course to the goal. Instead of parliamentary government we should have to wait until all the more prominent tribes and communities can be represented adequately by men drawn from themselves, who are capable of expressing their wishes and aspirations and making effective advance in a centralized government of the country as a whole.

Nigeria, for example, is a land in which there are many millions of inhabitants belonging to hundreds of different tribes and communities, each speaking a tongue that few of the remainder understand. Members of them still unaware of even the existence of others. As a consequence, Nigerians are wholly lacking in any kind of national consciousness and political cohesion.

Future constitutional development in the dependencies is being actively studied in Great Britain by the government and by other organizations who are keenly interested in the destinies of the colonial peoples. It is not an easy problem, and it is probable that there is no one approach to it.

People have, throughout the Empire, not least in the dependencies, fallen into the bad habit of thinking and speaking of democracy as a political conception only.

Democracy is the doctrine of youth During its comparatively short history it has released immense reserves of human energy, enterprise and inventiveness, and has made possible triumphs of human progress unparalleled in any earlier age. Its work has only begun. It is only on the march. How far is this way of life, which indispensable foundation to a system of political democracy, to be found reflected in the minds and habits of the peoples of the dependencies?

Not a little, I believe, in the older dependencies at least, in order to afford sound foundation for progressive constitutional development.

But the facts must be faced squarely. There is particularly the economic factor. For example, if the whole of the West Indies were federated, there is no possibility that they could, within any period of time that now can be envisaged, be economically and financially strong enough to carry the burdens including the burden that is imperative if a country is a Sovereign State, that of making an adequate contribution to its own defence — the enormous burdens that real sovereignty must involve.

NOVEL SUGGESTION FOR AUTONOMY

But that consideration affords no excuse for anything like a policy of mere negation. There are progressive steps of importance that can be taken.

A suggestion has been made, for example, that dependencies such as the West Indies should be treated no longer as separated and dissociate entities, suspended in the air between a system of government from Downing Street and a vision of Dominion status, but as real, integral parts of Britain, although separated from her geographically.

As such they should be granted autonomy in their local affairs by a progressive policy of devolution of powers, with representation in the Mother Parliament, or in an assembly or council set up in London for the express purpose of dealing with colonial affairs. A committee of the Privy Council would serve the purpose if representation in the home parliament could not, for overriding constitutional reasons, be contrived.

DORLAND

Dorland, July 25 — Harvest work is rushing along, without any let up. Threshing of fall grain has begun and spring grain is being cut as rapidly as possible.

The W. I. S. held a pot luck dinner and quilting in the school room of the church on Wednesday. During the afternoon a business meeting was held to take care of business connected with the Society, and also the Women's Association.

Mrs. Andrew Maurer is visiting relatives at Milton.

A number from here made expeditions to the north in search of huckleberries, but were not very richly rewarded for their efforts.

Warning Against Too Much Sun Bathing

A warning against too much sun bathing is given by Dr. Norman Wrong, in an article in "Health Magazine", organ of the Health League of Canada. Dr. Wrong, demonstrator in dermatology, University of Toronto, discusses facts and fallacies about the skin.

The chief function of the skin is to protect and cover, but "Equally important, however, are its functions of heat regulation, of elimination of sweat, and of acquainting us with our surroundings through its sensory nerves," he declares.

"The skin is admirably suited to its manifold physical agents such as heat, cold, drying, wetting abrasives and minor violence." Dr. Wrong points out. "If this were not so, humans could not live in the tropics, the arctic or the desert and in the water. Fats and oils can be applied to the skin and will lubricate and soften, but are not absorbed. The skin can not be nourished or "fed" by rubbing in a cream any more than a piece of leather can be "fed" by rubbing it. Vitamins added to a skin are practically useless in their effect."

Our skin resists chemicals extremely well, according to Dr. Wrong, with the exception of such rare chemicals as mustard gas. It also resists remarkably well the invasion of most bacteria encountered. Pimples and boils are purely local skin infections, he declares.

It is dangerous to have too much sun, although "our skin offers fair protection against the ultraviolet rays of the sun. Tanning is an effort on the part of our skin to protect us further and of course, the negro has the most protection of all against the sun's rays. Sun bathing, in moderation, is very healthful and undoubtedly increase our resistance to infection, and is a sure prevention of rickets. However, the vogue for sun-bathing is undoubtedly as harmful as moderate sun - bathing is beneficial. Severe sunburn can make a person as ill as a heat burn, and sunstroke is not uncommon here."

"In Australia," Dr. Wrong states, "where sun bathing is almost a religion, the amount of skin cancer is greater than anywhere else in the world." He concludes: "Fair people must use discretion and moderation in their sun-bathing."

Recruiting Drive For Veterans Guard Canada Under Way in Dominion

Kingston, July 31. — An intensive three week recruiting drive, aimed at increasing the strength of the Veterans Guard of Canada, has begun in Military District No. 2, it was announced by Lieut.-Colonel W. H. D. MacMahon, District Recruiting Officer.

This drive, not solely a district endeavour, approaches national scale with all military districts in Canada putting forth the same effort.

Plans for the campaign in M. D. No. 2 were discussed last Friday afternoon when recruiting representatives of the Veterans Guard of Canada from the district met with the senior recruiting officer for the purpose of correlating their recruiting programmes.

Lieut.-Colonel A. L. Neemandin, Officer Commanding the 2nd Battalion, 2nd Regiment de Hull and Ottawa Area Recruiting Officer, addressed the gathering and at the conclusion of his talk answered questions concerning problems that might be met by recruiting officers during the campaign.

Speaking of the Veterans Guard of Canada and the prominent role played by them in the present war, Colonel MacMahon stated: "The Y. M. C. A. are playing a very definite part in the present World War and they did as younger men in the First World War. It is hoped that many who have not yet answered this second call will do so as soon as possible. Join up with your old comrades, now."

Among those present at the meeting were: Major H. K. Clifton, No. 10 Company, Veterans Guard of Canada, Parnham; Captain W. K. Harrison, No. 3 Company Veterans Guard of Canada, Port Hearn; and Kingston; Lieut. G. L. Howard, No. 10 Company, Farnham; Captain Jasper Dorman, Veterans Guard of Canada, Farnham Internment Camp; Major C.M. Powell, Air Reserve Company, Veterans Guard of Canada Brockville; Major C.G. Bradshaw, No. 2 Company, Veterans Guard of Canada, Bowmanville; Major J. W. Cobb, No. 13 Company Veterans Guard of Canada, Ottawa, and Captain R. A. MEN CALLED UP ASKED TO OBSERVE ALL REGULATIONS

Must Make Application for Postponement of Service in 8 Days

Ainslie W. Greeve, chairman Division "C" Department of National War Services, Kingston, issued a memorandum, late last week asking that all registrants in the Dirisoire operate in publishing a notice to the effect that many men called for training under the National War Services Regulations are not complying with the Regulations in regard to the time that their applications for postponement should be made. The Regulations provide that all applications or postponement must be made to the Divisional Registrar in writing within eight days of the date appearing on the notice directing the recruit to report for medical examination.

Instructions have been received from headquarters at Ottawa that this Regulation must be strictly enforced. Consequently, all recruits who receive notice to attend for medical examination are warned that they must make application for postponement within eight days of the date on the notice directing medical examination.

When the notice is sent to the recruit, a slip with printed instructions is enclosed and this contains a clear statement of the necessity of making application within eight days, but in spite of this, man recruits seem to overlook these instructions and file their applications for postponement after the eight-day period.

The period between the sending out of the notice for medical examination and the date on which the recruit is to report to the training centre is necessarily short. Refusal to consider an application filed after the eight days has expired with doubtless cause hardship to otherwise deserving applicants for postponement. On the other hand, if the Regulation is not strictly enforced, there will be needless delay in furnishing the number of men asked for by the Department of National Defence.

NAPANEE SOLDIER AMONG VOLUNTEERS FOR CAN. PARATROOPS

Will Take Training in Georgia, U.S.A.

Lieut. George Vankoughnet, who recently returned from England where he had been for two years to take an officer training course at Brockville is the first Napanee soldier to join the first Canadian Paratroop Battalion. He expects to leave in the near future to train at Fort Benning, Georgia, U.S.A., where the Canadian paratroops will be in training until training facilities have been established in the Dominion.

Hon. J. L. Ralston told the House of Commons last week that a battalion of paratroops had been authorized and that instructors were leaving for the United States to get immediate instruction on paratroop training there.

It was the Fort Benning camp to which he referred, spokesmen said. They expressed belief a considerable body of troops would go there in the immediate future.

EXPENSIVE UNITS

The training of paratroops takes a considerable establishment. One of the most expensive and intricate part of the set-up is the high jumping tower where men make their first descents—machine - controlled to prevent accidents while they are learning the ropes.

In later phases of training the Royal Canadian Air Force will provide safe - operation but temporarily the paratroop battalion is a strictly army venture.

Some little time will elapse — perhaps six months — before arrangements are completed for full training in Canada. Last location of the proposed Canadian school has not been made public.

Col. Ralston's announcement that the instructors would take their training in the United States was taken as an indication that Canada's instructional policy will follow closely the American system. Paratroop training has been in progress south of the border, for some time.

CERTAIN PRISONERS TO BE RELEASED FOR WAR WORK

Toronto, (C.P. — Provincial Secretary H. C. Nixon announced arrangements with the Ministry of Labour under which offenders against the Statutes of Canada in Ontario might be allowed to work out their quarters of their prison terms in agriculture and other war industries.

Prisoners considered for parole must be volunteers and give all required assurance of good conduct. Prisoners convicted of sex crimes involving violence, prisoners with extensive criminal records, habitual drunkards, vagrants and drug addicts will not be considered for parole.

Paroles will be limited to prisoners who have completed one-quarter of their sentences and who have satisfactory conduct records.

"Every possible precaution will be taken in deciding which prisoners will be recommended in order to protect the public interest and the proper administration of justice but certainly there is no profit to the nation in keeping able-bodied men and women behind prison walls in these days of desperate emergency if competent, trained officials decide they may safely and properly be working, outside under supervision," Mr. Nixon said.

As a flight of bombers sailed over enemy territory on the target of the day, a gunner poked his camera over the side and made this photograph of a Sirling bomber, surrounded by anti-aircraft gunbursts. On every mass bombing raid — over Hamburg, Essen and all the other huge Nazi munitions centres—flighting fliers of the R.C.A.F. do their share in the work of crippling the enemy's munitions industry. Any one of those chunks of flak in the above photo could have meant tragedy to the courageous Canadian crew, but it is a matter of record that they went on to the target, dropped the bomb load and returned safely to their base. —R.C.A.F. THE SESSION

The Session of Parliament, just concluded, has been a long and a trying one. Of course, the members were paid and even received travelling expenses for the Easter vacation, nevertheless the work was exacting for those who had interest enough in what was going on, to attend all or nearly all the sessions. The budget was perhaps the highlight in that it branched-out in new lines, and imposed taxation which, a few years ago would have seemed fantastic. It is a splendid commentary on the spirit of loyalty and determination of the Canadian people, that they accepted this with so little objection.

The Hong Kong discussion was a disappointment. Undoubtedly, the Government used its majority to stifle adequate discussion. It is not unlikely that Colonel Drew's letter had some political significance, and yet discounting all that, there was no real reason why his letter should not have been discussed. Such a discussion would have let the light in on a very serious business, the whole account of which has not yet been told.

One of the most interesting features of the session has been the way in which Mr. Hanson, the Leader of the Conservative Party, has conducted himself. It is amazing how Mr. Hanson seemed to be on the spot whenever the debate needed him. He has a knowledge of almost every subject which was up for discussion, and showed a keen mind in analyzing proposed legislation. In spite of the fact that Mr. Hanson is supposed only to be filling-in, yet he did an excellent job as Leader of the Opposition, and filled a place worthy of the best opposition leaders.

Our own Member was heard a bit more frequently, usually asking a pertinent question. In the dying days of the session, when estimates were being rushed through with unseemly haste, Mr. Tustin called attention to the fact that $35,000,000 had been voted in exactly 35 minutes. That sort of comment brings home to the average man, in a graphic way, the manner in which money is expended by our governing bodies.

The Government is now left with a lot more power in its hands, a lot of money to collect and spend. The country will not grumble if that power is not abused and if the money is spent wisely and economically.

SELECTIVE SERVICE

The other day we travelled with a former resident of Napanee who had just donned the King's uniform. He was eager and enthusiastic about the prospects. His mind was more at ease, he said, than it had been in months. For a long time he had difficulty in deciding as to where his duty lay. But once having made the decision he was throwing all his energy, all his training and all his gifts into the new work to which he was committed.

This is the experience of hundreds, probably thousands of men in the armed forces. They have put off the decision as to voluntary enlistment, not because of selfishness, nor of self-seeking, but rather because of the difficulty of making a choice as between relative responsibilities. Our friend expressed the disappointment that there had been no way in which this might have been made easier.

Here, our newly-enlisted former Napaneean put his finger on the weakness of our whole approach, as a nation, to the use of manpower. To be sure, there are always those who would evade any responsibility, but, as a general rule, men and women care fundamentally the same. They are moved by appeals to reason, by emotional appeals, and by the appeal to their sense of obligation and responsibility. But, in a State where it is left to each individual to make his own decision as to whether the work he is doing is of national importance, it becomes difficult to arrive at a conclusion.

A selective service programme would examine the case of every individual, and then decide whether the work he was engaged in was the best he could do in the national emergency. That is the method which has been adopted in the United States. It is recognized as the fairest for all. Under such a system no stigma can be attached to the man who carries on in his present work, for all recognize he is where he ought to be.

Canada started from the other point of view—it was each man's personal responsibility. That method has worked up to a point. Indeed, we have been told by Premier King that we have more men in training now than can be cared for at the moment. It happened in Canada as it always happens. Whenever a policy once adopted has to be changed, division of opinion is bound to assert itself, and when that becomes pronounced, as it did in the case of selective service, it might even wreck national unity.

Now, however, the majority of the people have decided in favor of the change, and the Government has been given power to enact it. It is to be hoped that when the selective method finally becomes law, it will be all-embracing and will review the case of every man. Then there will be no embarrassment on the part of any who should be left at their present occupation. There are many men in this district, for example, who are working on farms. The Government is urging food production. It is quite conceivable that many of the men now on farms should be urged to stay there. But that responsibility should be assumed by the Government. Every person should be where he can serve best the national cause.

V

TAKING IT SERIOUSLY

The Germans are now beginning to take the threat of a second front, seriously. They have practically ignored it until quite recently. In spite of the way in which the United Nations have kept Germany on edge by the continued battering by heavy bombing raids and the rumors of a second front, Germany has officially paid little attention to the threat of a landing on the continent.

But now that her troops are engaged in an all-out effort against the Russians, the Germans know that if their forces should be divided, such a division would constitute a serious setback to the campaign of the summer. And so they are seeking to belittle the suggestion of a United Nations' landing in Europe. They are seeking to impress the British and the French with their ability to meet any condition which may come from an invasion threat.

Last week, the German forces paraded for hours, through the streets of Paris, in order that the French might be impressed with the ability of the German army to meet the British and Americans, should they attempt a landing. Of course, that, to some extent was stage-acting, and yet we have learned enough to know that the Germans are capable of almost unbelievable exploits.

In addition to this bit of play-acting, the Germans have officially announced that they are ready to meet any condition. The official German communication says: "Behind the European coastal defenses extending along the Atlantic and canal coasts, from Biarritz across the North Sea up the Kirkenes, there are situated hundreds of newly-constructed and enlarged German air bases. Their heavy concrete runways enable German planes to take off and land in all sort of weather.

"The mammoth airdromes are invisible to the eye of the enemy and elaborate safeguarding measures assure them protection against air attacks. They constitute the bases for powerful German pursuit and fighting units which will carry out their successful raids on the British Isles, as has been demonstrated in the recent attacks on Birmingham and English coastal points."

There may be much truth in this. As a matter of fact we can hardly conceive of the Germans not having made every effort to protect the invasion bases and the shores of Northern France from the threat of British and American landings. But the significance of the announcement lies in the fact that the Germans want it to make it at all. They have made a great display of their strength in Paris, they have announced to the world that they have improved their defenses of France, and all this indicates that they are rather apprehensive as to what might happen when the Allied nations finally make their landings.

In the meantime we may assume that the Russian campaign is making ever and ever greater inroads into the Western reserves, and it may well be that the strain on them is weakening the French defences to the point where it has become necessary for Goebbels to try and frighten the Allies by propaganda. However, we have been deceived before by assuming that the Germans were bluffing and we may be making the same delay in opening a second front is due to the determination of the United Nations' General Staff, never again to underrate the power of the enemy, and as well to prepare for every possible contingency.

TORONTO THE GOOD

The time has apparently gone when we can think of the Queen City as "Toronto The Good." Toronto is a great city and a beautiful one. But, apparently, there are conditions there which have made it necessary for the City Council to take unusual action. The Board of Police Commissioners has notified the appointment of eight uniformed Police Women, who will walk a beat in the Jarvis-Dundas area. This has been made necessary, it is stated, because of the rowdyism which has marked this particular area. In making the recommendation, the Police Commission apparently acted on a report by Inspector Robert Davie, who spoke of the congregating of undesirables in the Dundas-Jarvis section. This, he said, was due to the prevalence of ten hotels in the district. He criticised severely, the news report says, the manner in which the hotels are operated, and said: "The primary object seems to be the selling of beer and not the good conduct and the good name of the hotel."

All of this is just too bad. And yet how far away it sounds from the beautiful sentiments expressed by the Moderation League, a few years ago, when pressing for so-called government control. We were to have a system of government control of liquor which would do away with all the evils then prevalent. It was to be a new order, a new, clean, modern way of handling a commodity with an unsavory reputation. But now, after a few years' experience, we have a picture of fabulous profits made by a man who began his liquor selling career, as Mr. Coldwell says: "In a Regina junk yard." Drinkeness, open and unabated. Beverage rooms in many and many places, not only in the cities but in the smaller towns as well, are veritable cesspools of iniquity.

And yet this system is permitted to flourish, debauching the people, dithdrawing money from sorely-needed war industries, weakening our war effort, breeding fights, rowdyism and lowered morale.

This situation which may more than any other becomes the worst fifth-column in the nation.

MOBILE SQUADS REPAIR TARGET TOWNS

BY MAJOR GENERAL

At nine o'clock on Monday morning after one of the Luftwaffe's "revenge raids" on the British midland city of Norwich, the "phone rang in the London office of the Director of Emergency Works, a hundred miles away, with a message that damage was widespread and assistance was needed as quickly as possible.

At three-thirty that afternoon a party of men of the Special Repair Service of Britain's Ministry of Works, who had been rounded up by telephone from less urgent work in London. The next morning they and another 250 who arrived a few hours later were assisting the local contractors, already mobilized and at work, repairing damaged houses and factories, helping to clear blitzed roads and public utility services and restoring the city to normal life.

This is a typical example of the work done by this directorate, which was established in the midst of the New Year blitz of 1941. Since then it was anticipated, for mobilizing building labor and materials for the rapid repair of damaged war factories. In the actual event, however, the greater part of the work of the organization has been to assist the British Ministry of Health and the local authorities to repair private houses, often far from any industrial area. After severe blitzes Britain has been faced with thousands of damaged homes in each damaged factory. After a recent raid on Exeter work started with 300 men and finished with 1,500; and 6,000 homes were repaired in twelve days.

The original scope of the work was rapidly widened to include assistance in street clearance and repair and the restoration of public utility services, railways, dockyards shops, stores and depots.

The organization is a simple one and decentralization of executive authority is its keynote. Britain is divided into twelve civil defence regions, and in each region there is all assistance of Emergency Works, with Emergency Works officers under him in every town likely to be an air target.

This regional team is kept as independent as possible and takes a great pride in getting the work as soon as, sometimes before, an air raid has finished; then clearing up the damage in the shortest possible time, with three weeks as its aim. A complete intelligence system is maintained in each region so that maintained in each region so that local officers know exactly where suitable labor and stores are located within convenient reach.

Emergency stocks of building materials are maintained in various places and each target town has sufficient for seven days' intensive first aid work after a blitz. In these seven days estimates are made and reinforcements of materials are poured in before local stocks are exhausted.

The hardest worker in a region has wide powers in mobilizing labor for first aid work. Private works are stopped and men are drawn off other constructional work in the neighborhood, and if necessary from more distant places.

Sometimes, particularly in isolated towns, it is impossible for local labor to take care of widespread damage. To assist in these, and indeed in any severe case, the Ministry operates a special mobile force known as the Special Repair Service which can be rushed to any savagely blitzed town. There are now between 4,000 and 5,000 of these men — building operatives released from the army for this important work. They are dispersed to key points and when things are quiet they carry on with local repair and salvage or emergency new construction work. When needed, they go off at once by train with their tools and equipment and start their difficult and often dangerous work.

Britain's Ministry of Works is establishing a further super - mobile army organized in units of sixty men, each with its own specially designed road transport, consisting of large vehicles fitted up as "sleepers" for sixteen men each with kit, and with special kitchen, canteen, tool and equipment stocks.

A convoy like this is on the road within an hour of receiving an SOS. The men may be sent in their mobile homes while they are on the job; billets are often difficult to get in a badly damaged town until the restorers have done their work.

The Special Repair Service prides itself on speed "off the mark." It is helped by the fine work of its surveyors and other officials who are usually out in the streets during a raid and begin the work on a target immediately. As the leading official of the Ministry said recently:

"Speed of action is of enormous value psychologically, as well as material, particularly in the early stages when not only the public but the Nazis themselves think themselves are a little stunned."

Take, for example, the case of Plymouth, which is one of the targets of some of the Nazis' most savage raids. In the 1941 blitz on the city more than 400 men from all over the country were engaged at work and within four or five days a result nearly 3,000 houses were repaired. Within ten days of the last raid they and occupied within two days. The Emergency Works Officer was bombed out of three offices in the Plymouth raids and operated quickly and efficiently.

Much the same thing occurred on Liverpool's Merseyside, one of the Service's toughest assignments. Here, the Emergency Works Director was bombed out of those successive blitzes and for some time had no telephone. But within thirty-six hours of the first raid last May, 4,000 men were mustered from the city to assist in clearing up; and within another week a total of 15,000 men had been brought in to help the local people, who were doing a great job themselves.

Each night for nine nights the city was bombed, fires were set going and houses, factories, roads, railways and docks badly hit, with great loss of useful order. During one raid volunteers were called for from amongst the repair men to unload a number of lorries ship which was on fire; there were 150 volunteers and the first to be selected men went on board. The ship steamed out to sea, and unloading was resumed in an explosion could do no damage to the docks, although the work was done more than a little to the men aboard.

FACTORY REPAIRED IN THREE WEEKS

In London a great number of homes have been made habitable again. After the May 1941 raids nearly 30,000 houses were awaiting repair. Yet by the united efforts of the Ministry of Works, the local authorities and the Emergency Works organization the back of the work had been broken by the beginning of July.

Blitzed factories have been repaired with almost incredible speed. For instance, one in the Midlands appeared to be a mere mass of debris recently out of action, with hardly a single vertical or horizontal girder left in its original position on the site. But the local people said it might be repaired, and the task was rushed in to work on the morning after the blitz. By the end of the third night the site had been cleared of debris, within seven days part of the factory was working again, although many of its girders were still bent; within three weeks it was in almost complete operation.

Since the directorate was formed in February 1941, it has taken on a number of new jobs outside its original province. One of these is the construction of camps and hostels.

In towns under almost continuous bombing the housing of workers and homeless is a grave problem. Last summer the British Ministry of Health decided that hostel camps should be built away from the main

HOW AMERICAN AND BRITISH BOMBERS REACH RUSSIANS

SPEED IS THE WATCHWORD IN SENDING PLANES AND TANKS BY NORTHERN ROUTE OR FROM IRAN BASE

BY R. MAILLARD STEAD

The Christian Science Monitor

London. — The increasingly important role of American and British airplanes in the defense of Russia is emphasized by current bombing feats of United States planes behind the German lines.

Axis military advances have been far more obvious and spectacular since Britain's French Army was routed in occupation to deny this territory to Axis influence and safeguard the oil fields there and in Iraq.

Such a transformation has wrought in what was formerly tight bottleneck for the vital Russian-bound goods which are received and sent on to Russia declared to be three times what was last December.

SPEED IS WATCHWORD

But the question of airplanes is the watchword as it is for passing up of trucks by Russian drivers Bandar Shahpur.

The bulk of goods passing Iran under the organization of Interallied Communications Mission is raw material from United States, and Persian Gulf ports have the benefit of modern American direction and operated by American engineers.

Very little has been heard of Britain's Tenth Army since it was landed in Iran. But it has been the a job of direct importance and assistance to the Soviet by forcing Americans, Russians, and other nationals, both civilian and military, to expand airfields, railroads and highways.

One important development supplies other than those airborne is the extension of the Trans-Iranian Railway from the port of Khorramshah with an inland junction the railway, river, and road at Ahwaz.

Other linkups are reported as being completion in forthcoming days when they are finished there will be two routes from Persian into Russia, one east of the Caspian, and other west.

Meanwhile for these long supply arrangements of the United Nations by way of Iran, the Britons have to go on fighting with material aid limited by the exigencies of present and future.

In this they have the assurance of direct military help from the British-American forces when they are in position to launch operations on a scale big enough to use the strength from Russia. It now seems a matter of urgency that this should mean soon.

Smith, on arriving in and which swung the other way. Even the windows were set. Smith, alarmed, rushed back to the house.

Some burglar must be going to be in my office, he told his family.

Oh, it isn't that, cried his daughter, glancing at the sheet. These notes are in John's handwriting. He's coming to your office today, ask you to let him marry me.

ABRAHAM'S INTERCESSORY PRAYER
Lesson Text: Genesis 18: 23-33

Sodom was destroyed. The men of that day believed it had been destroyed because of its sin. They knew that it was because that it was built on a road and bad, but, they knew that it was built on a road and bad, but they knew that it was evil. It would ultimately bring its downfall. Evil does not last long. In the city or Toronto, according to the recent newspaper reports there is one section which is so drunken, so evil, that it has been found impossible to deal with it by means of ordinary methods. Right police women are being put on the beat there, and drunken brawls which make the night hideous around the Jarvis-Dundas area. The writer recently visited a city where drunkenness on the streets was a common sight, where fighting was an everyday occurrence, where evil, in result of these, was in open evidence, everywhere. They will destroy a city; they destroy a civilization. Only let a civilization become wealthy, drunken and obsessed with the ideal of making fortunes and gambling, and the end cannot be far off. Because these matters do not provoke themselves, is no reason to suppose that they are less real. Unfortunately, they are done more than a little to the men aboard.

Sodom was destroyed. The men of that day believed it had been destroyed because of its sin. They knew that it was because that it was built on a road and bad, but, they knew that it was built on a road and bad, but they knew that it was evil. It would ultimately bring its downfall. Evil does not last long. In the city or Toronto, according to the recent newspaper reports there is one section which is so drunken, so evil, that it has been found impossible to deal with it by means of ordinary methods. Right police women are being put on the beat there, and drunken brawls which make the night hideous around the Jarvis-Dundas area. Because these matters do not provoke themselves, is no reason to suppose that they are less real. Unfortunately, they are done more than a little to the men aboard.

God was getting to destroy Sodom because of its evil. Abraham pleaded with God to save the city for the sake of the few people who lived there. Thank God there are publicspirited people in every community, who are willing to appeal to God on behalf of its citizens. Certainly there are those who are anxious to save. They may be in the minority; they may be unpopular; they do not help conform to the prevailing vices. These people, having caught a vision, are willing to make themselves unpopular for the thing they believe in, are the spearhead of the movements which, in the end, have kept a spark of civilization alight.

Abraham was one of these. He pleaded with God to save the city for the sake of fifty good men. For the sake of forty-five. For the sake of forty, and finally for the sake of ten. But, alas! the ten were not available.

Ten good men, ten dynamic personalities, could have been found to save a country. Time and again the long history of the world has become evident. The few men have given themselves with courage, with moral conviction, and with a zeal to the cause for which they stood, and have saved the situation.

The tragedy of the situation is that the good and the evil are destroyed together. The innocent ways suffer for the guilty, and they suffer along with the guilty. Sodom, not many righteous men were found, but whatever of them were there, they, too, suffered the fate of the evil. A wicked son brings grief and sorrow to the heart of a wayward daughter wrecks the hopes, ambitions and spirit of a mother. All alike bear the results of the sin of those who are nearest and dearest to the elements of God.

So, too, in our larger civic and national life, the innocent suffer with the guilty, and all alike suffer the grips of the evil of some. God is our prayers. But the human element of cause and effects is involved in the physical world, is involved, too, in the spiritual. There is silence in the heaven when it comes to evil, and suffer.

WHAT TO DO WHEN THE BOMBERS COME

The Following is one of the Most Important Broadcasts yet Made for the Guidance of Canadians in time of war. It was Delivered under the Auspices of the Department of Public Information.

Usually on these nightly broadcast, when we invite you into the office of the Director of Public Information, we tell you of things in the war effort—what the navy, the army and the air force are doing to protect you—what arms have been manufactured for your defence—what legislation has been passed for your benefit. But we are going to discuss with you a phase of defence which is distinctly your responsibility. That is Air Raid Precautions.— Briefly, aims of the A.R.P. are threefold, the prevention of civilian casualties and property damage; instruction in the proper methods of protecting civilians and property and the organization of necessary services to deal with casualties and property damage when they do occur.

Although the government is giving both financial and directive assistance to municipal areas, the business of Air Raid Precautions is your business—you homemakers, men of office workers—you fathers and mothers—YOU—and you children. It is the business of all of you who are not in uniform, no matter what your status in life, no matter what your age.

This business of Air Raid Precautions, next to military defence is perhaps the most important phase of any country's war effort.

It is the job of the armed forces—the sailors, the soldiers and the airmen to keep the invaders out and to reduce to a minimum the damage from the skies. It is the duty of the civilians to be a well - disciplined group—to keep out of the way — to look after their own homes — their own lives — and to leave the armed forces free for defence. It is the duty of the airmen to keep enemy planes from coming over defended territory — they cannot be expected to look after damage done by incendiary bombs. To the navy falls the responsibility of chasing down enemy ships — they cannot look after the damage done by shelling of shores.

In case of an attempted invasion a people who might become an undisciplined mob could turn a whole tide in favor of an invading army, and could create a military disaster of the first order. That happened on the continent of Europe.

* * *

A large part of the success of the defence of the British Isles during the big blitz can be traced directly to the wonderful behaviour of the little people of England. And their behaviour is directly traceable to the excellent organization of the Air Raid Precaution Scheme.

Their air raid wardens, their fire watchers, their ambulance units — all had a job to do. Those whose business it was to look after their own homes, families, and property knew exactly what they were supposed to do. They knew the air force was looking after the invading planes —they knew the navy was watching for invading ships—they knew the army was standing ready in case of invading troops. But what was more important ,they knew what their own job was and they did it. They were never undisciplined and they stood up to the blitz. That is one reason why the bombing could not take the heart out of them. They were a united people working together in an effort to protect their own property. They were not a frightened, panicky mob.

That lack of organization is an asset to the enemy was shown too tragically well during the German's westward-drive. The blitzkrieg was so fast there was no opportunity to organize the people. Consequently, when the Nazis started to move they found these people working to their advantage. They cluttered up the roads — blocking the passage of Allied troops going in the opposite direction. If they got in the way of the Germans they were shot. The British soldiers, however, are not made that way. They tried to clear the roads — they moved out into the fields and their whole advance was slowed down.

We know by now that the Atlantic and Pacific oceans are not impenetrable barriers — we know that bombings in Canada are within the realm of possibility and we must be prepared for them.

You must remember this. This is not a job that any government can do for any people. In this war the civilians may be right in the front line. Every person in a vulnerable area should know how to put out an incendiary bomb—how to act in case of damage to his property—how to co-operate in the business of blackouts—when to go so he and his family will be safe. These are community responsibilities.

When the army attacks an area from the skies he has one of three objects: To destroy or cripple production directly or indirectly concerned with our war effort; to disorganize communications and transportation; to break down the morale of the civilian population by fire, destruction, casualties and fear.

The objects can be defeated and the enemy frustrated to a great degree if the civilians are trained to control the movement of the population during air raids or other enemy action; if the civilian population has been instructed how and where to take cover and is directed to the best shelter available; if incendiary fires are put out before they become big conflagrations; if people know how to rescue persons trapped in demolished or damaged buildings; if there are facilities for prompt first aid and hospitalization of casualties; if broken water and gas mains, power lines, systems of communication and other public utilities are repaired immediately they are damaged; if temporary repairs can be made to essential buildings if debris is cleared and streets are re-opened and if food and shelter are provided for those who are made homeless. This is a community job —a job for civilians.

The whole matter of Air Raid Precaution has been carefully considered in Ottawa. The administration is headed by Hon. R. J. Manion whose title is Director of Civil Air Raid Precautions. Already the government has distributed two million dollars worth of equipment for emergency and has another five million dollars worth on order which will be distributed as obtainable.

After an exhaustive study of the whole matter of air raids, Canada has been divided into areas on the basis of their vulnerability to attack. Those which have been considered subject to definite risk of enemy bombings include the entire portion of Nova Scotia lying to the eastward Island, all areas bordering on the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the St. Lawrence River in Quebec — as far inland as Montreal — the whole coastal area of British Columbia from the Alaskan to the United States borders as far east as the summit of the Cascade mountains.

Considered subject to lesser risk are the interior of New Brunswick —most of the inland section of Quebec — the whole eastern portion of Ontario to a point just west of Sault Ste. Marie and an area in the southern part of British Columbia close to the international boundary. The rest of the country is not considered vulnerable by National Defence Department.

When Canadians began to think first of the possibility of air raids some communities expected the government to do everything. This, of course, was wrong.

There are two types of defence—active and passive. The active defence is the responsibility of the Navy—the Army and the Air Force — the passive defence is the business of the community — it is your responsibility and mine.

* * *

In peace time there are certain facilities on which we rely for the protection of our homes and property. But just because we know there is a police department we don't leave our doors open and all our valuables scattered around within easy reach of a burglar. Although we know there is a fire department we don't go out and leave fires burning red hot in our stove and cigarettes smouldering in our ash trays. We take precautions. That, on a greatly enlarged scale must be our war-time attitude.

We must do everything possible for the protection of our own property, and when the situation gets beyond us, we must know on whom to rely for assistance. We must realize that this is an emergency and we must work in the community plan for the protection of community property. We must know how to extinguish incendiary bombs not only for the protection of our own houses but for the protection of the community. We must know where to go in case of trouble so we will not overtax the existing facilities. We must educate ourselves for responsibility—that is our duty. Our active forces are doing everything they can for defence, but we, too, must co-operate.

* * *

Your Government is giving all the help it can. It is not taking the whole responsibility, of course, but it is doing more than many other countries. In the United States, the Government is giving equipment and nothing else, while some American cities are spending between 50 cents and $1.50 per capita on Air Raid Precautions. Very few cities in Canada are spending a fraction of that, if anything. Government grants have been supplied many communities in vulnerable areas. In addition to that, as we mentioned before, the Government has spent two million dollars on A.R.P. equipment and has ancthe five million dollars worth on order.

This sort of equipment includes such things as anti-gas suits, anti-gas rubber boots, bandages, firemen's coats, coaches, first aid haversacks and kit bags, steel helmets, hose, pumps, sirens and whistles. Those communities not considered in vulnerable areas will not be given this equipment grants or free equipment but they will be given all the help they need in organization and all the literature available on air raid precautions. Incidentally a large number of these booklets are being run off and they will soon be available to the general public through the bookstores.

For reasons of safety it is not possible to tell you anything of what is being done about the defence of Canada, and for the same reason it is just as important that certain things about Air Raid Precautions cannot be told. Everyone should know what facilities are provided—where to go in case of an air-raid—who is the warden in the block — and as we said before — how to deal with incendiaries, but there are certain phases of even this business of passive defence which cannot be told.

The thing that we, as individuals must remember, is that everything that can be done, is being done. Many of the things which certain people feel should be done did not prove successful in England and other bombed places. Letters continually reach Ottawa on the matter of mass air raid shelters for thousands of people.

These are not being constructed because experiences in England have proved they are not the best type of air raid protection; Others write asking for gas masks. We can tell you this—the authorities are not neglecting the gas mask situation. You, however, must remember, that it is much more important that your son already in England, waiting for the order to move across the continent, should be supplied with a gas mask — than that you, comparatively safe from even bombings, should have one.

Already in Canada, with no enemy attack as yet, first-rate Air Raid Precaution organizations exist in all communities in the vulnerable areas. Volunteers who are known to be level-headed and imbued with a community responsibility have been chosen as air raid wardens and are well acquainted with their duties. We know that you, in the areas considered not subject to attack as well as those in vulnerable areas know what you must play in case of an emergency. We know that you will play that part well — bravely and intelligently, because in case of air raids — good sense is as important as courage.

All Allied Nations have had a wonderful example in the people of Great Britain — the people of Malta—the people of China—the people of many eastern countries. We pray the day may never come when the people of Canada will be called on for the same type of courage and stamina but we know if that day ever does come ,the people of Canada will not be found wanting.

BRITAIN'S 3,030 PIG CLUBS

Turning Waste Food Into 70,000,000 LBS. OF BACON

Eighty new pig clubs are being formed in Britain each week. The clubs are kept mainly on waste food-stuffs and surplus vegetables, and the 3,000th club was registered by Small Pig Keepers' Council a few weeks ago.

About 1,000 tons of bacon or pork, or 80,000,000 4-ounce rations, are being produced each year by these amateur pigkeepers, and a good half of this goes into the pool for the general public. The rest is the reward of the pig club members, who are allowed for their households the meat from two pigs a year, representing a 3 lb. joint of meat each week.

Workers in hundreds of war factories are finding that a pig club attached to their canteen means not only extra meat, but choice meals of pork or bacon which otherwise they would not see. Providing the club sells half its pigs to the Ministry of Food, the remainder can be killed for consumption without affecting the canteen's normal meat allocation.

Schools, hospitals, fire and police stations are all joining in the movement to turn kitchen and garden waste into food for next winter. Parsons have organized pigkeeping among their parishioners, and many local "pubs" have their clubs. On farms, usually far from restaurants, the workers are avoiding meatless days by making use of empty sties and other buildings.

Some of the clubs are run co-operatively, the pigs being kept in a communal sty and owned jointly by the members, all of whom bear a hand in looking after them and collecting the swill. Others are pig-owners' clubs, in which each member feeds his own pigs on his own premises.

Most of the people forming clubs to-day previously knew little or nothing about keeping pigs, but all assistance and advice, as well as special supplementary meal allowances and insurance facilities, are provided by the Small Pig Keepers' Council, Glenley-on-Thames.

CANADA'S WAR MATERIALS CONTRIBUTION TO UNITED NATIONS

BY
B. T. RICHARDSON

Mr. Richardson is Canadian parliamentary correspondent of the Winnipeg Free Press, co-author of the book "Canada Fights", and a contributor to leading U. S. and British journals on economic and international affairs.

So completely has the economic pattern of Canadian life and industry changed by war that it is difficult to recall what it was like three short years ago in 1939, when the United States was at the height of uneasy peace.

A great industrial revolution has swept Canada, bringing changes that will shape the country's future, alter the thinking of its peoples and recast its role in world relations. From a standing start, Canadian industry has already produced munitions, armaments and materials for armed forces almost equal to the country's entire production of manufactures in 1935. Yet, as a confederacy of provinces, Canada is only seventy-five years old and its industrialization really began in the previous world war. Before 1917, for instance, Canada did not even bother to record an annual census of manufactures.

Only recently has the United States volume of war materials moved on various battlefronts caught up to the record flow established in its wee neighbor to the North. President Roosevelt's lend-lease report in March, 1942, showed exports actually moved of $1,100,000,000, of which $319,000,000 were military items.

Canada's exports in that first year of American lend-lease were $1,950,000,000, of which $762,000,000 was distributed to Britain, $720,000,000 to the United States, and $468,000,000 to other countries. These were total export figures. The wartime black-out of trade information prevents giving military items. Canadian war shipments in the period ratran Britain's capacity to pay. Canada converted a huge British deficit into an interest-free-loan, opening a "gift account" with the initial limit set at a billion dollars. This will take care of war shipments to the sterling area for the rest of 1942.

Canada's population of 11,500,000 is scarcely one-eleventh of the population of the United States, but its national income in 1941 reached a ratio nearly less than 48,000,000,000 annually, when American national income was reported at $94,500,000,000 roughly sixteen times as great.

However, any attempt to weight Canada's war potential against that of the United States is hardly possible. Indeed, it is hardly relevant, for the arithmetic of adding what is on on one side of the border with what is on the other now must be replaced by the multiplication schemes by practically complete integration of Canada drew heavily on the U.S.A. and it contributed handsomely in pre-Pearl Harbor days in establishing production in the United States. Canada is no longer a neighbor, as this process of war integration stretches to greater lengths. It is a sector of surprising strength and capacity in the war economy of North America, or the northern sector of the "arsenal of democracy."

In the previous war Canada provided shells, soldiers, horses, clothing and food for allied armies. It put more than 500,000 men into uniform. Its "war industries" employed 325,000. Canada spent $1,760,000,000 on the entire war, not including pensions.

500,000 MEN IN UNIFORM

In this war, Canada already has 500,000 men in uniform, with additions pouring in at a rate above 20,000 men a month. It has 835,000 workers in war industries, many thousands of them women. By the end of the current year it will have spent $5,000,000,000 on war account, more than its entire national income in 1939.

In the background of figures like these lies the fact that in two short years Canada created an economy of war production that surprises Canadians, if they take time to consider it, and astounds visitors. The man responsible for engineering this miracle is Clarence Decatur Howe, a New-England born Canadian. His name is not new to Canadian politics, for she is a distant relative of famed Joseph Howe, the Nova Scotia statesman. But his type in prewar days was scarce in national affairs. He was an engineer-executive, a big businessman. He was once a college professor, teaching engineering in Dalhousie University, Nova Scotia. After graduating from Massachusetts Institute of Technology, he became a practising engineer by desire in terminal grain elevator, a type now standard in the Canadian wheat trade. He built giant elevators in Canada and Argentina. Then Mackenzie King invited him to enter politics in 1935, and Howe became Canadian Minister of Transport.

In the four years before Canada joined into the war, Howe built Trans-Canada Air Lines, one of the world's great air transport systems. He reorganized the vast Canadian National Railways. He reorganized the National Harbor Boards and developed the public-owned Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. He reorganized the entire transport department. This unburned engineer-politician, a new type in modern politics, with a slight trace of Back Bay accent in his speech, became an extraordinarily useful figure in the transformation of Canada from peace to war. He has managed the greatest industrial revolution in the history of Canada.

As Howe came to grips with the job he found that Canada's army, though commanded by Canadians, formed part of the British army. It had no separate lines of communication. Its equipment had to be made interchangeable with British equipment. Its armament had to be those of British designs. In the first seven months, the so-called "phony war" period, only $30,000,000 was spent on plant expansion and construction.

"One of our chief difficulties," Howe said then, "is to obtain British designs for mechanical equipment. British industry has not been on war basis as long as Canada or U.S. signs. Britain and France seemed content to rely largely on their own production."

But after the Dunkirk evacuation was completed on June 4th, 1940, a new era opened. Barriers to securing blueprints and specifications were swept away. Canada began to build its war industry in earnest, until more than $800,000,000 of public money has been poured into plant construction and expansion, along with many millions of private money.

Other barriers to full Canadian participation also fell away. The ivory towers of the mind were shattered at last by the grim reality: unbelievable at last had to be believed, and thinkableable task of mobilizing for total war had quickly to be faced. The mood that was ended was left on the records of Parliament on May 22, 1940, when an opposition member waved a copy of the New York News and read the headline: "Nazis Drive to Channel—Trap Million Allies—Threaten Britain." He wanted the government to "put on the paper — "it operates against the morale of our people"!

WHAT DELIVERIES INCLUDED

On that day the New Minister of Munitions and Supply gave his first public review or his job. Volume of war orders placed in Canada was $2,000,000,000, of which $1,000,000,000 another $75,000,000 on British and French account. Deliveries reported included uniforms, blankets, boots, underwear, personal equipment — things soldiers use but not to win battles — as well as some shells, ammunition, machine guns and army vehicles. Canada had one division of troops with reinforcements in Britain. Its equipment was a core sore issue at home though it was, as Lord Cranborne said later, the only force in Britain equipped to meet a German invasion if it had come right after Dunkirk. That illustrated the task Canada undertook — not only to equip its own forces but to aid in equipping the British army.

In June, 1942, the story can still be told in figures, despite censorship that blots out many details of war production. The war contract in Canada had reached $4,082,727,223 by April 30, 1942. A recent official catalogue of production listed nine general items in ship construction and assembly; twenty-one items in guns and mountings; 129 items in ammunition; twelve types of chemicals and explosives; nine aircraft types; two tank models as well as machine gun carriers and a whole range of motor vehicles; and thirty groups of miscellaneous equipment, some of them running to hundreds of varieties and sizes. New models of aircraft, types of guns, armored cars and secret devices have come into production since the first of this year.

This is the scope of the Canadian munitions program. The harvest of industrial dragon's teeth sown in Canada in 1939 and 1940 is being filled out with other generalities. Many vehicles (though not tanks) now wholly allied armies have also been delivered in Libya in the past two seasons have been Canadian-made. Tanks from Montreal hold down a considerable sector of the Russian front in this crucial period.

Automatic arms from Toronto, in Chinese hands, have accounted for unnumbered Japanese. One thousand Canadian machine guns and a million rounds of ammunition were the first deliveries of arms over the Burma Road in 1941, in response to Chiang Kai-Shek's urgent appeal for allied aid. Australia, India, Java, the Near East, the Commando raids on Norway and France, have seen Canadian munitions in use. Every battle-field of the war, Howe could say in the spring of 1942, has drawn on Canadian sources of supply.

In short, the munitions production of Canada far exceeds the requirements of its own forces; its economy bolstered up has been geared up to meet the armament needs of Britain, the United States, and the United Nations as a group.

All this was not accomplished easily. The department of Munitions and Supply was launched in April 1940 to take over contracts and programs of production initiated by the earlier War Supply Board and the Defence Purchasing Board. As head of the new department Howe exercised broad powers into two vital fields of war policy — organization of production and control of supplies. By "supplies" was meant anything useful in prosecuting economic warfare. A dozen key executives from various industrial fields have become virtual general managers of an entire industry, total to war.

Howe's controllers administer timber, steel, oil, metals, machine tools, power, labor, repairs, motor trucks, construction, transit, chemicals and supplies. These controllers are mobilizers of supply. But they are not concerned with civilian supply, which in Canada's war setup is assigned to the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, controlled of rent and administrator or of civilian commodities. All controllers are automatically members of the Wartime Industries Control Board.

Howe is Canadas board of industrial strategy. Its chairman is R. O. Sweizhaw, vice-pres. of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Canada. He is one of Mr. Howe's right-hand men and holds an interlocking membership on the Price Control Board, providing a link with civilian supply administration.

Howe's first job was not to control industry but to establish production. He drew from the top brackets of Canadian industry to find practical executives for divisions of his department — aircraft munitions, chemicals and explosives, tanks, guns, shipbuilding and general purchasing. He created twenty public-owned corporations, so-called crown companies, to undertake special production tasks. His hundred or more dollar-a-year men represent, like the minister himself, a new type in war jobs. They are managers and executives, not bankers and financiers. They are tough, able successors to the nation-building pioneer era, when the job was to roll back the frontier westward, rather than to roll out tanks and bombers.

The builder, war controller in the present phase of affairs is C. H. Williamson, controller of supplies. Any commodity or service not assigned to another control comes under Williamson's administration once it is designated as a "supply". The Williamson office regulates and controls silk, rubber, cork, refrigerators, washing machines, vacuum cleaners, dry cleaners, cellophane, plioflim and other transparent films, laundry and dry cleaning equipment, air conditioning equipment, kapok, hemp and so forth. In the week following Pearl Harbor, the Williamson office took control of bicycles, early furniture and practically every household or office article made of metal. It prohibited the manufacture of practically all of them... The hunger of Canada's war factories for metal began to cut into the private lives of its citizens.

NOW TO PRODUCTION STAGE

Mr. Berkinshaw said recently: "We are now in the fourth and final stage of our economic effort. We have passed through the organizing period; most of our construction work has been completed; our plants have been tooled up; and now we are in the productive stage where every channel of our economy is being stained to provide the flow of materials required by industry whose wheels, day by day, continue to gather momentum. Today our industrial expansion has brought us close to the present limits of our capacity to provide raw materials."

The other main phase of the department's work has been industrial mobilization. It might have been merely a purchasing agency for the Canadian government and other governments obtaining equipment in Canada. But production first had to be organized in practically every line.

Take the aircraft industry. Before the war Canada had eight small aircraft companies, employing 1,900 persons and turning out forty aircraft planes a year. Growth to the present has reached to 45,000 employees turning out 400 planes a month. Canada undertook to manage the vast Commonwealth Air Training Plan which needed training planes urgently. Howe's department has taken over and built wind aircraft. Canada made no aircraft engines and still does not. Was it worthwhile to creat an industry or buy motors in the U.S.A.? An American manufacturer, as Howe explainer, undertook to double his output within four or five months to fill Canadian orders, whereas to build an airplane engine factory in Canada would have taken eighteen months, to two years before production. So Canada bought in the United States.

The real impetus to Canadian aircraft production came with the fall of France. The British government had undertaken to supply planes for the Commonwealth Training Plan. A ship load of Anson twin-engined medium bombers was turned back from mid-Atlantic. They played a useful part in the Battle of Britain but left a big hole in the Training Plan. Howe decided unexpectedly. He decided to go into production on these planes in Canada and to buy substitutes until production started. He flew to New York and bought the Lockheed plant there. He bought the output of twin-engined Cranes from Cessna Aircraft. And he ordered 4,000 Avro Anson planes. The Anson he intended to manufacture.

The Anson is a Canadian-built Federal Aircraft, Ltd., a government-owned company. For several months it remained a focus of political controversy. It started from scratch and had difficulty in getting anywhere. Production of 25,000 parts had to be arranged. The planes had to be re-engineered to take the American motor. Blueprinting alone took weeks of time for each part. The entire Canadian supply of draughtsmen able to do the work. The product was the Canadian Anson, of British and American parentage. Its output is now over a month for every pre-war output of all Canadian planes.

The production of aircraft in Canada has now been reduced to nine types of planes: Anson, two-engined Harvard trainers, Bristol Bolingbroke bomber-reconnaissance, Hurricanes, Hurricanes, a twin-engined fighter a navy dive-bomber, and a big four-engined long-range bomber from all the secret, list. Canada fills orders not only for its own Commonwealth and its growing Royal Canadian Air Force, but also for Great Britain and the United States.

SPEEDING UP THE TEMPO

The story of aircraft is in many ways typical. Canadian war production — organization, designs and methods. It has encountered and overcome plenty of "kinks" in the industrial revolution time was against the democracies. It has come through the period of organizing from virtually nothing to the stage of steady production. It is inevitable this production pace in Canada should follow the United States' lead, but it is even more natural that the economies of division of labor on an international scale should exist between the U.S.-Canadian border to fade to a shadow. Economic co-ordination has been carried to ever-lengthening limits in joint procurement of materials priorities, in economic planning, and in the free flow of essential materials and war supplies across an international boundary that, for all its unfortified freedom, was yet a jutting tariff wall that hitherto had kept industries on either side sharply compartmentalized. In this war the economy of Canada has begun rapidly to assume the size of that of the United States. That is an important historical fact for both countries, filled with meaning for the post-war period.

But it is more important that, while the war rages, Canada should stand with the United States and Britain as a surplus producer of weapons to supply arms-hungry millions of allied manpower on the battlefronts of the world. Canada has shipped 250,000 automotive vehicles for service in every campaign in which British forces have participated. The Canadian "baby" tank, or universal carrier, comes off the assembly lines at a rate to equip a battalion every day. Canadian infantry tanks in action have won praise from their Russian drivers. The big new Ram, combining features of British and American design is a speedy assault tank. It comes out of the second biggest tank factory in North America. Canada can equip an infantry division in a week or two, in addition to its production for aerial and naval warfare.

Ammunition production figures, like the rest, are secret, but Howe's experts report it at well in excess of a million shells a month, and several millions of rounds of small-arms ammunition a day, not to mention bombs, mines, mortar projectiles, depth charges and pyrotechnics of various kinds — a sufficient scale to service indefinitely air raids of the extent, inaugurated by the R.A.F. in the recent Cologne and Bremen raids.

The explosives and chemicals division has many hidden recesses which will be known only when the dawn of offensive comes, or perhaps when the day comes to make good allied warnings to Germany and Japan not to use certain weapons against civilian populations. Canada has spent $125,000,000 on thirty-five chemical and explosive plants, some to produce the gigantic propellent cordite for big guns, others just labelled "special factories." Some of them are among the largest in the world, Canada made forty-five per cent of the explosives used in the allied drive in 1918, but today—in six month—turns out more than in the entire four years of that other war.

Canada is building more than 1,-000,000 tons of merchant shipping in 1942, to equal British output and to count beside America's 8,000,000-ton objective. The most important Canadian contribution to the Battle of the Atlantic at the moment is 200 small naval ships turned out since the war started. There are hundreds more naval units on the way. Canada has never built any warship as big as a destroyer, though she has a destroyer programme under way now. The Royal Canadian Navy, up to the present, is a patrol and anti-submarine fleet. Its corvettes and minesweepers and other light craft from Canadian Shipyards have proved the right ships in the right place, if that place is the North Atlantic convoy route to be kept clear of U-boats.

All this leaves untouched a field of war production in which the light of publicity has never shone. It is the production of technical equipment, production which runs from the laboratories of science to the crucial decisions of the battlefield itself. Canada's industry now makes tough armor plate. Its laboratories perfected nautical radio location equipment and anti-submarine devices. Despite the fact Canada had no precise experience in the manufacture, it is now producing thirty-seven types of sighting and optical instruments. It produces ten types of special military and naval equipment, gas masks and gas decontamination equipment, and 15,000 kinds of gauges.

With no previous background in armament production, Canada has in two years created industries for power and machine tools, one of the largest industrial effort in 1942 lies in providing the flow of raw materials required by her factories. It is greatly expanded its capacity in steel, alloys, brass, aluminum and base metals.

The costs of war cannot be measured in dollars. Canada's war effort is perhaps the most lucid yardstick in reporting the effort of a nation. Canadians have lived through a day since 1940 with a miracle that does not seem to have happened and, if grasped, can hardly believe. It is the miracle of industrial mobilization far beyond anything expected. As early as July 1940, Howe could say truthfully: "Many industrial countries are finding their capacity to fully utilize their capacity began to assume new meaning in the months that followed. Now that we enter the second half of 1942, industry of Canadians are finding that even the industries they had thought were what seemed to some to be the wildest fancy in 1940 — have burst the limits of their capacity.

The strangest feature of all, and most revealing to the world's mad race to mobilize the sinews of war, has been the discovery that a high standard of living need not be a fair-weather luxury. Canada's mad race to mobilize the sinews of war has been the discovery that a high standard of living can be the first expanding waves of industrialization. Canadians had expected to fight the war more than they have — up to now. Canada, like the United States, is far away from the war zone front to stand the pressure that is fast developing. The civilian population is well brushioned for the drastic pinch of the all-out phase. This is a vital fact in the unpredictable elements of world warfare, a shining omen of psychological value to harness the economic strength of the North American arsenal of democracy.

The real cost of war, in terms of effort and sacrifice, is now only becoming home to Canadians, as it is to those in the United States. In having these costs, as yet a jutting tariff wall that hitherto had kept industries on either side sharply compartmentalized. In this war the economy of Canada has begun rapidly to assume the size of that of the United States. That is an important historical fact for both countries, filled with meaning for the post-war period.

But it is more important that, while the war rages, Canada should stand with the United States and Britain as a surplus producer of weapons to supply arms-hungry millions of allied manpower on the battlefronts of the world. Canada has shipped 250,000 automotive vehicles for service in every campaign

THE WAR AND EELS

The war has knocked the bottom out of the eel market, according to Captain John St. Carter, well-known fisherman, who was bound for New York recently with his first boatload of eels.

This specie of fish, said Carter, once brought as high as $1 a pound, but this year the best he can get is five cents a pound.

Aboard his specially built craft, which has an open bottom to permit fresh water to reach the eels at all times, were 38,000 pounds—a small shipment. However it will take care of the present demand while other shipments yet to be made. Some boats carry as many as 75,000 pounds.

WERE MARRIED IN CLEVELAND

MACNAUGHTON — WHITE

Cleveland, Aug. 1 — The spacious library at the home of Mrs. Fred R. White, 2300 Overlook Road, Cleveland Heights, was the scene, on Saturday, August 1st, of the wedding of her daughter, Jean Whitehead, and Mr. Alan Aylesworth Macnaughton, Junior Crown Prosecutor of the City of Montreal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Macnaughton of Montreal and Napanee, Ont. Only the families and a few close friends were present at the ceremony which was performed at six o'clock in the afternoon by Bishop Beverly Dandridge Tucker, of the Episcopal Diocese of Northern Ohio assisted by Rev. Chester Burge Emerson, Dean of Trinity Cathedral.

The fireplace in the centre of the east wall of the library was the setting. Hanging over the mantel were white satin wedding bells which have been employed by members of the family for such occasions. At either side of the fireplace were two carved bronze five-branched candelabra holding tall white tapers, while graduated grolands of white rubrum lilies and stephanotis were strung from the tops of the bells to the columns at either side of the fireplace, thence to the candelabra. The opening of the fireplace and the hearth were covered with a heavy corded silk drape in a neutral beige shade, and aisle posts were arranged for the processional. The kneeling bench being of white satin. A trio of violin, 'cello and piano furnished the wedding music.

The bride, unescorted, entered the library through an archway. She wore a gown of ivory satin with long fan shaped train, the long basque bodice shirred from the base of the V neck, and the neckline edged with heirloom rose point lace which also drooped from the shoulders, while her sleeves ended in points over the hands. Her rose pointe veil, aged to a deep cream, was brought from Belgium by her maternal great-grandmother, the late Mrs. William B. Castle, and was worn by Mrs. White, and also by Mrs. Robert I. Gale, the bride's sister, at their weddings. The lace was arranged over the back of the head, to form a coronet. Fastened to the centre neckline was a diamond circlet brooch which had belonged to Mrs. D. Z. Norton, the bride's maternal grandmother. The bride carried a mother of pearl prayer book on which were fastened a gardenia with a shower of stephanotis.

Preceding the bride were her three attendants. Her sister, Mrs. Robert I. Gale, jr., was the matron of honor, in dusty rose satin with sweetheart neck. The basque bodice was mainly of satin, with the exception of the yoke and sleeves which were of chiffon and the long full skirt was also of chiffon. She carried a pink delphinium with clusters of Queen Mary roses tied with blue ribbon. The two other attendants, Mrs. Edward Kirchoff Brown and Mrs. Walter Blair-ing Drake, were wearing similar gowns in a soft gray - blue, and carried Queen Mary roses tied with matching ribbons.

Mrs. Robert I. Gale, jr., was Mr. Macnaughton's best man and the ushers were Messrs. Alfred Bandi, Raymond Bruce Palmer Brown and Eric R. Jacobsen, of Montreal.

After the ceremony the couple with the two mothers and the brides attendants received in the drawing room in front of the heirloom French mirror in the bay window, the entire bay being massed with a banking of rose gladioli. Mrs. White was gowned in sage green marquisette and Mrs. Macnaughton wore a champagne beaded mousseline de soie with an applique of real Spanish lace. The mothers wore shoulder garlandsd of orchids.

The bridal table in the diningroom was covered with Brussels lace over rose taffeta and Mrs. Macnaughton's cupids a profusion of summer flowers, in three candlesticks holding tall white tapers.

Mr. and Mrs. Macnaughton will live in Montreal.

The bride graduated from Laurel School, Cleveland, and Finch College School in Boston. She is a member of the Junior League. Mr. Macnaughton graduated in Arts and Law from McGill University, Montreal, and took post-graduate work at the University of London. He is a past president of the Montreal Junior Board of Trade.

LETTER FROM OVERSEAS

Dear Mother and All:—

Here I am doing fine. Hope you are well, too, also Bill and Francis. Bill still working in Kingston. I hope so as work means money and money means a lot.

I hope Francis is being a good boy. Tell him I said to be good to you as if he was over here he would have a lot more to think of. You don't miss your mother so much until you are so far away from her.

Well, it is nice over here. We get to get 6:30 a.m. and go to bed at 11 p.m. and it is still daylight.

When you send a box please send me some extra films for m camera, as they are so dear here and hard to get; they cost 2 6. that is 60c in our money, also send me some apples and oranges, as you never see them here at all, and send me a picture, if it turned out ok.

Ken Wannamaker is sittine here writing, too I have been with him ever since I was in Peterboro. We were together on the train and also on the boat, so we haven't done too bad, have we? Ken, Leo McGinn and myself were down-town this afternoon and went in swimming in the pool; it was nice but a little cool, for we didnt stay in long. We went out and had supper, and Ken saw his brother-in-law, which was very unexpected, as he didn't know Ken was over here—so it was surely a great surprise for both.

Mother, I hope you will understand why I don't tell on more about the country here, but you know we can not put just what we would like to in our letters. I had the rest of those shot taken out of my legs on Thursday and they gave me seven stitches, but they are coming on fine and dandy.

Now is everybody there and also back home. Remember me to them all and tell them to write and also if they care to send a box. it will be very much appreciated.

It is nice here as long as it don't rain, but it has rained for two days and has cleared now, I hope.

You can write every day if you have the time as it is sure nice to get letters and parcels, here.

Tell Francis and Bill to keep their chins up as I will be home to see them and will bring Hitler's false teeth home with me.

Well, I thing I have said enough for now. Be sure and tell the folks that I am fine. I will ring off for now, with lots of love.

GETTING YOUR SHARE OF VITAL VITAMINS

Hello Homemakers! Vitamins are of vital importance in everything we eat, so it's your business to see that vitamins are given priority on your home-front menus. According to nutrition experts, plenty of people are not getting their share of these mysterious elements that give us health and strength, because they do not eat the right foods.

Without a proper supply of vital vitamins, our health soon suffers and even if we had enough to eat so that we were never actually hungry, we would become nervous easily, our teeth would tend to decay, our skin become lifeless, and we would drag through our work feeling tired and depressed all the time.

At this time of year, vitamins abound in almost everything we eat, but wise marketing and careful meal planning will guarantee us enough of the essential vitamins the year round. Meat organs and the colourful vegetables contain more vitamins than fat pieces of meat and colourless vegetables. Simple, vitamin-rich foods will give us the pep and energy for which Canadians are famous.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. S. W. M. asks: "What is the difference between an oven regulator and an oven indicator."

Answer: The oven regulator automatically controls the oven temperature and maintains an even and uniform degree of heat. An oven indicator simply indicates the oven temperature at a given point.

Mrs. W. T. asks: "Should bubbles appear in the jar after it is taken out of the cooker to cook?"

Answer: Bubbles often appear in the jar after it is processed, because feed it still boiling.

Salads lend themselves so readily to decorative effects that for many years they had no more important part in diet than just that. But now, besides being highly decorative they are regarded by nutritionists as vital to the well-balanced diet. Rich in minerals and vitamins, the mixed salad or lettuce alone is becoming a staple food.

Lettuce Alone Is Salad

Epicures prefer lettuce salad mixed in a wooden bowl with wooden fork and spoon. Housewives prefer them because they are so easy to prepare. After following directions once or twice anyone can make an excellent salad, and make it of just a few cents and ends but always beginning with fresh, crisp lettuce, either leaf or head.

Here's How

Into the salad bowl put salt, pepper and paprika in quantities your judgement suggests and your taste confirms. Use extra salt (iodized) in summer to help prevent ill effects by heat. Add three tablespoons of vinegar, preferably tarragon, and six or eight tablespoons of salad oil. Mix thoroughly, adding a button of peeled garlic if you want to be seriously regarded as a salad maker, then chopped celery, especially the green leaves, chicory, raw onion, grated carrot or raw cauliflower. Grated cheese, well seasoned or definitely aged adds zest. Then the lettuce, a whole head leafed out. Stir up thoroughly and serve in generous portions with crackers or thin well-buttered real whole wheat bread.

Rabbits Don't Mind

Rabbits may enjoy wilted lettuce, humans, especially youngsters don't. There'd be fewer salad-refusers if the vegetables, fruit and lettuce were always appetisingly fresh and crisp.

Every Day Is Salad Day

There is a salad for every day in the year and it is important to develop your taste for them because of their nutritive value as protective goods. A postal card to the Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road, Toronto, Ontario, will bring you a free vitamin chart for ready reference and a booklet "Salads that are Different."

Made of a transparent plastic material like glass which furnishes a light round corners, does not consider that and can be thrown on the ground without breaking, the instruments are made in about thirty different shapes, to suit any kind of wound or operation. Even where there are two right-angled bends in the transparent instrument, the light rays travel down to the frosted tip and flood the wound with a cold, shadowless light, however inaccessible the place may be. Blood does not easily congeal on the instrument, as it does with ordinary lighting apparatus.

About thirty different instruments are available, but there are bends or four dual-purpose models which are quite sufficient for ordinary diagnostic and surgical work in the field. Many of these, fitted with a small electric accumulator, costs about £12 years past, but they had the distance services have bought them out of their own pockets, so useful have they proved in action. Some of Britain's greatest surgeons are now using these instruments for wounds which cannot be seen into by ordinary operating theatre lighting.

Similar instruments have been made in other countries for some sterilising. The new instruments however, are made of a methyl methacrylate plastic specially developed by British chemists, which will stand any amount of boiling without losing shape.

WHITE INTERNEES QUARTERED IN SQUALID HOVELS

ENEMY RUBS IN HUMILIATION OF DEFEAT AT HONG KONG

Vaughn Meisling and Joseph Dynan, Associated Press correspondents who tell of their experiences under Japanese internment, were at Hong Kong and Tokio, respectively, when Japan went to war with the United States. They are en route home with other internees exchanged for Japanese nationals taken to Lourenco Marques on the liner Grigsholm.

BY VAUGHN MEISLING

Lourenco Marques, Portuguese East Africa.—(AP)—Laden like coolies with their personal belongings, British and American men, women and children, looked on when internment of Allied nationals began on January 5.

It was the Japanese way of rubbing in the humiliation of the race which had ruled Hong Kong for a century.

Some 3,000 Americans, Britons and other Allied civilians were interned.

100 DEPRESSED

I was among 120 imprisoned in a squalid waterfront brothel in the quarter of the Chinese slums.

This dive, which the Japanese called "Hotel," was one of eighty establishments they picked out in the Hong Kong slums for our preliminary internment.

While Tokio boasted that Japan was observing the Geneva convention, we were packed like animals — men, women and children, into verminous cells. There was many without daylight, and forced to sleep on bare wooden floors and chairs reeking with filth.

For the first thirty hours there was no food at all. Then there were wretched rice rations, supplemented by meagre issues of vegetables and meat. Even these scant handouts were pilfered by servants, necessitating a watchful eye on every crumb.

WATER DANGEROUS

The drinking water was dangerous and we were warned against using it. There were no lights to be had at all. Walking a narrow roof space was the only exercise.

After seventeen "days of this we were marched by armed guards one and, one-half miles to a steamer ground for the first internment camp in the opposite side of Hong Kong island.

En route we saw two gendarmes beat a Chinese to death after a trivial disturbance in the queue.

All the 3,003 internees eventually were billeted in the shell-damaged prison and officers' quarters and in adjoining St. Stephen's College, for Chinese where bodies of British soldiers still were found late in the spring.

Electric current finally was restored after three weeks.

Food remained a big problem throughout our internment, with the Japanese issuing an insufficient ration of mainly rice — hitting a 900-calorie low in March.

DISEASE RIFE

Malnutrition caused widespread beriberi, debility and loss of weight. A dysentery epidemic raged in the spring.

Owing to a wood shortage, twelve Britons who died of disease during the six months that we were there were buried from the same sliding-buttoned coffin which became a permanent fixture.

The most striking sociological feature of the internment camp was the complete social revolution — a millionaire could be seen sweeping a gutter and distinguished Englishmen sorting cigarette butts for the pipes of their distinguished husbands because of the tobacco shortage.

The shortage of smokes reduced the interneses to the use of the cheapest native "tobacco". Tea and ginger leaves, coffee grounds and pine needles as substitutes.

Burlap bags, flour sacks, curtains, sheets and shirts became dresses. Several men wore Chinese skull caps.

CARS BARTERED FOR POTATOES

London. — Potatoes and shoes have become great rarities in Nazi-occupied Norway according to the testimony of a refugee in the advertising columns of the Pritfolk, Oslo's principal daily newspaper, orders of which have recently reached London.

The shortage of both potatoes and shoes is such that the barter system has been revived. One advertisement read: "Two well furnished rooms and kitchen will be provided in exchange for 100 pounds of seed potatoes."

Another ady offered to trade a 1939 model car in good condition, for 100 pounds of seed potatoes! One advertiser offered a vacation hut in the mountains in return for twenty pounds of the precious potatoes. One lucky fellow advertised: "I have 15 pounds of seed potatoes, please give offer."

There were columns of advertisements for seed potatoes and almost as many for shoes. A typical advertisement ran: "Can offer valuable old violin for a few pairs of men's shoes, size 8½." Another offered a light summer suit, worth 75 kroners, 6, 7 and 11. Also want men's shoes, size 11." Another offered a lady's bicycle "like new, worth 100 kroners, for one pair of size 5½ shoes."

News items on the Nazi-controlled paper reveal very heavy punishment for violation of the food-rationing regulations. Three persons in Fredericstad were fined approximately $85 each for exchanging three cigarettes for a loaf of bread. A baker was fined $40 for selling a single loaf of bread in addition to prescribed rations. A woman was fined $20 for buying two pounds of flour and a bottle of milk.

Fish might be expected to be the most plentiful food still left in this way, but orders have been issued in several Norwegian towns prohibiting the purchase of a fish by only twice a week, according to a letter received in Norwegian circles in London. Fish has been the mainstay of the Norwegian people in wartime and in times of the use of the cheapest native "tobacco" tea and ginger leaves, coffee grounds and pine needles as substitutes, starvation. Norway's fishing fleet is still one of the greatest in the world, with nearly 80,000 boats, but still by regular use. The Germans, however, are commandeering an increasingly large share of the catch for themselves.

FLOGLAZE PAINT

Is cheaper than Lead white for outside painting! It spreads further and will stand rain, wind and sun longer. For sale in Napanee at WALLACE'S.

GREEN SNOW

Thoughts of snow are plentiful during these hot days, but snow spoken of in a recent newspaper is of a botanical nature. A meteorological friend in the Hungarian botanist has found green snow in the Yellowstone National Park. This rare phenomenon has never before been reported in North America. It is caused by the presence of many one-celled green plants that cover the top of the snow. Among the plants at Yellowstone are a few of a brilliant unknown species, and have been christened Ahlamydomonas lowstonensis by the discoverer.

Mysterious Indian Rope Trick

For some months, India, that large and wealthy land which is such an important part of the British Empire has been occupying a prominent place in world news. One interesting feature of India is its mixture of mysticism, heightened oftentimes by the strange tricks of the fakirs, some of which feats are quite bewildering to westerners.

Perhaps the strangest of all is the Indian Rope Trick. Is there such a trick, or is it a myth? Is it a real illusion or is it mass hypnotism? Is the Eastern conjurer endowed with mysterious powers that are denied the Western people? These, and a thousand other arguments, have arisen over this most famous of tricks (writes a correspondent from India.

Reasonable Explanation

Let me pin down this will-o'-the-wisp of the conjuring world. I will relate my own experiences when I was a very small boy in the province of Kathiawar in the Bombay Presidency, and add the perfectly reasonable explanation that my father gave to me in after years, when I was old enough to understand.

Let my readers observe closely the atmospheric conditions of the day as I remember it and my description of the arena where the performance took place, for these are two of the important factors when one comes to consider the explanation. Furthermore, they may help why it is that Indian conjurers will not do the trick in other lands and other parts. The much advertised performance of the trick at the Wembley Exhibition was such a travesty of that which was tried out only at a dress rehearsal, in an atmosphere more like the illustration at all to the real Indian Rope Trick. It was about three in the afternoon of a typical, cloudless day that my father, mother, and I, on the invitation of a local friend, gathered with three or four hundred of his native friends on the shady steps of the quadrangle. It was a wide expanse of ground, flanked on the left by a tall wing of a palace colonnade and on the right by a small clump of trees out of which, one saw, there rose up to a height of perhaps a hundred feet. The quadrangle itself was in the full glare of the sun.

To anyone who has not experienced the tropics, the heat was terrific enough. It rose from the hard-baked ground like a searing blast from an oven. The air just above quivered in heat tremors such as we only notice in this country at a distance.

Right in the centre of the furnace heat stood the motley troupe of conjurers. They went through their usual tricks. I remember the amazement with which I saw a little pipe sprout out of the ground beneath a green baize cloth.

The principal of the troupe produced a long rope which he passed round the audience. There was coil upon coil, and when everyone had satisfied himself that it was a genuine hempen rope, the conjurer took it into the arena. He threw it into the air. It quivered a moment, and then dangled loosely, swinging to and fro. So far as the eye could follow it, it appeared attached to nothing, and the end appeared to vanish into thin air.

Lost in the Haze

Now a boy came brightly forward. He was attired in a loose robe of blue-grey cloth, and began climbing the perfectly vertical, lone hand over hand. He climbed and climbed. It became hard to follow him with the eye. He seemed to jig about in the haze, and soon disappeared. Finally, the rope dropped, and the trick was over.

The explanation that my father told me it, is simple. From the top of the tallest palm on the righthand side to the highest point of the building and on the left, a stout rope had been stretched before the performance started. No one saw it because of the heat haze. That explains why these conjurers will not do the trick to order. They must first see handy two perfectly natural looking objects with which to enable them to stretch the horizontal rope across the arena without arousing suspicion or giving a clue. Next they must have the right sort of day — one when the heat haze will obliterate everything a short way above the ground.

The conjurer, after taking the rope back from the audience, neatly hitched the end of it through a loop in an iron hook, which, of course, caught on to the oriental rope when he threw it up with his practised hand. The color of the little boy's garments were designed, like khaki, to be the least conspicuous when he had climbed up into the heat tremors.

Nothing Wonderful

There is nothing wonderful in it. The only thing that has lent mystery to the Rope Trick is the fact that some people — notably experienced conjurers who have visited India — have come back disappointed at not having seen it, and have raised the story that the whole thing is a myth. They have little suspected that the clouds above their heads, or the monsoon season, or the absence of a single tree or handy building have been at the root of the "mysterious influences" which "the conjurers inform them" prevent the trick being done that day.

HE'LL SACRIFICE MILLION MEN IF NECESSARY

BY DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

We know that if Hitler can smash the Russian army and make conquest of the Caucasus and Middle East, during the few remaining weeks of good fighting weather, he will have acquired resources and strategical advantages which will give him a tremendous, and perhaps unsurmountable, strength as overlord of Europe.

That's the prize for which he is said to be prepared to sacrifice 1,000,000 young Germans. And if you believe you are dealing — in trafficking with the devil, then the price isn't too high. What are 1,000,000 or even 10,000,000 youths as compared with an Empire comprising all Europe — and maybe far more ?

We know, too, that if the Russians can hold under the strength to halt the invaders where they now are, we shall have the Fuehrer as neatly on the roasting wock as the devil can hope to get him in the long run.

* * *

But what happens if the Nazi leader is only partially successful? Where will he stand, for instance, if he succeeds in cutting Russia proper off from the Caucasian oil and other resources, and its lifeline to the Persian Gulf, but fails to obtain those objectives for himself.

Things might turn out that way. For what we to say we must abandon hope that the Russians can stop the Nazi rush before it has gone much further. And there's no use blinding ourselves to the fact that the mighty power now being shown by the Germans may enable them at least to throw a barrier across the mouth of the Caucasus.

However, its one thing for Hitler to establish such a barrier, and it's quite another for him to right his way down the Caucasian isthmus to Aladdin lamp. Soon the great level plain of the northern Caucasus would give way to a mighty mountain range which reaches across the Black Sea to the Caspian. There are routes through it, but they are narrow and it's hard to believe that the Russians couldn't defend them.

So let's say the Nazi chief struck a nasty blow at Russia by establishing this barrier but is himself blocked from fresh resources. What then.

Well, viewing the question through the eyes of experts who have analyzed all aspects of the situation, we can say that Hitler's strength will deteriorate while that of the Allies increases vastly. This is so because Hitler already has run two years longer than Hitler expected, and the is getting to the bottom of the huge supplies which he piled up over several years in preparation for war. There is no way of replenishing those supplies unless he can break through to the outside world for them.

The recently British - American agricultural experts in London stated that the Germans this winter will face the most serious food situation they have experienced since the war started. The Reich and Nazi-controlled Europe will harvest a crop 15 to 20 per cent short below normal this year, and the deficit may exceed even that. Even more serious from Hitler's standpoint, is his need of oil. He must have that no, only for his fighting machines but to keep his war industries going. And other supplies are needed.

NAZIS SPEED DEFENSES TO BLOCK SECOND FRONT

BY EGON KASKELINE
Written For
The Christian Science Monitor

While Anglo-American leaders are considering plans for the promised second front in the West, the Germans are making extensive military preparations for that event. New and modern fortifications are being constructed. The civil population is being evacuated ruthlessly from the coastal districts.

The French channel and Atlantic coast has been formed into a special military zone. Preventive measures also have been taken in other parts of occupied France where Nazi police, helped by Vichy gendarmes, have been carrying out mass arrests of persons suspected of pro - Allied sympathies.

German propaganda spokesmen have been greatly extensive in all formation about the strong fortifications which the Germans allegedly have built along the entire French coastline. The Berlin DNB agency has pointed out that much material has been taken from the French Maginot Line and utilized to build these coastal forts.

In the spring of 1942 German military authorities declared that the French Coast was protected by a new "West Wall", an almost uninterrupted series of modern coastal defenses which stretch over 725 miles.

NAZIS BARE DETAILS

In contradiction to their usual secrecy in military affairs, German propagandists were lavish in publishing details of these impressive fortifications. According to reports originating in Vichy, the Germans have adopted Russian methods in completing coastal defenses in France. Not only are they constructing strong coastal forts but they have been planting extensive mine fields and building defense belts in a strip of territory 25 miles deep, behind the first line.

The Nazis also let it be reported that they were fortifying a second line around the Atlantic Wall in Western France and a third line along the Seine River. They are, the report continued, also maintaining their West Wall defenses on the French frontier Siegfried-line in a state of constant preparedness. The number of German troops available for the defense of Continental Europe was boasted as between 8,000,000 and 1,000,000 men, among them several armored divisions.

The abundance of information on German military preparations in Occupied Europe must be taken with reserve, as indeed must all German propaganda. Only last week German authorities were proclaiming that it would be impossible for the United Nations to open a second front because they did not have the shipping. But on Thursday the same announcers switched round and began informing their listeners that the United Nations must and doubtless will, try to open a second front.

There can be no doubt that the German High Command will not be taken asleep and that the defense of the continent is well prepared. Thousands of German and foreign workers have been set to work building coastal forts in the Channel region. Moreover, all private sales of cement in France have been prohibited since the beginning of this year.

The Germans have profited from their experiences in Russia in improving their defense lines in Western Europe. One of America's leading military analysts estimated that between 12 and 20 German divisions, partly motorized, are prepared for the defense of France and that several hundreds of thousands of German troops are on the alert in other occupied territories. There are also heavy reserves in Germany proper.

GERMAN DEFENSE ARMY

The Commander in Chief of the German Defense Army is Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gert von Rundstedt, one of Hitler's ablest generals.

The Germans recently set up a new organization of specialized shock troops and anti-Commando units in order to intercept daring raids of the British Commandos.

Yet, in spite of their actual military strength, German claims that they have built up almost impregnable defense lines in Western Europe and that they have at their disposal a practically unlimited number of first-class divisions to beat off any Allied invasion are presumably greatly exaggerated.

Underground reports from France which reached London point out that if the Channel Coast has been heavily fortified, the defenses on the Biscay coast are by no means uninteresting. Some points of strategical importance are well defended and a large number of German troops has been concentrated there as a second line. The Germans extended the excellent French road net and they have built several military routes.

An invasion of France undertaken by well-equipped and aggressive Anglo-Saxon troops can scarcely be called impossible. Experiences of this war have proved that even the strongest fortifications can be taken. Many of the latest improvements in German defenses in France probably are no match for the developed technique of modern engineer troops.

SECOND ARMY READY

When an Allied invasion army sets foot on continental soil, a second army in the German rear is expected to be called into immediate action. "Colonel Britton", British radio propagandist, who during the last months has instructed Hitler's Germans on opponents in sabotage methods and who is in close contact with the underground groups, now has declared that his Victory Army is almost ready to strike. Underground information from France agrees with this statement and declares that 40,000 to 50,000 underground workers immediately would form guerilla bands and attack German supply lines.

In the meantime, hundreds of thousands of Frenchmen would be armed from concealed depots and would reinforce the underground groups and the Allied armies. The Germans, of course, are well aware of this imminent danger of revolt in occupied territories. Since 1940, an important part of the coastal regions of France has been declared forbidden zone to which French refugees were not allowed to return. Several hundreds of thousands of Frenchmen, however, have remained in their native towns and villages, and others, despite German interdictions, clandestinely returned to their homes.

As the invasion danger becomes more acute, the Nazis have begun mass evacuations in the coastal zone. According to recent information, not less than a million French and Belgian inhabitants of the Channel region have been forced to emigrate to the interior. For many of these unfortunate people it is the third time that they have had to leave their homesteads.

Even the population in the interior France is affected by German preventive measures. Today the German police, assisted by Vichy officials, is endeavoring to destroy the very roots of French resistance. The German police in Occupied France have been completely reorganized. In May, 1942, Major-General Oberg, Brigade Leader of Hitler's Elite Guard, was appointed "leader" of all German police forces in Occupied France. The Gestapo inspector, Dr. Knochen, assists General Oberg in the execution of repressive measures. It is not clear whether General Oberg will replace or only supervise Prince Josiah of Waldeck and Pyrmont, one of the late Reinhard Heydrich's henchmen, who in April of this year was named Chief of the German police in Occupied France.

EXECUTIONS INCREASE

Since General Oberg took over, the number of executions and internments of French patriots in the occupied territory has increased with terrifying speed. More than 300,000 persons are said to be interned in concentration camps in the occupied territory. Persecution of Jews in France has reached a new peak. All alien Jews in Paris are rounded up systematically and transported to Polish ghettos. Most of them perish there, it is said, never again are heard of. Apparently they do not arrive at their destination.

In their attempt to destroy all groups of resistance in the occupied territory and to prevent guerilla acts in case of an Allied attack, the Gestapo is assisted by Vichy officials of the Vichy Police. The French secret police, the Surete Nationale, works in close contact with the Nazis. The Surete Nationale, of course, has intimate knowledge of French conditions and its help is particularly valuable to the Germans. M. de la Buissiere, former Chief of the Surete Nationale has been nominated Chief of the Paris Police by Premier Pierre Laval. Today the Surete is helping the Gestapo to set up a network of stoolpigeons who endeavor, to introduce themselves into underground movements in order to destroy resistance from within.

Homing Pigeons Have Special War Duties

Homing pigeons are playing an important part in the war operations of Britain's R.A.F. Many pilots whose planes have fallen into the sea owe their lives to the succor so promptly obtained by these speedy winged messengers.

Aircraft on patrol over the sea always carry a pigeon as a final method of communication. In making a forced landing it is quite possible that the radio may be out of action, and in that case the pigeon is the only method of bringing rescuers to the spot to pick up the crew, and to salvage the plane.

Perhaps aircraft is a type that cannot keep afloat for long, or it may have been badly damaged. In such an event the crew will have taken to the dinghy, and the pigeon messenger will warn rescuers to look out for a small boat instead of a plane.

PIGEON MESSENGER SERVICE BELL

These valuable homing pigeons are supplied to the R.A.F. by a civilian organization known as the National Pigeon Service, whose members have pigeon lofts near the R.A.F. stations they supply. The personnel of this organization now numbers 15,000 and more than 1,000 birds are loaned weekly for service on flying operations.

The National Pigeon Service is under the control of the British Air Ministry, and the organization must take to supply a certain number of birds on request. The owners also agree that their wives, children, families, or their neighbors will watch for the return of the pigeon, so that the messages they bring can be quickly phoned through to the R.A.F. station concerned. When a pigeon returns to its loft it alights on a perch specially arranged in such a way that an electric bell goes on ringing until someone takes notice and removes the pigeon's message.

Valuable service has been rendered by the placid birds on many notable occasions. Once when an R.A.F. patrol plane was forced to alight on a rough sea, the pilot dispatched two pigeons with messages giving the position of the machine and asking for immediate help, as the plane had capsized and was rapidly filling with up. The pigeons reached land safely and a plane was sent to locate the wrecked machine. After which it directed a destroyer to the scene to pick up the crew.

On another occasion, an airplane failed to return and the first news of its plight was obtained through the pigeon messenger. As a result, the crew of six men were rescued after being on the water for nearly a week.

Before the pigeons are detailed for this specialized war duty they have to undergo a period of careful training. To accustom them to sea flying, pigeons whose home lofts are not far from the sidrome are taken up in a plane and liberated through the hatch when the machine is well away from land. In course of time the birds learn to keep their wings closed when they are released, and perform a "dead drop" until they are clear of the slip-stream from the propellers. Then they open their wings, fly around two or three times, and make a beeline for home. A trained bird can fly 500 miles.

During one period of eight months some 320 messages were sent from R.A.F. aircraft by pigeon, and 307 were delivered. Only a small proportion of these messages, happily, was appeals for help. One winged messenger brought news from Holland to the East Midlands in four hours and ten minutes.

An exceptionally good performance was that of two pigeons which were released 340 miles from home in an entirely strange direction. They had to cross two countries and a sea, but both reached home, the first in eleven flying hours. One young pigeon delivered an SOS against a gale, taking eight and a half hours to battle across more than 175 miles of sea.

King George takes a great interest in the work of the service, and from the royal loft at Sandringham his birds are sent out daily on war operations. Important messages have already been received by their aid.

"HAPPY EVENT" OVER NORTH SEA

Pilots of the R.A.F. speak of bomb-dropping as "egg-laying," but the first natural egg to be laid on active service was carefully handed out of a reconnaissance plane when it landed at a northern aerodrome recently. The egg had been laid by a pigeon which had been carried on the flight for emergency communications. The "happy event" took place when the aircraft was patrolling the North Sea in search of U-boats hundreds of miles from land. Quite contentedly, and quite unruffled by her journey, the proud bird was taken in her basket to the pigeon loft on the air station — and granted "indefinite leave."

Every member of the National Pigeon Service has contracted to loan his birds for war work. Although the scheme is purely voluntary, a grant of $20 a year is made by the British Air Ministry to all fanciers who have ten or more of their birds actually employed. The number of pigeons available for this service is approximately 750,000.

The pigeons work in World War II is much more difficult than in World War I owing to the greater speed and range of aircraft, and to the fact that modern message forms are now attached to the birds' legs in a special carrier. A white patch on the outside of the carrier enables the pilot in distress to write his exact position just before the bird is released.

HONG KONG NOW A GHOST TOWN

In the few months since the explosion in the Pacific last December, Hong Kong, the "Opulent Pearl of the Orient," has been reduced to a ghost town. Tragically, some 1,000,000 Chinese have been starved to the point where the town has a wraith-like appearance.

The four Horsemen of the Apocalypse — War, Death, Famine and Pestilence — have ridden roughshod over the once smiling Riviera of the Far East, and now famine, pestilence and the destruction of physical and moral value stalk the former Crown Colony and trade mecca of the East.

The Japanese, recognizing the increasingly grave internal situation, are doing their utmost to evacuate the poorer Chinese residents to the country districts of Kwangtung, Kwangsi and Fukien provinces, but they are unable to ship out sufficiently large numbers to cheat death.

It is estimated that so far 500,000 Chinese have departed of their own volition and under compulsion. The 1,000,000 who remain face an increasingly bitter struggle. Only overland evacuation has been attempted, but even this is seriously hampered by the activities of the Free Chinese armies and the Allied air forces.

The isolation of Hong Kong island through the rupture of all its former trade routes including those of the mainland fruit and vegetable supplies, has caused a condition approaching famine. Rice costs eight times what it formerly did and many commodities have increased in price ten and twenty-fold.

Because of the virtual cessation of business, the Chinese are flocking to public rice lines in mounting numbers, although these cheap stocks are utterly inadequate.

The writer of this dispatch, who was the New York Herald Tribune correspondent at Shanghai was arrested December 29th, 1941, on unspecified charges "of assisting China" and confined for seventy-nine days in an unheated, unsanitary cell. Reading matter and visitors were prohibited.

Lined on the floor, sharing the cell with prisoners varying in number from twenty to forty, I had four baths and three shaves during my captivity.

The jail diet consisted of three bowls of rice daily except at breakfast, which consisted of hot rice gruel. « Lunch and dinner usually were augmented by vegetable treatments and on rare occasions fish and meat scraps and other leftovers. Every two weeks I was permitted to receive one parcel of food, clothing and bedding."

In all the other non-Chinese prisoners were permitted to receive handwiches and a thermos flask of hot beverages furnished by our servants or friends. Fruit, on rare exceptions, were offered to us. Medical violence in outbreaks of flistreatment reported in many civilians jailed in Japan and Korea.

Those enemy nationals in Canada who have not been arrested now enjoy comparative freedom, but are still ample, although not severe, restrictions. Since the outbreak of the war, flour and rice are rationed in Canada. Public utilities, gas, telephone, electricity, trolley lines are in operation, private automobiles are in use and operate. The coal shortage, with consumption this winter, is not essential.

MORE WOOL IS NEEDED for Canada's War Effort

CO-OPERATE IN ONTARIO'S EFFORT TO PRODUCE MORE WOOL. HELP INCREASE THE SIZE AND NUMBER OF ONTARIO SHEEP FLOCKS

PRODUCING more wool to clothe Canada's fighting forces and her civil population is a vital task which deserves the earnest consideration of every Ontario farmer. A brief study of the wool production of North America and of world conditions occasioned by the war reveals an alarming situation that calls for straight thinking and forthright speaking.

North American Wool Production 1941		North American Wool Consumption 1941
Canada	19,200,000 lbs.	Canada	109,000,000 lbs.
United States	455,000,000 lbs.	United States	977,000,000 lbs.

DEFICIT - - - - - 611,800,000 lbs.

You can see that with shipping space at a premium and with every merchantman a target for enemy submarines, the situation is indeed critical. More wool must be picked up in this country. Ontario farmers to help produce it.

The Ontario Department of Agriculture is asking for an increase of 25% in this province. To do this, all present flocks must be kept, and in addition, 110,000 ewe lambs from the 1942 crop must be kept on the farm. If every present flock owner kept three ewes from this crop, most of the increase would be obtained. But since many sheep owners are not commodate any more animals, the Department is asking Ontario farmers to establish 1,000 new flocks which will absorb all surplus ewe lambs. Your Agricultural Representative will be able to put you in touch with men who have lambs for sale or men who wish to purchase them.

In establishing 1,000 new flocks, it is intended that expansion take place by counties in proportion to the present sheep population. You will see what expansion must be accomplished in your county in the lists below.

ONTARIO POWER CUTS FORECAST

Windsor, (C.P.) — Restrictions in the use of electric power for lighting will come during September, J. Albert Smith, Liberal member of Ontario Legislature for Waterloo North and member of the Hydro Electric Power Commission, told members of the eighth district Ontario Municipal Electrical Association meeting, held in Windsor.

Mr. Smith said the new restrictions would be "initial" steps in a general programme of conservation of power to meet the increased demand of at least 250,000 horsepower the hydro system will be confronted with in December.

The September restrictions will apply to exterior and interior lighting; show window and show case lighting; outline and ornamental lighting, lighting for decorative and advertising purposes; outdoor and indoor lighting, including field lighting for amusements and sports; operation of air heaters or electric signs in stores or office buildings and also a limited curtailment of street lighting.

CONSERVATIVE RALLY CALLED FOR SEPTEMBER

Edmonton, (C.P.) — H. R. Milner, past-president of the Alberta Conservative Association, in a statement released last week, said a meeting of men and women from all parts of Canada, convened by a group of Conservatives, will be held at Port Hope, Ont., the first week in September, "to discuss Canada's war and post-war problems."

The meeting will be composed of laymen, the statement said, and is being held as a result of a number of informal discussions, first in Winnipeg and later in Montreal and elsewhere."

The statement further said that because it is a gathering of laymen "it is not intended that it should deal with leadership or with organization but this is understood by the official leaders of the party."

TEXT OF STATEMENT

"Approximately 150 men and women from all parts of Canada will gather during the first week in September at Trinity College School, in Port Hope, Ont., at a meeting convened by a group of Conservatives to discuss Canada's war and post-war problems.

"The meeting will be composed of laymen, having been described by one of its originators as a "grass roots" movement within the party. It is an effort to interest a wide variety of Canadian citizens in the present and important public business of the country. Owing to the fact that it is a gathering of laymen it is not intended that it should deal with leadership or with organization and this is understood by the official leaders of the party.

"The decision to hold the meeting resulted from a number of informal discussions first in Winnipeg and later in Montreal and elsewhere. The interest shown indicated that the Conservative party holds the allegiance of a wide variety of people in all parts of the country who are thinking in terms of the problems of 1942.

"Those responsible for calling the meeting believe that there is a new opportunity and responsibility facing the party and it is their earnest hope that the present meeting may be the beginning of a broad movement which will help the party in the discharge of its duty to the country in these grave times.

"A ROUND TABLE"

"The meeting is to be called 'a round table on Canadian policy.'

"The names of the convening committee are as follows: H. R. Milner, Edmonton; R. M. Tupper, Vancouver; L. D. St. Baxter, Winnipeg; Hugh MacLennan, Montreal; N.R.C. B. Smith, Halifax; J. M. Macdonnell, Toronto; J. C. M. Dussault, Montreal; Arthur Moxon, Saskatoon; R. Finlayson, Winnipeg, secretary of the convention committee."

WAR CONTRACTS SWELL INDUSTRY

Ottawa — An enormous expansion in Canadian industry is indicated in statistics and figures in the realm of trade and production.

Figures showing the specific contracts themselves have not been made public, reportedly due to United Nations policy, but general statements are permitted.

In the latest report on the subject, the figures show 334,370 contracts have been let at a total of $4,877,000,000, including the war training scheme and contracts both on British and Canadian accounts.

The new figures for 1940, there were 1961 contracts per month while in the first quarter of this year, they numbered 16,034 and in the second quarter 18,029.

NATIONAL SELECTIVE SERVICE DUE ON SEPTEMBER 1ST

New Move is Called 'Prelude to Conscription'

Ottawa. — National selective service every where in the dominion is now scheduled to be effective September 1st.

There are authorized intimations to this effect and the probability of a nation wide broadcast on the subject, this week.

No new statute has been enacted. All that is to be done will be within the elastic framework of the Mobilization Act, passed in 1940. The enforcement of its has been piecemeal. Now, it is to be general.

The Department of Labor will be the central agency. That course was considered preferable to a divided authority and the conflict which it may invite. Moreover, such services in the United Kingdom and in the United States are through a civilian department.

Over a hundred new offices will be opened up. In the next week or so, throughout the country. These will be the centres of administration of the act on the selective principle. It is to them that women will go to register for war services. This may take the form of something to which they are specially adapted or it may mean their being utilized in the replacement of men.

Conclusive emphasis is being placed on the shortage of manpower. The reservoir is down to 30,000. The machinery which now is being set up, is designed to brin gabout a lot of shifting from non-essential to essential industry and, perhaps, from both to the armed services. If it can be done by methods of persuasion, they will suffice. If the instrumentality of compulsion needs to be resorted to, it will be.

The basic idea is to utilize man and woman power where this can be done best and most efficiently. That will call for many decisions, some not pleasant and even harsh. But there will be opportunities to appeal from local boards.

It may be assumed that, in approach to the point of manpower, the armed forces will have a certain priority. The home defence forces are being increased steadily, many are going to other points elsewhere and the need of a reservoir for overseas reinforcements is emphasized each time that a second front is spoken of.

CURTAIL INDUSTRY

At the same time, it is not intended to shout down, or even to curtail, war industry in any branch of its intensified production, including foodstuffs. The curtailment instead, will be in non-essential industry, creating up the materials, and using them, where needed for more vital war production. Nor is it designed to put these less essential industries out of business. Where they can't be converted, in whole or in part, into war industry, it is planned that, in other lines, they may be set up but, in a way to avoid competition for what are called "critical" materials.

The primary basis of the new selective service is a recognition of the coming call of thousands to the army additional to those volunteering for the Air Force and the Navy. The supply for those forces, may be centralized. Many will come from either war factories or essential normal industries. These must be replaced by other workers, in addition to the remainder of the 250,000 which

LESTER BOYES, JR. GRADUATES FROM BROCKVILLE

Lester Boyes, Jr., of Napanee, who went to England with the first contingent of Canadian Troops and recently was sent back to Canada to take an officer's training course at the O. T. C. in Brockville, was among the list of graduates who now hold the rank of 2nd Lieutenant. The graduates now take their final examination at the various training camps, where they have the opportunity of becoming First Lieutenants in their particular branch of service.

YOUNG MAN ARRESTED FOR BREAK - IN

Sidney Thompson, 19-year-old youth of Napanee, is being held by the local authorities on a charge of breaking and entering the property of the Canadian National Railways and the theft of four cartons of cigarettes, the property of Shore Loynes & Co., from the C. N. R. property.

His case will be heard Thursday, August 13th, before Magistrate Garvin, in the regular session of Police Court.

V

are required to turn out munitions and other materials of war.

With the reservoir of employable males now dry, there are limited sources from which labor for war industries, as distinct from the needs of the Armed Forces, can be drawn. Perhaps the most important is the greater utilization of women in war work. This is believed to be the biggest single pool from which to get fruit. The other is the transfer of workers from less essential industry

CONSCRIPTION PRELUDE

All this activity calls for a very large and, also, a very powerful organization to direct the equipment of adequate authority. It is being gone ahead with, now. The direction is new and the machinery will be mainly new, or extended, and the organization will be large and widespread.

But the policy was really foreshadowed as far back as last Christmas time, when it was announced in a Montreal speech, by Hon. C. C. Power.

Moreover, it is all based on the National Mobilization Act, passed in June of 1940.

What, in effect, is conscription, or potential conscription, on selective lines, at home, and in adjacent territory, may prove to be the prelude to conscription, far away from home. The Government has the decision as to the time and the nature and extent of it. When that comes, parliament will be advised and formal sanction sought. If they are not here, they will be specially brought here.

INTENSIFIED TRAINING OF CADETS AT CAMP NEXT YEAR

Kingston, Aug. 11. — The first cadet camp of Military District No. 3, since the outbreak of war, concluded early last week at Connaught Ranges, but already plans are under way to intensify next year's syllabus under a battalion headquarters set up.

Capt. T. C. Holmes, district cadet officer, has revealed that reports coming in from various centres in the district, which were represented at the camp, indicate a much larger attendance next year. Cadets who attended Connaught Ranges have been loud in their praises of the camp and are already interested many of their friends to join them under canvas.

As a result of the interest taken in the camp, it is expected that in 1941 the cadets will spend either six days or two weeks in training.

Even though the attendance at next year's camp will be boosted as a result of the successful camp this year, it has been suggested that steps be taken to ensure that cadets not engaged in actual war work, will attend.

Officers who assisted in the administration of the cadet camp were Lt.-Col. J. H. Hogan, M.M., officer commanding the 2nd Battalion, O.C. P.G., of Ottawa who was camp commandant; Major Percy Hannaford; Capt. W. H. Agnes; Capt. M. C. Frick and C.S.M. Fuller.

One of the main items in making any army camp a success was the excellent food provided, and all boys were unanimous in their approval of the splendid way the messing and catering was carried out.

The martial discipline of the entire camp resulted under the leadership of capable instructors. An example were the 113 cadets from Cornwall, the largest body of cadets at the camp, who carried the discipline learned in school to their lines and instruction periods during the camp.

The cadets took over the lines previously held by the 1st Battalion of the Brockville Rifles and the Lanark and Renfrew Scottish regiments (A.&P.), and their keenness to learn everything possible was shown in the zest for knowledge during the training periods.

Special interest was taken by the boys in the exhibition of two Ram tanks, in addition to the display of the 3-inch mortar, the Bren, Reising and Vickers machine guns and the artillery sighters-pointers.

CAMP WASTE FAT TO GO INTO SOAP

Kingston, (C.P.) — A soap manufacturing plant to save thousands of pounds of waste fat, will be built at nearby Barriefield military camp, officials announced recently.

Soap has been made from waste fat in the past, but the new plant will incorporate more improved time-saving equipment.

The garbage meals are served daily at the camp and Lieut. M. Berg, the messing officer, said that one ton of soap is being made monthly from unedible fats.

C.W.A.C. RECRUITING DRIVE COMMENCE AT BROCKVILLE

Kingston, Aug. 10 — Another recruiting tour of Military District No. 3 is being planned by Capt. Anita McBride, Canadian Women's Army Corps staff officer, and will get under way on Tuesday, August 19th, at Brockville.

The tour is being made to increase the ranks of the C.W.A.C. in Canada to 10,000 by the end of the year, and Capt. McBride is confident that there are many girls eligible in this district to take over work now being done by physically fit soldiers, who will be relieved for more arduous duties of war. The quota in M.D. 3 is unlimited.

Mobile recruiting unit will be in charge of 2nd Lieutenant A. Clare Mason, who will be accompanied by Capt. and two other ranks. This unit has already had considerable success in other parts of the district, and next week will be at the following places: Tuesday, August 19th, all day, Brockville. Wednesday, August 20th, morning, Prescott, and afternoon, Iroquois. Thursday, August 13th, morning, Winchester, and afternoon, Morrisburg. Friday, August 14th, all day, Cornwall; and Saturday morning, Lancaster.

GENERAL GOTT REPORTED KILLED

OUTSTANDING BRITISH SOLDIER AUTHORITY ON DESERT WARFARE

London, Aug. 10 (C.P. Cable) — The Daily Telegraph said today it has learned that Lt.-Gen. William Henry Ervine Gott, one of Britain's most outstanding desert soldiers, was killed in action in the recent Libyan fighting.

Known affectionately to his troops as "Strafer" Gott, he was praised in the House of Commons by Prime Minister Churchill last June, in recognition of his value in combatting Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's advance.

The War Office said once of him: "He probably knows more about the desert than any other senior British officer."

Gen. Gott received his first commission in the 60th Rifles in February, 1915. In 1938 he was a major in the King's Rifle Corps. Less than a year ago he commanded a support group of the 7th Armored Division in the Middle East, then was given command of the division and was an acting major-general until last January 2nd, when he was gazetted a lieutenant-general.

School Teachers To Be Bureaux Information Publicize C.W.A.C.

Kingston, Aug. 10 — Women teachers, who are attending Queen's University summer school, will act as information bureaux to publicize the Canadian Women's Army Corps and aid in the present recruiting drive when they return to their respective schools, according to Capt. Anita McBride, C.W.A.C. staff officer of Military District No. 3, who spoke to a mass meeting at Ban Righ Hall, Kingston.

An unlimited quota has been set for this district, and Capt. McBride, and Capt. Ethel Kingston, who is in charge of "E" Barracks at Barriefield Training Centre, revealed that volunteers for Canada's women's army would be placed immediately.

MUST REPORT . OVERSUPPLY OF TEA AND COFFEE

Ottawa, (C.P.) — Persons with more than two weeks' supply of tea or coffe on hand — when the new rationing regulations became effective August 31st — must report their total quantity to the nearest ration office, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board said, last week, along with coupons to cover the difference between the amount on hand and the amount allowed under rationing regulations.

If the coupon value of the surplus exceeds the coupons attached to the temporary ration cards of all members of the household more than twelve years of age the rebate should contain an undertaking to surrender the appropriate number of additional coupons when received, the board said.

The order, applying to any consumer, boarding-house operator and persons more than twelve years old, obligates persons holding two rather cards to return one of them immediately.

SYNTHETIC RUBBER CONTROL

One of the weaknesses of the democratic process is that it moves slowly. The nations under dictators have to obey the voice of their master. It is one voice, decisions are made quickly. There is no comeback. Everybody must abide by the decision of the master. A democracy moves slower, decisions are reached after debate, after a lot of discussion, and often after a lot of wire-pulling. Nevertheless the decision is one made by the people, and carries public confidence. What is lost in speed is made up in public confidence.

This retarded movement in the democratic process is shown in the delay in getting the synthetic rubber programme under way in the United States. There are apparently two main processes for producing synthetic rubber—one makes use of alcohol distilled from wheat, the other makes use of crude oil. Naturally the control of the manufacture of synthetic rubber is a big plum. It is worth fighting for. So we witness a struggle between the grain group and the oil group, while the nations suffer because of rubber shortage. The farmers' block, with the huge reserves of wheat in mind, seeing a new and ready market for it, are pressing their claim on the government. The oil group, led by the Standard Oil Company, are leaving no stone unturned to have the crude oil process adopted by the State.

The situation reached the point where a bill which would have placed the Government's imprimatur on the grain process, was before the President, for signature. The President, however, vetoed the bill. Perhaps there was something political about that, for then the representatives from the grain growing districts could not be held responsible for the failure of the Bill. At all events the President vetoed the Bill.

Then he appointed a small committee of three, Bernard M. Maruch, Dr. James B. Conant, President of Harvard University, and Dr. Karl T. Compton, to investigate the whole rubber situation and present a report. The report will deal not only with synthetic rubber, but as well with the necessity or otherwise, of nation-wide gasoline rationing. This is probably the best method. Their report will become the basis of government action. But in the meantime, there are delays.

In this country, it is reported that a combination of the wheat and the oil processes will be used. In this way both the oil interests and the farmers will be satisfied. All of which shows how complicated the legislative machinery of a democracy may be even in the face of imminent danger.

UNITED LABOR FRONT

The C. I. O. and the A. F. of L., the two powerful Labor organizations in the United States which have been for several years fighting for control of organized Labor, show signs of settling their differences. It is interesting to note that the advances looking to a cessation of hostilities between the two Labor groups, comes from the C. I. O. This is the organization which was looked upon as the bad boy of Labor, for quite a long time. But now, the bad boy is asking for the hand of peace, a little wizen-up man, living on a meagre diet of vegetables and goat's milk, refusing the least semblence of comfort and luxuty. And yet he holds in his hands almost complete control over millions of people. Leaders have walks of life make a trek to him, while tens of thousands await his bidding.

In spite of all his gifts and insights, it is doubtful if he knows Japan. In the document drawn up by Gandhi, to be presented to the National Council, Ghandi said that once India had gained her independence, one of the first things she would probably do would be to make peace with Japan. He said they had no quarrel with Japan and that he would go to Japan and plead with her to free China. Now Gandhi does not know the Japanese military group. It is quite conceivable that if he made the trip, as suggested, he would be warmly and graciously received. He would be given assurance that Japan would certainly free China, and then, if the past is any criterion of Japanese policy, they would immediately press their campaign against China, the harder. It was when professing peace with the United States that Pearl Harbour was attacked. And while making a drive against Manchuria, Japan declared there was no war, it was just an incident. No ! the past history of Japanese diplomacy hardly justifies Mr. Gandhi's idealistic optimism.

But the fact that Mr. Gandhi suggested it, is alarming. It indicates the extent to which he is willing to go in his opposition to Great Britain. .

The people of India have been promised independence after the war. Even if Great Britain might be inclined to change her mind, the United States would see to it that the promise was kept. The United States is the friend of all subject peoples. Public opinion there has always favored a progressive development towards independence for the Indians. But there is little sympathy now, in the States, towards Gandhi and his followers. The attitude of the leaders in India, in taking advantage of the present situation, finds little support in the United States, save the Middle West. It is in and around Chicago that the spirit of isolationism has been most marked, and whenever it was felt necessary to paint pictures of the evil effects of imperialism, the Chicago Press uses the presence of Great Britain in India as a terrible example. Apart from this group, however, public opinion has little sympathy with Ghandi and his followers. It is unfortunate that this is so, for the friendship of the United States is not to be underestimated.

Confronted with a civil disobedience campaign, India will be a serious problem. It is unfortunate that saner counsels did not prevail.

TRENDS

During the First Great War, only those who suffered were the members of enlisted men and their immediate families. In the present war all are feeling the pinch. Gasoline rationing affects the mode of life of every car owner; heavy taxation touches the pockets of all; rationing of sugar, tea and coffee brings home to every family the economic consequences of the struggle. Prices of all commodities, including wages are fixed. These are the most visible controls. But, in hundreds of ways not so observable to the common man, life is being directed, regulated and controlled. That becomes necessary in order to win a war. There can be no question but that totalitarian methods can only be met by totalitarian methods. Whatever the consequences of the war may be this, at least, is certain, that the economic set-up of Germany and the other Totalitarian States will have a profound effect on the Democracies. Free competition as we have known it, is gone, and, perhaps, for ever.

With the passing of unrestricted competition, other changes arise. The main danger is that life may become so regulated that the free expression of the spirit will be unduly restricted. The laissez-faire theory has worked out to its ultimate conclusion. It has broken down. It has permitted a few strong individuals or groups to get control of the productive forces of society and exploit them for financial interest. The State has, in a crisis, had to step in and give direction to business, and to limit free competition.

When the war is over the real test of the present controlling bodies will take place. Already powerful interests are urging business to prepare for taking back all it has lost on the cessation of hostilities. We are not at all sure that any government entrusted with the responsibility of governing for all the people, would undertake to remove the restrictions as soon as the war is over and revert to pre-war conditions. To do that would land the country in economic chaos. The controls as we have them now, may be modified and changed. But anyone who tries to picture the post-war world, with all the problems that will face the leaders, must be well aware that the restrictions and controls so necessary in war, will be no less necessary in peace.

It is quite common to hear men in all walks of life say that the Old World is gone, and that the New World will be different. In what ways will it be different. Certainly, one of the ways will be the stricter control of the means of production and the distribution of life's necessities.

The prime necessity for each individual is to see that these powers, these controls, are kept in hands of the people by the democratic process. Otherwise we will be on our way to a form of economic and political set-up which can call Fascism.

IT NEVER RAINS BUT IT POURS

As though Great Britain and the United Nations did not have enough on their hands fighting a life and death war with the Axis, now the internal condition in India has to be met. It cannot be avoided. The Indian leaders are taking advantage of Britain's preoccupation in other places to push their claims for independence, now.

Never has the power of the little brown man Gandhi, been so evident and so fateful as at the present moment. There he is, a wizen-up man, living on a meagre diet of vegetables and goat's milk, refusing the least semblence of comfort and luxuty. And yet he holds in his hands almost complete control over millions of people. Leaders from all walks of life make a trek to him, while tens of thousands await his bidding.

ARMY – AIR FORCE SERVICES ARE EXPANDING

Ottawa, (C.P.) — Some 30,000 Canadian women will be wearing the King's uniform before another year is out if the present rate of expansion of the womens services continues.

The recent announcement that members of the Women's Division of the Royal Canadian Air Force will go overseas, coming on the heels of a similar intimation of overseas service for members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps, indicates the women will be sent wherever Canadian fighting men are stationed in large numbers.

The C.W.A.C. now has a strength of about 6,000 and is planning to get 1,000 new recruits a month so it will have 10,000 by the end of the year.

EXPANSION PLANS

The Women's Division of the Air Force has about 5,000 girls on strength and its expansion plans call for a total of 15,000 by the end of 1943.

The recently authorized Women's Royal Naval Service has not yet taken on any recruits but active preparations are being made for enlisting and training 8,000 women in the first year and a total of 7,000 eventually.

It has not yet been decided how many airwomen will be sent overseas but it is expected the first movement will be small and will consist largely of clerical workers for employment at the overseas headquarters or the R.C.A.F. the women immediately needed overseas are stenographers, telephone operators, filing clerks and perhaps a few drivers.

LETTERS FROM SOLDIERS IN ENGLAND

Somewhere in England,
June 27th, 1942.

Dear Mother and All:

Here I am somewhere in England, and I am fine and had a lovely trip over. I have seen a lot of strange things over here. It is Sunday night. We just got here last night and were all pretty tired when we landed.

Well, mother, will you get Vernon's address and send it to me and I will look him up. When you write tell me if you got my telegram or not as I sent you one while I was on the boat. Tell every one to write as I imagine it is going to be real nice to get letters from home.

How is Francis and Bill. Tell them I have seen some lovely places and some funny things — cars with three wheels and bicycles with one big wheel on behind and a small one in front; they look funny to me but I have been used to seeing. What do you think?

I wish you had have been with us to-night. Three of us went down town and got our supper and we had a lot of fun. The money gets me all muddled with sixpences and shillings, bobs and pound notes.

I am with the same bunch I left Petawawa with. It surely is a lot better to be with the boys you know. Tell Bill Davis I am here and tell him to write and that I would like to have him here to get muddled up with this money, too. You can take care of my money for me as I am going to have a holiday when I come home.

We saw some lovely gardens and flowers. You can't imagine how nice they are until you see them. They are certainly grand.

Well mother, I will tell you more next time I write as I have about ten or twelve letters to write, so that will take some time.

So, will say, Bye-Bye,

As ever,

DORLAND.

Somewhere in England,
June 9th, 1942.

Dear Friends:

Just a few lines to let you know that I received your parcel and to thank you very many thanks for it. As you probably know, it is very difficult to obtain those sort of things over here and they are very much appreciated.

We are hard at work over here doing our little bit to keep the transport running and it is rather an uneventful life, so needless to say when we hear from all you people back there it helps to pass away the idle hours and inspires us to fresh effort, as we know that we are not forgotten.

You may guess from the envelope our best friend over here is the "Sally Ann" (Salvation Army) canteen. They are running every morning with free tea and biscuits; free show at the unit twice a week and one dance. About once a week a free issue of ten cigs and all the matches you want, as well as a writing material. There are a lot of people that are stationed in them when they pass their plate in town, but here is one that will never turn them down. I am living proof to have the chance to drop a nickel in that plate on a Saturday evening, in Napanee.

Well, life is singularly without news at the present, but about these days so I shall close for now wishing everyone in the Bay a fine way over here, and remain as ever,

Sincerely Yours,
DALTON B. YOUNG.

Can. – U.S. Specialists Form Super-Commando Force

Washington, (C.P.) — War Under-Secretary Robert P. Patterson revealed the formation of a new American-Canadian force of super-specialists in offensive warfare.

The new unit dubbed the 1st Special Service Force, was described as a unique combat unit composed of specially - qualified men skilled in all offensive operations, including marine landings and mountain and desert warfare.

CAMP ESTABLISHED

The superr-commando force will operate directly under directions of the United States Army, chief of staff, Lt.-Gen. Joseph T. McNarney. A training camp has been established at Helena, Montana, with Col. Robert T. Frederick of the coast artillery in command.

The Canadian contingent will be the first to serve as a part of a British unit, Patterson said. Canadian officers are already with the new outfit. Canadians and Americans will wear the same uniform.

Patterson also announced that a group of six Canadian officers and twenty non - commissioned officers have arrived at Fort Benning, Ga., to train as parachute instructors for Canadian parachute troops.

FORM AIR-BORNE UNITS

He further disclosed the formation of five British air-borne regiments, number of entire divisions of United States industry to move to a battle front by air.

OFFICE WORKERS NEEDED

While requests have come from the army overseas for women—and it is the intention to meet them — C.W.A.C. officials say the call is not an overseas movement. The C. W. A.C. is hard pressed to meet demands for girl workers in army offices and camps in Canada.

One of the jobs believed awaiting the C.W.A.C. overseas, if and when women can be sent, is the operation of a big army laundry

The work women do is much the same in all three services — office work, driving and servicing cars and vehicles, waiting, cleaning, cooking, waiting on tables and other jobs in which they can release able-bodied men for fighting duties.

"I gave my old waders to the scrap rubber receiving depot"

The 82nd and 101st Infantry Divisions at Camp Claiborne, La., will be the first of the air-borne units, which will be streamlined down to a strength of about 8,000 men each. All their weapons and equitment will be moved by planes and gliders.

In action, the air-borne divisions will fight as infantry after the manner of similar German Army divisions.

Command of another new United States fighting force, the Engineer Amphibian Command, which has been training at Camp Edwards, Mass., for special assault missions landing operations has been given to Col. Daniel Noce, he reported.

The engineers are recruiting motor and sail boat operators, Diesel and automobile mechanics for the unit

NEW BOARD ANNOUNCED

Patterson also announced formation of a board of army officers, to be known as the Inter-Allied Personnel Board, to handle the exchange of nationals between the American Army and the armed forces of the other United Nations, and creation of a new transportation corps in the services of supply concentrating in a single command all of the Army's transportation functions except air transport.

Brig.-Gen. Guy Henry, who was chief of the Canadian - American Transfer Board, was named to head the new transport unit.

The transportation corps, similar in organization to the corps of engineers and the quartermaster corps, will take over the functions of the former transportation services of supply as well as the transportation division of the quartermaster corps, the ports of embarkation staging areas and reconsignment stations of the overseas shipments.

The chief of transportation is in effect the traffic manager of the war for rail, water and highway shipments of all kinds," said Patterson.

Brig.-Gen. Charles P. Gross, who headed the Transportation Service, S.O.S. was named chief of the new corps.

Patterson also reported the Alaskan highway is making "very good progress," the work having "gone forward faster than anticipated."

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, AUGUST 16TH, 1942

ISAAC PRACTICES PEACE
LESSON TEXT: GENESIS 26: 18 - 31

One of the many things which we take for granted in this part of the world, is fresh cool drinking water. We never give it a passing thought. It is always at the tap as well. We have as much as we want, and when they were in Egypt, Moses and Aaron have lived in desert countries where water is the most precious commodity, can properly appreciate its value. Just now the British and the German and Italian forces are in deadly combat in just such a place. It is sandy, hot and arid. Water is scarce. It has to be husbanded with the utmost care. This condition with which we are being familiarized through the Press, throws a lot of light on our Sunday school lesson.

The Hebrews prized their wells. And one of the worst things an enemy could do was to destroy them. That is what happened after the death of Abraham. The Philistines always at enmity with the Hebrews, filled-in their wells. When Isaac came along he decided to open the wells which had been filled in, but the Philistines followed suit, and the Hebrews and destroyed the wells as fast as the Hebrews opened them.

Isaac did not fight back. He moved his position; took up new land and started away from the Philistines. Is that the right attitude to take? It is always a question. We in our day have had a decided tendency to run away. That backing away was taken for weakness and the bullying nation was thereby encouraged in its depredations and aggressions. Until the whole of human nature is changed and completely civilized, there will always be those who will have to be restrained by force. In the meantime, it is the duty and the privilege of Christians to do their part in the process of changing human nature, under the influence of the Spirit of Christ, now steadily on.

But there is another matter which has to be considered in a lesson like this sort. There apparently was plenty of land. Why did Isaac not go to the Philistines and the Hebrews, and make a deal to divide the land? There is plenty of room on the earth's surface for all its people. There are plenty of wells for all — not wells as well as water wells. One-half of the world cannot continue to hold control of all the wells, of all the natural resources, with the other half in virtual slavery. A just and workable peace will come only with the tacit recognition of this.

After having backed away from the Philistines several times, Isaac was finally left alone. The enemy made friends with him and they lived together in peace. It is hard to do much with people who have strong convictions and are willing to die for them, even without them. It will be hard to do much with India if India simply refuses to cooperate, and prepares to die for her convictions. Pacifism of that sort is a terrible weapon. Pacifism, if it is merely cowardice, is a weak, cowardly and ineffective, but when made the first fruit of faith and their ability confronting the enemy with nothing more than their bodies, it is hard to do much about it. It is always a mistake to assume that pacifism is sort, weak, negative thing.

The Quakers are pacifists, and yet they endure hardships; they face death as they move on their errands of mercy; they sacrifice money, time and talents to demonstrate the reality of their faith. There is something in that sort of pacifism that wins the admiration of us all, and reinforces faith in the essential goodness of human nature.

CANNING — AS IMPORTANT AS MAKING MUNITIONS!

LEND A HAND!

Thousands of women who have never seen the inside of a canning factory are being asked to spend the next six to eight weeks lending a hand to preserve food for Victory!

Bountiful Ontario crops of fruit and vegetables must be saved as food for Canada's armed forces, for our allies and for our families. They must be preserved promptly in the hundreds of clean, well-operated canning plants of the province.

The seasonal type of workers usually available to canning factories have been absorbed almost entirely into year-round war jobs. This leaves Ontario food processors desperately short-handed unless local women will leave their homes for a few weeks to lend a hand.

So act now! Get some of your friends together and volunteer your next few weeks to your local canning factory for this bigger job. It's a very necessary war job that's as useful, as pleasant and as patriotic as the making of munitions, and the job will be over for this year in about two months. If further information is required, write Farm Service Force, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

INDIA'S WAR SUPPLY ACHIEVEMENT

Machine tools and plant equipment from the United States and Britain are at work in Indian factories, stepping up war production.

Guns are coming out in quantities five times the pre-war output, and that rate is to be increased to eight times the present scale. Production of steel is twenty-four times larger than before the war and is to go up to ninety-six times the peace figure.

Output of small arms ammunition has been trebled, and more than 100,000,000 rounds have already been sent overseas. Production of rifles and light machine guns is five times higher than before the war.

The Eastern Group Supply Council started new war production on a big scale in India as part of a project to co-ordinate and organize to the maximum the war supplies of the eastern countries of the Commonwealth. Included in the scheme are Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Ceylon, East Africa, Southern Rhodesia and India.

The cost of the Council's project for India, estimated at over $40,500,000, is being met by the British Government as a contribution to the defense of India.

DIVERSE PROJECTS COVERED

The Eastern Group projects cover a wide field of munitions; special steels and alloys, gun and shell forgings, guns and shells of various types and calibres, gun-carriages, bayonets, Bren guns and tripods, shells, mortar bombs, hand grenades, shrapnel, mines, fuses and primers, high explosives, respirators, ammunition filling, and light machine guns in five times the present scale. Production of rifles and light machine guns is five times higher than before the war.

India is going in heavily on steel, fire-control and optical instrument industry to the country before the war, but there was little scope for producer than mild steel, structural plates, sheets, rails, tinplate and bar. Now, with a $21,000,000 expansion under way, India is turning out steel suitable for the latest types of field guns and barrels, ammunition and bombs. Total output in the steel industry has increased by fifty per cent as a result.

To-day the manufacture of high-grade steel and non-ferrous alloys, $4,000,000 worth at the peak since the beginning of the war.

With the imported 2,000-ton gun forging press, India is now producing two types of howitzer, high machine guns, shells and propellants.

Shipment delays at first held back India's war production schemes. But now it is hoped the plan of the Eastern Group Supply Council will finish on schedule by April 1943.

WARTIME PRICES AND TRADE BOARD REGULATIONS

SUGAR QUOTA FIXED FOR HARVEST FEEDING

Wartime rationing division of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has announced that, with a view to putting the provision of extra sugar for the feeding of harvest crews upon a definite basis, the allowance for such purchases by means of vouchers honored at retail establishments is to be one ounce per worker per meal. Sugar required for baking for harvest gangs must be used from this allowance. The consumer is required to specify the number of workers entertained, and the number of meals to be served them when tendering her sugar purchase voucher which will later be subjected to close scrutiny.

MAXIMUM PRICE FOR POTATOES IS FIXED

As long ago as April the Wartime Prices and Trade Board gave notice that the maximum price at which any person might sell or offer for sale at retail any new potatoes in the period May 1st to August 31st, 1942, was to be five cents per pound. Whereupon consumers find that this order is being violated, they are asked to notify the nearest office of the Board.

NEW SUPERINTENDENT OF DISTRICT WPTB OFFICES

E. H. Taylor, who has served as Local Representative of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board for the city of Kingston, the counties of Frontenac, Lennox and Addington, since the sub-office there was opened in January, 1942, has now been transferred to the regional office Brockville, to assume the new position of Superintendent of District Offices. He holds the degree of Bachelor of Commerce, conferred upon him in 1929 by Queen's University.

WHOLESALE BEEF PRICE IS REDUCED

Commencing August 3rd and continuing until August 23rd, the price of beef from packer to retailer has been reduced by about 17½ per pound. It is announced by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Retail butchers are expected to pass on this reduction to the consumer.

CORNED BEEF FROZEN TO FEED PRISONERS

One reason why the Wartime Prices and Trade Board recently froze all stocks of corned beef in the hands of retailers and distributors is to make available supplies of that commodity for inclusion in Red Cross parcels which are forwarded to prisoners-of-war in Germany and elsewhere. Corned beef is also required in considerable quantities for the Navy and Merchant Marine, for the lockers of life-boats and rafts, and as a reserve ration for the Canadian army. Rationing keeps civilians and isolated defence posts throughout the Dominion.

NEED METAL TUBES TO MAKE MUNITIONS

Reports reaching the regional office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board indicate that there is danger from a shortage of tubing in response to its request that consumers should turn in without delay all the used metal tubes that they can find so that tin may be made available for the munitions industries. These used tubes are urgently required to make munitions industries and householders are again urged to turn in as many of them as possible to the nearest general store, garage store, department store or cigar store for collection and forwarding to the smelters.

UNITED STATES COUPONS NOT VALID IN CANADA

Isolated cases have been reported to the Wartime Prices and Trade Board of visitors from the U. S. endeavoring to have United States sugar ration coupons honored in this country. The Board points out that they are not redeemable here, but that provision has been made for supplying tourists with sugar rations when they "keep house" while in Canada. They may apply at the port of entry for a temporary sugar ration card and when this is submitted to the nearest office of the Board, they will receive coupons entitling them to rations upon the same basis as they are furnished Canadian citizens.

WOOD DEALERS MUST FURNISH INVOICES

Under an order of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, every primary producer or dealer in fuelwood is required to prepare an invoice to cover each sale that he makes. This invoice must show the quantity by the cord or fraction of a cord which is so sold and the invoice is to be delivered to the purchaser at the time of sale. Fuelwood, it has also been ordered, can only be sold, offered for sale or delivered by cord measurement.

HEAVY FINES FOR BREAKING CEILINGS

In Montreal recently the Canada Beef Company was fined $600 for selling beef above the price ceiling and for attempting to conceal the practice. Fraser Robidoux, dairy was fined $250.00 and costs for selling meal above their ceiling and the proprietor of the Mirche Villeneuve and M. N. Frankel each paid $100.00 and costs for selling potatoes above the ceiling. In London, Ont., a tea room was fined $50.00 and costs for having illegally raised the price of fifteen items and a pie paid $25.00 in a charge of increasing prices on 71 items, another $25.00 and costs being added for failure to keep records. Aaron Rain, a lunch-counter proprietor in Toronto, was fined $75 and costs of $26.50 for breaking the ceiling on restaurant prices and in Montreal the Ernest Cousins dairy was fined $100.00 and costs for having improperly increased the price of ice cream.

LIMITING DELIVERIES TO SAVE TRUCKS, TIRES

It is estimated by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board that more than 200,000,000 truck miles, representing a great saving in gasoline and rubber, will be eliminated by the recent restrictions upon wholesale deliveries. This programme, it is pointed out, was designed by the wholesalers themselves and has received unanimous endorsation.

Ann Sheridan and Ronald Reagan in a scene from "KINGS ROW" playing at the GRANADA Theatre Sunday Midnite, Monday and Tuesday.

COSMETICS BECOME CASUALTIES OF WAR

Under an order of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board manufacturers of cosmetics are limited to fewer varieties for each line of products. Shades of nail polish, for instance, will be reduced from as many as 23 per manufacturer to six. Perfumes, colognes, toilet waters, talcum powders and bath dusting powders will be limited to four odors per manufacturer and hand and face lotions, hair dressings, oils and tonics to three per maker. Lipstick shades, including refills, will also be reduced from sixteen to four and rouges and face powders also to four per manufacturer.

URGED TO SECURE COAL AS EARLY AS POSSIBLE

Canadians who heat with coal are urged by the coal administrator, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, to accept delivery of any suitable size or combination of sizes, and get a supply in their bins as soon as dealers can provide it.

In the operations of United States anthracite mines, it is pointed out, there are produced in varying proportions about eight different sizes of coal, of which egg, stove, nut and pea are generally used in domestic heating. At present there is a scarcity of some size in some sections and many householders are faced with the prospect of doing without it. People should take advantage of the available supply of other sizes, the administrator says, and give whatever size their dealer can supply.

At the present time, pea coal is most easily obtained from the mines. It gives economical heating and can be used by itself or in combination with other sizes. Accordingly, the administrator advises coal consumers not to wait for any particular kind or size of coal.

"Ask the advice of your coal merchant or importer," he suggests. "He knows the mine conditions and can advise what size will suit your particular equipment and which can be delivered promptly. Accept delivery of any suitable size or combination of sizes. It is vitally important to Canadians that they have their supply of fuel in the bins before winter begins. THE FARMER LOOKS AT MUNICIPAL HEALTH

The problem of sickness and how to pay the doctor's bills has long been a serious matter for Canada's farmers. Great strides in co-operative medical assistance have been made in certain parts of the country, and CBC's Farm Radio Forum is planning to let leaders of many western community tell listeners throughout the Dominion how they have solved the problem. H. Chaplin, M. A. (Watt) Anderson and Dr. E. Hitmas of the University of Saskatchewan, Saskatchewan, will explain their local plan of health insurance during the Farm Radio Forum of August 17th. The broadcast will be heard in Eastern Canada at 9:30 p.m., E.W.T. (8:30 p.m. ADT, with a delayed broadcast for Western Canadian listeners at 10:30 p.m. EST.

THE STORY OF AN IDEAL

The story told by these three men is the story of "old stuff" that necessity is the mother of invention. It is a story of the West, for it is in Western Canada that the greatest strides have been made in setting up a democratic system of safeguarding the health of the municipality.

The story really opens in McKillop, which is a small rural municipality about forty miles north and slightly west of Regina, for it is there that Matt Anderson lives. Matt present Reeve of the municipality, was born in Norway in 1882 and about 36 years ago he came to Canada and homesteaded. He retained a great respect for certain of the socialized services of his homeland and when taking over public office was fined $250.00 and costs for selling meal above their ceiling and the proprietor of the Mirche Villeneuve and M. N. Frankel each paid $100.00 and costs for selling potatoes above the ceiling. In London, Ont., a tea room was fined $50.00 and costs for having illegally raised the price of fifteen items and a pie paid $25.00 in a charge of increasing prices on 71 items, another $25.00 and costs being added for failure to keep records. Aaron Rain, a lunch-counter proprietor in Toronto, was fined $75 and costs of $26.50 for breaking the ceiling on restaurant prices and in Montreal the Ernest Cousins dairy was fined $100.00 and costs for having improperly increased the price of ice cream.

LIMITING DELIVERIES TO SAVE TRUCKS, TIRES

It is estimated by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board that more than 200,000,000 truck miles, representing a great saving in gasoline and rubber, will be eliminated by the recent restrictions upon wholesale deliveries. This programme, it is pointed out, was designed by the wholesalers themselves and has received unanimous endorsation.

COSMETICS BECOME CASUALTIES OF WAR

Under an order of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board manufacturers of cosmetics are limited to fewer varieties for each line of products. Shades of nail polish, for instance, will be reduced from as many as 23 per manufacturer to six. Perfumes, colognes, toilet waters, talcum powders and bath dusting powders will be limited to four odors per manufacturer and hand and face lotions, hair dressings, oils and tonics to three per maker. Lipstick shades, including refills, will also be reduced from sixteen to four and rouges and face powders also to four per manufacturer.

URGED TO SECURE COAL AS EARLY AS POSSIBLE

Canadians who heat with coal are urged by the coal administrator, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, to accept delivery of any suitable size or combination of sizes, and get a supply in their bins as soon as dealers can provide it.

In the operations of United States anthracite mines, it is pointed out, there are produced in varying proportions about eight different sizes of coal, of which egg, stove, nut and pea are generally used in domestic heating. At present there is a scarcity of some size in some sections and many householders are faced with the prospect of doing without it. People should take advantage of the available supply of other sizes, the administrator says, and give whatever size their dealer can supply.

At the present time, pea coal is most easily obtained from the mines. It gives economical heating and can be used by itself or in combination with other sizes. Accordingly, the administrator advises coal consumers not to wait for any particular kind or size of coal.

"Ask the advice of your coal merchant or importer," he suggests. "He knows the mine conditions and can advise what size will suit your particular equipment and which can be delivered promptly. Accept delivery of any suitable size or combination of sizes. It is vitally important to Canadians that they have their supply of fuel in the bins before winter begins. Take advantage of the supply and sizes of coal now available and avoid the hardship that a shortage of coal is bound to bring. Do not through inertia or carelessness make fuel rationing necessary in Canada."

THE STORY OF AN IDEAL

The story told by these three men is the story of "old stuff" that necessity is the mother of invention. It is a story of the West, for it is in Western Canada that the greatest strides have been made in setting up a democratic system of safeguarding the health of the municipality.

The story really opens in McKillop, which is a small rural municipality about forty miles north and slightly west of Regina, for it is there that Matt Anderson lives. Matt present Reeve of the municipality, was born in Norway in 1882 and about 36 years ago he came to Canada and homesteaded. He retained a great respect for certain of the socialized services of his homeland and when taking over public office as councillor in 1922, his chief aim was to improve the conditions of the people around him. Health came first. Could not some system be devised whereby the financial burden of sickness might be shared equally, so that the poor might receive the benefits equally with those more able to pay? His interest was born not only of his early experience in Norway, but of the dire need of many friends and neighbours for adequate medical service, both curative and preventive.

It was in 1927, at the annual convention of the Saskatchewan Association of Rural Municipalities that Matt first broadched the subject of health insurance. While it was agreed that some system of state health services should be undertaken and was urgently needed, financing it by the provincial government was considered impossible under existing forms of taxation. The idea of a personal tax was too new to receive spontaneous approval.

However, Matt never allowed the idea to become cold; he was firmly convinced his scheme was workable and when he was elected Reeve of the municipality in 1931, he redoubled his efforts towards educating his own district, and impressed once more upon government officials the need for health services. The depression of 1929 — coupled with year after year of crop failures, had shown the need even more forcibly. Gradually his proposals received more serious consideration.

GOVERNMENT SPONSORSHIP

Finally, in 1938, the provincial government officials agreed to consider trying out some feasible plan. Matt Anderson was the logical man for them to turn to and he was asked to formulate his ideas and discuss their operation preparatory to bringing down the required legislation. The government appointed a "Health Services Board," to supervise and control, with Mr. Anderson a member. 1939 saw the Municipal Medical and Hospital Services Act, or as it is more familiarly known, "The Matt Anderson Plan," passed by the Saskatchewan legislature. Fifteen years of steady work had been fruit.

The administration of the socialized medical services in McKillop is typical of similar organizations in all parts of the West. In this case, before actually setting up a health centre, the local urban municipalities, comprising the town of Strasbourg and Bulyea and Silton, agreed to join with the rural municipality and to act as a single community unit, numbering about 2100 persons. Considerable publicity was necessary and once again Mr. Anderson was on the job.

CO - OPERATION

With the co-operation of the combined rural and urban councils, the necessary meetings and discussions were carried out. Two resident doctors at Strasbourg, Dr. E. Hitsman and Dr. A. McIntosh, agreed to work on a contract basis, thereby serving the newly - organized district and some territory to the north of it. Arrangements were made for specialists and surgical work in Regina at reduced rates.

The doctors have agreed to equip suitable offices and supply their own transportation. They furnish patients with ordinary drugs and dressings on first visits for temporary relief.

The scheme in its present form has resulted in a fairly satisfactory sharing of costs between rural and urban populations.

In the course of the broadcast discussion on August 17th, Matt Anderson and his co-workers will answer a number of the questions which have come up during the operation of such a health service, and which are interesting from the standpoint of the light they can throw on the problems of similar centres in other parts of the country.

TEA PREFERRED BY CANADIANS

Ottawa. — Many questions as to the why and wherefore of tea and coffee rationing have been asked, why the allowances are so small, have followed the announcement of last week.

One query is as to why the tea ration in Canada should be half of what it is in the United Kingdom.

The answer is that over there, very little coffee is used, while tea is taken not only at meal times, but as a regular routine of the afternoon.

While Canadians drink considerable coffee, it is in much less common use than tea. A survey which was made in connection with the projected rationing showed, in answer to a question 'what beverage do you prefer with your meals," that most Canadians take tea and a smaller group coffee. Milk drinkers were reported fewer than persons taking both tea and coffee at a meal.

While the ration of it was not indicated, and in fact it is more drastic than expected, rationing of tea and coffee was foreshadowed on May 24 when sugar was put in the restricted category. The sugar ration cards were prepared with that in view.

This far from the end. As indicated, time after time, more or less specifically, steady extension of rationing may be expected.

Says Barriefield Has One of Canada's Best Messing Departments

Appetizing Food Solves Fifty Percent of Problem in Army Camps, Declares Director of Messing and Catering

Kingston, Aug. 8. — Fifty percent of the problems of messing and catering in the Canadian Army are solved when food is appetisingly prepared, Lt.-Col. Ralph Webb, director of messing and catering for Canada's soldiers, told 200 student cooks yesterday afternoon at the Canadian Ordnance Corps Training Centre at Barriefield, near here.

Lieut.-Col. Webb stated that the Barriefield centre has one of the best catering and messing departments in Canada, and that he used it as an example to other training centres. He congratulated Lt.-Col. E. A. Steer, training centre commandant, officers and men for the splendid way the messing and catering is being handled.

An inspection of the camp kitchens was carried out by the director who was accompanied by David B. Mulligan, former head of the Canadian National Hotel system, and now president of a chain of Hotels in the United States. Mr. Mulligan, a native of Pembroke, Ont., was greatly interested in the camp messing facilities as he has two sons with Canada's armed forces. They are Flt. Lt. George B. Mulligan, who is stationed at Hagersville, Ont., and Sgt. David B. Mulligan, Jr., who is at present in Ottawa finishing a course in catering and messing.

The cooks, all volunteers, were told by Mr. Mulligan that the days of large salaries for cooks are not over, and that when the war has been won they will have developed the art of cooking which will fit them to take positions in hotels in both Canada and the United States.

At the camp where well over 10,000 meals are served daily, no fats are wasted. Lt. M. Berg, messing officer for the centre, revealed that one ton of soap is made monthly from unedible fats, and that a soap factory will be installed soon at Barriefield. Two kinds of soap are manufactured, sand soap for scouring and soft soap for washing dishes.

In order that no contamination will reach any of the foods, the kitchens and refrigerators, as well as all other places in the camp are kept spotlessly clean and air is allowed to circulate freely.

Speaking to Col. Webb, Mr. Mulligan revealed that his brother, the late T. A. Mulligan, was responsible for the preparing of "Mulligatawny Soup" which was served with the troops during the last war.

LOAD SUMMARY REFLECTS GROWING POWER DEMAND

Toronto, July 29.—(Special).—A total primary load increase of 13 per cent. for June 1942, over the corresponding month last year is reported in the monthly summary of loads just released by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

This increase, based upon the maximum 20-minute peak horsepower load for the respective months, covers all four Hydro systems and the Northern Ontario Properties, and reflects the ever growing demand for essential war industries.

The June, 1941, total peak demand was 1,795,135 horsepower as against 2,135,537 horsepower for June of this year. The Niagara System heads the list with an increase of 317,828 horsepower, or an advance of 25 per cent over June of last year. Combined primary and secondary loads for all four systems and the Northern Ontario Properties totalled 2,913,815 horsepower for June, 1942, while the corresponding month last year showed a total of 2,054,812 horsepower.

LACK OF LABOR CRITICAL

Ottawa, (B.U.P.) — The labor situation in Canada has reached the critical stage, the Government's most recent surveys of available manpower indicated last night.

The June returns, which were quoted as especially significant, showed that less than 88,000 employable unemployed constituted the total available manpower reserve, despite the growing demand from both war industries and the armed services.

In this situation, far - reaching measures further regulating employment and distribution of manpower may become inevitable in the almost immediate future, well-informed observers believed.

Such measures would obviously have to go further along the course adopted in June, they said, when "then regulations became effective, limiting workers to employment, re-employment, and change of position

IDLE LABOR RULED OUT

Ottawa, (C.P. — National Selective Service officials and unemployment officers in the United States are operating in a plan to ensure that farm machinery and labor along the international boundary are used to best advantage.

The object is to see that equipment and men in Canada and the United States do not stand idle when there is work for them to do in the other country.

The scheme was first announced last April by Prime Minister Mackenzie King as part of plans to increase production of crops made vital by war developments. Arrangements now have been completed.

PROCEDURE DESCRIBED

As described by Selective Service officials, the procedure is for a farmer whose crop is ready to harvest, to get in touch with the nearest Selective Service office, generally organized in conjunction with offices of the Unemployment Insurance Commission, if he cannot obtain labor in Canada.

The Selective Service officials then will get in touch with unemployment offices across the border. If men and machines are idle in the United States border area, special permits will be granted to permit the machinery, its owner or lessor, and not more than four assistants to enter Canada for up to 29 days.

NO "CRUISING"

No labor will be permitted to cross the border except as part of organ harvesting units. There must be no "cruising" in search of work; the units from the United States must come to Canada to do a certain, prearranged job or series of jobs.

On the same basis, Canadian harvesting units may travel to the United States.

The plan is not limited only to harvesting equipment. It applies with equal force to the whole range of farm machinery, and the labor to operate it.

Selective Service officials said there was no deadline yet of the extent to which advantage would be taken of the new scheme.

90 Veterans of 1885 Apply for Pensions

Ottawa. — Some 1932 some ninety members of the 1885 Northwest Field Force, organized to combat rebelling in the Canadian prairie provinces, sion, said a return tabled in the House of Commons, recently.

The return was asked for by T. L. Church, Toronto-Broadview East. It said there is no information as to how many of the applicants for pension are still living or how many members of the force are still living.

PLANE LOSSES TABULATED

London, (CP) — The destruction of 434 Axis planes during July in Britain, continental Europe, the Middle East and at sea, was announced last week by the Air Ministry which also announced the loss of 252 by the R.A.F. in the same month.

In the battle between Britain and R.A.F. plane losses, the Ministry said 55 Axis planes were destroyed since the heavy raids of May 1941.

Since the first of the year, the Ministry said, planes destroyed in Europe and the home defences had reached 173 German planes.

The R.A.F. scourged the Rhineland munitions city of Dusseldorf Friday night with 150 two-ton "block-buster" bombs and agreat weight of other explosives and incendiaries in a concentrated attack in which R.C.A.F. crews took part. The attack was described as probably the most destructive one in the history of aerial warfare.

NORMAL GERMAN CALLOUSNESS

Prisoners of war in Germany now are guarded, by cripples and old men and the camps are administered by women, Canadian officers said today in a summary of information collected from liberated prisoners of war.

Prisoners report that the "inhuman" treatment prevalent early in the war has settled into what was described as "normal German callousness," said the organization, United Nations Service of the French Movement. Guards, even said to be threatened with being sent to the Russian front, are liable to internment discipline.

Russians, most of them civilians, were said to be the greatest sufferers in German camps. Liberated prisoners said they had seen Russians aged from 18 to 65 were brought into Germany in cattle cars opened only twice a week for hygienic purposes and to give the prisoners food and daily tasks.

Among 2,000 who arrived alive at one camp, France Forever said, the majority ranged from 90 to 100 lbs. In each car, holding 50 men, 30 arrived dead.

In camp they died at the rate of 50 a day for the first eight days and 30 a day thereafter.

French prisoners, of whom 1,256,000 were said still to be in German custody, were given the job of burying the bodies in a common grave. They had no way of disinfecting themselves and an outbreak of typhus developed.

A HISTORY PAGE GROWS FAMILIAR

Twenty-eight years ago Germany declared war on Russia and touched off the tragic sequence of events that ultimately plunged the entire world into a horrible conflict.

Two days previously, Austria had come to war with Serbia over the dispute arising from the assassination of the Austrian Archduke, Franz Ferdinand, in Serbia on June 28th, 1914.

Russia, declaring she could not remain indifferent if Serbia were invaded, mobilized her forces on her eastern frontier with Austria and Germany and, with Great Britain and France, appealed to Germany to persuade her Austrian Ally to submit the dispute to peaceful arbitration at The Hague.

Germany refused, sent an ultimatum demanding that Russia demobilize, then declared war on August 1, exactly eight days that almost the world these declarations followed:

August 3rd — Germany declared war on France.

August 3rd — Germany sent an ultimatum demanding free passage of troops through Belgium which the latter refused.

August 4th — Germany declared war on Belgium.

France acknowledged a state of war with Germany.

WEDDING BELLS

EDWARDS - SMITH

A lovely ceremony took place at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Smith of Centre Street, Napanee when Lois Madeleine Smith became the bride of Jack Leslie Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. Blake Edwards, Kingston. The couple were married before an artistic bank of evergreens and gladiolus, the Rev. Dr. E. B. Sexsmith, the uncle of the bride, officiating. He was assisted by Rev. M. E. Sexsmith, M.A., LL.B., of Windsor.

Mrs. Ralph Sexsmith of Kingston, aunt of the bride, played the wedding music, and Rodney Sexsmith sang "God Remembers Everything," by Albert Arlen, during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a bouffant model fitted bodice of muslin de sote with a full net skirt over white taffeta. Her finger-tip veil was held in place by orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of American Beauty Roses and Lily of the Valley, tied with white ribbon.

Miss Naydene Sutton of Toronto, was maid-of-honor. She wore a lovely pale pink gown, with fitted lace bodice and full net skirt, over pink taffeta. Her bouquet consisted of pink roses, tied with blue ribbon. Ronald Smith, brother of the bride, was best man.

The bride's mother, wearing a dress of Lyric rose Chantilla, with a corsage of pink roses, received the guests, assisted by the groom's mother, who wore a dusky rose sheer dress with a corsage of pink roses and cornflowers.

The servitours at the reception were the Misses Hope Moore, Kathryn Simpson, Eleanor Paul, Barbara Kimmerly, Elaine Hunt, Edith Hall, Pamela Smith. They were assisted by Sy. Moore, Robert Wartman, and Arthur Mackinnon.

For the wedding trip, the bride wore a turquoise silk jersey dress, with a wool jacket, dark brown accessories and a corsage of pink roses. After a honeymoon spent among the northern lakes, the young couple will reside in Kingston.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Ellsworth, of Buffalo N.Y., Rev. M. E. Sexsmith, of Windsor, Rev. Dr. E. B. Sexsmith and family, Osgoode; Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Sexsmith, Kingston; Mrs. R. L. Sexsmith, Deseronto; Mr. and Mrs. Rowland Barker and family, Picton; Mr. and Mrs. Blake Edwards, Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Shankleford, of Perth, L.t. DENNISON - WHITFIELD

A very quiet wedding was solemnized on Friday morning, July 31st, at the Rectory, Tamworth, by the Rev. F. G. Wyer, when Marion Helen, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Whitfield, Sandhurst, was united in the bonds of holy matrimony to Gordon Howard, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Dennison, Marlbank.

The young couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dennison, brother-in-law and sister of the groom.

Her home has always been open to her pastor and every church activitation has benefitted by her generous help and encouragement. For years Grandma Carroll has been president of the W. A. and was a charter member of the W. M. S.

During the past year Mrs. McGill has been in failing health, during which time she has been faithfully cared for by her daughter, Mrs. Edith Mrs. Gerow, who has shared her home for the last two years.

A pleasant event for her was a birthday party planned and executed by her daughters, Mrs. Martin Lasher of Drumbeller, Alberta, who resided her for a month, and Mrs. Edith Mrs. Gerow, assisted by her other children. About thirty-five of her grandchildren were present to help her throughout the day.

Besides the above-mentioned, Mrs. McGill leaves to mourn her loss, Thomas E. of Toronto; Mable, Mrs. Percy Milligan, of Newburgh; George, on the homestead and Florence, Mrs. J. Paxton, of Vancouver, B.C.; seven fourteen grandchildren, and thirteen great-grandchildren, and three sisters, Mrs. Eliza Shane of Kingston; Mrs. Belle Switzer of Napanee and Mrs. Mildred Hill, of Newburgh.

The floral tributes were many and beautiful. The funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. Pratt, assisted by the choir, who rendered beautifully "Good-night here and Good-night up There." Mr. Pratt chose for his text, Psalm 116, verse 15.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Thomas Thompson, James Doupe, William Lochhead, Kenneth Wesse, Charles Fieller, and Geo. Clancy.

Her remains were laid beside those of her husband in the United Ch. Cemetery, Centreville.

BETTY MADALINE CARROLL

The surrounding community was shocked to learn of the sudden passing of Betty Madaline Carroll, the younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Carroll, at Kingston General Hospital, on June 6th.

Betty was in her seventeenth year. She had successfully completed her senior matriculation at Sydenham High School, this year. Betty also took an active part in the affairs of the Wilton United Church and Sunday School, and was a gifted young pianist. By her beautiful character and pleasant disposition she endeared herself to all those with whom she came in contact. The high esteem in which she was held was shown by the many messages of sympathy and many floral tributes.

The funeral was held on Tuesday, June 9th, at 2 o'clock from her late residence to the Wilton United Ch., where a very impressive service was conducted by Rev. W. G. Ainsworth, taking as his theme "The Flower". Messrs. Alex. Davey, Ada Switzer, Elsie Babcock, Margaret Martin, Margaret Prink, Lorraine Wilson, Mary Bierma, Zela Reed and Minnie Mills.

She leaves to mourn her loss her sorrowing parents, an only sister, Iris of Ottawa and two brothers, Reginald and Stuart at home.

Burial took place at Wilton cemetery.

FRENCH-CANADIANS URGED TO FIGHT FOR CANADA

Brig. F. Logie Armstrong, O.B.E., Officer Commanding M.D. 3, Urges Graduating Class to Keep Themselves Fit As Good Officers and Soldiers.

St. Jerome, Que., Aug. 10 — "Canada needs you as she has never needed you before, — fight for her with every bit of determination and courage you possess." Brig. F. Logie Armstrong, O.B.E., officer commanding Military District No. 3, told a French - Canadian graduating class on Saturday, at the St. Jerome training centre and cadet officers' school. Brig. Armstrong, who visited the training centre and stood at the request of Major-General E. de R. Panet, officer commanding M.D. 4, urged the class to continue their studies and keep themselves fit to become good officers and soldiers. He reminded them that their personalities, their great traditions, their country would be an example to their English-speaking fellow-soldiers, who he added, "will have much to learn from you."

Fifty cadet officers, who graduated from the school, will march from St. Jerome to the Brockville Officers' Training Centre, under Lieut.-Coll. Orner Renaud, D.S.O., officer commanding the cadet officers' school. They will continue their training at Brockville.

Following is the text of Brig. Armstrong's address:

I come to you today at the invitation of General Panet and your commandant, with the greatest of pleasure, to greet you, to inspect you, to see some of your activities and to wish you well in your future careers in the Army.

I have on many occasions heard of the excellent training received by the cadets and recruits at this training centre and, indeed, I have only to visit your predecessors at the Officers' Training Centre at Brockville which I have frequently to do in the course of my duties, to appreciate the type of officer candidates which is being produced here.

I congratulate you on your smart appearance today, your steadiness on parade and your desire to carry out your orders correctly.

I am completing your basic training, as you have now done, do not forget that you have undertaken personally an Army career and that as long as you remain in the Army you must continue your activities and keep yourselves fit to become good officers and soldiers.

Many of you will proceed from here to advanced training centres and the cadets to the officers' training centre at Brockville. All of you will, in due course, if necessary, be compelled to associate and work and fight with your English-speaking comparades against the common foe. You will have much to learn from your fellow-associates, which, of course, is as it should be. But bear in mind that you be the example of your personalities, your great traditions, your courage, and your pride in your country that they, too, may English - speaking fellow soldiers will have much to learn from you.

To the cadets who proceed to Brockville, let me say this: "You are a difficult task ahead of you, but not so difficult that you cannot overcome it as your predecessors have before you. You will be welcomed and given every encouragement in your studies and training, and I am confident that you will become efficient officers and a credit to the Canadian Army."

In conclusion, may I, as one who was born and brought up in this province and who is proud of his French - Canadian ancestry, leave these few words with you.

"Be loyal, always, to your superior officers; be ever ready to lend a helping hand to your companions. Canada needs you as she has never needed you before. Fight for her with every bit of determination and courage that you possess.

"If you do these things, you will not have served in vain."

ONE 1,000 BOMBER RAID Can Be Carried Out On Petrol Saved by Britain's Biscuit Makers

Enough petrol to carry out a 1,000 bomber raid on Germany has been saved by economies in delivering biscuits to shops throughout Great Britain.

The country's 240 biscuit makers have handed all their motor vans, with staffs, over to the Biscuit Delivery Board, a new profit-making enterprise which has delivered 100 million tins of biscuits since the beginning of the year.

The Pool takes the biscuits from the factories to the wholesalers and the retailers, collecting from the latter all their empty tins which are very carefully stored. Members of the Pool are charged for the service and credited for the hire of their own vans and staff.

By avoiding overlapping journeys and by making full use of the space available, several million ton-miles of haulage have been saved in a month or two—an enormous economy not only in petrol and tires, but in engine wear and man power.

JAM JARS ON THE ASSEMBLY LINE

Hello Homemakers! Now is the time when those who have fruit in their own gardens or who buy it in large quantities will be thinking about conserving it by making it into jam. You can make use of the fully ripened fruit and put your jam into cold jars without tops since you will be using the inexpensive method of covering with melted wax.

To prepare the fruit, just pick the fruit over, then wash it. Weigh for sugar. To draw the juice out of the berries, cover them with the sugar and allow to stand overnight. When heated in this sugar-juice mixture until a syrup is formed and the berries are hot through, they absorb the syrup and tend to "plump up." That is what you want. Then leave your berries in the syrup to cool—to help this process. The mass can then be cooked or slowly concentrated in an electric oven set at a temperature of 250 deg. to 275 deg.

A quick method of making jam is the following: Prepare fruit, weigh, then crush with a wooden potato masher. Blueberries and hard berries may be run through the food chopper. A short cooking with the addition of a small quantity of water — before the sugar is added — helps extract the pectin from the fruit. Add sugar ¾ lb. to 1 lb. fruit, or substitute three cups light corn syrup for two of the cups of sugar), stirring into the boiling mixture and cooking until a good jelly test is obtained. If the fruit does not contain pectin or acid, either may be added as in jelly or preserves.

Commercial pectin directions are easy to follow and this method saves both time and cost of fuel.

RECIPES

Damson Plum Jam
(Requested)

Wash 4 lbs. plums and cut in half, removing the pits. Break a few pits and add kernels to the fruit. Pour three-quarters cup water over every five pounds plums and heat slowly to boiling point. Cook gently for one half-hour. Measure and add an equal quantity of sugar. Simmer one hour and pour into sterilized containers. Seal at once.

Ripe Gooseberry Jam

One quart ripe gooseberries, three cups sugar, one cup cold water. Wash gooseberries and remove stems and blossom ends. Add water and cook until skins are soft. Add sugar and cook rapidly until thick and clear. Pour into sterilized containers and seal when cold.

Pear Marmalade

To every pound of peeled and cored pears which have been sliced very thin add three cups of a pound of sugar, half an ounce of green ginger root, scraped or grated, and half a large lemon.

Place the pears in the preserving kettle in layers, sprinkling each with sugar, lemon juice and grated ginger root. Allow to stand two or three hours, then heat slowly to the boiling point. Cook until clear and thick. If preferred the ginger root may be crushed and placed in a little bag which can be removed from the mixture before pouring into glasses.

TAKE A TIP

1 Because of the chemical nature of honey, syrups tend to fresh easily at boiling point; therefore use a large saucepan.

2 Grass stains may be removed by rubbing in thick, hot soapsuds. If a stain remains, bleach with javelle water or hydrogen peroxide. If the material is not washable, sponge with wood alcohol.

3 Surface mildew may be removed with javelle water. Deeply grown mildew is almost impossible to remove. Dry soaking garment in soured milk and spread on green grass out in the sun. If the material is not washable, apply potassium permanganate until mildew is removed and then apply oxalic acid.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. R. T. asks: "Why cannot honey be used to can raspberries and cherries? Is it possible to use all honey to can peaches?"

Answer: Honey has the tendency to take out the colour in these fruits and make them slightly tart. Experiments prove that most people prefer to substitute one cup honey for one cup of every four cups of sugar required.

Mrs. S. M. asks, "What will remove stains from aluminum pots?"

Answer: Scrape off as much as possible, rub with kerosene or carbon tetrachloride, then sponge with a cloth wring out of warm water.

Mrs. J. B. asks: "Jelly which was made from juice that had been diluted and put into two bottles, turned cloudy from the liquid insoluble of the first batch."

Answer: Cloudiness may be due to having cooked fruit too long before straining off the juice, and the light particles of the skin would be floating in the liquid made from the top liquid. Stir liquid constantly while making jelly on your electric range.

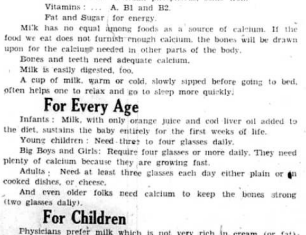
ANNE ALLAN invites you to write to her in care of The Napanee Beaver. Send in your questions on housemaking problems and watch this columns for replies.



Adults don't drink enough milk and children can scarcely have too much of it. It is the one food we simply cannot afford to do without, it is the foundation of an adequate diet, and is nature's aid to health defense. Dr. J. F. McCreary, in the current issue of Health Magazine says that one cannot secure an adequate quota of vitamin B2 without the habitual use of milk. Adults should form the habit of drinking milk, the energy food.

A Simple Rule

Professor Henry C. Sherman, dean of food chemists, says: "At least as much should be spent for milk (including cream and cheese if used) as for meats, poultry and fish."

Why Milk ?

Milk is one of the least expensive foods, if you consider its food values.

Milk contains:
Proteins : ..... of highest quality for growth.
Minerals : ..... calcium, phosphorus, some iron.
Vitamins : ..... A, B1 and B2.
Fat and Sugar for energy.

Milk has no equal among foods as a source of calcium. If the food we eat does not furnish enough calcium, the bones will be drawn upon for the calcium needed in other parts of the body.

Bones and teeth need adequate calcium.

Milk is easily digested, too.

A cup of milk, warm or cold, slowly sipped before going to bed, often helps one to relax and go to sleep more quickly.

For Every Age

Infants : Milk, with only orange juice and cod liver oil added to the diet, sustains the baby entirely for the first weeks of life.

Young children : Need three to four glasses daily.

Big Boys and Girls: Require four glasses or more daily. They need plenty of calcium because they are growing fast.

Adults : Need at least three glasses each day either plain or in cooked dishes, or cheese.

And even older folks need calcium to keep the bones strong (two glasses daily).

For Children

Physicians prefer milk which is not very rich in cream (or fat) for children. Children are better off with whole milk than cream on cereal.

It is better for children to learn to drink and like just plain milk, for then they enjoy it as foods commonly served.

Bottled, Dried, Evaporated

Milk is used mostly in these forms :—
Bottled : ..... whole milk, skimmed milk, buttermilk.
Dried : ..... dry whole milk, dry skimmed milk.
Evaporated : evaporated unsweetened milk.

Comparative Value

About the same food value will be found in :
One quart of fluid whole milk
One pint of undiluted evaporated milk,
Five ounces of Canadian cheese,
Four and a half ounces dried whole milk.
Three and a half ounces dried skimmed milk, plus one and a half ounces of butter.

Both Food and Drink

One advantage of milk is that it comes ready to serve. But good cooked dishes such as cereals cooked in milk, cream soups, puddings and hot breads often contain milk.

Free copies of ready reference vitamin chart, which explores the sources of vitamins, are available on request to the Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road, Toronto, Ontario. Another booklet which tells of pleasant ways to use milk in cooling summer drinks is also free for the asking. A postal card will bring you either or both.

Preserving Season

FRESH APRICOT JAM

Two pounds (4 cups) apricots (peeled and pitted); three tablespoons lemon juice; two cups of sugar; one cup of Crown Brand Corn Syrup.

Method:- Wash fruit, select all that is firm and sound. Dip in boiling water one half to one minute, then plunge into cold water for a few seconds; remove skins, halve and pick out pits. Chop fruit in ice crush; place in large saucepan. Add lemon juice, sugar and Crown Brand Corn Syrup, mix well and let stand three hours. Bring slowly to a boil, stirring frequently; then boil, stirring almost constantly, until fruit is clear and jam is thick, (20 to 25 minutes.) Remove from fire, let stand a few moments while stirring and skimming; then pour into hot sterilized jars. Seal, cool and label. Store in a dark, dry, cool place.

Yield — Approximately two and one-half pints. Note: two pounds fresh apricots, peeled and pitted is about two and a half pounds of apricots as purchased.

• • •

PEACH CONSERVE

Two pounds (5 cups) peaches peeled, stoned and cubed); two tablespoons lemon juice; one-medium orange (thinly sliced); two cups sugar; one cup Crown Brand Corn Syrup; one-quarter cup of drained, quartered Maraschino cherries (optional).

Method: Pick over fruit and select that which is sound and ripe. Dip into boiling water for one to two minutes, then plunge into cold water for a few seconds. Remove skins, halve, remove pit, and cut in cubes in chips. Weigh or measure. Have lemon juice in bottom of saucepan and add peeled peaches as they are prepared. Add the orange slices (cut end), which has been sliced thin, and cut in pieces. Add sugar, and bring all quickly to a boil, stirring very often. Boil until mixture has almost reached the jelling stage (5 to 25 minutes); then pour in the Crown Brand Corn Syrup, stirring constantly. Bring mixture again to a boil and boil three to five minutes longer, or until mixture gives jelling test. Add the cherries (if used) and pour into hot glasses. Cover with a thin sheet from side of spoon. Stir in the drained juice of Maraschino cherries; remove pan from stove and stir and skim mixture for two to three minutes. Pour into hot sterilized jars; seal, cool, label, and store in a dark, dry cool place.

Yield — Approximately two and one-half pints.

BLACK CURRANT JELLY

Two quarts (2 lbs.) Black Currants, prepared; one cup water; two cups juice from currant extraction; one and one-third cups sugar; two-thirds cup Crown Brand Corn Syrup.

Method — To prepare currants, remove tips and tails, reject unsound fruit and wash gently in a colander. Weigh or measure and place in large flat-bottomed saucepan with water. Crushing them with a potato masher. Bring to a boil, and boil for eight to ten minutes or until juice is flowing freely. Drain overnight in a moistened jelly-bag or double cheesecloth. Measure juice and if more than desired, squeeze the bag to obtain more juice, and proceed by re-straining through a fresh jelly bag. Return from hot water. Measure the juice and add the sugar and Crown Brand Corn Syrup. Heat all together and bring quickly to boiling point, stirring only until sugar is dissolved. Boil rapidly until jelly stage is reached — when 2 drops "sheet" together and drop reluctantly from the side of a large spoon — about 8 to 10 minutes. Allow hot syrup to stand in bottle while arranging hot, sterilized glasses on a tray. Remove scum from syrup, then pour quickly into the glasses to within one-quarter inch to the top. Seal and let stand without disturbing until set. Label and store in a dark, dry cool place.

Yield — approximately one and one-half pints. Note: If it is desired to make Black Currant Jelly they persuaded business acquaintances to make room for [illegible] using a smaller or greater quantity of currants, these are used rules to follow:— 1. When boiling the fruit add half-cup water to one quart of currants. 2. When combining the juice, sugar and corn syrup, use two-thirds cup of sugar and one-third cup corn syrup to each cup of fruit juice.

V

CANNED PEACHES

Six pounds peaches (unprepared) two cups sugar; one and one-third cups Crown Brand Corn Syrup; four cups water.

Method — Pick over peaches, rejecting unsound portions. Scald in boiling water two or three minutes; dip in cold water; peel, remove pit and halve carefully. Dip once more into cold salted water—one teaspoon salt to one quart water—to prevent discoloration). Pack peach halves into tested, scalded jars and cover to within one-half inch of the top with the hot syrup made from the sugar, Crown Brown Corn Syrup and water which have been combined and boiled five minutes. Wipe rims of sealers, and adjust sterilized rubber ring and top. Partially seal — (if a screw-top jar, screw metal cap tight, then loosen one-fourth of the turn; if a clamp-top jar adjust top clamp only) and sterilize for twenty minutes in a boiling water bath. This may be any large kettle or even a wash-boiler, so long as it has a tightly fitting cover and a rack on the bottom upon which to place the jars, and a deep enough to allow the water to cover the jars one to two inches. Allow circulation of water also between the jars; they should be placed well apart on the rack. Count time of sterilization from the moment the water begins to boil actively — not before. Remove after twenty minutes' boiling. Invert for three to five minutes to retest for leakage. Place upright, cool, label and seal. Store in a dark, dry, cool place.

Yield — Six to seven pint sealers (well packed).

Wool Resources Are Increased as Old Sweaters Made New

With wool for sweaters getting more and more precious, women of Canada are going to do a lot of unravelling and re-knitting this year. This is how to unravel an old garment. Remove buttons, or fasteners, and unpick any double crochet round the welts. If the wool was knitted on picked-up stitches, unravel this first, starting at the ends where you finished knitting.

As you unwind, roll the wool into balls. There may be a few awkward lengths and it is wise to keep these all in one ball. When the wool is all in balls, wind into one or two ounces skeins round the back of a chair or under the wool so it isn't drawn tight. Before taking it off the tray, tie in two places with a loose loop, leaving ends for tying to the clothes line.

Wash each skein absolutely clean in tepid water with pure soap flakes. Rinse several times in water of the same temperature. Squeeze very dry and tie to the clothes line or dry flat on clean sheets, turning from time to time. In either case slip along the loops when the rest of the wool is dry, and leave long enough for the wet patches to dry thoroughly.

SEVEN MEN
Saved Millions of Man-Hours in Britain's War Factories

An officer and six privates in Britain's Royal Army Ordnance Corps were responsible for setting on foot a movement which has saved Britain's war industries many millions of man-hours and tons of material.

After Dunkirk, R.A.O.C. depots became crowded with cases of broken, damaged or out-of-date stores. It happened that these seven men had all been in business before the war, and they knew that there was a vast reservoir of garages, backstreet firms and small engineering shops where repairs could be done. Realising that manufacturers do not like to have their production held up by repairs to their own stores, they persuaded business acquaint-

MILITARY SYMBOLS AND THEIR SIGNIFICANCE

When the mighty Caesar was carrying fire and sword through western Europe he took with him as a symbol of authority a rod or staff which to-day is still used in the rank insignia of a general. His modern name of baton was apparently given to it when it was first used in France by Henri of Navarre.

On the shoulder straps of a full general, the significant symbol appears crossed with a sword. In the case of a field-marshal highest army rank, two batons are crossed over a wreath.

The general's insignia also contains the crown and a star, the latter usually the star of the Order of the Bath.

The crown appears in many rank badges. Alone, it indicates a major. Combined, with one star it signifies a lieutenant-colonel; with two stars a colonel, and with three stars, a brigadier.

The crown does not appear in the insignia of a major-general, but is again found in all the higher ranks including the field-marshal.

* * *

The "pips" worn on the shoulder straps of lieutenants, captains and some higher army ranks symbolize something more than the holding of the King's Commission. In most cases the "pip" is actually the Star of the Order of the Bath.

This star was chosen for general use as a rank badge because the rose, thistle and shamrock — emblems of England, Scotland and Ireland — appear on it. Also, it carries the "inscription" Ia Aupuis In Unis—Three joined in One.

Less frequently used are the stars of the Order of the Garter. Order of the Shamrock and Order of the Thistle. The Governor - General's Foot Guards wear the Star of the Garter.

The Order of the Bath itself has a curious history. When it was established by King George I in 1725 it was supposed to be a revival of an order created by King Henry V. Some authorities claim, however, that actually it had not previously existed.

CHARCOAL'S EXTENSIVE USE

The use of charcoal in making light-weight alloys for aircraft construction has resulted in a substantial increase in the production of charcoal in Canada. Before the war it was used in Canada principally for kindling fires and as a fuel for charcoal cookers. On this continent it was at one time employed in the manufacture of steel but has been largely replaced in that industry by metallurgical coke.

In several parts of Europe in Australia, and in other countries where the price of gasoline is high, charcoal has been used extensively in recent years as a source of producer gas to replace gasoline in the operation of internal-combustion engines for buses, tractors, trucks and motor cars. With further reduction of supplies of gasoline such use may assume importance in Canada.

Charcoal may be made from any species of wood, but in Canada it is generally made from the heavy hardwoods — maple, birch and yellow-birch. Two methods of manufacture are employed — in earth kilns and in steel retorts from which, in addition to charcoal, acetate of lime, methanol, and other by-products are recovered. One cord of air-dry hardwood will produce about 650 pounds of kiln charcoal or about 1,000 pounds of retor charcoal. The earliest known method of making it was to stack wood in beehive-shaped piles and cover them almost completely with earth. By kindling a fire and regulating the air supply, part of the wood is burned, producing sufficient heat to convert the remainder to charcoal.

ARTIFICIAL DAYLIGHT
Is Keeping Britain's Output Up

For the last twelve months of war the industries of Britain have used 62 per cent. more electricity than in the last year of peace.

This striking rise in the electricity supplied to British industry as it expands to meet the intensity of the war service rendered by the country's electrical industry. They have speeded up production through the National Electrical Power Planning Service which gives expert advice on factory lighting through a large panel of lighting consultants throughout the country. The work of the panel is of special usefulness to those factories which are always artificially lit because of the total black-out; and here fluorescent lighting has been developed to give the workers something nearer to the daylight which they lack.

During the air raids the electrical industry improved with rapid ingenuity, turning its washboilers into tea urns and soup warmers, whipping out, through the British Electrical Development Association, radiators suitable for shelters packed with people; installing electric boiling rings for the blitzed streets.

To-day they are sending into thousands of factory canteens and the British Restaurants, of the Ministry of Food a steady flow of the equipment needed for communal catering and cooking.

NEW TYRES FOR OLD
Thousands Go Back to The Army from a Historic Pottery

Thousands of old tyres a month are now being made new for the British Army in a pottery works in Staffordshire.

Long strips of tread rubber lie piled in a storeroom which was once the decorating shop. Covers for giant tyres are being vulcanised over pits where china clay and rubber is left to keep it damp. The finished tyres are stored.

Worn tyres come to-day from the Army's transport lorries, motor cycles, and trucks, not to mention those the other Services and from buses and cars on Civil Defence organizations. With a fraction of the rubber needed for a new tyre, they go back repatriated, fit to do again the mileage they have already done.

Three hundred workers have been trained by key men from Front Dunlop to do the job of re-treading. Two thirds of them are women. In the moulding shop, once a pottery store, are miner discharged from the pits for physical disability.

The pottery people have not surrendered the whole factory. In one shed the damp clay piles into "utility" tea-cups, and they are still mixing clay in flint for the whole range of "utility" pottery.

LONDON'S TRAM LINES
Wrenched Up to Build
Tanks and Battleships

Britain's old tram rails, tons of which are going into the melting-pot every day, will soon roll out of war factories all over the country in the shape of tanks, guns and other arms.

The eighty miles of tram rails abandoned in London since trolley-buses have taken the place of trams are made of high grade steel. All over London they are being wrenched up from the roads and more than half the work has been completed. Since it began last year, some 16,000 tons of metal have been recovered, and one London borough alone has taken up more than two and one-half miles of track and sent it off to the scrap metal depots. Other municipalities taken up are being used to restore the roads. Old concrete paving, for example, is broken up to make asphalt.

Apart from tram lines, railings and iron gates all over Britain are yielding a steady flow of metal for arms production. More than 200,000 tons of metal have been recovered, the equivalent in weight of about 12,000 Valentine tanks; or enough for the steel of thirteen 35,000-ton battleships.

V

ONE HUNDRED NEW INDUSTRIES
Have Been Set Up by Refugees in Britain

Nearly 30,000 British workpeople are now on war production in the 300 factories set up in Britain by refugees from Nazi persecution. They are helping to defeat their former oppressors by making glycerine for explosives, textile and leather service equipment, optical glass for binoculars and periscopes, diamond cutting tools, electrical equipment, metal alloys, plywood, and many other manufactures directly used in the war effort.

Over one hundred industries entirely new to Britain have been established there by refugees since Hitler came to power, and valuable processes recorded only in the minds of the inventors are at the same time Germany's loss and the Allies gain.

Many of the refugees came over with little but their ideas and designs, all their equipment and most of their capital having been abandoned. But in these cases the U. K. Government, true to a tradition which dates back to the days of the weavers of the 14th century, have not only given the exiles asylum but assisted them with capital, equipment and premises.

Nearly one third of the new ventures, with a joint capital of £500,000 to £1,000,000, are on Government Trading Estates in South Wales, Tyneside and elsewhere, while others are in the industrial centres of London, Lancashire, Yorkshire, the Midlands and Scotland.

AN OLD CANADIAN CUSTOM . . .

When our pioneer grandparents had a big job to do they called in their neighbours. A barn raising brought help from miles around. Skilled barn framers took charge; sides were chosen and competition between teams lent interest to the work. This old Canadian custom was revived when Canada's National War Finance Committee was formed and went into operation. Under the leadership of the National and Provincial Committees—men experienced in the organization and conduct of financial operations—Local Committees were formed in all communities. Co-operation and competition characterized the work. The biggest "raising" in Canada's history got away to a magnificent start.

WE'VE GOT A BIG JOB TO DO NOW

The War goes on. The National War Finance Committee carries on. Some will serve on the committees organized to promote continued sales of Bonds, War Savings Certificates and Stamps. All of us must continue to buy these securities. We must save every dollar, every cent we can—and lend our money to Canada. We must provide the money required to carry on the war—the money required to win the war.

Our fighters must have more ships and tanks and guns and planes. They must have better ships and tanks and guns and planes than the enemy has. We must all work, and save and lend. The safest investments we can find for our savings are Bonds, War Savings Certificates and Stamps—and they will provide money for us to buy things that we will want when the war is ended.

WE HAVE THE NAZIS GUESSING

BY WILLIAM L. SHIRER

New York. — This correspondent does not know whether the confusion in Great Britain and the United States about the Second Front, has been deliberately fostered by our respective governments to fool the Germans or not.

But certainly no master propagandists could have created more question-marks in the minds of the Nazis as to our intentions and plans. One is inclined to conclude that this was not deliberate on our part, but deliberate or not, the result fortunately has been the same. For once we appear to have the Nazis guessing. The consequence has been the most sudden change-about in Axis propaganda this war has seen.

WHAT BERLIN SAID

Three weeks ago I reported that while the Second Front had become one of the principal subjects of discussion on the Axis radio.

Goebbels' line was that we were just bluffing. He himself, at that time assured the German people that "British - American military circles know as well as we do that this Second Front may be looked upon as in the realm of fable."

The second week of July Berlin broadcast to France: "The British and Americans themselves believe that the establishment of a Second Front is impossible. Nevertheless they dangle the promise of a landing in France before the eyes of some gullible Frenchmen."

Then overnight, Goebbels began to whistle another tune. "We expect the attempt to be made," Fred Kaltenbach told his American listeners, if any. "If they come," said Goebbels, "it will not be with puny forces."

The war of nerves over the Second Front was on.

One of the cardinal principles of propaganda laid down by Hitler is that words must sometimes be supplemented with deeds — or what he hopes his enemies will think are deeds. And so we had "elite" German troops allegedly "just back from the Russian front, parading through Paris. "Runsted" was "reported" inspecting the coastal defences. Anti-invasion manoeuvres were "held."

This was a familiar pattern of Nazi propaganda. So were the reports about German readiness for an invasion which suddenly flooded us from Axis - inspired sources in those fountain-heads of German propaganda, Stockholm and Berne.

One cannot truthfully say that our own radio and press failed to give much time and space to the very propaganda tricks which Goebbels hoped we would publicize. In some cases, it should be added, our newspapers and radio stations did point out the propagandistic purpose of these particular items of news.

WHY THE REVERSE?

Why did Berlin reverse itself on the likelihood of a Second Front? And why suddenly all the ballyhoo about German preparations to repel the invasion?

Nazi propaganda on the Second Front actually went through the stages in making a complete turn. The first rejected the very idea of invasion as absurd. The second admitted invasion was possible but not probable and that Allied talk of it was bluff. The third now says invasion is coming (Signor Ansaldo in a Rome broadcast for Italians only last week. "Before this summer is over, we shall see an attempt by the Anglo-Saxons to regain a territorial foothold in Europe") but that the Axis has made full preparations to hurl the invaders back into the sea "as at Dunkirk."

The tremendous Nazi build - up about the German ability to defeat an invasion attempt strikes many people who think they know the Germans as something of a give-away. It is true that before the war the Nazis were not backward about boasting of their huge air armada, their great army and their "secret weapons." The purpose then was to frighten Germany's prospective victims into surrendering without a fight. But not even a megalo-maniac like Hitler can believe today that in the midst of a desperate war he can frighten Churchill or Roosevelt from undertaking a military campaign once they think they have a chance to make it succeed. Nor can Hitler believe that he is impressing General Marshall or Sir Alan Brooke by his propaganda about the strength of the German defences of the western coast of Europe. Most certainly they have a very accurate idea of those defences, their strength and weakness.

WHAT THEY HOPE

One can only conclude (1) that the Germans are not nearly so strong in the West as they say publicly they are; and (2) that their propaganda is directed not to the Allied general staffs but to the people of Britain and America. It is to the people of the two countries that pressure is coming to speed up the invasion. If these peoples can be convinced that their troops are going to be slaughtered when they land on the mainland, Berlin could hope that the Anglo-American time-table might be put back instead of forward. The thing seems obvious. If Hitler were supremely confident of smashing an Allied attempt to land on the continent, he would not try to discourage it. For it would be to his distinct advantage to let the Anglo-American armies walk into a trap, hoping that Britain at least might not make another Dunkirk.

Headlines continue to tell of the surrounding situation in Russia but the reticence of Nazi propaganda in predicting the outcome of the fighting in Russia or even in southern Russia, which I reported a fortnight ago, still continues. Since the Nazi propagandists are not modest by nature, their caution would seem to indicate that whatever news alarmists may feel, the Germans themselves do not yet believe that the Russians are licked.

While boasting of one victory after another, Berlin in English to this bountry, last week explained that German troops were "fully prepared" to spend another winter on the Russian front. Above all, the Germans are "fully prepared" for their own. What prognostications they do broadcast are attributed now to foreign sources. While part of the German reticence is no doubt due to Goebbels' desire to make the Axis propaganda more credible after the blunders of last year, much of it appears to reflect the actual military situation.

Berlin radio 220 Mr. McLeish, speaking with the authority of the United States Government, warned us that the Axis, this summer, would try to disrupt our morale by peace feelers. Some people have thought he went through his hat. That he was not is becoming clear. Last week Berlin's phony American "freedom" station "Deutsch" urged us to "unite our efforts to bring a negotiated peace." Why? Because, it said, Britain was getting 2 to 1 ahead in Russia by coming to terms with Hitler. Russia was trying to sell out Britain in order to make a separate peace with Berlin to arrange peace. At the other end of the Axis, Japanese radio Saigon and Shanghai darkly hinted that Britain and Russia were ready to sell it quite soon. Similarly the German operated XGRS in Shanghai: "The British propaganda machine is preparing the people of England for peace negotiations."

Two days ago newspapers and radio carried press association reports of an "Order of the Day" by Stalin exhorting the Russian armies not to retreat any further. Many a news story began: "In spite of a personal plea from Stalin, the Red Armies continued to fall back." Axis radio stations made most of this in the propaganda-heaping ridicule on Stalin's Order of the Day. Actually it didn't make one. Apparently, the source of the story was a report in Pravda and Red Star of Stalin's Order of the Day of last winter when the Germans were at the gates of Moscow. This old Order was merely used as the text of stories in the two Moscow newspapers.

Up until the time the military commission sent its findings to the President, the Berlin radio had not yet mentioned the eight Nazi saboteurs. Rome did, however. On Monday Rome radio thundered to the United States: "The Supreme Court has denied the right of habeas corpus to eight persons arrested by the military authorities on the charge of planning sabotage. This would not be possible in a country with Roman law! . . . By suppressing habeas corpus for these eight individuals (Rome omits to say who they are) the Supreme Court has legally abolished habeas corpus for all American citizens for the duration of the war. From now on all Americans who love their country will be persecuted without pity."

NO EXTRA TEA, OR COFFEE, FOR HARVEST GANGS

Notwithstanding widespread belief to the contrary, there is in no provision in the tea and coffee rationing regulations for the supply of extra quantities of those commodities for the consumption of harvest gangs or other groups of farm workers, it is pointed out by the regional office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Various farmers' wives residing in different parts of Eastern Ontario have written to ration officers of the Board requesting such extra supplies. Unlike sugar, they are not obtainable under the rationing regulations and if tea or coffee are served harvest workers, they must come from individual ration allowances.

It is further pointed out that under the rationing regulations a definite responsibility is imposed upon next-of-kin to return without delay the temporary ration cards in the possession of individuals who die. These are to be returned to the nearest office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board and on no account are they to be used for the purchase of sugar, tea or coffee. Retailers are asked not to honor such cards if they are presented and consumers are reminded that they are subject to penalties if cards belonging to individuals who have passed away are used to obtain rations.

RUSH FOR SOAP IS UNFOUNDED

Ottawa, (CP.) — Mrs. Phyllis Turner, Fats and Oils Administrator for the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, said she had been "deluged with calls" from soap manufacturers alarmed by a buying rush on soap, prompted by wild-cat rumors of rationing.

Denying that rationing was even being considered, the Prices Board issued a statement saying that Canada's national output of the commodity is at its highest because soap is a by-product of glycerine, essential to the manufacture of explosives.

Some quarters said the buying splurge has been touched off by a broadcast that soap was to be rationed. But the board statement said that a check made by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation revealed that no such broadcast had been made.

The buying rush hit Ottawa shops recently following similar heavy demand in towns in southwestern Ontario.

REVENUE MINISTER OUTLINES PROCEDURE INCOME TAX DEDUCTIONS

Instructions Being Sent All Employers in Near Future

On Sunday night, Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Dominion Finance Minister, and Hon. Colin Gibson, Revenue Minister, in a radio broadcast outlined the operation of the 1942-43 income tax structure. Mr. Ilsley dealt with the matter in a general way and Mr. Gibson answered questions which were designed to clear up obscure points.

Answering questions, Mr. Gibson explained how the new tax is to be collected as follows:

"While full details of the way taxes are to be calculated and collected will be covered in a booklet to be issued shortly by the Income Tax Division . . . the general principles of the methods of collection are fairly simple.

"It has been our aim to make the payment of taxes as easy as possible.

"In the case of wage and salary earners, each employer will make a deduction for taxes each pay day from employes, who are subject to tax. Formerly, the National Defence Tax was paid by making regular deductions from pay, and the balance of the Income Tax, which was often substantial, was paid in one lump sum, direct to the Government. By spreading income tax payments over the full year the burden of the new high taxes will be considerably lighter. It must be understood that the law not only requires employers to make this tax deduction, but also tells the employer how much he must deduct from each person.

QUARTERLY METHOD

"Tax payers — other than wage and salary earners — are now required to pay their taxes by quarterly instalments.

"Before the new tax deduction goes into effect, employees should file a special form with their employers in order that the employer may determine the rates of tax, and exemptions for each employe. This form indicates whether the employe is single or married — how many dependents he has — and, in addition, the amount, if any of his payments in 1942 by way of life insurance premium annuity payments, payments to superannuation, retirement or pension funds, and also principal payments on mortgages and agreements of sale. It is important that this form — which is known as form T.D. 1 — be completed and filed with employers before September 1. If the form is not filed, employers may not get all the exemptions from tax to which they are entitled. Form T.D. 1 is now available to employers through their employer, from post offices or local income tax offices."

"When will these deductions start?" he was asked.

DEDUCTION PLAN

"Deductions from wages and salaries will commence with the first full payment period, starting after the 31st of August this year. These deductions will continue to be made each pay day, until the end of August, 1943. In September, 1943, each tax payer will file an income tax return with the government, showing his total income for 1942, the total taxes due on this income, and the amount of taxes already paid through deductions from pay, over the twelve month period. If the tax payer still owes a portion of his income tax, he will pay it at that time. On the other hand, if more has been paid than is due a claim for refund will be made.

"Those other than wage and salary earners — and who pay taxes in quarterly instalments — will make their first payment on October 15th, of this year. Subsequent instalments will be paid in January, April and July of 1943. People in this group will file their income tax return with the Government by the end of next April.

"It is the employers duty then to forward taxes from wage and salary earners to the Government. Is that correct?" he was asked.

"Yes. The employer is bound by law to make the tax deductions from the pay of his employes, and the amounts which are deducted must be sent to the Government within one week. I might add that employers receive no remuneration for this special wartime work."

"We have been told that certain of our personal savings will be allowed to offset our compulsory savings requirement. What classes of saving are allowed as offsets?" it was asked.

"Your taxes fall into two parts—returnable and not returnable. Now, the type of savings allowed as a tax deduction, up to the amount of returnable tax are payments made in 1942 on: first, premiums on life insurance policies; and annuities; second, principal payments on a mortgage, or agreements of sale on one residential property; and third: payments into any superannuation fund, retirement or pension plan.

"I'd like to emphasize that savings payments of these kinds can be used as tax deductions, up to, but not exceeding the amount of total taxes, which are returnable."

BEEF TRADE TO GET DATA

Ottawa. (CP.) — The War - time Prices and Trade Board announced recently on behalf of J. G. Taggart, Foods Administrator, that arrangements have been made to supply cattle men and the beef trade with full information on the operations of Wartime Food Corporation, Crown company which purchases cattle of export quality where necessary to maintain domestic supplies.

In future, the board said, two sets of beef cattle prices will be published daily in the cattle market reports issued from the yards in which the corporation operates. One will contain present quotations for cattle passing through the yards from producers or dealers to the beef trade or other purchasers. The second will be the price paid by the corporation for the cattle it buys.

These prices will be reported, by the Prime Minister's department's marketing service and in the department's weekly review, which already shows the number of cattle exported from Canada.

ONTARIO PLANS LIGNITE OUTPUT

Toronto. (CP. — Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario announced late last week, following a Cabinet meeting that steam-fired lignite from Northern Ontario will be available for commercial use sometime next year within five months.

The Premier also said the province will spend an estimated $237,000 as an initial outlay and this will bring the lignite fields of the Moosonee area into production.

Transfer of the lignite development from the Government owned Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway to the Lands and Forests Department under Hon. Norman Sinclair, was announced by the Premier, who said this will do away with a separate commission to handle the development. The T. and N. O. will be reimbursed for all expenditures to date on lignite developments, he added.

Military Stand Firm Despite Big Harvest

Ottawa. — The west has a big crop and the harvesting of it presents one aspect of the man-power problem, but men on the farm service are not going to be released by any means, Ottawa held out.

Inquiry indicated no variation from the policy announced in Parliament by the Minister of National Defence several weeks ago. The position then taken, broadly, was that men classified for the army belong to it and are needed in it, and that to release them might seriously cripple training. At the same time, there may be cases where the commanding officer of a battalion may exercise discretion in granting leave in individual cases.

NEW RATION BOOKS FOR FOOD COMMODITIES TO BE ISSUED SOON

Only Tea, Coffee and Sugar Rationed at Present

When 11,000,000 Canadians receive their new six-month ration books, not later than September 7th, they will be issued an individual serial number which will probably assume increasing importance as the war continues.

The new books, which replace the temporary cards now in use for sugar, tea and coffee rationing, will include a number of extra sets of coupons for weekly or biweekly rationing of other commodities, if it becomes necessary.

Serial numbers will be grouped by districts and numbers for members of families will be made consecutive. Assignment of these serial numbers is making possible the elimination of duplications.

Coupons for tea and coffee, which may not be purchased for children under twelve years, will be removed from children's ration books before they are distributed.

The six-months ration books are to be used instead of the temporary cards after September 8th.

Pink tickets will get sugar; green tickets will get coffee or tea, and blue, brown or black tickets will get —who knows?

The sugar coupons are the only ones that carry the name of the commodity. All the others are marked "Spare A, Spare B," and so on. Wartime Prices and Trade Board officials said that the books carry a six months' ration of sugar, tea or coffee, and that the three extra colors are simply to take care of the eventualities that may crop up within the next half year, as did coupons A, B, C, D, and E on the temporary sugar ration cards, now used for tea and coffee.

Both the brown and black coupon sheets are double, with twenty-six coupons of two weeks each, but there is no indication of any immediate use of these. Potentially, the books might cover seven items if the brown and black slips were subdivided.

Final checking of births and deaths is made before the books are packaged for mailing, and a permanent record is kept of those to whom ration books are issued.

Age is an important factor in issuing the books, because the green sheets for tea and coffee must cotorn out for youngsters under twelve.

THE LONG VIEW

One of the difficulties with which we are beset in these days of rapid communication, is that of seeing the war in its wider aspects. We listen to the radio, and if there are reports of new successes for the United Armies, our spirits go up; if there are reverses, then we, at the moment, become pessimistic, gloomy and discouraged.

We have been warned, time and time again that we must expect reverses. Every leader who has the inside information has been telling us to prepare for a long war and to expect that there will be serious setbacks. What we have not yet learned or, at least, grasped sufficiently as a people, is that the German nation was geared-up to war effort for six years before we started. For six years the German people were going at the fever pitch which we have only recently achieved. It was for them — just before butter, nine years ago. Research into synthetic rubber and its production was well on its way five years before the war. A substitute for oil for submarine engines was sought and found in the soy bean, years ago. Scientific agriculture was pressed to the limit before the war broke out, so as to assure food for the nation. In every possible way the Germans were preparing for war. It is well known that they were producing munitions at a remarkable speed. The air force was going through manoeuvres long before 1939, which we have only recently achieved. On land, on sea, in the air, in the factory and on the farm, Germany was speeded-up to a war effort, years ago.

So that now we have much leeway to catch up. In spite of the great potential wealth of raw materials, manpower, finance and organizing ability of the North American Continent, it will be quite a while yet before the Allied Nations can match the Axis. And then, too, the shipping bottleneck has to be removed. Some way must be devised to see to it that everything produced goes to the war fronts in an actual steady stream. This is not a task easy of accomplishment. It takes time. But in the end the result will be inevitable, if everybody does his or her part and assumes a fair share of responsibility.

We are in a much better position than we were two years ago. The recent meeting, in Moscow, has probably cleared away misunderstandings and will pave the way for ultimate victory. Our dilemma is that while we know that the spirit of optimism is half of our morale, yet it is hard to keep from being pessimistic when the war goes against us. The long view is essential. Reverses, serious as they are, will yet be matched when the time comes, and united action between the Allies becomes real. We will, of course, have to pay the price then, a price for which we will have to steel our souls and our spirits. But, in the meantime, the best way to help the war effort on the spiritual front, is to keep the Churchillian faith in ultimate victory, and to give ourselves to each accomplishment, not being overly depressed by the day-by-day reports of reverses, nor unduly elated by whatever temporary successes may be ours.

THE WEEKLY PRESS

The value of the Weekly Press, as giving, giving an accurate picture of the life of the nation, is suggested by a comment in a Washington dispatch. The dispatch tells that the foreign diplomats in the capital of the United States who, up until very recently, sought to get a complete view of the nation from the great metropolitan papers, were now subscribing to many county and small town weeklies.

This is a recognition of the place which the weekly press holds in the life of the nation. Week by week it reports the doings of the people who are close to the soil, the people who make up the real country. Naturally, a great metropolitan paper has many interests to serve. It has to reflect world views, national views, provincial and city views. While the weekly press does not neglect these, it reflects the life of the community it serves, and seeks to give leadership and direction to the thinking of the people. Anyone who desires to know the life of Canada will get the information from a study of the Weekly Press, perhaps better than from any other source.

The Government, too, recognizes its value. The Weekly Press are asked to participate in press delegations of one sort or another and, at the annual meetings of the Weekly Newspaper Associations, the Government does not hesitate to accept an invitation to send representatives, to present policies and have them discussed.

The annual meeting of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association has been meeting in Saskatoon. At that meeting Dr. M. M. Macordrum, of the National War Finance Committee, urged the papers to help the nation in an all-out war effort. Particularly, he urged the need for voluntary contributions to the Dominion Treasury through the purchase of War Bonds. He said:

"Our task is to sell Canada to the Canadians, not so that people will withdraw a few dollars from their banks to buy a Victory Loan or to buy Savings Certificates — that's peanuts. We have to get Canadians to say, 'Here, my country, is all I've got! Take it and tell me how best to save it from the threat that all our forefathers fought as will be lost, the threat that darkens the whole civilization in which we have been reared and bred'."

We are eager to do our part in the dissemination of the knowledge of the nation's needs, and to appreciate the confidence—the growing confidence which the Government and others in positions of authority and influence, have in the weekly plan. We hope, of course, that we may be worthy of that confidence.

MANPOWER

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen has called attention to the need for realism in the conduct of an all-out war. Mr. Meighen is always at his best in his constructive criticism. The Leader of the Opposition rightly deprecates the clamor of those who are seeking to avoid their responsibility to the State. Mr. Meighen quoted, with approval, the words of Abraham Lincoln on the injustices of the voluntary system. He quoted Mr. Lincoln as saying that the voluntary system was "wasteful, chaotic, and cruelly unjust," as consuming the generous, patriotic, the intelligent and the brave, and leaving behind the shirkers and the money-makers to stay at home and procreate their kind." These words of the great President, said Mr. Meighen, was speaking of a situation which had its parallel in Canada, to-day."

We have contended right along that some form of selective service arrangement was essential for Canada, and Mr. Meighen does the country a service in bringing to public attention the need for a compulsory service of all men.

There is a factor that must not be lost sight of in any effort to meet the demands for more men in the present situation, and that is we are fighting an all-out total war. In a total war the whole life of the State is at stake, and the State, as a whole and every individual in it, and all its organizations, must be geared to the war task.

In that task, a very nice and accurate balance between various phases of production, and armed forces must be maintained. The men in the fighting forces, must bear a direct relationship to the amount of munitions, tanks, guns, trucks and ammunition. Then there must be enough men on the farm to produce food for the army and for civilian needs, both of Canadians and the British. Then clothing must be provided for the armed forces, with a minimum amount for the civilians. The whole State must be geared together to the winning of the war. If the balance between these various factors is upset, there is confusion. If the army is so large that there is not enough people and raw materials to keep them supported adequately, then the war effort is not, by any means, a hundred per cent efficient.

The Selective Service Board is seriously tackling this problem. Men will be frozen to their jobs, they will be moved from place to place if necessary, and it may be that when this Board gets functioning properly, this balance will be arrived at. Up to the present time there are not statistics or facts on which to make a general plan into which every person and every phase of life must fit.

In this part of the country we are particularly concerned with the rural situation. A look around the community makes it perfectly clear that our manpower has been about depleted. We need, for those who have joined the forces and for others, all the men in our farms are capable of producing. It will be sheer folly should compulsory service take every man from the farms. Selective service will, undoubtedly have this in mind when making their choice. The man on the farm, like the one in the munition factory, is doing an essential job, and each must be kept in the place where he can render the greatest service to the State. Only so can we fight a total war.

Social Reconstruction Problems Being Tackled Now

BY REV. A. C. CRAIG, D.D.

Dr. Craig is secretary of the Commission of Churches for International Friendship and Social Responsibility.

The Commission of the Churches for International Friendship and Social Responsibility is the child of the Oxford Conference of 1937 on Church Community and State, and the heir of two bodies through which Church co-operation had been effected in the respective spheres of work indicated in the full title. It is a body which has been formed both in Great Britain (other than the Roman Catholic) and certain interdenominational organizations are represented, and it came into being shortly before war broke out.

So far as international friendship is concerned, the Commission at first blush looked more like a mortical or wistful gloss on the public situation than an effective contributory to it, but it was actually in this field that it got down most quickly to active work.

WORK AMONG THE INTERNEES

In October 1939 there was formed in London the Joint-Committee on Welfare of Internees and Prisoners of War, a body which brought together representatives of the voluntary welfare societies, successfully co-ordinating their work in the camps and acting as their mouthpiece to government departments on matters of common concern. From the beginning the Commission has had five representatives on this committee, whose specific task has been to secure religious ministrations for internees of communions other than the Roman Catholic and the Jewish, these latter being cared for by their own representatives on the Joint-Committee.

In spite of its inherent difficulties the task has been performed with success, the main burden of it being borne by a man well known to American readers, Dr. William Paton, whose tireless energy and wide knowledge and contacts have been of incalculable value. Sometimes through interned pastors, sometimes through visiting clergy for whom the Joint-Committee has secured the necessary permits, the ministrations of religion have been maintained in all the camps. A recent visit to the Isle of Man left on my mind one dominant impression: that all internees were treated with the same sincerity and ingenious personal consideration shown in these British camps, one great source of anxiety and dismay in wartime might be confidently written off.

A later development on the international side of the Commission's work has been the founding of a series of Christian Fellowships to promote deeper understanding and closer personal ties between the British Churches and those European Churches which, owing to the war, have so many representatives in Britain. Five such fellowships have been formed with the Anglo-Czechoslovak (with a Scottish counterpart); the British and Dutch; the Scandinavian-British; the Christian Fellowship between French - speaking and British peoples; and, perhaps most significant of all, the Christian Fellowship in Wartime, which is the German-British. Through the services of worship, lectures, discussions and social occasions promoted by these bodies, not a little is being done to realize their basic purpose.

Quite recently a further development has taken place: a central committee or standing conference of all these fellowships (including also representatives of Orthodox Churches) has been set up to consider the tremendous question of the Church's witness in post-war Europe. This central body has recently held its first retreat-conference in Oxford. All these activities, though yet small, may prove to be of deep significance for the future of the Church in Europe.

In respect to Youth Work, the Commission was fortunate in finding to hand a ready-made instrument — the committee which had organized the British end of the Amsterdam World Conference of Christian Youth in 1939. Slightly strengthened, this committee became the Commission's Youth Committee and very quickly found its harness, though it little foresaw the road it was destined to travel.

YOUTH CHALLENGES YOUTH

Its path was largely determined by the launching by the Board of Education of the Service of Youth Scheme, a major development in British educational policy which has set new problems and opened new doors to the Churches. The Youth Committee has gained the confidence of the Board of Education and has been recognized as the most convenient instrumen for consulting the Churches on matters affecting the Church's work among youth.

Further — and this is the touchstone where Government departments are concerned! — the Board is giving grant-aid towards the committee's work where it overlaps with the Service of Youth Scheme.

Gradually there is being forged a common ideal a common policy, a common programme. This has already been reflected in a document entitled "Youth Challenges Youth" which has been circulated to thousands among all the Churches. It is shortly to find a further publication in a statement on Christian Leadership in the Service of Youth, into the preparation of which thought and labor has been put. Who can doubt that such a measure of co-operation at this vital point of the Churches' life and work must greatly serve the whole cause of Christian unity.

CARELESS TALK; What Your Gossip May Do

BY FOSTER BARCLAY

Canadian Press Staff Writer

A Canadian soldier is to be put up on "careless talk" has been launched in Britain at a time when the possibility of a Second Front is a lively topic among servicemen and civilians.

Sign and placards posted in taverns, theatres, tubes and other public places when war started still shout their message for silence on military matters but they are a little time-worn, dusty and faded, but their bold lines of red letters stand out like a beacon.

The Government, emphasizing the necessity for secrecy, released a film, "Next of Kin," to show the public how careless talk costs thousands of lives, pieced together military information. The film, produced originally for the troops, concluded with a Commando raid which ended in disaster — because the enemy had been forewarned.

Now the Admiralty has opened a drive to supplement the films in the pubs and so defeat fifth columnists, potential saboteurs and "armchair spies." At meetings planned across the country, owners of taverns have been invited to enlist the assistance of waiters, bus and tram conductors and other public places where they can be caught and bumped off."

A perfect state of security was maintained—admittedly by force — but treated with the same sincerity and ingenious personal consideration shown in these British camps, one great source of anxiety and dismay in wartime might be confidently written off.

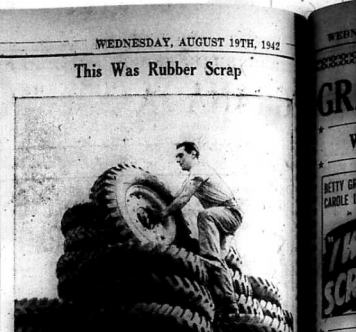
This Was Rubber Scrap



Old tires and rubber articles end up here — ready to make Canadian armed forces roll more rapidly towards Victory. The rural rubber drive in Ontario and Quebec, August 24 to September 8th, gives everyone a chance to make this heap of military vehicle tires pile up even higher.

WARTIME PRICES & TRADE BOARD NEWS

MAXIMUM PRICES SET FOR FUELWOOD

Maximum prices for various grades and sizes of fuelwood throughout Eastern Ontario have been set by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. These relate to roadside purchases and deliveries in rural districts as well as to delivered prices in Ottawa, Kingston, Belleville, Brockville and Cornwall. Full information concerning these prices may be obtained from any office of the Board.

CERTAIN RETAILERS FARES ELIMINATED

Because of a marked increase of certain reduced fares on the railways, including special convention rates and week-end travel between eastern and western Canada and between the prairies and the Pacific coast, takes effect on August 31 with the approval of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. This new order does not in any way affect train travel at reduced rates by members of the armed forces.

CARDS ARE NEEDED FOR EXTRA SUGAR

It is pointed out by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board that consumers requiring extra sugar for preserving must take their ration cards to the retailers when filling out the special coupons issued for that purpose. The number of the ration card has to be placed on the voucher.

NEW, RATION BOOKS SOON TO BE READY

Finishing touches are now being placed on the permanent ration books for sugar, tea and coffee which the public will use commencing September 7th. Approximately 20,000 of these books have been printed up by a group of surgical school teachers, who have been displaying themselves to this task early in July, making use of class rooms in the Brockville Collegiate Institute. These are to be distributed throughout the border counties extending from the neighborhood of Trenton to the Quebec province boundary. Even a larger number of the new books are approaching completion in Ottawa for distribution throughout that city. Hull, Renfrew county and the Ontario side of the Ottawa Valley. The new books will be without tea and sugar coupons for all children under the age of twelve.

NEW COUPONS ONLY FOR EMERGENCY USE

While extra supplies of sugar may be obtained by farmers who are engaged in the feeding of harvesting gangs and other groups of farm workers, there is no provision in the rationing regulations administered by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board for the purchase of tea or coffee. Where these commodities are required in such cases they must be obtained from individual rations.

FEWER COLORS IN MEN'S FELT HATS

To conserve material, manpower and machine hours, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has made an order cutting the number of colors of fur felt hats from 42 to 20, and the number of wool felt shades from 18 to 10. Manufacturers are required to eliminate lustre in the retailing below $4. Fur felt or wool felt hats are to be produced in quarter sizes or six millimetres of size. Fur sweatbands are limited to 2½ inches in width and are to have no printing or embossing other than the manufacturer's name or brand appearing once.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, AUGUST 23RD, 1942

Lesson Text: Genesis 28: 10-22
"JACOB'S VISION OF GOD"

Jacob had put one over on his father and his brother. He was a shrewd, keen business man who knew when to take advantage of another's need. Aided by a scheming mother, he had succeeded in wresting the birthright from his brother, and in deceiving his dying father. And then he made a bargain with God. If God will be with me and bless me, he said, and I will return to keep a vow I make to Him. Not a bad bargain! If we should go to a banker or a business man with such a proposition, it might not seem so good. What would a banker say, if we said to him, if you will get me in a position, when I make a lot of money I'll give ten per cent. back to you? Not very generous, and yet it is a lot more generous than most people are to the church and to religion. The ancient Hebrews gave a tenth of their income to the church. An increasing number of Christians are becoming tithers—giving a tenth to the church. And yet, how many of the people with whom you are well acquainted, give a tenth of their income to the church — do you?

Jacob who had wrested the birthright from his brother, was afraid after he had succeeded. In order to escape from his brother's wrath, he fled the country, intending to set up his own home, and to secure land for himself, and stock. The first night he had to sleep in the open, with nothing for a pillow but a stone. It was there he had a dream in which he saw angels ascending and descending a ladder which stretched between heaven and earth, and above it stood Jehovah, who promised Jacob three things: (1) "Jacob would be safe wherever he went and would return"; (2) "He would have descendants to be proud of"; (3) "He would be a great land-owner."

This to us, with our human view of God, seems a surprising thing. That God should reward a man who had so patently deceived his brother and father. From the point of view would seem unfair. But God does not reward or punish according to our standards of right. He is not His ways. If we were rewarded or punished according to our ways, it is not hard to see that we would be rather badly off. Of course, Jacob had to learn a lot of things before he finally attained the promised blessing. God's gifts did not drop ready made from the heavens. And Jacob, out of a long and bitter experience learned his lesson. He was a different man when he finally returned years later.

The promise, however, was a surprise to Jacob, as it is to us. He lived in the early days when the view of God was primitive and rather crude. The Hebrews believed that each town, each village and area had its own god; and when a person left the locality he left his god behind. This Jacob believed. It was therefore rather a surprise that Jacob should be assured that wherever he went God would be with him, that He would be followed Jacob. It is so common a Christian view that we can hardly appreciate how great a discovery it was to Jacob to have the assurance of God's presence in a strange, unfamiliar land.

And yet, we might well take stock of our own reactions to the doctrine of the omnipresence of God. God is in this place and I knew it not," was the highest of it. God does not act on the knowledge. God is in places, blindness, selfishness and sin, but we do not realize it. We are not aware of her

MOTORISTS HEAR GOOD NEWS

Washington. — Government officials revealed recently they were studying with great interest a plan put forward by the Sun Oil Company of Philadelphia, that automobile owners by merely making a "simple" carburetor adjustment and by using only half the cylinders of their engines can obtain "adequate" and "satisfactory transportation," while saving one-third to one-half the normal amount of gasoline.

The announcement was made by the Sun Oil Company in full page announcements in newspapers. It said that comprehensive tests have proved that most automobiles not only can be run smoothly by this method, but that tire wear will be "substantially decreased" by reducing the use of "excessive power."

MERITS TO BE DISCUSSED

Harold L. Ickes, petroleum co-ordinator, was among the first to see the announcement, but withheld comment pending a further study of details. A spokesman for Mr. Ickes said that he had discussed the merits of the plan at a press conference.

At the offices of General Motors, officials said they had their engineers starting to make a check on the possibilities of the plan immediately.

Officials of the automotive council for war production, an organization of the Automotive Manufacturers' Association said "it sounds like a clever trick if it works." He added that it looked as if the oil company was ahead of the car manufacturers in devising means of conserving motor fuel.

SECRET WELL KEPT

Apparently, the recent announcement in the newspapers was the first inkling given publicly of the plan. Neither the automobile manufacturers' representatives nor Government officials professed to have had any advance knowledge.

The Sun Oil Company's announcement said that its own engineering staff had evolved the plan.

Some experts wondered what the plan entailed for six-cylinder cars, remarking that cutting off half the cylinders of an 8-cylinder car is practicable, but that a 6-cylinder car cannot operate on three cylinders.

WITH THE R.C.A.F.

BY FLIGHT LIEUT. T. C. McCALL, R.C.A.F.

"Dreadful flap at Ops: Three kites missing. See if you can get me some gen on it."

This command, addressed to a newly - arrived Canadian airman would probably throw him into confusion until such time as he had succeeded in mastering the intricacies of "Raff"—the universal language of all who fly with the R.A.F.

Translated the request means that the operations room — nerve centre of the squadron is concerned over the absence of three aircraft and the speaker would like some information on the matter. "Gen" is a short term used for inside information; "flap" means almost any kind of commotion or to-day, and "kites," of course, refers to aircraft.

With many Canadian flyers returning to Canada, such terms as the above are likely to find their way into the language of the younger generation. For instance, there's the expression, "Good Show" which is a comment designed to cover almost any situation from shooting down three enemy aircraft to buying a new necktie. Overseas, a chap is a "type" — either good or bad. If you see a pilot with the top button of his tunic unfastened, don't chide him for sloppiness; he's a fighter pilot and as a doggedly individualistic fellow, demands the right to express himself thus. If his cap badge, instead of glistening, is heavily tarnished and coverfed with verdigris, it isn't that he doesn't take pride in his uniform. Not at all. He's proud to be a coastal nonfand er flying boat chappie whose exposure to salt water is emblazoned on his cap badge as a testimonial for all to see.

Scottish hospitality does not take second place to anything found on this continent, in the opinion of Flight Lieutenant A. R. Ferguson, an R.C.A.F. padre, who, however, may be somewhat prejudiced in the matter. Flight Lieut. Ferguson, who formerly held charges as a Presbyterian clergyman at various points in Ontario, was born in Scotland and educated at Glasgow University. Now with the Royal Canadian Air Force he is back in his homeland and recently conducted a service at a church where he was assistant minister in 1918. Since taking up his post in Scotland he estimates that he has travelled 3000 miles by train and the same distance on foot." Canadian airmen stationed in the land of the heather have received a warm welcome, he says.

The squadron command by Wing Commander P. Y. Davoud of Kingston, Ontario, now somewhere in Great Britain, has a distinguished member whose exploits are frequently mentioned in the official diary. For example:

"A reconnaissance patrol headed by A. C. M. Timoshenko, D.C.M., penetrated into enemy lines in the dining room. A single unit was encountered and destroyed. Our forces maintained their patrol before retreating to a stronger position. The presence of the enemy was suspected in the C. O's room. The actual strength of the opposing force was not known. It was believed that an attack was about to be made on the very large quantities of food stored there. A. C. M. Tomishenko, D.M.C. made a sortie and surprised an enemy patrol. This was destroyed, and judging by the extreme youth we may assume that the numbers of the opposition are becoming depleted."

Timoshenko, by the way, is the squadron cat. The designation "A.C. M." does not mean Air Chief Marshal, but rather Air Chief Mouser, and the decoration, D.M.C., stands for Distinguished Mousing Cross.

"They Pick The Army Because They Know It is Their Friend"

BY ERIC R. DENNIS

Halifax, August 17. — He dodged German machine gun fire in the streets of Boulogne, he carried the wounded and exhausted from the bullet - strafed beaches of Dunkirk, he stormed the rocky shores of Stavanger and for two and a half years he has been battling Nazi U-boats and submarines on the Atlantic.

This is a story of "Jock," a 20-year-old Royal Naval wireless operator who left his desk as an apprentice cost accountant in a Southampton electrical engineering company in October, 1939, to go to war. Censorship prevents giving his full name for fear of identifying his ship.

He has been through enough action to make him realize "This is a real war where courtesy and rules have to be forgotten" but when he lifted his short pea jacket over the arm of an easy chair in The Salvation Army Hostel here, and told me of his experiences there was no fear in his voice.

The sea is his job in this strife—long days he sits, almost stiff, at his radio set — ready to flash out his signals — and his home in Canada is The Salvation Army.

"Ninety per cent of the boys in our navy take The Salvation Army every time. It is the homelike Christian atmosphere about its hostels, its officers — that is what every man who goes to sea wants," says "Jock".

He recalled how a close comrade in this war had been torpedoed at sea and spent seven days adrift in the Atlantic before being rescued. Those seven days of an ordeal, too much for other crewmen who laid down and died, gave the seaman time to think.

Before the war he had led a clean Christian life. But the excitement of war, perhaps, had begun to drift him into irreligion. As he stared death grimly in the face hour after hour, day after day he suffered in the thoughts of his wrongs. He made a vow he would change should he live through this experience.

When a rescue ship landed him in Canada, he headed for the first Salvation Army Hostel, told his story, and asked for guidance.

"The officer gave him her blessings, told him how to go back on the right road and today you couldn't meet a cleaner living chap in the whole blinkin' navy," said Jock.

He told how the majority of men entering the navy without any religion always said the Salvation Army when the recruiting officer asked them their religious following.

"They pick The Army because they know it is their friend — that it is always ready to give them help, roch or poor as you might be."

He recalled how he had heard blessings for the "Sally Ann" murmured from the lips of dying men on the beaches at Dunkirk where he rescued twenty soldiers, himself.

One was a Maltese he found bleeding and exhausted in the sand. As "Jock" picked him up the soldier gave him a picture of his sister to look up in Portsmouth and then added, "And give my blessings to my friend, The Salvation Army — I don't think I'll live to be able to do it myself." A few minutes later an exploding bomb killed the Maltese in Jock's arms.

This means that more clerks and stenographers will be needed. These positions may be permanent even after the war. Certainly these are the days when young people leaving the classrooms of our high schools, continuation schools, collegiates and universities should prepare to take their places in business and civil service offices, where opportunities for future success are abundant.

Glenn Sharpe, Napanee, $2.00 and costs for failing to stop at a stop-street.

Mrs. Milton Grange, R.R. Napanee, $5.00 and costs for careless driving.

Percy Kellett, Kingston, L. C. A. violation, $10.00 and costs.

Arthur Churchill, Kingston, $10.00 and costs, for careless driving.

Thompson has been in the Royal Canadian Navy for some time, but evidence was produced to show that since enlisting he had been a deserter most of the time. His youth and the fact that he had no previous record were taken into consideration by the magistrate.

Sidney Thompson, aged 18 years, of Napanee, was pleaded guilty to breaking into a box car at the C.N.R. station and to theft of a quantity of cigarettes, as a result of which the charge was laid, and stated in giving his verdict that after viewing the location of the accident he could not give anything but a verdict of guilty.

Every man every machine working every minute

HYDRO POWERS

ONTARIO'S BITS and PIECES PROGRAM

WHAT "BITS AND PIECES" MEANS

In scores of Ontario plants "bits and pieces" are being manufactured for war weapons, some parts only minute others weighing many tons are being cut, moulded, machined and finished. These are finally assembled into fighting units at central points. That's "bits and pieces" production. Hydro supplies these plants. As a further contribution to the war Hydro's own maintenance equipment when not required for its own use is producing "bits and pieces." Hydro makes men, minutes and materials count for more—provides power to help Ontario produce about half of Canada's total of war weapons.

- Men and materials, machines and power—all on a tireless, almost timeless schedule. These are the factors that have turned Ontario's wonderful "bits and pieces" production into a well co-ordinated, steady flow of war materials

Hydro-Electric energy is the driving force that is enabling hundreds of Ontario plants, from little village machine shops to huge industries, to be dedicated to the great crusade for Victory.

In excess of 2,000,000 horsepower of electrical energy is being supplied in Ontario by Hydro—approximately one half is now harnessed to war production. More is demanded. New plants are being projected.

NOW—let us all conserve Hydro by "bits and pieces." In our own homes and offices, to keep Ontario's wartime "bits and pieces" program going full blast. Every man and every machine must be kept working every minute.

HOW TO SAVE ELECTRICITY

Turn off electric lights when not needed. Use the electric range sparingly. Everyone must resolve to save some electricity in some way every day. Every unit of electrical energy that can be saved for wartime purposes will help.

THE HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER COMMISSION OF ONTARIO

NEW RATION BOOKS PLANNED

COUPONS FOR SIX MONTHS TO BE ISSUED SEPT. 7TH

Ottawa, (CP) — The Wartime Prices and Trade Board, furnishing Canadian consumers with a detailed description of the six-month ration books, which will be distributed September 7th, said last week, the single commodities which will be dropped-rationed at that time are tea, coffee and sugar.

Emergency coupons included in the ration books, the board said, are included "solely as a precaution" and "no decision whatever" has been made to use them for any commodity.

Officially designated "ration book No. 1," the new books contain five colored sets of coupons. The first, printed in red, has the word "sugar" printed on each of the thirteen coupons, each good for two weeks' supply.

FOR TEA AND COFFEE

The second, printed in green, is designated "mare A" and will be used to buy tea and coffee, replacing lettered coupons now in use.

"It should be noted," the board said, "that after September 7th each tea-coffee coupon from the new ration book will cover a two-week supply — that is, two ounces of tea or eight ounces of coffee, putting them on the same basis as the sugar coupons."

Tea-coffee coupons will not be included in new books issued to children under twelve years of age.

The third, remaining series of coupons comprise one page of thirteen coupons good for two weeks' ration allowance, and two series of two pages of 26 coupons. These are included for emergency purposes, the Board said, just as extra coupons on temporary ration cards were used for tea and coffee.

RATION OFFICE NAMED

Each book will bear a serial number and the address of the nearest ration office. Consumers are urged to write the office in case of change of name or address and to report lost or defaced books.

The board's word to men and women joining the armed forces is this: "Take the book with you; it will be asked for."

Before any coupons in the new books may be used, holders are required to write their name and address and the serial number of the book on each page of coupons, along with their signatures on a space provided inside the back cover.

A detachable postal card at the back of the book, addressed to the nearest ration office, contains spaces for name and address, age if under 16, and the book's serial number.

This could be used in applying for ration book No. 2 when the time comes," said the Board, "but it is not to be used until instructions to do so are given."

FINE PATRIOTISM SHOWN BY BROCKVILLE FIRM

Twelve Key Men and Eighteen Other Employees Allowed to Attend Annual Reserve Force Camp at Connaught Ranges with 2nd Battalion, The Brockville Rifles ('R.F.) Made up Salaries and Wages to the Amount of $1,500.

Kingston, Aug. 17 — Probably for other company of its size can compete with the patriotism of a Brockville firm, which had twelve of its key men and eighteen other employees attending the recent annual reserve army camp at Connaught Ranges. The entire thirty are members of the 2nd Battalion, The Brockville Rifles ('R.F.).

The key men of the company were W. L. Douglas, president, and the accountant, office manager, superintendent of men's hat division, superintendent of women's hat division, purchasing agent, and five foremen. Ranks held by the thirty men, were that of company commander, paymaster, two subalterns, company quartermaster sergeant, three sergeants, three corporals, three lance-corporals, three bandsmen and thirteen riflemen.

The firm made up the salaries and wages to the amount of $1,500, and allowed the men to go to camp despite the fact it is the busiest time of the year.

Although only a third of the firm's average staff of between 300 and 350 are men, nearly 100 are now on active service. The majority of the volunteers passed through the Brockville Rifles.

OBITUARY

MRS. WILLIAM J. McGILL

One of the oldest residents of this community, in the person of Mrs. William J. McGill, formerly Ann Copeland, passed on to her reward on August 1st, 1942.

Mrs. McGill, with her husband, moved from their farm a half-mile west of Centreville to the village, twenty-six years ago, where they lived for six years when Mr. McGill passed away. Since then she has resided alone, though a great deal of her time she has spent visiting among her children.

Her home has always been open to her pastor and every church organization has benefitted by her generous help and encouragement. For several years Mrs. McGill acted as president of the W. A. and was a charter and life member of the W. M. S.

During the past year Mrs. McGill has been in failing health, during which time she has been faithfully cared for by her eldest daughter, Edith. Mrs. Gerow, who has shared her home for the last two years.

A pleasant event for her was a birthday party, nicely planned and executed by her daughters, Myrtle, Mrs. Tosh, of Drumheller, Alberta, who visited her for a month, and Edith, Mrs. Gerow, assisted by her other children. About thirty-five of her relatives and friends called on her throughout the day.

Besides the above-mentioned, Mrs. McGill leaves to mourn her loss, Thomas E., of Toronto; Mabel, Mrs. Fred Milligan, of Newburgh; George, on the homestead and Florence, Mrs. J. Paxton, of Vancouver, B.C.; also fourteen grandchildren, and thirteen great-grandchildren; and three sisters, Mrs. Eliza Shane of Kingston; Mrs. Belle Switzer of Napanee and Mrs. Mildred Hill, of Newburgh.

The floral tributes were many and beautiful. The funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. Prisk, assisted by the choir, who rendered beautifully "Good-night, here' and Good-morning up There." Mr. Prair chose for his text, Psalm 116, verse 15.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Thomas Thompson, James Doupe, William Clarke, Ernest Weese, Charles Pfeiler, and Geo. Clancy.

Her remains were laid beside those of her husband in the United Church Cemetery, Centreville.

OBITUARIES

JAMES CRAWFORD

A veil of bloom was cast over the entire community when God saw fit to call from our midst a well known and highly respected resident in the person of James Joseph Crawford.

Death came suddenly, the result of a heart-attack, as he was about to retire and was a great shock to his family and many friends.

Deceased was in his 63rd year, the second eldest son of the late John Crawford and Elizabeth Brown. Mr. Crawford was a kind and loving father and was endowed with a cheerful personality. The sorrowing friends, the tokens of grief witnessed on all sides, the innumerable expressions of regret in mass cards, letters and floral tributes, testified the esteem in which he was held.

Left to mourn an untimely loss, are his sorrowing wife and three daughters, also one brother, John, three sisters, Mary, Mrs. Leo Powers and Mrs. Michael Meagher.

The funeral took place to Church of the Assumption, Erinsville, where Rev. J. A. Powell sang solemn mass of requiem. Rev. Father Hugh Dillon, C.S.S.R., Brockville, in the sanctuary. During the offertory, "Sweet, Name Which Makes the Dying Live," was sung by John Kilbrain, a childhood playmate.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. M. J. Hoskins, William Hopkins, Clarence Neville, Dennis Neville, James Flynn, Patrick Burns.

Hungry Men Important Part of Harvest Season

BY LAURA C. PEPPER
Chief Consumer Section,
Department of Agriculture.

Man works from sun to sun—but woman's work is never done, — so runs the adage. It's particularly true during harvest when rural housewives are faced with the additional work of catering for extra workers. —berry pickers, threshers, silo-filling gangs.

Making two big meals a day that are appetizing, nourishing and nutritious for a crowd of ten to twenty men is no small job. It is advisable to make simple menus, including some dishes that can be made ahead of time.

Meat loaves, casseroles, macaroni, spaghetti or noodle dishes are favorites. Home baked beans are economical and nourishing and usually in high favor.

The Consumer Section, Department of Agriculture has prepared menu suggestions and recipes for farm women faced with the job of feeding farm crews.

In the dinner menu it is suggested using a pot roast of beef but as an alternative try serving beef stew and vegetable. For supper Shepherd's pie could replace cold meat and scalloped potatoes.

In addition to whole wheat bread biscuits are included in the menu. Use new Vitamin B white flour (Canada Approved).

In three menus plain sponge cake for supper is included in addition to the regular dessert to help make up those extra calories needed for strenuous work. Purchase of extra sugar for harvest groups is on the same basis as for canning.

MAKING THE MOST OF YOUR TEA AND COFFEE QUOTA

Hello Homemakers; The rule of thumb has been abandoned with the rationing of tea and coffee. Every tea leaf and every ground of coffee must now be made to count. The new regulations of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board allow one ounce of tea OR four ounces of coffee (not both) per person, per week, for those over 12 years of age. The tea quota allows enough for twelve cups and the coffee quota for 30 cups during the week. In the case of coffee concentrates or substitutes, your ration coupon will allow the purchase of a quantity sufficient to make twelve cups.

There are several factors that may make a great difference in stretching out your allowance — the blend, the grind or grade, the pot, the measurements, the temperature of water, the steeping and storage method.

GENERAL DIRECTIONS

1 Buy freshly ground coffee. Ask your grocer to grind it medium coarse for boiled coffee, fine for the percolator and extra fine for the drip or vacuum. (Glass vacuum coffee-makers require a very fine-ly ground coffee so that all the flavour is drawn out.)

2 Store in an absolutely clean container with a tight-fitting lid, preferably a glass jar. Exposure to air causes loss of flavour.

3 Keep coffee in the lower part of the electric refrigerator; ground coffee will keep in flavour longer in a cold atmosphere. Keep tea in a dry place.

4 Measure water and tea (or coffee) accurately — with a measuring spoon and an eight-ounce measuring cup. Bring the water to a full boil, as actively boiling water releases the best coffee flavour.

5 Make only as much tea or coffee as you wish to serve. If at any time you do have some tea or coffee left over, store it in a covered jar and place in the electric refrigerator to serve as an iced drink or flavouring for a milk shake, punch or dessert.

6 Steep tea or coffee at least five minutes instead of the usual two minutes. Using a glass coffee maker, steeping is done by allowing the coffee and water to remain in the upper bowl for five minutes, by leaving on the warm element. This extra steeping will give you good results from less coffee.

7 Never fail to wash the inside of the coffee maker or teapot scrupulously clean with baking soda and water — using a brush for the spouts. Any used filter bag must be thoroughly washed; a coffee bag with the remains of former coffee makings will ruin the fresh coffee flavour.

Boiled Coffee

Measure coffee into a fine cheese-cloth bag - double thickness. Use one level tablespoon for each standard cup of water. Place bag in kettle or coffee pot containing the required amount of boiling water. Cover and simmer eight or ten minutes. Serve at once.

Coffe-Milk

While coffee is being prepared, scald an equal amount of milk. Pour the coffee and hot milk together into the cups in equal amounts, one pot in each hand.

Percolated Coffee

Measure water into a clean scalded percolator. Place basket in pot and measure coffee into it. Cover and attach electric cord. Allow water to percolate over coffee for ten minutes - timing should begin when a slight colour appears in water seen in glass top.

Drip Coffee

Scald the coffee pot. Measure coffee into the upper part. Pour fresh, briskly boiling water over coffee. Cover and let stand on the small electric element turned to Low or Simmer so coffee does not boil but the steam makes the coffee steep, longer.

TAKE A TIP

1 If you use both tea and coffee and have two ration cards in your home, use one card for tea and one for coffee.

2 Black tea is made from fermenting the tender tea leaves; green tea is unfermented tea. "Orange pekoe" refers to the size of the leaf, not a particular flavour or grade.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. A. E. asks: "If corn syrup can be used in tomato sandwich filling and in what proportion?"

Tomato Sandwich Filling

Twelve ripe tomatoes; three onions; one-quarter cup salt; three-quarters cup corn syrup; four red sweet peppers, one green sweet pepper; six teaspoons mustard; one and two-thirds cups flour; one cup of granulated sugar; one cup vinegar.

Cook tomatoes and onions until soft. Put through a sieve. Add salt, sugar, syrup and vinegar and chopped peppers. Heat this mixture and add mustard. Then add the flour that has been mixed with vinegar to make a paste. Cook on electric element turned Low. Stir frequently. Pour in sterilized jars and cover with paraffin. Yields three pints.

FRUITS — GOOD TO EAT — AND GOOD FOR YOU

We are lucky people in this country. We have fruit to eat the year around, fresh, canned or dried. All fruits give us minerals and vitamins.

The High Rankers For Vitamin C

Some fruits have more Vitamin C than others. They rank

First — Oranges and grapefruit.
Second — Canned or fresh tomatoes.
Third — Canned pineapple.

NOTE: Canned Grapefruit and the juice have almost as much Vitamin C as the fresh fruit and at times are cheaper.

How Much Fruit Do We Need ?

Eat one high ranker every day, plus one other kind of fruit. For example: add apples, prunes, or figs.

Your Money Goes Farther If You Buy :

Small "juice" oranges instead of larger ones.
Canned grapefruit or grapefruit juice instead of fresh.
Tomato juice in large cans.
Small prunes instead of big ones.

Fruits Will Taste Better And Be Safer If You

Keep all fruit and fruit juices in a cold place and cover the fruit juices.
Wash fresh fruits before eating.

Do You Know That :

Dried fruits in bulk are cheaper and taste just as good as packaged fruit ? (Sweet apples do not need extra sugar.)
Mixed dried fruits can be bought in bulk ? (Smaller pieces but as good flavor.)
Rhubarb in season or soaked dried fruit can replace apples in Brown Betty ? (Try it with prunes or apricots.)
Best apple sauce is made from unpared apples ? (Better flavor and better color.)

— The Conflict —

Can I help a poor benighted brother
Cast down beneath a load of care
And trouble,
Shed a ray of sunshine in his heart
E'er he and I from this world depart.
The time to soothe his throbbing brow
With the balm of human kindness,
Is now.
The fairest rose but once doth blow.
Friendship, love truth below in life's passing show.
Why hesitate ? Time and fate will close that gate.
Then alas ! forever he too late.
How sad those thoughts strip the heart of peace.
I could have done it then.
Many have stood by bowed grief to bend
Powerless to recall the pain they gave.
Wife and sorrel and bitter tears
Felt the wrong of bygone years.
Standing by graves and coffins of loved ones lost
Husband, wife, parents and children dear.
Cold, silent promise of death !
Our deeds in silence and grief entail.
Only then did we feel
We loved them better than we knew
Only then did we see
They lived a life we knew
Brief and full of trials
Death ! Oh, cruel is thy sting pay.

The stream of life, an ever-changing passing throng.
A conflict, between truth and falsehood, right and wrong.
Gold and fame in every age men seek to gain.
Only to find sorrow and pain:
No pen can write, no tongue can tell.
The sorrow and plain that on earth doth dwell.
Gold, money and banks they never contain.
Aught for human life to sustain.
Kernels of grain are very small.
But they contain substance to nourish us all.
Love and learn truth and reason to discern
Why do men fear to stand alone?

Regimental Marches To Be Registered And Authorized

Kingston — The regimental marches and trumpet and bugle calls of units of the Canadian Army, both active and reserve, are to be collected, registered and authorized, according to an announcement made from Military District No. 3 headquarters at Kingston.

Officers commanding units in the district have been asked to forward information bearing on the adoption of the regimental marches and are also to be aware of the matches of other units in the calls.

The announcement points out that where Canadian Units are brigaded the regimental march or call of the Army regiment with which they are allied, permission of the brigade officer or the Headquarters officer of the District must be obtained. Records of all British Army regimental marches is obtainable in Canada.

FOURTH LINE W. A.

The Fourth Line W. A. met at the home of Mrs. E. A. Wright, Tuesday afternoon, Aug. 4. This meeting was to have been held at the home of Mrs. C. F. Reid, but owing to the death of Mrs. G. Jackson, Mrs. Wright opened her home to the ladies. The president presided and the meeting opened with a hymn and the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison. The roll call was answered by a fair attendance of members and visitors. Discussion followed about re-decorating the church; a committee was appointed.

A programme in charge of Miss Lenna Hagerman, taking as its theme "Being a Christian," was enjoyed and opened with a hymn. Mrs. J. E. Hagerman read the scripture lesson and readings were given by Mrs. Ford Denyes, Miss Helen Reid and Miss Lenna Hagerman. Mrs. Jas. Robson favored with a solo. Mrs. Byron Jackson gave the motto: "There is a Friend that sticketh closer than a Brother," which was particularly well given. A few of the members of the choir sang and the meeting closed with a hymn.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Wright and to the program and refreshment committees. A pleasant half-hour was enjoyed when refreshments were served.

When, Where, Why. of Rural Scrap Rubber Salvage Drive

Answering the queries of rural post-office patrons and boxholders with the rubber drive taking place from August 24 to September 8 in Ontario and Quebec in connection with both those provinces, the National Salvage Committee has prepared the following list of leading questions and answers for the benefit of scrap rubber contributors:—

1 Q. What do I look for ?

2 Q. What do I do with my scrap rubber ?

A. Rural boxholders — place item the ground under your mail box to be picked up by your mail courier. Patrons of rural post offices — take to the rural post office, or place designated, and add it to the rubber scrap pile.

3 Q. When do I do this ?

A. The sooner the better.

4 Q. What vital use will be made of the rubber I contribute ?

A. War needs for which your rubber may be used include military vehicle and warplane tires; military footwear; fire hose; airplane detachable pontoons; wire and cable; military signal apparatus; motor cycle tires; life-saving jackets; navy hose; shock - absorbing pads; gaskets; munitions workers' non - park footwear; welding hose; military vehicle radiator hose; fire extinguishers; electric battery hose; tires and solid tires; industrial packing.

5 Q. What about the rubber I have stored in rubber scrap piles ?

A. This is part of Canada's visible supply of scrap rubber. It is urgent that your scrap rubber be added to it as quickly as possible so that the work of planning the best use of Canada's war machines will know how much there is in the country.

6 Q. Will anyone make any profit out of the collection of my scrap rubber through the post office system ?

A. No. All collecting services are donated free. Sorting and marketing will be handled by registered agencies, operating under control of the Government-owned Fairmont Company Limited. Net proceeds go to war charities and comforts for Canada's armed forces.

7 Q. Is the rubber situation serious?

A. Yes. Our supply of crude rubber has been cut from 60,000 tons. Our need has increased. To make our supply of scrap rubber go as far as possible we must mix scrap with it.

A. No. Residents of cities and towns will continue to use their rubber direct to their local salvage committees.

WANTED – NURSES

MARRIED NURSES URGED TO TAKE REFRESHER COURSES

War makes innumerable demands on the people of countries involved. Here, in Canada, with a relatively small population, we are faced with the serious problem of finding sufficient men and women for our armed forces, our war and industrial plants. Over and above these requirements there is one other — the shortage of nurses — that is causing considerable concern to those directly associated and it has reached such proportions that the Dominion Government has taken cognisance of the situation.

Normally, Canada number approximately 23,000 graduate nurses among her population, but, since the war, at least 1,500 have enrolled with the forces and for service in South-Africa while, it is estimated by the Canadian Nurses Association, the official organization working with this problem, that at least thirty per cent. of nurses marry within two years of graduation. With industry expanding to meet war requirements more and more nurses have been enrolled in the ranks of industry.

To-day, therefore, Canada is confronted with an alarming shortage of competent nurses and, with the women power problem as it is today, the shortage will become more acute as the months pass.

The Canadian Nurses Association has suggested that the depleted ranks of nurses can only be filled by more and more young women of the age, and possessing the aptitude and disposition so essential for this honourable profession, enroll for training; that married nurses take refresher courses to fit them for return to their profession; that more and more competent instructors be found; that scholarships and bursaries be set up for the training of nurses for special and instructional work.

It is an axiom that the nation's health is the most prized possession and in the preservation of health the graduate nurse fills an important role. Furthermore the training which a nurse receives adequately enriches her life with a host of opportunities which are a part and parcel of daily life and endow her with knowledge that is always useful.

Within the last few years the preparation of nurses has advanced considerably. Gone are the days when a graduate nurse worked twelve-hour stretches. To-day the eight-hour day is definitely recommended and she receives a salary that enables her to live in reasonable comfort.

As Canada, in concert with other United Nations, moves towards the end of the third-war-year therefore, this problem promises to be one of some magnitude and it remains to be seen whether the young women of Canada will realize its significance and effect on the life of the nation.

If, as Canadians, we do not solve this problem now, we shall undoubtedly have cause to regret our dilatoriness within the very near future.

SECOND FRONT HELD ONLY WAY TO SAVE FRANCE

By a Staff Correspondent of The Christian Science Monitor

Washington, — The early opening of a second front in Western Europe was characterized as a literally "life-and-death" matter for the future of the French people, in a report on France under Hitler issued by the Foreign Policy Association, today.

Citing eyewitness accounts to support its conclusions, the report declares that the German war machine steadily is sapping the physical health and vitality of the entire French population.

"With every day that passes," according to this study, prepared by Hubert R. Popper, of the Foreign Policy research staff, "the restoration of prewar physical conditions becomes more difficult, and the damage — which has indirect repercussions far beyond the borders of France — more nearly irreparable."

The facts in substantiation of this assertion are grim but revealing. Under conditions of extreme malnutrition and the long absence of prisoners whom Hitler promised to return after the armistice, marriages during the first quarter of 1941 decreased in number by forty per cent. and live births by 23 per cent. as compared with the same months of 1939. In the first five months of 1941, relative to the corresponding period of 1939, mortality among children up to fourteen years of age has increased by ten per cent; of adults 15 to 69, by 22 per cent; and of older persons, by 43 per cent.

THREAT TO NATION

"Such conditions," says the report, "if long maintained, would destroy all possibility of restoring the greatness of France in the near future."

Mr. Popper points out that while many retains power over 45 per cent. of Metropolitan France, the unoccupied area is far less important in terms of human and material resources than this figure would indicate. Thus, for example the districts of Alsace and Lorraine which the Nazis now treat as an integral part of German territory, contain the bulk of French iron ore, much of its high-concentrated coal, many potash mines, the oil wells of Pechelbronn, and sizeable agricultural areas.

In its entirety, the occupied region includes approximately: 55 per cent. of France's land area, 54 per cent. of the cultivated land, 67 per cent. of the population, 80 per cent. of the rainfully occupied population, 65 per cent. of the industrial workers, 74 per cent. of wheat production, 70 per cent. of potato production, 22 per cent. of the horses, 65 per cent. of the cows, 55 per cent. of the pigs, 75 per cent of milk production, 38 per cent. of the mine output.

In addition, the largest production centres of steel and coal and all of the variegated industries of the Paris area and the north are in Occupied France.

LIKE A VASSAL STATE

The report concludes that France under Hitler has been reduced in many respects to the role of a vassal state.

"As in the case of defeated Germany in 1919, political power seems to have passed into the hands of personalities strongly influenced by the governmental and ethical systems of the military victors," it says. "Again as in the case of republican Germany however, there are many factors which suggest that the new regime has not struck deep in the country. The existing Government is tolerated by many and have not yet regained their intellectual bearings after shock of defeat, it is passively supported by large numbers of Frenchmen, some of whom, although confirmed in their hatred of their ruthless Nazi overlords, still feel some bitterness toward the British.

"Finally, the millions of France today have on the whole been signally unsuccessful in their attempts to give form negative acquiescence in their lot into a positive and enthusiastic participation in the government. On the other hand ,the rousing self-confidence of the Republican leaders who have been on trial in Riom awakened a deep response and made clearly indicating that the principles of Republican democracy have not been uprooted in France.

"If these principles are to be revived, the economy of France is being utilized with increasing thoroughness by the Nazis, must be restored, the economy of prewar days, and the long alienation of the workers from the state ended

Income Tax is Fair to All

In the fourth year of war, Canada will need almost four billion dollars. This is the equivalent of nearly $350 from every man, woman and child in the country.

Even with the highest income tax in history, 52% only of the money Canada needs will be raised by taxation. The rest will have to be borrowed by means of War Savings Stamps, Certificates and Victory Bonds.

Starting with the first pay period in September representing September earnings only, your employer is required by law to deduct your income tax from your wages or salary, and send it promptly to the Government. Everybody will pay his share as he goes along.

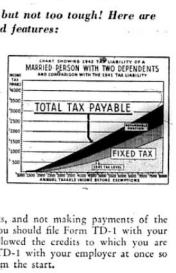
It's going to be tough . . . but not too tough! Here are some good features:

1. You will pay as you earn, so that you will not be faced with a large lump sum payment next year.

2. The National Defence Tax already deducted during the first 8 months of this year has been taken into account in the Table of Tax Deductions.

3. Though the income tax rates show a sharp increase over last year, a large portion of this increase is actually savings, to be paid back to you with interest after the war.

4. The money you are paying for life insurance premiums, annuities, privated rebayments on your home, or into a pension fund may be deducted (up to a certain maximum) from the savings portion of your income tax. In many cases this may be sufficient to make payment of the savings portion of the tax unnecessary.



EMPLOYERS

If you have not received your copies of Table of Tax Deductions, and Instructions, communicate with the office of your Inspector of Income Tax at once.

Employers and Post Offices have been requested to display in a prominent place the official Table of Tax Deductions.

Forms TD-1 may be secured from your employer, Post Offices, or local Income Tax offices.

Unless you are single, without dependents, and not making payments of the types mentioned in paragraph 4 above, you should file Form TD-1 with your employer. Otherwise, you may not be allowed the credits to which you are entitled. DO NOT DELAY. File Form TD-1 with your employer at once so that you may get the full allowances from the start.

UKE OF KENT KILLED S FLYING BOAT RASHES IN SCOTLAND

Was in Canada One Year Ago on Tour of Inspection

The Duke of Kent, the youngest brother of King George VI of England, was killed on Monday in the crash of a Sunderland flying boat in Northern Scotland, while en route to Iceland on active service. With the Duke, the entire crew of the flying boat was believed to have perished.

The Duke was 39 years of age and leaves his wife, the former Princess Marina of Greece, he leaves three children, Princess Alexandra 5, Prince Michael, 6, and Prince George, who was born on July 4th of this year. He also is survived by his mother, Queen Mary, three brothers, the King, the Duke of Windsor, and the Duke of Gloucester, and one sister, Princess Mary, the Countess of Harwood.

Arrangements for the funeral have not been made public, but it is believed it will be private.

The Duke held the rank of Air Commodore and was attached to the staff of the Inspector-General of the R. A. F. He had been closely associated with the R. A. F. since the war began and was greatly interested in aviation. Just a year ago he visited Canada and the United States and while in the Dominion inspected the training schools built under the Commonwealth Air Training plan.

The plane in which the Duke and party were believed to have numbered six or ten, were flying, was a four-engined Sunderland, weighing 25 tons, with a maximum speed of 210 miles per hour, and a range of about 2,000 miles.

The Duke was the most air-minded member of the Royal family and was the first member of the Air Force. He made his first air trip in 1919 and learned to fly a plane in 1929.

The Duke was appointed Governor General of Australia in 1938 and his appointment was to become effective later the war.

THEFT OF MONEY ROM MILK BOTTLES

On Monday, in the Napanee Police Court, a young boy under the age of fifteen appeared before Magistrate Ponton, charged with theft of money from milk bottles. He pleaded guilty to the charge and was placed on probation for one year, in charge of F. P. Barrett, the superintendent of the Children's Aid Society.

Several complaints have been made recently to the Napanee Police Department by milk bottlers and as a result of the complaints watch was kept and the culprit was apprehended.

Chief of Police in commenting on the case, said that residents of the town would be well advised to purchase tickets for their milk rather than to leave money in bottles.

UNITED STATES AY CUT RMY RATIONS

LONDON, (B.U.P.) — British and American military supply chiefs are consulting with a view of putting the United States troops in Britain on British rations, the British United Press learned from a reliable source, last week. The British ration has ample calories and vitamins to keep them in tip-top condition.

The considerations which motivated the discussions, it is understood, are economy, and the desire to avoid shipping space.

Everything the American troops have been eating here — with the exception of bread and vegetables — has been sent especially for them from the United States. Their record of having had fresh grapefruit for breakfast and four pork chops for dinner are not calculated to make British troops happy with their lot. The British soldier hasn't seen an orange or a grapefruit in years, and probably doesn't get four pork chops a month.

MAJ. ARMSTRONG AMONG CANADIANS REACHING ENGLAND

Major H. LeRoy Armstrong, of Napanee, was among the Canadian soldiers who landed safely in England, last week.

Major Armstrong is second in command of the field regiment to which he is attached. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Armstrong and son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Johnston, Napanee.

YOUNG BOY HURT WHEN STRUCK BY MOTOR CAR

Lang Howitt young son of Mr. and Mrs. George Howitt, narrowly escaped serious injury when he was struck by a car owned and driven by Leo McCullough, Lonsdale, on Saturday evening, about nine o'clock. He was knocked down by the car and was rendered unconscious but later examination revealed that he had sustained only a slight concussion and is confined to his bed and is under the doctor's care although his condition has greatly improved.

Chief Moore, who conducted the investigation, stated that the mishap was accidental, as the boy had apparently not noticed the approaching car and ran into it. Mr. McCullough was able to stop his car almost immediately. The use of the boy's running shoe was caught under the wheel of the car, which had to be moved to release him. The injured boy was picked up by his own father, who did not realize until he had the boy in his arms that he was his own son.

RUNAWAY CAR GOES DOWN HILL STRIKES BUILDING

Mrs. G. H. Carr, a former resident of Napanee, now residing in Toronto, who is a guest at the home of W. S. Herrington, had an unfortunate accident with her car, last week, which might have had much more serious results than actually happened.

Her car was parked at the side of Mr. Herrington's home and was supposed to have been left in gear. Apparently, such was not the case, as the car quietly started to move and before Mrs. Carr could reach it gained sufficient momentum to carry it down a steep hill. In its progress it barely escaped several trees and telephone poles and almost struck a small child. Finally, after going between a small building and a tree where there was barely enough room for it to pass, it came to a stop against a building.

The car was damaged to the extent of $150.

For some time the two women sitting in front of him at the cinema had annoyed him with their constant chatter.

At last he could stand it no longer. Leaning forward, he said politely: "Pardon me, but I can't hear."

"I should hope you can't," replied one woman coldly; "this conversation is strictly private."

NEW RATION BOOKS FOR TEA, COFFEE, SUGAR NOW BEING ISSUED

Coupons to be Used After September 7th

When used for the purchase of sugar, tea or coffee, Ration Book No. 1, now in process of distribution for employment by consumers on and after September 7th, will enable them to buy one month's supply of any one of the three commodities by using two coupons at a time. It is announced by the Regional Office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Consumers are asked, however, to bear in mind that each coupon has an effective date and may not be used before that date. It will be, nevertheless, quite permissable for them to use them any time after such date.

Ration Book No. 1 differs in both appearance and form from the temporary ration card which it replaces. It is smaller in size and in addition to its cover of light cardboard, it consists of one page of red coupons designated for the purchase of sugar, a page of green coupons labelled "spare A" and set apart for the purchase of tea or coffee in two weeks' rations, a third series of 13 coupons printed in blue and labelled "spare B", and two series of 26 coupons apiece marked "spare C" (brown) and "spare D" (grey). Also included is a detachable postcard which is to be used by the holder six months hence to apply for his second ration book.

The blue, brown and gray coupons are not to be used unless additional rationing is ordered. The Board has indicated that at the outset only sugar, tea and coffee are to be rationed and that for the present no other commodities will be so treated. In case of emergency due to shipping or other conditions, however, it would be necessary to act quickly, and the blue, brown and gray coupons are intended for such use if required.

The holder is required to place his name and address and his age if under 16 on the cover of the book and to endorse each page of coupons. Those required for the purchase of tea and or coffee have been detached from the books of all children who have not reached the age of 12 years.

The Board points out that, in the preparation of such a large number of ration books some of them some how or other will be damaged and may not be used. Applications for replacement. The first shipments of completed ration books have been already made from Ration Offices in Ottawa and Brockville and it is intended that all of them for use throughout the Brockville region shall be in the hands of consumers by August 29th. They are not, however, valid before September 7th and if they are not received by holders of the temporary ration cards, it may be because there has been a change of address since the latter were issued. In such cases, undelivered books are being returned to the Post Office and will be held by it until the intended holders furnish it with advice concerning their old and new addresses.

47TH BATTERY RESUMES TRAINING

The 47th Battery R.C.A. (R.F.) will resume training on Tuesday, September 8th, at 7.45 sharp. Battle dress will be worn. No anklets.

All members who have summer uniforms wil lreturn them to the Quartermaster by September 8.

EYE WITNESS TELLS THRILLING STORY CANADIANS AT DIEPPE

Bob Bowman Over CBC Describes Experiences During Raid

Bob Bowman of the CBC Overseas Staff was one of the correspondents permitted to accompany the Allied Forces on the Combined Operations raid on the Occupied French port of Dieppe on August 19, 1942. Although Bowman's transport did not reach shore, his vivid eyewitness account of Canadians in action is a definite contribution to the records of Dieppe. Here is the text of Bob Bowman's talk as broadcast on the CBC National Network at 5:00 p.m. EDT, August 20. This talk was also rebroadcast at 8:00 p.m. EDT to the National Network, the same day.

I am broadcasting now about the Dieppe raid. At a time when details are just becoming available, I would like to say this to you in Canada. We have suffered heavy losses and I saw our men die — but never have I seen men die more bravely or fight with such great heart as our Canadian troops. The word Dieppe may rank with Vimy Ridge in our history and our hearts are off to the Royal Canadian Engineers, and the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, and the South Saskatchewan Regiment, and the Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders of Winnipeg, and the Royal Regiment from Toronto, and the Essex Scottish from Windsor, and the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, and the Fusiliers de Montreal. A lot of these men will never return to Canada, and more will not return until after war is declared. The man announcement of 1,500 prisoners is correct. And added to the above are the officers and men of the Calgary Tanks whose story is one of the greatest that can be told about our Canadian part in this action.

This was a combined operation, and I have spoken about the Army playing an equal part with our troops, with the Air Force, the Marines, the Commandos and the Navy. I am trying to find out how many percentage of the Air Force was Canadian

ANOTHER NATION JOINS

We might suppose that by this time Germany had quite enough nations lined up against her, without seeking more. But no! The German mental equipment renders them incapable of understanding other people. Provoked by German aggression beyond endurance Brazil has declared war on the Axis powers. There are now only two Latin-American nations not at war with Germany — Argentina and Chile. How long it will be before these two join the line-up against Germany, nobody knows. But, if Germany persists in her policy of making unprovoked attacks on the neutrals, it will not be long before the whole of the Americas—North and South — will be united in closest harmony against the Axis.

The advent of Brazil to the Allied ranks, is a matter of more than ordinary importance. At its nearest point, Brazil is only 1500 miles from Dakar in West Africa. Dakar, nominally a French city, has been heavily fortified and rebuilt by German engineers, and constitutes a good jumping-off place from which aeroplanes and submarines can make their forays across the Atlantic. With Brazil honeycombed with Fifth Columnists, it would not be difficult for the Germans, using this French base, to use Brazil as an American base from which to attack the Western Hemisphere.

But with Brazil on the side of the Allies, that becomes more difficult, and it would appear that no chances are being taken. Fifth Columnists are being rounded-up. The coastal cities are blacked out, and a constant sea patrol is being maintained, while searchlights search the skies for enemy aircraft.

Thus the war continues to spread its ugly influence and power. That is one of the unforeseen features of hostilities nobody can ever predict — how far the conflagration, once started, will spread, and none can tell when it will stop. The present war cannot go much further; practically all the nations, at least all the great nations, are now actively involved. Given time, the Allied forces will have air-power, sea and land power, sufficient to make a surging offensive against the common foe, and every additional nation which Germany adds to its list of enemies, brings nearer the inevitable day of defeat.

V

A UNITED CANADA

A few days ago Mr. Tourcotte, editor of "Le Canada", a French-Canadian weekly, gave an address before a representative audience at the Canadian Institute for Economics. Mr. Tourcotte said many good things. But some things he said need more care and scrutiny than they have received by the Press. We, in Ontario, are apt to be distrustful of Quebec. We think the people there are not pulling their fair share in the national effort. We are apt to make judgments about the people in our sister province, which may seem prejudiced and biased.

Without admitting the truth of these assumptions, it is well to hear from the lips of one who is a leader in Quebec and whose forebears have lived there all their lives. Mr. Tourcotte provided the other side of the picture. It was not a very pretty side, and if he can be said to speak for French-Canada, the sentiments he expressed will make it exceedingly difficult for anything like complete national unity to be achieved. Mr. Tourcotte said the French-Canadians were never defeated in battle. They were defeated because their leaders at home were still fighting over Divine rights of kings. Conquest of the Fernch, he said, was a conquest of ideologies. French-Canada never underwent the struggle of the French Revolution centring around the question of the rights of man. We were here first. We are here now and we intend to stay, said Mr. Tourcotte. He then protested that the English-Canadians had used the French-Canadians as inferior people. Even in the army, he said, it is impossible for a French-Canadian, unless he speaks English, to secure an officer's rank.

Now there may be some truth in this. Historically however, Mr. Tourcotte would not agree with Abbe Maheux, whose boook on French-Canada was commented on in these columns a few weeks ago. Abbe Maheux maintained that from the very first and right on through, the British had been more than fair in their treatment of the French. This contention centring around the question of the rights of man can be supported with historical evidence.

But Mr. Tourcotte takes a belligerent and different attitude. He feels the French-Canadians are a persecuted people. The average French-Canadian, he said, feels he has nothing to lose in the present conflict. If this represents in any degree, the attitude of the French people, then the hope of achieving national unity is slim, indeed. The present situation with French-Canadians giving their lives alongside those of English-speaking Canadians, may, in a measure, unite the peoples in a temporary fellowship of suffering. But the unity cannot be permanent until, somehow or other, the French-Canadians get over the feeling that they are a persecuted minority and we, in English-Canada, give no cause for such sentiments. Unfortunately we cannot undo history, but we can surely see to it that every obstacle to disunity is removed, especially in the face of the threat to our whole life.

When Mr. Tourcotte speaks of his people being slaves, we cannot help but wonder what sort of slaves they would be should the tide of war go against us.

FOREVERMORE

Canadian troops were chosen for the high honor of making the first large scale attempt to land in France, since the evacuation of Dunkirk. Probably 10,000 men of all ranks participated in the attack, and Navy, Air and Land forces co-operated. The co-ordination of the three branches was more than satisfactory. Canada paid a heavy price in life. The long casualty lists appearing in the Press during the past few days, are reminiscent of the war of 1914-18, and bring home to the Canadian people, the reality of war. For three years, apart from the losses in the air and on the sea, there have been no large scale losses. Our men have been in England in training. They have been eager, and restive. We, at home have been wondering and speculating. But, as day after day went by, and week after week, somehow or other we had rather grown accustomed to the knowledge that our troops were in England, engaged in this scheme or that scheme.

Then the news came that Dieppe had been attacked, and attacked by Canadians. At six points along the beach, they landed. The French people were warned that it was not an invasion, but a raid. Up the chalk cliffs the troops scampered, facing gunfire from houses, from hills and from hidden encrements. But the Canadians pressed on with full equipment, Bren guns, trucks, motors and tanks. The attacking force operated under an umbrella of fighting planes which fought off the German machines. After taking prisoners, destroying at least ninety German planes and achieving predetermined objectives, the Canadians withdrew, leaving many dead and bringing back many wounded. "Their Names Liveth Forevermore."

It will interest many people of Napanee and district to know that the padre who accompanied the troops and whom the dispatches described reading the sixth chapter of Ephesians to the troops on shipboard, by flashlight, was Rev. W. E. L. Smith, formerly pastor of Selby. He returned from the exploit to France, safely.

Just what the information gained by this raid will show is, of course, a military secret. Doubtless, much was learned. In actual combat the leaders would learn co-ordination and co-operation among themselves. They would learn much from the enemy, too. The prospects of a future landing and the opening up of a second front would be made more definite and clear. Experience in this, as in all other areas of activity, is essential. It may seem that the loss of life was a heavy price to pay for such information, and yet, there is no other way to secure it, save in actual conflict. War is a costly business, and the lists which have appeared in the Press are bound to be extended many times before the enemy has been defeated and justice is restored to this world.

PERSONAL BUDGETS MANDATORY

For two years, citizens of Canada have been advised to set up budgets for personal incomes, in view of the great need to divert as much as possible from personal incomes to Canada's war chest through the purchase of bonds and certificates. At this point, that advice holds good but instead of being offered casually it will have to be shouted from the housetops.

Unpatriotic Canadians can continue to live the same kind of private lives during the coming year as they have enjoyed during the past year, in spite of the increases in income taxation. They can do this by cutting out their purchases of certificates and bonds. The patriotic citizen, who realizes that his country has to meet the obligations of a war for this freedom, can not maintain the same standard of living during the coming year as he has in the past. He has to plan not only to pay his income taxes but to buy even more "certificates and bonds than ever before.

It is plain that in order to carry out this program, both the wealthy and people with slender incomes will be forced to budget expenditures more and more carefully, since in most cases reductions must be made in spending other than for rent, property taxes and food. And the only intelligent way in which one can cut spending on general items is to set a definite figure for every classification of spending and keep within that figure.

Business firms and other organizations which make a practice of budgeting individuals how to budget every

Bombers Smash Factories And U-Boat "Nests"

By J. C JOHNSTONE

Mr. Johnstone is air correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph.

• • •

Since early spring the R. A. F. Bomber Command's offensive against German war industries has attained dimensions far surpassing anything previously achieved by itself or the Luftwaffe at the height of the blitz against Great Britain.

The records leave no doubt that the R.A.F. is inflicting on the Reich far greater loss and suffering than that endured by Britain, and demonstrate the supreme importance of pursuing the bombing policy with all the resources that can be mustered.

In none of the attacks against British cities did the Luftwaffe's attacking force exceed 550 machines; only a small minority of the bombs dropped 500 pounds in weight; and, with few exceptions, the attack was spread over many hours.

The R. A. F., on the other hand, has sent three raiding forces of more than 1,000 bombers each; few bombs in the new raids are less than 1,000 pounds, while some are 4,000 pounds. Even the heaviest raids are compressible into an hour or an hour and a quarter, thereby almost completely disabling the German A.R.P. during the duration of the attack.

That is part of the answer to scepties arguing that since Germany did not win the war by bombing Britain, the United Nations can't win by bombing Germany. The second part of the answer is that no serious attempt at the bombing policy claims the war can be won by bombing alone. That, however, is no reason for curtailing, far less abandoning it. A well-conducted plan of campaign against rats aims at destroying the nests, on the principle that a rat unborn is better than a rat killed after damage has been done.

The question whether the Bomber Command's offensive has been paying for the expenditure has been answered by Goebbels, whose "Free British" radio harped on the daily mistake of bombing Germany, and urged the superior necessity of turning the full bombing power against Britain's far easier picture from the evidence of the Reich's own and leakage through neutrals and other sources.

The main weight of the R.A.F. offensive has been directed against the great industrial regions lying north-east of the Ruhr, from Aachen to Cologne, comprising Hamburg, Emden, Bremen and the Ruhr. Rostock, outside this area has been heavily attacked. Although only Hamburg and Bremen are ports, with less than ten per cent of the area and twenty per cent of the population of the Reich before the war this region is estimated to contain thirty per cent of Hitler's immediately pre-war industries.

The absolute amount of war industry located there is also almost certainly remained at least as great as before the offensive may have declined somewhat as new plants laid down since the war generally have been set on the sites in more remote from visitations of the R. A. F. Mr. Attlee has, by the estimated that the present percentage is from twenty to twenty-five.

ATTACKING U-BOAT ENGINE WORKS

What the R. A. F. sought to do, and has done, to inflict substantial loss, damage and delay on particular industries to which the enemy attaches paramount importance.

Foremost is the U-boat industry, which is now the most serious single menace to the Allied cause. Cumulative effects of the damage known to have been sustained by the Diesel Engine Works at Augsburg and Supplies to the Deschimag U-boat shipyard at Bremen, by the Nordseewerke U-boat yards at Emden and by accessory plants at Uebeck and elsewhere undoubtedly made substantial contribution to the set-back of U-boat output which may presently have a decisive effect on the battle of the west Atlantic.

Another industry receiving special attention is the aircraft industry, for example the Focke Wulf Works, at Bremen, producing the Germans' long-engined machines that prey far out on the Atlantic; and the Heinkel assembly plant at Rostock, turning out thirty-five machines weekly, including the new four-engined No. 177 bombers, No. 111 bombers, No. 219 fighters, No. 115 torpedoplanes, or the No. 11 bomb-carrying seaplanes.

Frese air photographs the damage to this latter factory has been substantial, though not irreparable. Supplies it was no more than two months' output, the resulting subtraction of 200 Heinkels from the Russian and Libyan fronts would represent a handsome dividend on the Reich's expenditure.

In Cologne, 250 factories, large and small, producing all manner of engined machines were destroyed or seriously damaged in one big raid.

Nor is the physical destruction and damage the only gain. Additional effect in the case of Rostock, for instance, is to compel ships to make the

Hepburn Forecasts Enemy Attacks Soon On Both Coasts

Fergus, Ont. — Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario, said in a speech at the official opening of the $2,000,000 Shand dam last week, that Canada faces a two-ocean attack "in the near future."

"I believe we are going to have an attack on the Atlantic coast, very soon," he said at the present. "There will be a two ocean attack in the near future. I believe our fate all depends upon the disposition of the French fleet in the Mediterranean and the German drive into the Caucasus."

The Premier said that Canada has not put forward a full-out war effort. The Canadian people believe we have not carried our fair share ... to this war ... I think that you will all agree with me that we are not providing an all-out effort."

Mr. Hepburn described the Dominion Government as "those men at Ottawa with Vichy minds." He said that "an army of penguins" are "running things at Ottawa" with "stores for air officers' clutter-up" the buildings while "land admirals" are directing the war effort.

ATTACKS KING

He charged that the "trouble with the war effort" is that the government of Prime Minister Mackenzie King is a "bottleneck."

"We have a political party running the war that isn't functioning," he said. "You cannot prosecute a full-out effort with a political party such as this, of bigots, with hates and stupid leaders.

"You have to arouse in the people the will to win this war. The greatest power in the land is public opinion."

He said the King Government is "feeding the sugar-coated tranquilizers" to the people, and that Ottawa "by an army of high-salaried publicists at public expense, the whole efforts have been to cover up the truth."

He described the recent conscription plebiscite as "the greatest piece of hypocrisy perpetrated on the public."

The recent session of the Ontario Legislature of Commons the Ontario Premier described as a "burlesque" and said he regretted that Colonel the Honorable Meighen, National Conservative leader, was not sitting in the house.

"AUSTERITY" BUSES

Now Being Built For Public Service in Britain

The first of a fleet of "austerity" buses has been completed in Britain and will soon be operated in a Midlands area.

The bus, a single-decker, has been specially built to save petrol by carrying more passengers in each trip than formerly and it has many more standing passengers than the usual single-decker. First chassis type.

Fittings are kept to essential and anything approaching luxury has been severely cut out.

The width of the bus exceeds the regulation limit of 7 ft. 6 ins. by extra six inches and the overall length is 33 ft. 6 ins.

It is the first time that buses have been permitted to carry passenger transport on British roads and now a number of them are on the way.

BRITAIN'S PEN NIB MAKERS

Take a Hand In The 1,000 Bomber Raids

Components for tanks and aircraft have been a specialty of the firm, flowing in a steady stream from the same factory room to another part of the war, although the different kinds now be had been reduced from 400 to 64. They are for munition works and Government department, not to mention the schools. Mapping pens, without which charts and maps could not be made are also being turned out in progressive quantities for the Royal Ordnance Factories and Departments.

A pen nib is made from special steel, and four separate operations have to be carried out before it is ready at last ready for the inkpot.

The skill displayed by the workers is a big asset in their new jobs some of which require extreme accuracy the thousandth part of an inch.

Nine in ten of Britain's pen makers are now on munitions. Even their products is a gun part used in the 1,000 bomber raids.

One worker who has turned over from pen nibs to aircraft work is an old lady of 83 who has spent most of her life in this factory. She is one of a group of old ladies whose average age is 69.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, AUGUST 30TH 1942

JACOB SEEKS GOD'S HELP
Lesson Text: Genesis 32; 3-12, 27-29

Chickens come home to roost. Jacob found that out as many another has found it out since. In his youth, Jacob was a mother's boy, "favored." He was a cheat. He put it all over on his father, and he took advantage of his brother. No amount of cheating can explain away this unhealthy condition of Jacob's life. He had been selfish, greedy and dishonest, and now he was to face the consequences. He had to come home, and we may be very glad to read of his excitement, his misery and his fear as he came near home. Across the fields was Esau, and Jacob had to face him. Jacob had put one over on Esau before, but now he has to have it out with him. I wonder if he wonder he was worried.

We don't get away with it permanently. Our sins will find us out sooner or later. They catch up with us and we have to pay for them before we have to pay the price.

We have a lot of explaining to do to ourselves these days. Our whole civilization built on a certain competitive way of life is being undermined by the desire to get something for nothing, to get something without having to pay the price. We do not really forget the past, twenties when the whole nation went gambling mad, when men and women vied with each other in the effort to get rich quick, but it is marked, as well, by a determination to get rich at any cost, dare, we chant, sure we try to put it over on others. But the time comes when all that we have done comes catching up on us. Chickens come home to roost. Our sins find us out. We have to face the consequences of our misdeeds.

Jacob found that out. He found it out in time, so that he was able to make amends. Certainly there is no hope for us or for the world if we are not able to redeem our past. Many a man has made out of his past stepping stones to a noble future. God forgives all who come to him in a humble and contrite heart. Jacob was no exception to that rule. But, as he grew older, and became more sense, he became a different man. He made money—or what we like equivalent to money in those days. He became wealthy, independent rich. But all that was of no account. He had to face his brother Esau. He had to face his God. And so he made amends. In humility he confessed his unworthiness. "I am not worthy," he said, "of the least of all thy loving kindnesses." And then he came to God in that spirit he was forgiven.

And then, too, he showed a different attitude to his brother from that which had marked his earlier dealings. He approached his brother in a spirit of generosity and kindness and affection. There was no doubt of the response to that. He received him and there was the genuine reconciliation. What a challenge it holds for us today! Reconciliation the great need of our day, and yet no institution does the responsible for it more than the churches. Churches need to be reconciled in one another. Classes, grades, are given the spirit of humility and love, the outcome is a foregone conclusion.

Jacob's name was changed to Israel because he had striven with God and men and had prevailed. A man must strive with God and men to prevail there, then his relationship to his fellowmen is assured. After all the stuff was in Jacob. It had to be transformed, transmuted into gold. It had to be made pure and refined for good. And Jacob found, as he appealed to God, the transforming power of the Father of All. Our weakness he was made strong. Jacob became Israel.

NO WEDGE BETWEEN ALLIES

Efforts of Nazi propagandists to try and create bad feeling between the British and American soldiers in the United Kingdom are doomed to failure, Lieut.-Col. Sir Ian Fraser told a radio audience recently.

While the situation might be pregnant with difficulties, arising out of differences in pay and other things, the American and British are sound, sensible people, determined that no difficulties shall come between them and their determination to see things through and finish the job, he said.

"That is the dominant thought in the minds of our young men and yours," declared Sir Ian. "This is a defensive war for Britain, Russia and the United States, so far, and this is the worst kind of war. It is still there is no action in it that strikes the imagination, that demands from our people those sterling qualities of patience and preparation, but given those qualities and given the utmost effort on everybody's part we shall finish the job."

No Foundation For Rationing Rumour

"There is absolutely no foundation for the rumour which is reported from various parts of Canada that clothing will be rationed," states H. W. Mackenzie, chief of the supply distribution and rationing division of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

"Anyone circulating mischievous rumours of this kind is hampering the country's war effort. The only ones who could benefit would be unscrupulous sales people using such rumour to move stocks which would not otherwise readily find buyers.

"It is against the law to buy more than normal requirements of any commodity and it is also contrary to law for a retailer to sell to any person more than his normal requirements," Mr. Mackenzie said.

Some of the true stories are really the funniest. A speaker, discoursing on the transitory nature of earthly things, said: "Look, now, at the great cities of antiquity. Where are they? Why some of them have perished so completely it is probable they never existed."

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Grange and Joan, of Desmond, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dorland McCutcheon.

S., presided, and a choir composed of members of the society rendered two anthems, "To the Harvest Field" and "The Challenge", which were very much appreciated. Miss Daniels, of Fodero, Prince Edward, President of the Y. P. S., the guest speaker, delivered a very fine message, as she sought to answer the important question, "What does it mean to be a christian today?" applying the same to relations in the home, social and business life. Congratulations are extended to the Young People.

Next Sunday evening the service will be in charge of the pastor, Rev. Mr. Merrick.

DORLAND

Dorland, August 22. — Tin, heat and high winds of the past week have been trying, especially to those busy with threshing. Quite a number of jobs are completed. Oats are turning out well, and all grain is a much heavier yield than last year. Tomato picking will be on next week.

John a few weeks ago, and last Tuesday afternoon Mrs. A. Rutten, of Napanee, displayed her wares at the Red Cross meeting. Among the private businees were Mrs. J. R. Johnston, Mrs. S. Mack, Mrs. W. Benn, Mrs. T. Chalmers, and Miss H. Magee.

Rev. K. J. Crowford will be on holidays during the next two weeks. Rev. E. Shorten, of Wolfe Island, has been chosen as the speaker for the annual anniversary services, to be held on Sunday, September 20th. On account of rationing, the usual supper has to be omitted.

One Telephone LESS ...perhaps for the duration

"Internal injuries" caused by a fall may lay up a telephone set for the rest of the war. Some of its more than 200 parts are easily broken . . . and today they may be hard or even impossible to replace.

Even if replacements are available, it takes tires and gasoline and time to send around a serviceman; takes man-hours and strategic materials to make repairs.

Please be careful, therefore to keep your telephone where it won't be knocked over or dropped.
• Replace the receiver gently.
• Keep the cord free of kinks, which may cause the fine copper wires to break.
• Keep the cord dry to avoid short circuits and burned out fuses.
It all helps to keep urgently needed telephones on the job ...Will you co-operate?

ONLY 4 MORE DAYS TO DECIDE.

Next Monday and Tuesday are the opening dates for our 1942-43 Fall Term. The few intervening days will be the period when many young people will decide to join our classes.

This decision will be made mainly because :

First. — Never before have there been the great opportunities offered to qualified stenographers, typists, bookkeepers, and special clerks that there are today.

Second. — These young people have confidence that our College will continue to maintain the high standard of training given in former years, and will continue to introduce trained office workers into business circles.

The office is open daily. We invite your inquiries.

Canadians at Dieppe

because I feel sure it was a great percentage. At least nine aircraft fell to Canadian guns and many more were damaged. What a marvellous job they did in the face of intense fire from accurate and powerful German shore and ack-ack batteries.

Our losses have not been sustained without reason. We have learned a most valuable lesson which may enable us to free the continent of Europe and end the war. We know now how the German system of coastal defences operates and how best to attack. We know the tremendous weight of artillery the enemy can bring to bear on the beaches. That was the purpose of the raid as set out officially and told to us before we set sail—to destroy defences and kill Germans and to obtain information. We did all these things—things which the Germans have never been able to do to us. We moved over, two across the Channel unnoticed by the enemy. We landed men on all six beaches and we landed tanks in our new tank - carrying vessels, on one of which I was a passenger. Costly as it has been to Canada the raid was definitely a success. Without this experience a second front would have been suicide.

Now let me start from the beginning. The plan, of course, was a closely-guarded secret and the men weren't briefed until they were on board the ships. Although I did not travel with the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry I was present when his Aces, Colonel — a fine figure of a man, from London, Ontario — came on board and said to me: "Men, we are going into action. We are going to do what we came over to do — have a crack at Jerry." And then he told them the nature of the operation and what was expected of each man. There were no heroics, no delighted yells of whoopee. The men were quiet and asked questions. It struck me that the questions were those that a general might ask when being told of an operation for the first time. What were the coast defences likely to be? What airborne protection would they get? I liked the spirit.

We set sail in craft of all types under the cover of darkness. I was in the Calgary Tanks in one of the new tank - carrying craft. It was a lovely night and reminded me of home. Hardly had we set sail when our Padre collected all the men together in the bow of the ship and sitting in front of a new type of tank they were using, and by the road from the sixth chapter of Ephesians with the aid of a flashlight.

Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of His might. Put on the whole armour of God, that we may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. For we wrestle not against flesh and blood ; but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all ,to stand. Stand, therefore, having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousness.

It is a few words he told us that in a few hours we would be striking our first blow to bring a sign of deliverance to the people of Europe. And the reason for this service was because we should need God's help.

The men were quiet as we sailed out into the darkness under the lovely stars. I should read my watch in the light of the half moon, and soon we came close to the shores of Britain. I had a chat with the officer commanding our particular troop of tanks. He told me about the hard work that had been put in before we left for the Dieppe raid and action. He was confident in them and in his men to whom he said the credit must go.

• • •

And now I am just going to quote from the notes I took as we were along — some written in the darkness, and some written under heavy gun-fire so they are now smeared and dirty from the cordite. All the time I kept writing I had a microphone in my hand, so taking notes I think was my only substitute. On the way over I went to sleep for a while and then I went up on the upper bridge with the young Captain, a sub-Lieutenant in the R.N.V.R. And now from my notes just as they were written :

"AA tracers, like red sparks, and then a heavy flash and a glow extending down the coast. Our bombers are at work. Our cruisers are firing flashes of coastal guns and bombs. Our aircraft are flying in close to the water and over us, and now down is breaking, also like a heavy barrage to the east. There are puffs of smoke in the air, evidently from heavy German ack-ack batteries, and the ships are wavering in it. Our lads are calm and the tank men wearing black berets and smoking comfortably are interested in watching the action. The sky is becoming full of aircraft and the bombardment is increasing in intensity. Heavy thuds are shaking us even this far out to sea.

The Captain is calmly steering us for Port D——. Midships.' One bright fire is burning on the port horizon. Our medical men have put on their steel helmets and the guns are quiet. Perhaps the Commandos have landed and are fighting there. The destroyers are holding their fire and are slinking along beside us. The fire is spread out behind us in long lines with gun crews mounted, each flying a black flag and a white ensign. There are fighter-patrols like flocks of geese high up and the bombers are scurrying home in their low level attacks. Heavier thuds are shaking us even this far out to sea.

The Captain is calmly steering us for Port D—— Midships.' One bright fire is burning on the port horizon. Our medical men have put on their steel helmets and the guns are quiet. Perhaps the Commandos have landed and are fighting there. The destroyers are holding their fire and are slinking along beside us. There are fighter-patrols like flocks of geese high up and the bombers are scurrying home in their low level attacks. Heavier thuds are shaking us even this far out to sea.

It is now 5:30 in the morning. Fast troop - carrying ships are starting to pass us now. And there is a French Chasseur carrying French Commandos. The coast has suddenly loomed up in front of us with its white hills and its cliffs, and it looks like a race to see who will get into action first. The sky is streaked with "flying fools" and so is the ocean. The destroyers are laying a smoke screen to windward and now they are turning broadside and are plastering the town with their guns. The smoke screen is lifting and I can see ships everywhere. The small troop-carrying landing craft are moving in lines under the artillery barrage. A Spitfire has just crashed off our starboard bow, and into the sea like a stone. We could see the pilot trying to get out but he couldn't.

The troops are heading for the beaches on either side of the town—the Royal Regiment to the left and the South Saskatchewan and the Queen's Own Cameron to the right. The Hamiltons and the Essex Scottish are going to the centre and we are following. Two Messerschmidts have just tried to attack us, and a ship behind us has just shot one of them into the sea.

Our tank troop captain has come up to the bridge to warn the captain and it is only a few minutes until we touch land. He wants to be going so we hoist our signal now meaning 'we're shoving-bound, and to go.

It is now 6:45. Planes are everywhere overhead, and the shore guns are firing at us and at the small troop-carrying craft ahead of it. I can see casualties — men are in the water. Our tanks are warming up and they are starting to climb the ramp which will go down like a drawbridge when we reach the beach. Machine-gun bullets are whistling around us, but our guns are cracking too at the aircraft over us. A tank landing craft is getting its tanks off behind the troops storming the beach, and bursts of machine-gun fire from Jerry. Our tanks are disappointed that not comes an order to try and come in again and they are delighted. Our German shore batteries are still active. They are firing at us. Four Focke-Wulf bombers have just dived on us and two of them disappeared in flames. Our barrage is unbelievable and I am covered in black soot. Shells are falling on all sides of us, but we continue to go in to the beach and we are ordered again to retire.

Three pilots are coming down by parachute. Another tank-landing craft has managed to get in, but has been hit. Some casualties have just been brought out to our ship and the Padre of the Fusiliers de Montreal told men about trying to get on shore. Men were killed around him and one lieutenant had a bullet in his arm while he was trying to push his platoon in.

It is now 9.23. The Germans on the beach are firing mortar and shell grenades on our ships below. Nine Heinkel bombers just passed overhead and I saw their bombs leave the aircraft; but I was too interested to see if they were firing or where the bombs landed. They were aimed at the destroyers ahead of us, but they missed them. We were being attacked again and the convoy guns have just brought down two more Junkers. There was just a sort of flash of flame and the bombers came down like lead in the sea. And now dive' bombers are attacking us. The alarm has just been sounded in the sea.

Strong reinforcements of our fighters are arriving and they are flying low around us to protect us from Jerry's bombers. We can get to it on the beach. We have tried again but the shore guns are driving us off shore. I have just been knocked down by a heavy bomb, in fact a stick of bombs, a very near miss to starboard. Some of our men are wounded. One of them is dead. Our fighters are wonderful, and they are fearless and they are trying to protect us from the beaches who are being re-embarked.

Our aircraft are suffering heavily, and I have seen several of them come down in flames over Dieppe. The Canadian Spitfire squadrons have got it hot and I can see men in

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson were married at Syracuse, N.Y. In 1892, came to Camden East in 1896, to the farm on which Mr. Robinson was born in 1862. Mr. Robinson's only sister, Mrs. Henry Leitch, of Kingston, now 86 years of age, was able to join with the happy gathering. Many useful gifts were received by Mr. and Mrs. Robinson.

Rev. Canon R. W. Spencer, rector of St. Luke's Church, was present at the gathering and congratulated the elderly couple on this occasion, and Mr. Robinson made a suitable reply.

Those present from a distance were Mr. Webb Robinson, Mr. Leonard Robinson and daughter, Agnes, Miss Mary O'Connor of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. John Connor, Mrs. Leitch, Mrs. Dennison, Misses Maymie and Melissa McGoff Kingston, Miss Mabel Robinson, Watrous, Sask., and the family, including Dr. and Mrs. Gabriel Robinson and two daughters, of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hinch and two sons of Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ruff and family and Mrs. M. WEDDING BELLS

LOCHHEAD — KINNEAR

A wedding of much interest to the residents of Napanee and district, including Newburgh, was solemnized at the United Church parsonage, Odessa, on Saturday, August 22nd, at 2:00 p.m., when Rev. John Mc-Kay united in marriage Miss Gertrude Lavella, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Kinnear, of Napanee, to Wallace Glenn McGill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lochhead, of Newburgh. The ceremony of longer was a matter of the bride, Mrs. George Booth, and the best man was Sgt. George Booth. The bride looked lovely in a pale blue crepe dress with blue turban and veil and white accessories. The matron of honor was dressed in pale blue crepe, with white hat and white accessories. The small flower girl was Miss Sharon Booth, daughter of Sergt. and Mrs. George Booth, who was dressed in pink and carried a beautiful bouquet of roses and forget-me-nots. Mr. and Mrs. Lochhead returned to Napanee.

NEW RUBBER CURBS LIKELY

Ottawa, (C.P.) — Operators of commercial vehicles who fail to make efficient use of their tires may be refused renewals by the ration representatives, Supplies Controller Allan N. Williamson, told newspapermen in a review of the rubber situation.

"Those who overload their trucks or otherwise abuse their tires unnecessarily may be refused replacements," Mr. Williamson said. "Instructions to this effect are going out to tire ration officers throughout the country.

"In addition, quotas on tires for commercial users are being applied in line with the quantities on hand in the tire bank and probable requirements during the next two years. Those who have more tires than they would be entitled to under normal wear and tear conditions will have trouble obtaining replacements."

Continued collection of rubber for reclaim purposes is essential. Piles of salvaged rubber in various parts of Canada represented the success of collection drives, and all would be moved to reclaiming plants. But further contributions to each drive were urgently required and no unnecessary hoarding should be hidden.

FACTS BLUNTLY TOLD

Mr. Williamson said bluntly that the rubber situation is no better than it was when the Canadian public was first informed, after outbreak of war with Japan, that there would be no replacement of tires on private cars, once they are worn out, driving is finished for those car owners, he said, adding:

"We estimate there are 800,000 cars in Canada which have no hope of new tires until after the war unless something develops in the way of rubber production or rubber substitutes of which we at present know nothing.

"An estimated 150,000 passenger cars will be off the road by June, 1943, and they must be regarded as a prospective source of supply of tires for reclaim and for the use of those users whose automobiles are regarded as essential."

OTTAWA HINTS HIGHER QUOTA TEA POSSIBLE

Ottawa, (CP.) — They qualified their statement with two or three wartime "ifs", but informed sources said an increase in the tea ration of one ounce a week for each person over twelve years of age is something to which Canadians may look forward with a degree of optimism.

When the increase may come depends on the success of United Nations ships in traversing 8,000 miles of hazardous water from sources of supply in India and Ceylon, they said. But if supplies do reach Canada in some quantity the courage and skill of Allied merchant seamen will be reflected in more frequent — and stronger — tea.

It was understood that the one-ounce ration was a minimum, announced August 2nd after consideration of the stocks on hand and the shipping situation. Had the ration not been set low stocks on hand would have been depleted rapidly, without any certainty of their being replaced for a considerable time.

"It was considered best to set the ration low to spin out supplies in sight as equitably as possible and make upward adjustments later if new arrivals made this possible," one official said.

"The rationing of tea could not be accomplished without the rationing of coffee because the difficulty in obtaining the normal supplies of tea would have placed an intolerable burden on coffee stocks as buyers sought the more acceptable substitute.

"But while coffee has been obtained closer to home than the tea is taken from India and Ceylon, its procurement is not without difficulty and it does not follow that increases in the coffee ration are any more probable than those for tea."

Britain has sent 3,000,000 pairs of boots to Russia. Mrs. Churchill's Aid to Russia Fund has raised more than $5,000,000, by means of which the British Red Cross has already sent 500,000 blankets, 250,000 woollen garments and large quantities of medical supplies. British cotton and woolen mills have been working overtime to produce the clothing needed.

Less Shortening Will Be Produced

Because of the difficulty of obtaining supplies of vegetable oil, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has ordered manufacturers to reduce their output of shortening to eighty per cent. of the quantity produced during the corresponding months of 1941 and their use of vegetable oil to 96 per cent. of the quantity similarly used. It is pointed out that the supply of domestic lard has been increased due to larger hog production.

BACK-TO-SCHOOL CLOTHES

Hello Homemakers! Now is the time mothers will be busy getting the children's clothes ready for school — mending, letting out, and making over to make things do. And the youngsters always seem to "stretch-up" so during the summer!

This year more mothers than ever will be sewing the children's clothes —and their own. It is economical and choice of ready-to-wear styles is limited. Since government orders have eliminated "frills", simple, smart streamlined styles will be the fashion in future. A study of government regulations regarding clothing will repay the homemaker who would be "fashion-wise."

For example, did you know that regulations forbid more than nine buttons on a dress and allow only seven or nine-inch zippers limited in colour to black? There is a ban on redingotes; jacket dresses are out and separate skirts worn with skirts which must be on a band, not a bodice) may not be longer than twenty-six inches; slacks, scarves, matching hats or purses are taboo; dress hems may vary from one-half inch on a flared skirt to two inches on a straight cut. Blouses have no double back yokes, no pocket cuffs or French cuffs; pleats in skirts are narrower but flares may sweep 80 inches.

Nearly every child is eager to help and now while mother is busy young daughter may take over in the kitchen. With the encouragement of mother's pride and enthusiasm, she will go a long way towards becoming an excellent cook. Simple dishes and guidance in the use of electrical appliances will make meal - getting easy for her.

NUTRI-THRIFT MENU

Wheat Porridge, Toast and Butter, Honey, Coffeemilk

Scalloped Meat, Potatoes—Beets, Bread and Butter, Peach Sponge

Krinkles

Half-cup rolled oats, one-quarter cup butter, one-quarter teaspoon soda, one-quarter teaspoon of vanilla, three tablespoons of hot water, half-cup flour, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one-quarter cup honey.

Mix oats, flour, soda, honey, salt, melted fat and vanilla. Stir in hot water. Mix well. Drop small pieces on greased pan and pat down. Bake in electric oven at 350 deg. for eight minutes.

Peach Sponge

Recipe for one crust; three cups milk, four eggs, one-quarter cup sugar, one-quarter cup corn syrup, one teaspoon vanilla, two sliced peaches.

Prepare pastry, fit into inside of the pan. Flute the edge. Cover crust and place in electric refrigerator to chill while preparing filling. Turn oven dial to 450 deg. Scald milk. Beat eggs, add syrup, sugar and stir into hot milk slowly. Add vanilla. Pour into pie shell and dot with peach slices. Cook custard pie in hot electric oven for fifteen minutes. Then reduce to 325 deg. and bake about 25 minutes. Cool quickly.

TAKE A TIP

1 The time to cut garden blooms is that they will last a long time depends on the kind of flower; dahlias, when quite open; gladioli when the first bud opens; roses, when the buds are as soft as one's fingers.
2 One inch of water is sufficient for most flowers, though carnations need deep water.
3 Store flowers in a constant cold atmosphere, — near the freezing unit of the electric refrigerator — over night to have them last for the longest time possible.
4 Changing water and cutting stems have comparatively little value in prolonging the life of a flower.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. M. C. asks: "How can I repair leaking faucets?"

Answer: Turn off the water leading into the tap. Using a monkey wrench with a soft cloth between the jaws, unscrew the large nut around the faucet. Remove the screw that holds the washer in place with a screw-driver, applying a few drops of oil if necessary. Replace the worn washer and screw. Put back in parts.

We have forwarded more details on finding leaks that leak around the handle, too.

Mrs. D McT asks: "What causes pickles to turn black?"

Answer: The hard water in the district contains a great deal of lime which prevents the vinegar from acting. Add a tablespoon vinegar to a gallon of water to help overcome this.

TWO-WEEK RURAL RUBBER DRIVE HAS BEEN LAUNCHED

COUNTRY DWELLERS AND SUMMER RESIDENTS URGED TO LEAVE SCRAP AT MAIL BOXES

For a two-week period commencing Monday, August 24th, rural areas of Ontario and Quebec are requested to shouts of "Any old rubber today?" as country dwellers and summer residents leave their contributions of used to hand over the scrap rubber on their premises to local mail couriers, who will act as rubber salvage collectors for the special rural campaign.

From August 24 to September 8th, rural mail couriers in Ontario and Provinces will pick up and bring in to central salvage depots all scrap rubber articles left at rural mailboxes by boxholders. The drive is timed to include Labor Day and the end of the summer season so vacationing residents can easily dispose of old rubber articles which clutter garages and cottages will bring to light. Farm dwellers are also expected to roll out a good supply of rubber scrap in these rural areas which up to now has not been conveniently reached by regular salvage committees.

Seriousness of the rubber situation in Canada and the need of rubber scrap for reclaiming purposes means that every scrap rubber article is needed, say salvage officials. No matter how old may be the discarded rubber bathing caps, swimming tubes, hot water bottles and fly swatters, every scrap rubber boost is a knock — a blitzer. Old tires and tubes from cars, tractors and motorcycles alone are the biggest source of reclaimed rubber. Particular emphasis is laid on contributing old tire casings usually used on summer docks as boat buffers. These are wanted, and, and officials stress their usefulness as scrap, no matter how long submerged.

A four-page printed card is being mailed to boxholders and residents, giving the details of the scrap drive as it applies to them. The card carries a list of questions and answers on the drive, a list of every day articles that can be salvaged for rubber collection plus a list of the vital needs for which scrap rubber may be used.

City residents receiving mail by letter carrier are specifically excluded from the rural post-office pick-up service as city collections would add too much to the task of the post office department in one drive.

14 MORE FACTS ABOUT BRITAIN AT WAR

1 Workers and employers have sacrificed rights to ensure maximum production. In essential industry 8,000,000 workers cannot quit their jobs or be dismissed, except by permission of the Government.
2 The latest British bombers, the Stirling, Halifax and Lancaster, carry heavier bomb loads than any other bombers in service in the world. The Stirling can carry eight tons of bombs — much more than even the bomb load of the huge American Boeing Flying Fortress.
3 Party politics are out for the duration. Labor leaders sit in the Cabinet and on all important Government committees. In the factories, joint labor-management committees work out production problems.
4 Shipping is Britain's life - line. Launchings in 1941 totalled 1,250,000 tons. Normal tonnage produced in the last quarter of 1941 was four times as great as that produced in the last quarter before the war; merchant tonnage twice as great.
5 For two years British troops have been fighting on a European front, mostly alongside troops, from other parts of the Empire. By September 1941 total Empire casualties were in excess of 183,000. Up to January 1942 seventy-one per cent of all British Empire casualties suffered on land were men from the United Kingdom.
6 In daylight sweeps over the Continent of Europe in the first half of 1942 the R.A.F. destroyed enough Nazi planes to make up fifteen complete squadrons.
7 Working time lost in labor disputes in Britain is less than one hour per worker per year.
8 Britain is now producing twice as many tanks as in August 1941, three times as many as in February 1941, and five times as many as in August 1940.
9 A third of the British troops who fought in Greece were from the United Kingdom, i.e., England Scotland, Wales and North Ireland. In Crete, the proportion was nearly one-half. In Libya and Eritrea it was more than a half.
10 Because of the need to conserve shipping for more military supplies, the people of Britain have willingly accepted severe rationing of almost all foods. The meat ration is now the most highly mechanized farming country in the world.
11 Malta, strategic British island no larger than Martha's Vineyard has resisted Nazi bombing for three years with the enemy fifty-eight miles away, and has almost doubled since the outbreak of war. Six million more acres are under the plough than before the war. Britain is now the most highly mechanized farming country in the world.

— POTATOES ARE BROTHERS UNDER THE SKIN

High On The Market List

If you are watching the food prices and want to get good food value for your money, then put potatoes along with milk, cereals, and bread high on your market list.

This Is Why :

The lowly potato is more important than we thought. In fact the potato is so valuable we must give him a seat of honor at the table. Why ? ——— Well, ——

Potatoes are cheap
Potatoes give you Vitamin C and iron.
Energy and warmth.

This Is How Many :

From one to three potatoes each day for each man, woman, older boy or older girl.
From half to one potato each day for young children.

These Are The Kinds of Potatoes :

First in our hearts and on our tables is the white or Irish potato. Then there is the sweet potato. The darker the yellow of the sweet potato the richer it usually is in the "A" vitamin.

Two Words Of Wisdom :

1 Don't diet by not eating potatoes at a meal and then later eating a dessert three times as fattening.
2 Give your family potatoes often and serve them in different ways.

Old Favorites And New Dishes :

1 Imagine Irish stew without potatoes !
2 Clam chowder demands potatoes.
3 Cod fish cakes certainly require mashed potatoes in them.
4 What would a New England boiled dinner be without the big white potatoes ?
5 Who does not like Shepherd's pie with its top "crust" of mashed potatoes ?
6 Does your family dislike liver ? Try cutting it, or grinding it, after boiling, and then mixing with cooked potatoes and seasonings. Serve on toast.
7 Do you like hash-browned potatoes ?
8 Do you like browned potatoes and eggs scrambled together ?
9 Potatoes and eggs in cream sauce are delicious.

GANDHI'S BACKER HAS IDEAS

The money bags of one of the most important but least publicized men in Asia form a golden backdrop for the Indian independence movement.

The man is Ganshiam Das Birla, a multi-millionaire industrialist with international commercial interests. He has been described as a puppet with a finger in every Indian pie", and he isn't exactly one of John Bull's best friends.

One reason G. D. Birla has a strong distaste for British rule is the factory laws Britain introduced in India. They are the first time in the long history of the teeming sub-continent, give the humble workman some relief from long hours, merciless wrangling and microscopic wages. Birla employs an army of labor, being master of a great mill of cotton mills in Calcutta, Gwalior and Delhi. Besides forty sugar mills and huge landed farming estates. In addition he has tremendous import-export business in Calcutta and Bombay.

So G. D. Birla is right there in the opening section when Mohandas K. Gandhi, Pandit Jawaharal Nehru and the All-India Congress make their historic, bitterly brief goal of freedom-for-India.

He is very close to Gandhi. He has been host to him in his Calcutta palace nearly every time the gnome-like Mahatma has left his humble hut in the little village of Sevagram to visit the big city. The close tie between the two men is further underlined by the fact that Gandhi's son, Devadas, is editor of a great newspaper owned by Birla.

Some powerful tycoons, though maintaining the ship of state, keep aloof from politics. Birla doesn't. He was elected a member of the powerful Indian Legislative Assembly, but resigned in protest against legislation for imperial preference without the Indian Empire. In 1927, he was an employers' delegate to the International Labor Conference at Geneva, later enjoyed the important strategical position of membership on the Royal Commission of Labor and went to London as a member of the second Round Table Conference, which attempted to settle "the Indian question," but failed.

Like many other industrialists to whom anti-labor sentiments are imputed, Birla has founded and maintains a number of educational and other public institutions in India. He considers himself a good Indian patriot. He had a hand in things when some years ago, Gandhi launched his millions on a campaign of civil disobedience to British laws. Business life was slowed down.

Gandhi's slogan was put up everywhere: "Use Home-Grown Khaddar." Khaddar is Hindu for home-produced cloth. What Gandhi wanted was Important Army Work, Correspondence Held Lack of Stenographers

Kingston, Aug. 24 — Important army correspondence and clerical work is being held up as a result of the lack of typists and stenographers at Military District No. 3 Headquarters, here, and eligible women in non-essential industries are being asked to send applications immediately to the Superintendent of Civilian Personnel, M.D. No. 3 Headquarters, Kingston.

It is felt that there are many other girls also in the district eligible for such positions, in addition to those in non-essential industries. Applicants are asked to outline their qualifications, and if accommodation should be secured for them should they be accepted for work in Kingston.

Typists and stenographers taken on the Military District No. 3 staff will be given every opportunity of advancement. Arrangements, if possible, will be made to interview applicants in the various centres in which they are at present residing.

With the R.C.A.F.

BY FLIGHT LIEUTENANT
T. C. McCALL, R.C.A.F.

"Somewhere in Great Britain" you will find members of an R.C.A.F. Boston fighter - bomber crew poring over maps of Canada in their spare time. It's all part of a new squadron policy to name their aircraft after places in their native land. No more "C for Charlie" or "O for Oswald." For a while they tried Canadian city names, like "T" for Toronto" and "C for Calgary," but one of the brighter minds conceived the idea of utilizing picturesque names. So now the commanding officer's aircraft is "A for Apiskigamish," another has become "T for Temagami," another is "R for Restigouche" and a fourth is "H for Hochelaga." Toronto and Ottawa, they say, are good names but not exotic enough.

• • •

Many Canadians have expressed annoyance over the large numbers of R.C.A.F. training aircraft which seem to be seen flying over towns and villages from the Maritimes to the Pacific. A theory is held in some quarters that the airmen circle and bank for the express purpose of showing off for the benefit of relatives or feminine admirers. The fact is that each time you see an aeroplane over a town or village it is carrying out a scheduled manoeuvre. Chances are that a member of the crew may be taking photographs so that when he flies over Germany his photographic skill will permit him to bring back evidence of targets for future attack. Or perhaps the navigator is carrying out an exercise, using a certain building as a "pinpoint", much the same as he will be required to "pinpoint" a power plant in Berlin or Essen. The pilot, too, may be engaged in a navigation exercise. He must be able to identify communities from the air — and a difficult trick it is, too, at times — so that where he finds himself over strange territory he will recognize objectives from the maps he has seen. It all fits into the general picture of the vast air training plan. No flying is done for fun, or for amusement, least of all the night manoeuvres, in which all must be carried out as all Service Flying Training Schools. Not long ago a woman complained to a neighbor that she had been disturbed the night before by the sound of an aeroplane circling overhead.

"Did it have black crosses painted on it," asked the neighbor.

"No, I don't believe it did," the woman replied.

"Well," said the other, "you ought to feel thankful."

Which sums up matters fairly well.

• • •

Not long ago a group of airmen at the Service Flying Training School near Brantford, Ontario, had a few days of extra time on their hands while waiting for a new course to get under way. They put it to good advantage by turning out in a body to help neighboring farmers get their crops in.

Needless to say, the service was appreciated by the farmer who had reason to be doubly grateful to the R.C.A.F.

• • •

If you've ever been on a Royal Air Force station you may have been puzzled to see airmen and officers halt suddenly to salute while walking through a particular area. It is a custom which is observed throughout the entire R.C.A.F., the object of the salute being the ensign which usually flies from a mast before the main administrative building. The tradition is essentially a Canadian one and is a constant reminder to all who wear the uniform, of the significance of their flag.

• • •

It sounds paradoxical, but the Royal Canadian Air Force has a great number of sailors in its ranks. These are the men who operate the "crash boats" and the various types of rescue craft and tenders employed along Canada's coasts, as well as in the waters over which aircraft from bombing, gunnery and other schools operate. There are even marine gunners, as distinct from air gunners, who receive special training in operating large calibre machine guns while skimming over the waves at breakneck speed. The latest type of "crash boat" used on our coasts, contains a fully equipped operating room and hospital accommodation for several men. And it can protect itself, too, if anyone tries to interfere with the mission of rescuing airmen in distress.

CONCESSION MADE IN SOLDIERS' FARES

All Active Forces' personnel, proceeding on embarkation leave, will in future be entitled to railway transportation at a cost of one-third of the one-way fare. It has been decided by National Defense Department.

The decision resulted from many complaints by men who were refused this concession on account of regulations which forbade the privilege to personnel who had had an annual leave or furlough less than six months before getting their embarkation leave.

Ordinarily leave or furlough is granted to personnel of the Active Army, subject to the exigencies of the service, after completion of six months' continuous service, but with this is granted the concession of one-third cost of that one-way fare. Subsequently, ordinary leave or furlough is granted after a lapse of twelve months.

The concession of one-third cost will be given every opportunity of advancement. Arrangements, if possible, will be made to interview applicants in the various centres in which they are at present residing.

CANADA'S ARMY IS TAKING TO THE SKIES

BY CAPT. BRUCE M. PEARCE

Six officers and twenty non-commissioned officers comprising the Ski Training Section of the Canadian Army to be accepted for service in the 1st Canadian Parachute Battalion are now in training at Fort Benning, Georgia.

They will return to Canada upon completion of their courses for service as instructors in the new Canadian Army parachute training centre to be opened at Camp Shilo, Manitoba.

Given a send-off from Lansdowne Park, Ottawa, where the initial instructional cadre was selected by the commander-elect, 31-year-old Major Hilton David Proctor, of Ottawa, the unit was inspected by Defense Minister Ralston and two senior officers from National Defense Headquarters, Major-General J. C. Murchie, vice-chief of the general staff, and Brig. E. G. Weeks, deputy-chief of the personnel staff.

All fully qualified soldiers, volunteering for the 1st Canadian Parachute Battalion must be of high physical standards. They must be alert, active, well-muscled, with first-class eyesight and endurance. Senior officers must be under 33, and captains and lieutenants not over 32, and N.C.O.'s and men from 18 to 32.

Canada will have the best parachutists in the world, in the opinion of Canadian Army leaders. In addition to the unit in training as instructors in the United States, there are Canadian soldiers now with the Canadian Army overseas, who will have had training in the British parachute schools, and who will serve as instructors at Camp Shilo. The best features of all existing methods of training paratroops are to be incorporated into the Canadian system.

A jumping tower will be erected at Camp Shilo and volunteers will be given complete instruction in all phases of this modern form of fighting.

"There has been a very large response to the call for volunteers for the parachute battalion," stated Brig. Weeks. "We are careful in our selection not to enrol a man with specialized technical training. We require young, strong fighting soldiers with initiative and military experience. They must be under 185 lbs. in weight and have strong feet and ankles."

Training will be progressive. First the men will be trained in jumping off walls ten and fifteen feet high. Then there will be the tower-jumping, from the 250-ft structure. Finally, they will make a controlled jump from the tower in which they will be guided to the ground by wires. Then comes the "free" jump, and the men will commence real parachute jumping from planes.

Service with the paratroops is also voluntary. If a man even suggests that he doesn't feel like jumping he will be removed from the parachute battalion and transferred back to his own unit.

Badges, distinctive uniform and special paratroop badges will be worn.

THE NAVY LEAGUE

Toronto, Aug. 13. — He lies in bed, finishing out the last few days of a convalescence that has lasted almost two years since that dread day when, in heavy surface fighting, he was brought out mortally wounded, surviving only with both lungs badly damaged.

His active days are over. An awful outlook for a man who lived the adventurous, but exciting life of a submarine skipper. In other words he was a member of the Suicide Club.

From tips other than his comes the story of ONE of many daring deeds his and his crew undertook in pursuit of their—everyday duty.

His submarine was on patrol somewhere off the Kiel Canal with about twenty-five days monotonous patrol over. The job was one of pure espionage. Inasmuch as it called for periscope watching and reporting of all shipping proceeding from enemy waters. His sub only defence was, that it could keep out of sight of the enemy. About 10 a.m. the German fleet was sighted steaming out of the Kiel Canal with the usual escort of cruisers and destroyers, for practice manoeuvres. The English subs were sent to action stations to log and watch every movement made. It was a pretty foul day and even at thirty feet depth the sub was thrown around a fair amount. Our friend the skipper was at the periscope and the sub was proceeding underneath the cruisers and near the battleships. Suddenly he turned from the periscope to his coxswain, his face deathly white. "Down periscope" he yelled—"crash dive to 80 feet!!" The sub seemed to hang motionless for an endless time. Then, it zoomed down at a terrific rate! Fifty feet depth the propeller of a ship was heard scraping over the sub.

In that brief moment between the skipper "sighting" his periscope and giving the order to crash dive, an enemy battleship had spotted the submarine and steamed toward it at full speed for the purpose of ramming it. The scrape of the battleship's propellor on the sub's hull showed the nearness of disaster and death for our friend the sub skipper and his crew!

That was not all, by all means. The enemy destroyers that followed the battleship, dropped depth charges for four hours, while the defenceless sub, just lay on the ocean bed, jolted and shaken, the crew momentarily expecting death and interment. In what might have been a steel coffin! It's hard to realize the drama of that episode, but those men, and thousands like them, day in and day out, hazard death at sea to keep our shores free. When the men served by the Navy League of Canada! It cannot continue to serve them, however, without your support.

• • •

The cadets were eagerly awaiting their dinners in a certain R.A.F. training school, where the air seems to create perpetual hunger. One of them was grumbling to a remark: "Never was so little waited for by so many for so long."

Cree Indians Make Notable Contribution To Army

Winnipeg, August 15. — The Cree Indians are on the war path again — but this time they've exchanged their tomahawks and their war paint for khaki uniform of the Army.

Fishermen and trappers from Canada's vast northland, 26 Cree Indians, the first to join the Army as a group, were attested on Thursday, August 10, Winnipeg, following their four-day boat trip from Norway House, 400 miles north, by Lieut.-Colonel Ed.

Bronzed countenances, lined by the rigours of their outdoor life on frozen lakes and bushland trails, creased into broad smiles when a reporter asked how they felt about the Army.

"We'll like it allright," said David Nanowin, as he ran grimy fingers through his jet black hair. "Some of us volunteered quite a while ago but we were told to wait."

Toughened by winter fishing in 50 and 60 degrees below zero weather, the entire group were eager to start training. Two of the group were members of the tribe's council.

As Army authorities questioned the group, the soldiers-to-be gave their answers of one Indian caught the eye of Sergeant W. J. McLellan, of District Depot No. 10. He was promptly placed in charge of the recruits. Questioning revealed that the Indian, John R. Robertson, had served with the Engineers in the last war. Robertson has been appointed to the Veteran's Guard of Canada.

Residents of Norway House and Cross Lake areas, the Indians expressed a desire to serve in the same unit.

"We'd like to stick together, if possible," said Nanowin, "but that's up to the Army to decide. The main thing is we want to serve where we'll fit in best."

The traditional reticence of their race returned suddenly when they were asked to relate some of their more hazardous fishing and trapping experiences. Pressed for information, Robertson explained that the Indians viewed such mishaps as concerning stranded on ice floes as all part of a day's work.

Thirty-three Indians composed the entire group that arrived in Winnipeg but seven were rejected for medical reasons.

Indian maiden, Private Mary Greyeyes, 21, of the Canadian Women's Army Corps, received the blessings of Harry Ball, Cree Indian who lost a leg at Vimy Ridge in the Great War, when she left for Regina, to serve with C.W.A.C. A member of the Cree tribe, from the Muskeg Lake reserve, near Saskatoon, Sask., she is serving as an assistant cook. Private Greyeyes has three sons on active service, one a sergeant with an infantry unit overseas, one in Eastern Canada with the artillery, and a third at Dundurn Camp.

CANADA PONDERS ITS MOST EFFECTIVE WAR AID

BY BRUCE HUTCHISON

It is easier for the public to think in realities, to view the war with emotion, than to examine dull figures with reason.

Nevertheless, an examination of dull figures is essential, first, to gauge the part of Canada in the war, and second, to see that Canada is rapidly reaching a maximum effort which will strain every muscle in its national body.

All the figures mentioned here are new and different from any published up to a few weeks ago. They represent a vast enlargement of Canada's plan of war. They are far larger than even the average informed Canadian has yet suspected. They mean, for Canadians, sacrifices far greater than they have ever dreamed of.

The three recent Canadian budgets reflected the main problem in purely financial terms — a total government expenditure in the current fiscal year of $3,900,000,000, or nearly seven times the normal peace-time total, accompanied by taxes which would have been considered fantastic even a year ago. But this, after all, is only a bookkeeping index of certain physical facts. The physical facts, so little understood even by most Canadians, are about as follows:

Canada has a population of 11,500,000. Of these 1,350,000 are engaged in agriculture, apart from housewives. They certainly cannot be spared from agricultural production when Britain needs every pound of farm produce that Canada can supply. About 800,000 persons are now employed in war industries (200,000 more than Parliament had been led to expect at the first of this year), and 300,000 in essential public utilities, and in mining which is essential to munitions production. This leaves just 2,000,000 persons employed in civilian production, apart from civilian production of food products.

It is from this 2,000,000 that the Government must get the workers needed for any expansion in the program of war production and the soldiers for any increase in the armed services. The Government intends to dig deeply into this remaining pool of labor. C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply, recently told Parliament that he would need at least 150,000 more workers for his war industries by the first part of 1943. The fighting forces in the same period will need more than 100,000 new recruits in addition to the large enlistments in the first half of this year. This is assuming that the existing program is not increased—and the programs are increased constantly, since the beginning of the war.

Mr. Howe has no doubt that the necessary fighting men and workers can be taken out of the pool of 2,000,000 civilian workers. But this is a big order, and it is quite clear that the number one problem in Canada today is the management of the resources, the direction of it by the place where it will do the most good in the war. Mr. Howe made plainly that this management can hardly be achieved without the use of compulsion, not compulsion of the individual where necessary to move him from non-essential to essential occupation, and drastic compulsion in closing non-essential industries and thus releasing their workers for more important work.

In fact, the latest decision, now not far ahead, is the choice between using men in the fighting services and war industries. It is now or never been possible to expand both wings of the war effort at the same rate and without important conflict between them. The gap between the labor supply and the labor demand is growing so narrow now that tug between the fighting services and industry will become unavoidable, and the choice cannot be evaded.

The Government's policy, as outlined by Mr. Howe, is to continue a balanced programme, and he says it is essential "that we maintain a sane balance, that we do not adopt, on emotional rather than on logical grounds, any policy which will unnecessarily upset the balance and hinder one or other of the all-important phases of the war effort." Canada should ask itself, Mr. Howe says, whether it can do more to help Britain by becoming a large and vital source of munitions or, limiting this production, by sending more men overseas. He puts the question thus:

"Would not the additional army we raised be relatively relatively small in comparison with the vast armies now engaged in the war and would that not be a relatively smaller contribution to victory, as compared with the munitions we would be able to make?"

It is evident that Mr. Howe, as the man responsible for that production, has no doubt about the proper choice. Assuming the next year the full resources of the nation will be strained to carry the immense load. The management of those resources will require all the intelligence of the Government and an administrative sense and, doubtless, all its ingenuity in a political sense since this problem is the very core of current politics.

SWEDEN:

The Other Side Of The Picture

BY AUSTIN F. CROSS

No country is more misunderstood in this war than neutral Sweden. This is because she is almost helpless when it comes to speaking on her own behalf. Every word, every syllable, has to be weighed before it leaves the country, lest it be misconstrued by a Nazi Germany, only too anxious to misunderstand even the most harmless phrase.

But Sweden, as Germany's prisoner in Europe, is not the milksop kingdom many here believe her to be. More important, the British Foreign Office in London knows exactly where Sweden stands, and is helping her maintain her present delicate position. Never before, say the Swedes, has Britain been so sympathetic and understanding to Stockholm's almost impossible position.

Sweden, a democratic country to the core, knows that if Germany wins, the bedtimes of German vassal, trading only with the Nazis, and carrying on with scarcely a shred of independence left. In a British victory, she envisions a return to the good old days, with her ships trading in the Seven Seas and her products finding a way to the ends of the world. Today much of Sweden's shipping is tied up and rusting, because her merchant marine has no place to go. So hope for her future lies with Britain.

At present Sweden ships to Germany what she must. Those who are doing well by this trade either give lip service to the Nazis or by ecstatications — and from lack of chance to see any other participants in the war — believe the Nazis are going to win. But the Swedes, who Neil Hitler are few in number. On July 14 Swedish Nazis tried to hold a meeting, but loyal citizens broke it up and ended by singing the National Anthem.

But you may ask, where do the Swedes really stand? Briefly, they stand for democracy. They feel they are holding a small sector on that line. He is a graduate of Redford High School and received his training as a bombardier and navigation operator at McDill Field, Florida. His mother, Mrs. William E. Sedore, 15867 Dequindre, Detroit, said in a speaking of her son, that he used to save his spending money to take rides in aeroplanes.

McGreer, principal of Bishop's University, Lennoxville, Que. Mr. McGreer, was leader of the party of 69 Canadian repatriates, who arrived in Canada from Japan, last week. Mr. McGreer visited his father, Mr. Fletcher McGreer, in Napanee, this week.

VISITS IN NAPANEE AFTER SPENDING SIX YEARS IN TOKIO

D'Arcy McGreer Tells Some Experiences Since War Broke Out

A distinguished visitor in Napanee for a few days the early part of this week was D'Arcy McGreer, who during the past week returned from Tokio, Japan, where he was the Canadian Charge d'Affaires for the past five years. Mr. McGreer, with his wife and two sisters, Miss Margarette and Miss Louise McGreer, Montreal, was in town to visit his father, Mr. Fletcher McGreer at the home of his aunts, the Misses Rose and Anna McGreer, Bridge St. West.

In an interview with Mr. McGreer on Monday evening, the writer of this article learned some interesting facts about Mr. McGreer's experiences in Japan and about his trip home, during which he was in charge of 69 Canadian repatriates.

Mr. McGreer went to Japan in October, 1936, when the late Hon. R. Randolph Bruce, former Premier of British Columbia was appointed Canadian Minister to Japan. Mr. Bruce remained in Japan only a short time on account of ill health and since his return about five years ago, Mr. McGreer has been Charge d'Affaires.

Some time before the war broke out with Japan, the Canadian Government advised all the Canadian citizens in Japan, who possibly could do so, to leave the country. By the end of October, all Canadians so desiring had availed themselves of this opportunity on the advice of the legation. Included among those who came home were Mr. McGreer's wife and five step-children, who returned to Canada in May, 1941.

OUTBREAK OF WAR

Asked to comment on the outbreak of the war with Japan, Mr. McGreer said:

"The first thing I knew about the war was when my No. 1 boy came in on the morning of December 7 and told me that he had heard a broadcast saying that Japan was at war with the United States, Canada and Britain.

"I wasn't sure that this could be so, but at 10:15 a.m. I had a visitor in my office. It was a man from the Japanese Foreign Office with whom I'd played golf. He announced very politely that it was his sad duty to say that we were at war. Then he read out a list of things which we were to do — we were not to walk on the streets without guard, move all the staff into the legation, close its gates, surrender all short wave radios, and so forth . . . It was all very polite."

As a result of turning over short wave radio sets, the members of the legation were without news of the outside world for five months. Mr. McGreer said in this connection: "I'm trying every possible way to inform myself as to what has happened in Canada in the past few months."

During the time between the outbreak of war with Japan and his departure for home last June, Mr. McGreer said he and members of the legation staff were allowed to go outside the legation grounds about once a week. While on the streets he said he noticed very little change in the attitude of the Japanese toward him, largely because the people were used to seeing foreigners. He circulated among whom were many German and Italian Nationals and citizens of neutral countries.

After war was declared some Canadians were allowed to continue to live in their own homes, but others were interned. At least one Canadian continued to teach English in a Japanese school. Treatment of the Canadians, for the most part, was good. The treatment of the legation staff was most considerate, and even though the members were under guard they had no sense of insecurity.

ABOUT 270 CANADIANS STILL IN JAPAN

There are still about 270 Canadians in Japanese territory, 150 within the Japanese Empire and the balance in Japanese controlled areas. Their chances of being repatriated are good." Mr. McGreer said, "for negotiations are still being carried on for their exchange for Japanese citizens. Some Canadians, who have been in Japan for a long time, refuse to leave, and are willing to take their chances, whatever may happen."

The 69 Canadians who returned home last week included government officials and missionaries. Among the latter were Roman Catholic priests and sisters, and a number of United Church missionaries from Ontario. Some of them had been in Japan, others in Japanese occupied territory, Hong Kong, Korea, and French Indo China.

SAW BOMBING OF TOKIO

Mr. McGreer was in Tokio when it and other Japanese cities were bombed by U. S. airmen. "Bombing," he said, "was concentrated, for the most part, on industries in other cities than Tokio. But I saw and heard bombs dropped about two miles from the legation. Some fires were started, but they were under control in a few hours." Mr. McGreer said, in the business and industrial sections, is like any other large city. The buildings are large and substantial. Of course, in other sections of the city, the buildings are small and lightly constructed.

TRIP HOME

Mr. McGreer, in the course of conversation, gave a brief, but in-

On Saturday the two-weeks' Vacational School conducted for children of St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Parish, Napanee, was concluded.

RED CROSS NEWS

At the Saturday afternoon meeting, September 5th, Mrs. Hobbard, a native of Belgium, and now residing in Napanee, will address the ladies. Everybody is welcome, and an interesting talk is promised.

The Red Cross is urgently in need of workers at the present moment more than ever.

There are ten dozen comfort bags to be made and filled for the Navy and Merchant Service for Christmas. These must be in Toronto by October 15th.

There are 400 sheets, 100 bed jackets, 75 surgeon's gowns. These must all be cut and basted, and this is only part of our work.

There is plenty of work for inexperienced or non-sewers. The sheets are for Russia. Compared to what the Russian people are doing, we think it too much to set aside at least one afternoon a week for the Red Cross work? Will everyone who possibly can, please come to the Red Cross rooms Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, from 1:30 until 5:00 p.m. Register which days or day you can come, and do not let anything interfere with this work.

NEW OFFENSIVE STARTED BY AXIS IN BATTLE FOR EGYPT

Russian Resistance Greater Around Stalingrad and in Caucasus

WEDNESDAY —

A violent battle was reported raging off the Solomons as the Japs attempted to smash the United Nations offensive and dislodge the Marines from the islands. Heavy damage was said to have been inflicted on the Jap Navy. More than a half-dozen Jap warships were reported to have been bombed or torpedoed.

The R. A. F. made a strong force attack on the Rhineland and the Russians bombed Helsinki effectively.

THURSDAY—

In Russia the Red Army, which launched an offensive in the Rzhev area, fifteen days ago, made an advance of thirty miles right up to the gates of Rzhev. The Russians were standing firm at Stalingrad, where they counter-attacked in several areas. But in the Caucasus the Russians admitted further retreats and reported the Germans were within fifty miles of Grozny.

• • •

The United States reported encouraging results in the battle for the Solomon Islands. So far thirteen ships of the Japanese fleet had been damaged.

• • •

Chuhsien, the largest air field in China, was said to be under direct attack by the Chinese and its fall to the Chinese was considered a probability.

MONDAY —

During the week end the Nazis made no advance at Stalingrad and were pushed back from some recently gained positions. All along the front the Red armies struck back in strong counter-attacks. In the Caucasus the Russians pushed back the enemy column which was making startling progress toward Grozny. Both sides were rushing up strong reinforcements.

• • •

BYRON STOREY PROMINENT FARMER INSTANTLY KILLED

Mr. Byron Storey, a well-known farmer whose home was in Richmond Township, on the Old Belleville Road, a short distance from Napanee, was killed instantly about 3.00 p.m. on Tuesday afternoon of this week, when he was thrown from a load of hay.

The accident occurred on the farm of Frank Gaylord, a neighboring farmer whom Mr. Storey was assisting. A team of young horses became frightened and ran away, throwing both Mr. Storey and Mr. Gaylord from the wagon. Mr. Storey was killed instantly as the result of a broken neck. Mr. Gaylord sustained a broken left collar bone and his nose was badly crushed. He was later taken to Kingston General Hospital. Dr. C. M. Stratton, coroner, investigated the accident.

Mr. Storey is survived by his wife and one daughter Mrs. Florance Smith who has resided at home with her parents since the death of her husband, Dr. Smith. Mrs. Storey's only son, Orval Storey, who was a highway traffic officer, was killed a few years ago when his motorcycle collided with a car while he was on duty.

Mr. Storey's funeral is to be held at Emmet Hill Church, on Thursday afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock.

"HEADS UP", SAYS THE R.C.A.F. INSTRUCTOR

There's something symbolic about that last look at the sky just as he turns into his seat and rolls down the runway toward a take-off. It says, "Here we come . . . Look out!" The R.C.A.F. flier in this photo is an instructor, whose pupils are fighting in every theatre of war where Canadians are participating. In Harvard planes like the one in the photo thousands of pilots have been trained under the British Commonwealth Joint Air Training Program.

EVERYBODY MUST WORK

On Monday midnight a new regulation went into effect by virtue of which "any person capable of working will not be permitted to remain voluntarily unemployed." Unemployed people may be ordered to take a job and not quit it without permission, while others may be "invited" to move from their present job to one more essential to the war effort.

What a difference the war has made ! Only a few short years ago thousands of our young men were pounding the streets looking for a job. There was a soup kitchen in the Napanee Armouries to feed them and every town in the province had to house these migrants in the lock-up or the town hall, overnight.

Now it is illegal not to work, and the Government can insist that any man out of work must get a job. It all indicates how vast and far-reaching are the changes which are taking place in our social and economic order.

There are a lot of other regulations governing a person's work that have become law. No person can leave a job without giving seven days' notice, nor can an employer discharge an employee without a similar seven days' notice. And no one will be able to apply for a new job without a permit. All of which makes wholesome reading. It indicates the extent to which we are surrendering our freedom in order to win it—strange paradox. And yet, in a totalitarian war no other course is open. The danger however, is that these regulations will not be so easily abrogated when the immediate necessity for them is removed.

This new set of regulations does not affect our life in Napanee and County to any great extent. A look around the town is sufficient to convince anyone that there are few, if any unemployed. And certainly, so far as the farming community is concerned ,the problem of securing help is already an acute one.

THE THIRD YEARR

At the end of the third year of war the number of nations not included in the fighting is comparatively small. When the war broke out, only Poland and Germany were at war, having a combined population of approximately 118,000,000. At the close of three years of fighting, instead of two nations being involved in war there are forty-two — thirty-one on the side of the United Nations and eleven on the side of the Axis. Practically the whole world is at war. Hunger, wounds, suffering and death have stalked the earth. Already it is estimated that there have been ten million casualties. The greater number of these have been incurred by the Germans and the Russians whose armies have been locked in a life and death struggle for over a year.

It is not easy to appraise the results up-to-date. The most that can be said is that Germany, while having a long and impressive list of conquests to her credit, has so far failed in her major objectives. Great Britain has not been invaded nor conquered. The Suez has not been seized, nor has the Russian Army been defeated. And while Hitler is engaged in his efforts to defeat the Russian armies, Great Britain and The United States are building up a formidable fighting machine. Munitions of war on a prodigious scale are coming off the assembly lines and pouring out of the arsenals and factories. The problem of getting these to the various theatres of war is not an easy one. But nevertheless, much is being distributed to the armies on a dozen fronts. More will follow in an ever-ending stream when the shipping bottleneck has been finally unstopped.

Then, too, millions of men are now in training or have been trained by the United Nations, against the day of final testing. In The United States, thousands of young men are being called up and trained for every branch of the service. Canada and the other Daughters of the Mother Country, are now beginning to make the complete effort.

In the East, the Japanese have had it much their own way ; but the tide will turn. Indeed, the significant victory of General McArthur's troops over the Japanese, in New Guinea, is a straw which indicates the direction of the wind.

It must not, however, be assumed that the crisis has been passed. The Germans are a tough, efficient, cruel enemy. The Japanese are a fanatical, hard-hitting, well trained army. Neither will show signs of weakening until finally crushed.

If, however, as has been so often said, this for the Axis was the critical year, then while there are impressive conquests to their credit, they have, as yet, achieved no victory. The full might of the United Nations will be felt in the year of the war on which we have now entered. It will be a hard year for all, and we must steel our hearts for it, while at the same time devoting all we have to a final triumph of our forces.

NO EXCEPTIONS

Colonel Alan Cockeram has come forward with a rather novel but impossible suggestion. He suggests that conscription for Overseas service should be enacted at once. But he would have the law apply only to eight out of the nine provinces. Colonel Cockeram would have Quebec exempt from the operation of a conscription law.

That sort of a suggestion will find little response in the hearts of Canadian people, if we judge them aright. To make a law for one part of the country and not for another, is the best possible way of intensifying the disunity of our country. Attorney-General Conant has recently pointed out that justice is not meted out equally in all parts of Canada, and has refused, for that reason, to order any more prosecutions under Clause 39 A of the Defense of Canada Regulations. This is partial evidence of a very real division as between the Province of Quebec and the rest of Canada. To exempt Quebec from the operation of a Conscription Act if and when enacted, would certainly accentuate the conditions to which Mr. Conant has called attention.

Mr. Tourcotte, in an address which he recently gave to an Ontario audience, at Geneva Park, said in effect that we—the French-Canadians—were here first. We were never defeated in battle, we were defeated by the French leaders in France. We are here to stay. And yet, he said the English-speaking Canadians had treated them as an inferior people. When any parliamentary committee is appointed, Mr. Tourcotte said the main positions go to the English-speaking peoples and the subordinate positions to the French. Now we might not take this position too seriously were it not that Mr. Tourcotte is the editor of a French paper, and may be assumed to know French public opinion.

Not only so, but Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, former Minister of Public Works, speaking in Ste. Hyacinthe, on Saturday, said "That French Canadians should be allowed to run their own affairs and must not become the slaves of anyone."

These two men must be taken as expressing what the French-Canadian people think — or at least many of them. And yet we have pointed out that Abbe Maheux, in his recent book, supplies historic evidence to show that the very opposite is the truth — that the British, from the very first, have been over-generous to the French, that there has never been any desire or any effort to relegate the French to a second-rate position. It would appear that the assumption that they are so treated, is purely unwarranted and reveals a mental condition unsupported by historic evidence.

The French-Canadians are Canadian citizens as we all are. They have borne their share of Dominion responsibility, having as well shared its honors, its benefits and its advantages. As citizens they will have to bear some integral part in all national policies. If we are ever to have a United Canada, French-Canadians must learn that they belong to the whole nation and not one section of it. English-Canadians have to learn the same lesson. They all must face the common task which nationhood demands of each. There cannot be one law for one section and another for another.

A NEW SUGGESTION FOF INDIA

Sir Firozkhan Noon, defense member of The Viceroy's Executive Council for India, has made a new suggestion. It has been crowded off the front pages because of the war news from Russia and the Solomon Islands. But it is, doubtless, receiving careful attention in England. For despite the control which has been exercised over the Indian situation, yet it is full of dynamite. It must be faced and the problem solved if India is to play any part in the present crisis. So that any effort to solve the problem must be welcomed.

Mr. Noon's suggestion is that India should be divided into five Dominions: (1) Bengal, (2) The Central Provinces as well as the united Province and Bihar, (3) Madras, (4) Bombay, (5) The Punjab. It is suggested that there should be a central executive and that the various Dominions elect representatives to it. Each Dominion could secede from the Central Authority if it wished, or could re-enter if it so desired.

The author, however, points out that before this plan could be made operative, some compromise between the Congress Party and the Moslem League, was necessary. Failing that there would be no unity in India, ever.

The plan holds out some hope of a solution. Whether or not it will be put forward officially by the British Government, remains to be seen. If it were so advanced there are certain factors which might make its reception favorable. For one thing, it gets over the vexed minority problem, and obviates the almost inevitable cleavage between Moslems and Hindus which unqualified independence would undoubtedly bring into focus. Then, too, the loss of public support for India in The United States, because of India's attitude to the Cripps proposal, might influence the Indian leaders to accept a face-saving compromise.

At all events, the situation is so serious in India that no avenue should be left unexplored. Japan will soon be knocking at India's door, and without the co-operation of the Indian people, resistance to the Japanese would be seriously hampered. We have had sufficient evidence of what the Japanese, aided by Fifth Columnists, can do, in other places, to guard us against an easy assumption that India is safe against their attack.

WHAT ARE THEY BUILDING?
Mystery of Britains Biggest War Job

There is much speculation here about the nature of "the biggest construction job of the war" for which Britain's building and civil engineering industries are now being combed for tens of thousands of men.

A week or two ago the Ministry of Labour suddenly stopped the transference to the Forces of 20,000 working builders, due for enrolment this month. The men have been forbidden to make applications. Their Service age has been put up to 41. They are being withdrawn from normal building work at the rate of 100 a day. There is a call for volunteers up to the age of 50. A general staff from the Government departments concerned and from the industry itself has now been created to direct operations and they will send off selected men to any part of Britain at a moment's notice.

The job is being speeded up by mass production where mass production is possible — with pre-cast concrete units, hollow beam, concrete floors, plaster board sheets for ceilings and walls, paint spraying equipment; everything to save labour and get on with the job.

The demand grows for bricks, asphalt, cables, piping. Canada's lumber jacks are thinning Scotland's forests for timber.

What is it all about ?

The "changing strategy of the war" is the official explanation, and with that, meanwhile, the curious must remain satisfied.

Every once in a quarter the mind of the Sunday School teachers is directed to the problem created by the sale and distribution of alcoholic beverages. It might appear that there is nothing new to be said on the subject. That is true in a certain sense, and yet there is a sense in which every generation must face the problem for itself. Not only so, but modern science, medicine, and psychology have tackled this problem from new angles, so that there is new light to be shed on this age-old difficult and perplexing problem.

In ancient Israel the people were aware of the way in which morals were destroyed by over-indulgence in strong drink. Let had chosen to live in the city rather than in the country. He saw the evils rampant there, but he was willing to overlook them for the material advantages which the big town might bring to him. In time the city broke down Lot's morale. His point of view changed and gradually, conditions which had at first shocked him, were accepted without opposition. He had finally to be dragged from the city and had his eyes opened when he learned, to his sorrow the extent to which the lure of the social life had affected his wife and daughters. Liquor and the glittering lights work that way. People are gradually weaned away from their home-training and religious life by the gradual infiltration of ideas and customs socially condemned and practised.

In Deuteronomy we have a section of the basic address of Moses to the people of Israel. In it he urges them to keep away from the Cananites, because, as he says, their God is not the God of the Israelites and their customs and pratices not those of the religious training under which the Hebrews had been brought up.

The advice of Moses was heeded for a while. But a time came when the bright, fascinating, licentious nature worship of the original inhabitants broken down all resistance, and the Hebrews, growing wealthy and soft, found aesthetic and social satisfaction as they adopted many of the ways of those they had conquered.

It was against this that the prophets protested so vehemently. Here, in to-day's lesson, we listen to Amos calling his people to time. He was a shepherd unaccustomed to the ways of the city. But the luxury and the wealth of those who lived lives of ease and licentiousness he denounced in burning language. In words that sear and burn, he condemns the riotous living and the drinking habits of those whose very worship had been corrupted by practices which were contrary to the pure worship of Jehovah.

We have, in our own day, witnessed the effect of alcohol on our national policy. It has corrupted politics. It weakened morale; it made easy the capture of areas in control of democratic countries which were considered impregnable.

We need all our brains, all our courage, all our wits, all our national strength to defeat the Axis powers. How can we hope for an all-out effort, if the brains are dulled and moral life is lapped by the inroads of king alcohol. People have money than they have had the first world war. They are using more on alcoholic beverages ever before. We are rationed sugar, in gasoline, in tea and in fee, but nobody in power has yet the courage to tell people they only have so much beer a week is preposterous. It might be if the situation was not so Alcohol is cutting production, weakening our war effort; it is ing down our national morale.

What to do about it ? Every son can be his own policeman cut out alcoholic beverages for duration. Women in our can refuse to serve liquor at parties, or to accept it when People who have this matter can write letters, write to the write to the Dominion and Incial Member, write to the Minister, write to Mr. Risley, Cand congregations can likewise themselves heard in the land. helps. The traffic could be ed overnight if the churches their obligations seriously ated the power which is ug by theirs.

Is There An Industrial "Wastage" In Training Women

BY PHYLLIS BENTLEY

A munitions factory manager in Great Britain was asked the other day to be a visiting American to name his two greatest problems. He replied thoughtfully: "Shopping and nurseries."

This answer is a sufficiently clear indication, if any were needed in this country, of the tremendous extent to which women have successfully penetrated industry. There are indeed few forms of war activity, apart from actual fighting by air, land and sea, which women are not now performing.

They pack parachutes, fire anti-aircraft guns, drive cranes and triphammers and lorries, fill ordnance fuses, hammer home ship rivets, cope with airrplanae wings, make and test precision instruments; they are portters, bargees, electric welders. That this immense participation in the industrial world is or may be epoch-making in their history is recognized by all thoughtful women, and many discussions are taking place up and down the country as to its consequences. In succeeding eras.

WILL RESULTS BE FAVORABLE?

At present scientific data for consideration of the problem are somewhat lacking, since no investigation of the relative abilities and outputs of men and women has been undertaken on a large seale. Smaller investigations are, however, often conducted by factory managers, and it is to be hoped that such investigations will be encouraged and their findings properly collated, as the evidence they provided would be highly valuable.

In the absence of these data, however, one relies on personal impressions of a similar kind prevalent.

One of the great difficulties in the employment of women is, to put it bluntly, the great industrial "wastage" of training and experience consequent to the withdrawal of women from employment on marriage. An employer who trains a hundred men, or employs them in subordinate capacities, has a reasonable expectation of a quite high proportion remaining in the industry for the rest of their working lives, so that the years of training there is permanently fruitful. With peacetime women trainees the proportion is very considerably lower.

This economic factor weighs heavily against the universal adoption of the principle of "the rate for the job," for the employer, whether private or State, recoups himself for this wastage by paying women less wages for the same work, thus making the women who remain in industry pay for the training of those who withdraw. It has been my own idea that the solution to the career versus marriage problem for women might lie in a careful chronology of both: the woman trains for a job, then marries; when her children are in their teens she returns to her job. But under pre-war conditions, meanwhile, her skill has gone for lack of practice.

It seems that the wartime arrangements by which two omarried women now run two families on done job between them might, if continued in peace, enable the woman to retain her skill by part-time work during her "married" period, and enable her to be a wife and mother while retaining her work for the community and her joy in it for herself. The danger of a wide adoption of this scheme is that women might tend to be relegated to part-time work, and this barred from any full participation in their trade or profession; this would need stringent precautions.

Another means of enabling the "rate for the job" principle to be universally applied lies in the much discussed family allowances, which by endowing children remove the unfair burdens of the married worker. Family allowances, it is claimed, at once raise the status of the woman and relieve the economic burden of the man; but again precautions seem necessary. Do such allowances really raise the wife's status, or do they tend to tie her to child-bearing, thus resuming the old-time status of a profit - making industry? Which children should be the more heavily endowed, the first or the latter? Would such variations tend in effect, to regulate the older woman's return to industry?

WOMEN AT THE PEACE CONFERENCE?

Most women feel that, to provide a sound basis for equal co-operation between men and women after the war, some revision of our educational system will be necessary.

What of the future of women, in the political sense? There is more certainly felt here than in the economic field, where opportunities for women are seen to depend on world-wide problems of trade and markets. It is taken for granted, I find, by many that women will be present at the Peace Conference. We shall have helped to win the war, they say; we can help to win the peace, too — and we mean to be there to do so.

Our function is to nourish, to cherish, and to enrich life; the post-war world, with its tremendous problems of food, health and the psychological neuroses which must be conquered if future wars are to be avoided, needs us, needs our contribution; we expect to be there to make it.

DON'T BE A WELSHER

LET'S be brutally frank. The man or woman who buys a Victory Bond or Certificate to save face, then sells it—except in case of dire necessity—is a welsher.

True, there is no law which says you cannot sell your Victory Bonds or Certificates. It is not a legal obligation that you keep them for the duration. But there is a moral promise to make a loan to your Country for the War period. To evade that undertaking through sale, at this time of great need, is to welsh—it is the denial of an obligation which you admitted and accepted by your act of purchase.

Your Country does not ask you to deny yourself those necessary things which make for decent living, that you may buy Victory Bonds and Certificates. But the voice of Public Opinion does say that those persons who now insist on the unnecessary luxuries of life are not themselves decent.

Of course—you have no immediate cause for worry. No one will ask you to cross the beach and climb the cliffs of Dieppe. You are not in a slit trench with Stuka Dive-Bombers showering death about you. The blazing sun of Africa—the wind-driven sands—will never cut and blister your skin until every exposed part of your body becomes a festering sore. No—you will never feel the vibrant crash of a torpedo—the tilt of a ship's deck under your feet as it slides to Davey Jones. No one is asking you to leave your favorite chair tonight and fly over Germany. None of these things is asked of you.

All you are asked to do is to lend to your Country—Canada—lend at interest all the money you can possibly spare to provide the tools for those men who are fighting your fight. You are not expected to deprive yourself to the extent that you must live below the level of ordinary decency.

But if you think you are doing your part by buying Victory Bonds only to sell them—then, you had better take yourself into a dark room and ask yourself some soul-searching questions. Ask yourself what you are doing to protect your loved ones, your Country, and your way of life.

If you do this we know what the answer will be. We know because the men and women of Canada are inherently decent people. They value the good opinion and respect of friends and neighbors. But most important is the fact that we Canadians value our own self-respect. We ask charity from none—we assume our obligation to work and lend. So there can only be one answer—you will hold your Victory Bonds and Certificates for the duration except in cases of extreme necessity.

OTTAWA TO CUT PLEASURE GAS

Ottawa, (C.P.) — New regulations lowering the gasoline ration for those who use their cars for pleasure driving are expected to be announced within the next week or two, it was learned last week.

The proposal as announced in the House of Commons by Hon. C. D. Howe, Munitions Minister, last June 17, is to issue a new ration book for pleasure driving which will be in Category "AA" and will receive less gasoline than those in Category "A", the lowest category at present.

At that time Mr. Howe said he could not at that moment indicate what allowance would be given those in Category "AA" and he said it would take several time to set up the new category.

Mr. Howe returned from Washington, this morning and was busy all day with the Cabinet war committee and a meeting of the Privy Council. G. R. Cottrelle, oil controller, was not in Ottawa.

But it was learned from a departmental official that the controller should be ready to issue the new ration books within a matter of days and certainly within a fortnight.

Decision to set up the lower category was based upon the necessity further to reduce gasoline consumption and the desire not to make it any more difficult for those "A" category motorists who use their cars in connection with their occupations.

The "AA" ration books will be given to those who use their cars only for pleasure driving.

SCIENTIFIC TESTS CUT ARMY'S "SQUARE PEGS"

It has taken World War II to bring about one of the greatest revolutions in the history of the British Army. This revolution, steadily growing over the past two and a half years, culminated last February with the formation of the army's first Personnel Service Corps, into which the new recruit goes for testing before being posted to his regiment.

He is given his uniform and kit, and put through the usual preliminary drill. In the first fortnight John Smith talks with the interviewing officer, whose job is to find out all he can about the mental and physical powers of the army's latest acquisition.

PROBLEMS, EASY AND DIFFICULT

The interviewing officer, who is specially selected and highly trained, asks John such questions as: Where were you educated? At what age did you leave school, and what sort of time did you have there? What kind of work have you been doing since? What are your hobbies?

Then come intelligence and aptitude tests.

John Smith is handed a book with a series of diagrams from each of which a section has been removed. These he is asked to complete with a number of alternatives.

The first problems are easy, the last ones difficult. The time he takes to do these and the number of mistakes he makes is duly recorded. John does not shine at this.

Other tests include putting together the component parts of different articles. Secrecy is observed about the nature of these and other examinations, as otherwise candidates might come primed with information. John scored a bull's-eye in this test.

Next he meets the testing officer, who also takes his measurements.

Knowledge of the English language? Not fluent.

Agility? Let's see what John can do in the gymnasium. He's a biggish fellow, and acrobatics are obviously not up his street. He doesn't seem to be a future Commando. He has a shot at jumping wide trenches and climbing walls — but he is difficult to get even a toehold, but he is not marked out for this sort of enterprise.

Mechanical knowledge? No. Smith was never particularly interested in autos, and his knowledge of driving, even in peacetime, was elementary. So he won't be much good as one of the future drivers of Britain's mechanized weapons.

Signalling? Now that's more like it. His hobby in peacetime was tinkering with radios. He knows Morse already, for he's been practising for years deciphering the dots and dashes on his old set at home. So John is scheduled to become an army signaller.

How reliable are these tests? The answer is that a check is made some months later with the officers who have the newly-selected men under their command. This has disclosed that ninety-five per cent of the recruits are correctly analyzed and have their right places in the army. Britain's War Department is determined to get this training on the right lines, aided by the advice of eminent psychologists.

What about officers? Every recruit who seems to be a potential officer is earmarked right away. But he is not told, for fear of disappointment. The type hunted to find is a senior leader of infantry. Every officer, except for a few special experts, has first to serve in the ranks these days.

Under a new scheme the potential officer type has to undergo at the War Office Selection Boards. Before they used to be a fifteen to twenty minutes interview, which was fairly accurate, but not in border-line cases. Nervous applicants often made a bad and misleading show. Others, not so nervous, made a good but often wrong impression. The result was that many candidates were sent back to their units as unsuitable.

Now there are tests for picking out the best leaders, which have been tried out successfully on officers and under whose characteristics are already known.

Instead of the fifteen-minute interview hitherto allotted, candidates spent two or three days in one of the country houses where the Selection Boards reside. All types come before them—youths and experienced soldiers. Take the case of Sergeant-Major Thomas Brown, aged thirty-five. His name is not known to the board, only his number.

USING SKILLS TO MAXIMUM

Brown finds a friendly atmosphere about the place of trial, more like an inn than a barracks. The president, as the senior officer, with him and chats about the scheme. Brown is an uncertain case (fifty per cent. of all the cases are uncertain) and a psychiatrist talks to him.

He also meets a visiting colonel with technical knowledge who reviews his technical qualifications — which are concerned with artillery.

Brown lives and works with testing officers for several days, but does not undergo formal interviews. The nature of most of the tests cannot be told, but here is one: Brown assumes command of six or seven other men: He has to tackle a certain problem, give orders and see them carried out. What he is assigned to is to reveal intelligence, ingenuity, physical and moral courage or its lack, pertinacity and peg.

At a final conference each candidate is fully discussed by the board and a verdict is given.

A big scheme such as this requires an enormous amount of organization. The fortnightly intake of many thousands of men has to be sorted for allotment to various training centres and this is many complicated. Speed and accuracy are essential. All manner of points have to be considered: medical category, aptitude, trade, height nationality, and so on. The sorting is done centrally.

In the view of the experts it is held that never before have British fighting potentialities been so skilfully and scientifically assembled and used.

MARKED FRENCH HERO ESCAPES

DARING FLIGHT CHEATS NAZIS OF EXECUTION

BY NOLAND NORGAARD

London (CAN.) — A sturdy, mustached French shopkeeper wearing the uniform of the Fighting French with the ribbon of the Croix de Guerre around one stripe earned in the last war, stood proudly in Gen. de Gaulle's headquarters and told of the daring dash to freedom that saved him from Nazi machine-gunners.

Jacques, whose other name must remain secret, is the first French hostage to escape the Germans and reach Britain.

Escape alone might have been easier, but he knew the fate that would befall his wife, Gabrielle, and their 16-year-old son, Louis, if they were left behind; so they fled together.

SON JOINS AIR FORCE

Gabrielle came to the press conference, but Louis was too busy signing up in the Fighting French Air Force.

Last year, fifty hostages ranging from seventeen upwards were shot down in Jacques' hometown in Western France in reprisal for the slaying of a German officer. The Nazi Command ordered the seizure of fifty more hostages and Jacques was on the list — with good reason. For months past he and Gabrielle had been printing Fighting French pamphlets. They didn't know who sent them but they copied and sent them to many others. Jacques was warned the night before he was to be arrested.

Within an hour he was on the road to Paris with wife and son. But there, he was told an exit visa would be granted only with permission of his hometown. This was final and other means failed, so Jacques and family set out on their own for Unoccupied France.

Within a hundred yards of the line of demarcation a German girl in uniform — one of those who check certificates at the line-waiting for a lift in the motor car they had hired. Frontier guards waved them on when they saw her with them.

Three months passed before the family finally obtained permits to go to North Africa. It was then March and only a short time ago were they able to escape from Africa.

KEEP KILLINGS SECRET

Jacques told of the Germans trying to keep secret the executions of the fifty hostages, taking them to a lonely quarry for the machine-gunning and burying the bodies at various places, never telling their families where. Eventually the executions were announced in a curt official notice.

Of the possible Allied invasion of France, Jacques declared with laughs and gestures —

"Every Allied soldier should bring three Nazis to their graves. The French men ready to fight at their side. They are waiting for a signal for general revolt. But it must not be a failure, for then it would end in a blood-bath slaughter of Frenchmen."

Jacques saw many train loads of German troops sent from his area in France to the Russian front, last year. He said it took three weeks for the Nazis scheduled one to get them moving, because French saboteurs blew up the rails.

STRATHCONA W. M. S.

The August meeting of the W. M. S. was held at the home of Mrs. D. Wilson, with twelve members and visitors in attendance. Quiet music by the pianist preceded the worship service, which was conducted by the president, Mrs. George Lapum. The theme of the service was "The Bible, the Word of God." A hymn was sung, then some members took part with Bible references, on the unsearchable riches of the Bible. Miss Muriel Wilson read "Thy Word is like a garden, Lord," after which all joined in responsive Bible reading. A hymn, and prayer by Mrs. Wilson.

Mrs. Lloyd Finlay read the minutes in the absence of the secretary. The offering was received and dedicated by Mrs. (Rev.) Herrington. Mrs. James Wilson moved that we, as a W. M. S., purchase a war saving certificate, a loan to our country and gift to the church. Mrs. R. Rook seconded the motion, which was carried. There was a discussion in connection to assist the Newburgh W. M. S. in preparing for the Fall rally. For the September meeting Mrs. Lloyd Finlay will be programme convener. The roll call will be answered with a Bible text on "Love." Mrs. Dora Wilson rendered a pleasing piano solo, also a very interesting reading. Mrs. Scot Macdonald very ably conducted the closing chapter of the study book. This dealt with the course of the Chinese Christian church in the face of the terrible against the Japanese, their removal to the interior and the carrying on of the work in spite of unspeakable difficulties.

The Mizpah benediction, followed by the National Anthem, closed a very helpful meeting.

VICTORIA W. I.

The August meeting of the Victoria branch of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Jack McFarland. The president, Mrs. Fred McFarland, was in charge. The meeting opened by all singing the ode and repeating the creed. Business matters were discussed and disposed of, after which the convener for Agriculture and Canadian Industries, Mrs. A. M. Graham, welcomed the guest speaker of the evening, Mr. Buchanan, Agricultural Representative for Lennox County.

Mr. Buchanan gave a very instructive address on Fruit Trees and Their Care. He gave interesting demonstrations of fruit tree grafting and budding. Each part was passed around for inspection, when completed. Boxwood branches were used and made very good examples of this interesting work. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Buchanan for his kindness in coming to the meeting and for the trouble and work of his demonstrations.

Mrs. Frank Amey and Mrs. Dorland McCutcheon sang very effective ly. "I will lift up mine eyes to the hills." This was much appreciated. Miss Vera McFarland conducted a Canadian Town and City contest, and Mrs. Dorland McCutcheon won the dainty prize.

The singing of the National Anthem closed the meeting and lunch was served.

Visits in Napanee

teresting account of the trip home from Japan. They were 69 Canadians boarded the Japanese steamer, "Asama Maru" with about 500 others, on June 17 at Yokohama, where they remained in the harbor for eight days, awaiting release. Finally the ship sailed at 1:00 a.m. on June 25. It passed the Loochoo Islands and Formosa, and arrived at Hong Kong at 2:00 p.m. on June 29. It sailed from there at 6:00 p.m. next day at 5:45 p.m. The Hainan Islands were passed and the passengers had a glimpse of the coast of French Indo China before the boat sailed up the river to Saigon, where it anchored until July 3. It departed from Saigon on July 4 and arrived in the vicinity of Singapore at 11:00 a.m. on July 6, where it remained until July 9. After passing through the Sundra Straits into the Indian Ocean no land was seen until Lourenzo Marques was sighted on July 22.

The boat made have circled far south in the Indian Ocean, Mr. McGregor said, because of the cold weather that was encountered.

EXCHANGE AT LOURENZO MARQUES

Lourenzo Marques, which is much in the news these days, is on the east coast of Africa, in Mozambique, which is Portugese territory, and is just west of Madagascar. On July 23 the passengers on the "Asama Maru" were transferred to the Swedish vessel, "Gripsholm," and remained on the harbor until 2:00 p.m. on July 28. During this time the Canadians were looked after by the Canadian High Commissioner for South Africa.

A 10-day voyage brought the ship to Rio de Janeiro on August 18, where the Canadians were looked after by members of the Canadian legation until the ship sailed on August 11 for New York, which was reached on August 25. From New York the Canadians went by train to Montreal, and Mr. McCrea reached Ottawa at 10:40 p.m. on August 29th.

Mr. McCrea said he was very much pleased with the conduct of the Canadians throughout the long trip and regretted that in the rush at Montreal he had not been able to get a good-by from each individually.

During the trip home, on Dominion Day, July 1st, the Canadians did not feel in prison and the Japanese boat, to have a real Dominion Day celebration, but Mr. McGregor said, they did have a get together with some other Canadians who had boarded the ship the day before.

INTERESTING CAREER

Mr. McGregor has had an interesting career since he joined the Canadian Department of External Affairs in 1927. He spent one year in Ottawa before being transferred to Geneva, where he was attached to the office of the Canadian Advisory Delegate to the League of Nations. In October, 1929, he went to Paris as a member of the Canadian legation.

In March, 1930, he was appointed to the Canadian legation at Washington, and in October, 1936, he went to Japan, where he remained until June of this year.

Mrs. T. D. Sneath Gives Splendid Address Trinity Mission Circle

On Tuesday evening, August 25th, the regular monthly meeting of Trinity Mission Circle was held at the home of the Hon. President, Mrs. W. A. Ashley. The devotional exercises were in charge of the president, sent took part, were prepared by Mrs. Frank B. Hills, the theme being "The Church in My Community."

Minutes and business were followed by a talk on "Missionary Giving" which was the highlight of the evening. In her talk, Mrs. Sneath told about India's two political parties—Congress or Nationalist, headed by Gandhi, with a membership of 60 and a half millions, and the Moslem League. There are two religious bodies, of which 264 millions are Hindus and 80 millions Mohammedans. The remaining forty millions are Jains.

India is one-third the size of Canada, with a population of 389 millions or one-fifth of the whole world. Nearly 90 per cent. of this population is rural.

It was amazing to the Circle members to hear of India's new effort. At the present time, India's army has grown to 1,200,000 exclusive of the soldiers serving abroad. Britain has accepted at the average rate of 50,000 per month.

At the outbreak of the war the Royal Indian Navy consisted of 10 or 12 small ships, but now corvettes, minesweepers and sloops have been built and the interest in the navy also has increased by more than 60 per cent. India is producing 60 per cent of her own war equipment as well as supplying other members of the United Nations.

The largest single steel plant in the United Kingdom is in India. Cotton, of course, is her main industry. India has the largest irrigation system in the world, 30,000,000 acres being irrigated, over fourteen times the acreage irrigated under United States Federal projects. She is rated as one of the eight leading industrial countries of the world.

Mrs. Sneath was thanked for her informative address and a social hour was enjoyed when refreshments were served.

CEILING LIFTED ON NEWSPAPERS

Ottawa, (C.P.) — The Wartime Prices and Trade Board announced removal of the over-all price ceiling from Canadian and imported newspapers, magazines, and periodical publications in general, leaving the prices free to adjust rates and safeguard its revenues.

The exemption applies to newsstand and street sale prices and to subscription rates. Advertising rates already are exempt.

In announcing its decision, the board said a careful survey by the administrator of publishing, printing and allied industries showed that while larger revenues had offset higher operating costs in 1939 the 1941 revenues recently had suffered a drastic decline.

"There are too many variations of circulations into conformity with those of the United States, where newspapers, magazines and periodicals were from the outset exempted from the price ceiling."

In outlining its reason for removing the price ceiling, the board said it was impossible to establish a common measurement of value for publications or any general rule governing price increases. It was also impractical to provide the Government subsidy for each of the press unable to operate under a direct price ceiling. Simply a study of this kind would not be compatible with the demoralized tempo of a free press."

WEDDING BELLS

McRAE - REID

For the second time in its 150 years history, the beautiful old church at Fourth Line, Odessa, was the scene of a wedding at three o'clock Wednesday afternoon, August 26th, when Marjorie Helen, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Reid, Morven, became the bride of George Alvin Minor McRae, only son of Mr. George McRae and the late Mrs. McRae, Lonsdale.

Rev. Walter Merrick, Selby, officiated and Mr. Harry Hagerman, the Fourth Line minister, assisted at the ceremony.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with ferns, gladioli and other summer flowers.

Wedding music was played by Mrs. James Robson and during the signing of the register the Misses Mary and Helen Reid sang, "I Love You Truly."

To the strains of the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin, the bridal party entered the church. The pretty bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white chiffon over taffeta, fashioned on classic lines, with wide shirring at the waist and softly draped neckline. Her full length veil was of fine net, falling gracefully from a coronet of lace and pearls.

She carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses and bouvardia with a trailing spray of Scotch heather. Her only ornament was a beautiful pearl necklace belonging to her grandmother, Mrs. Curran.

The bride's sister, Miss Edna Reid, was maid-of-honor. She wore a heaven blue gown of chiffon with a matching brocaded bolero. The groom's cousin, Miss Mary McRae, was bridesmaid, wearing a gown of pink chiffon with jacket effect. Halos of matching flowers graced their hair and they carried colonial nosegays of asters, gladioli and roses.

The best man was Claude McRae, cousin of the groom. And the ushers were Clifford Boothe and Harold Kimmerley.

Following the wedding ceremony, Homa Marguerite, the baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Reid, and first cousin of the bride, was christened. She was dressed in a lovely embroidered pink silk dress with matching poke bonnet and carried a tiny bouquet of pink and white sweet peas.

The bridal party left the church as the organist played Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

A reception was held at the Supreme Restaurant, Napanee, where the bride's mother received, wearing a becoming gown of navy alpaca crepe with white embroidery, and a large navy hat. She wore a corsage of pink sweet peas. Mrs. McRae, aunt of the groom, chose a blue sheer frock with matching hat and accessories.

The two grandmothers also received the guests. Mrs. Helen Curran wore a gown of figured sheer with navy blue accessories. Mrs. C. F. Reid chose a gown of black alpaca crepe with white embroidery and black accessories. Both wore corsages of mauve sweet peas.

Dinner was served to about seventy guests. The beautiful wedding cake, which adorned the bride's table, was made by her mother, Mrs. Reid. Mr. Ryckman Reid, uncle of the bride, was toastmaster. Toasts were present from Kirkland, Marysville and Ottawa.

The groom's gifts to the organist and the maid of honor, the bridesmaid and the ushers were cuff links and compacts and to the best man and ushers, leather billfolds.

The happy couple left amid showers of confetti for a motor trip to Ottawa and Montreal. For travelling the bride chose a smart air force blue suit with white and navy accessories and wore a corsage of roses.

Upon their return the young couple will reside at Lonsdale.

Magistrate's Court

In the Magistrate's Court, Monday, William Craven, South Fredericksburgh, pleaded guilty to assaulting Edward Parr and paid a fine of $1.00 and costs of $19.65, imposed on him by Magistrate Garvin.

Mr. W. S. Herrington, K.C., counsel for Mr. Craven, in a statement to the Magistrate before his client pleaded, said that Mr. Craven was guilty of technical assault under great provocation. Mr. Herrington added that Mr. Craven did only what most people would have done under the same circumstances.

In stating the facts of the case, Mr. K. S. Ham, the Crown Attorney, said that Mr. Parr had found several of Mr. Craven's cattle in his garden and had told Mr. Craven and asked him what he intended to do about it. An argument followed and Parr called Craven a ----- liar. Whereupon Parr was ordered off Mr. Craven's property. He did not leave and Mr. Craven used forcible means to eject him.

The Magistrate advised Mr. Craven to take steps to prevent his cattle getting on Parr's property.

Thomas Smith, Kingston, pleaded guilty to careless driving and paid $10.00 fine and $3.00 costs.

SHELLAC SUPPLY TO BE CONSERVED

With a view to conserving supplies of shellac, a material which must now be hundredfold because of shipping and other difficulties, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has ordered that it may be used only in ways formerly in certain purposes which are set forth in an Order of the Oils and Fats Administrator, Phyllis G. Turner.

She has further ordered that for the purpose of essential industrial use within hundredfold, the essentiality of which shall be determined by her, permission much be obtained in writing from the Administrator to use in any three months' period from September 30th next even 75 per cent. in bleached shellac of the quantity or all shellac used for any such purpose by such person in the corresponding three months' period of 1941.

The Order also requires any person who has in his stock, possession or control, any shellac in its dry state or form, to file with the Administrator not later than two days after the close of each calendar month, a report, therein prescribed form, and the maintenance of complete records of any transaction concerning shellac is furthermore required.

MAXIMUM PRICES FOR EGGS FIXED

An order setting maximum wholesale prices of eggs, based on prices set in all cities which serve as the principal distributing points, has been issued by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Effective August 20th, it establishes some price differentials to maintain uniformity of supplies and sets maximum retail markups. The maximum price which wholesalers may charge at Montreal for grade A large eggs is 50 cents a dozen and at Toronto 49.5 cents. These ceiling prices represent a wholesaler's delivered cost, including all his packing charges except carrying. Eggs packed in dozen cartons by either wholesaler or retailer may not be increased in price more than two cents a dozen. At points not designated in the order, the grade A delivered price must not exceed the price at the nearest designated point plus normal freight charges.

CHANGE CHORES TO CHEERS

Hello Homemakers! To-day each of us should be graced to a high degree of physical fitness. Civilians can help win the war by developing more strength of body and mind through watching the foods they eat and the things they do.

Fatigue is too common an ailment. Despite tremendous food resources and medical facilities, illness whittles down our production efficiency. As we all know, thousands have been rejected for active service due to their low health standard. So it's easy to see that we need to check up on our habits.

Let's change chores to cheers by making our motto: work while you work; play while you play; have eight hours' sleep and good food for your keep. Make sure of sufficient exercise; correct foods for your particular needs, and healthful recreation. Doing your chores cheerfully is not only an emergency necessity — but a long-range objective for happy, purposeful living.

Mix and sift the flour, soda and salt and stir in the flour and prunes mixed with melted butter and buttermilk to molasses. Pour into dry ingredients, stirring only until moistened. Put into a greased loaf pan (about 4 x 9) and bake in an electric oven at 350 deg. for one hour. Serve hot or cold.

Cheese Fondue

One cup grated cheese, two tea spoons fat, one cup milk, one teaspoon salt, three eggs, one-eighth teaspoon mustard, one cup bread crumbs or cooked rice or left-over cereal.

Heat egg yolks slightly, add mustard, salt, milk, fat and cheese, fold in beaten egg whites. Pour into a baking dish and cover with a wax paper. Steam for 40 minutes and brown in electric oven with top element turned to Low or place on lowest shelf with top element "On".

Julienne Salad

Arrange crisp shredded lettuce, endive or chicory in salad bowl, put julienne (thin) strips of beets in centre. Mix strips of cooked green beans and cubes of cucumber together. Add to salad bowl. Chill in electric refrigerator. Serve with Curry Dressing.

TAKE A TIP

Cleaning an Electric Refrigerator

1 If the machine does not automatically defrost, turn the dial to defrost when the ice is about three-quarter thick on the unit. Remove the cube trays and wash in clear water.

2 Wash interior of refrigerator and shelves with a new cheese cloth dipped in a solution of baking soda and water. Dry with another clean cloth.

3 Odours can usually be removed by placing a saucer containing charcoal or dry baking soda in the lower part.

4 For oiling, follow the manufacturer's directions if unit is not hermetically sealed.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. S. A. Asks: Should the string of wax beans be removed before they are canned?"

Answer: Bacteria are generally found in this part but if they are young and tender, it is not necessary.

Miss B.C. asks: "Is there anything less expensive than lemon juice to prevent discoloration before canning?"

Answer: Two teaspoons salt to each quart of water is sufficient to add to peeling water.

EGGS — WHITE OR BROWN

This Morning On Millions Of Breakfast Tables

Eggs helped to get the families off to a good start for the day and in millions of other homes eggs will continue the good work at lunch and dinner. In various dress as golden scrambled, poached on toast, hard or soft in their shells. Sunnyside up with ham, or hidden away in muffins or dessert — eggs are good for us at any meal.

A "Must" Food

Eggs are one of the "must" foods. Even when budgets are limited, at least three or four eggs a week are needed for each person. If possible, one egg a day for each child, and each grown-up is recommended and sometimes two.

What's In An Egg ?

Eggs are rich in:—
Iron — one of the minerals our bodies need.
Vitamins A and G.
Good quality protein — important for children.
They contain also some Vitamin D.

Styles In Shells

Some people like white shelled eggs while others prefer them brown. The color of the shell is related only to the kind of hen. Leghorns lay white eggs, and other hens lay brown eggs. The color of shell has nothing to do with age, condition or flavor of eggs. Flavor depends mostly on what the hens eat. Grade for grade, white eggs and brown eggs are the same.

Yolks — Light Or Dark ?

Many people think the color of the yolk indicates its "freshness" — the orange ones being older. This is not true for color depends on the hen's food and may vary from light yellow to deep orange and the egg still be of excellent quality.

Coolness Preferred

Once a good egg, not always a good egg — unless properly cared for. Eggs, like milk, are perishable, and should be kept in a cool place — in your refrigerator, if possible.

The Art Of Cooking Eggs

High temperatures make egg white tough. To-day, the best cook does not boil eggs. Instead she puts the egg in cold water, brings it to a boil, covers, and turns off the heat. The egg should stand in the water for three minutes (soft cooked) and 20-25 minutes (hard cooked).

Scrambled eggs are best cooked in a double boiler, instead of directly over the heat. A moderate oven should be used for such dishes as custards, soufflés, and cakes.

On the Vitamin Chart, free on postal card request to the Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road, Toronto, you can further explore the importance of eggs in your diet.

DO NOT PUT HONEY IN A REFRIGERATOR

In order to preserve the delicate flavour of the essence of flowers in honey during storage, attention should be paid to several important points. First and foremost, wherever honey is stored, the place must be dry. Hence a dry kitchen shelf is a suitable spot for comb honey in which all the aroma of flowers is locked in its cells, while a dry cellar is ideal for the storage of extracted honey, but the cellar must be really dry.

Honey, states W. A. Stephen, Bee Division, Dominion Experimental Farms Service, should not be stored in an ice-box or in a refrigerator, because, just as honey has incorporated the smell of flowers, so it will gather up the odours of other foods. Further, as the relative hufnidity in ice-boxes or refrigerators is high, honey will absorb the moisture in the air. It is for this reason that honey should not be kept in a damp cellar. Comb honey should be kept until it is to be used in the carton in which it was packed, and with reference to liquid honey in containers. It should be remembered that the friction top lids are not airtight. They should be replaced and pressed down after removing what honey was required. This will help retain the essence of flowers in the honey.

SERVE PEACHES OFTEN FOR TASTE ANDD VITAMIN A

This year an excellent crop of peaches is expected in both Ontario and British Columbia. The fruit is not only delicious to eat but contains considerable amounts of precious vitamin A.

"Serve them often in their natural state while in season and can quantities for winter months," advises Consumer Section, Department of Agriculture. Peaches are a sweet fruit and may be canned successfully in a light syrup (one cup sugar to two cups water). Home economics experts of the department who have been testing and re-testing recipes in keeping with the sugar allowance, advise that if directions are followed accurately no one should lose a single jar.

The recently developed "Y" peaches in Vedette, Valiant, Veteny and Veteran, are now grown extensively in both east and west. The fruit is large, of good quality, semi-free to large stone and largely replaces the Crawford. There is practicable a continuous supply from the middle of August until well into September, the season finishing with the Elberta, the latest ripening variety. In some districts particularly in British Columbia, the Vedette is preferred for canning purposes while the Valiant seems favored for canning under Ontario conditions.

Following are two methods found most satisfactory. In the oven method it was found best to prepare the fruit before packing in jars. More fruit can be packed in each jar and it helps to prevent darkening often found in the oven method.

Canned Peaches (Oven Method)

Select firm, ripe peaches. Immerse in boiling water for three minutes. Cold dip, peel and remove pits. Pack halved or sliced peaches into clean jars. Fill with boiling syrup (one cup sugar to two cups water) boiled three minutes. Partially seal. With wire clamp jar against the rubber ring but do not spring down the lower one. Bake in oven to keep syrup hot, then immerse jars in hot water in large pan. Process in water bath for twenty minutes, counting the time from when water begins to boil. Remove from water bath and tighten tops.

Kitchen brands, heart and liver should be cooked as directed. Cooked liners because they furnish so much food value.

Always serve pork well-cooked.

Crackers can be restored to their original crispness by placing them slowly in the oven.

With every glass of whole milk there's present in fat, calcium, phosphorus, milk sugar, and some vitamins added in the gift.

Care in cooking cheese is absolutely necessary. Temperature must be kept low — the cheese should merely be heated enough to melt it. Overcooking hardens cheese and makes it stringy.

SUGAR ALLOWED FOR APPLES

Ottawa. (C.P.) — To encourage greater consumption of the earlier varieties of apples, which are in surplus supply this year, S. R. Noble, sugar administrator of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, announced that "until further notice" domestic consumers may purchase by voucher or extra sugar at the rate of one pound per eight pounds of such apples consumed in the household.

This is equivalent to one pound of sugar for a six quart basket of apples or five pounds a bushel box, crate or hamper.

As apples are not preserved, this rate has not hitherto qualified for the issue of sugar on purchase vouchers.

Mr. Noble said, "The extra allowance of sugar now authorized may be regarded as inadequate to take care of fruit requirements for cooking apples, but the prevailing coupon ration of sugar, one-half pound per person per week, is intended to cover ordinary cooking needs.

"The extra allowance is therefore an encouragement to housewives to do more cooking of these early varieties than otherwise would be the case, and an additional incentive to make the best possible use of the large supply."

7,851 WOMEN OVER 70 GAINFULLY EMPLOYED

Ottawa. (C.P.) — A valiant brigade of elderly Canadian women — 7,851 in all — is engaged in gainful occupations, although they are seventy years old and more, a survey of Canadian labor reserves showed.

The revelation of their numbers was an incidental discovery of a Dominion Bureau of Statistics study of the number of women who might be called on as the labor requirements of Canada become increasingly severe.

LARGEST SOURCE OF SUPPLY

The largest source of future labor supply is among married women between 15 and 44, the survey showed.

Widowed and divorced women continued most largely to be the outer membership of the "over-70-and-still at-work" club. Of 98,453 women in the classification, 4,695 were gainfully employed, or 4.74 per cent. Single women more than 70 numbered 18,620 and 2,636 or 14.16 per cent. were still working.

Only 3.6 per cent. or 350, of the married women of more than seventy were engaged in gainful occupations.

OLDER SINGLE WOMEN

More than 39 per cent. or 13,194 of the single women between 65 and 64 are gainfully occupied, and 27.55 per cent. or 3,282 between 65 and 69.

Only 7.49 per cent. or 15,48 married women between 65 and 69 are gainful occupation.

Among the widows of 42,68 between 55 and 64 the 4,238 are gainfully employed, and 13.04 per cent. or 1,5 those between 65 and 69 a

Many Prosecutions Made By Prices - Trade Board

Twenty-three completed prosecutions within one week for infractions of the prices, rentals, rationing and other regulations administered by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board are pointed to by C. G. MacOdrum, its Regional Enforcement Counsel, as evidence that success is attending its enforcement programme. Total fines accompanying the convictions in question reached the sum of $797.50.

Of the 23 prosecutions, 11 were for infractions of the rentals regulations, four of them being in Quebec, four in British Columbia and two in Ontario. The fines ranged from $10 to $50.

Of eight prosecutions for violation of the ceiling on prices, five related to meats one to bicycle tires, one to used goods and one to meals. Four of these prosecutions were heard in Quebec courts, three in Ontario and one in Saskatchewan. The heaviest fine was one of $200 (with costs) paid by a Quebec merchant for exceeding the maximum prices for beef. Ottawa and Eastview meat dealers each paid $100 and costs for similar offences. In Prince Albert, Sask. Mah Jong Post Office Cafe was fined $25 and costs for illegally raising the price of meals.

For making retail deliveries of certain goods having a total value of less than $1, an order of the Board having thus been contravened, Paul Rheault (Epicerie de France), Montreal, was fined $25 and costs.

Enforcement of the sugar rationing regulations is also being conducted. Mr. MacOdrum pointed out. Within the past week there have been three prosecutions for their contravention. At Cote St. Michel, Que., A. Spenzia, charged with hoarding 400 pounds of sugar, was fined $100 and costs, or the alternative of three months in jail. Walsh Brothers, partners in a retail grocery business in Saint John, N.B. were fined $25 after they had pleaded guilty to selling sugar to consumers who presented rationing coupons before their valid date, and in Trail, B.C., John Nolan was fined $7.50 and costs for having acquired a greater amount of sugar than the two weeks' ration allowed himself and his household. Changes in the number of boarders in his house was taken into consideration in imposing sentence.

Mr. MacOdrum pointed out that in a few cases where charges were dismissed, appeals from magistrates' decisions will probably be taken.

The Great Gardini Is In Belleville Jail On Fraud Charge

The Great Gardini, the man who had more tricks up his sleeve than any other man in seven counties, is in Belleville jail and appeared last Thursday, on a serious charge.

His name is Vincent Harrison and he has been stationed with the R.C.A.F. in Trenton for some time. During the winter months he has been quite active, appearing as a magician at many of the concerts and parties, and putting on a good show. For the Great Gardini, as he called himself on the platform, is probably one of the best magicians in the business.

FRAUD AND FORGER

However, he is now in the toils and he has some explaining to do. Of course it is for the courts to decide whether or not he is guilty of any crime, but he will answer to a charge of fraud and forgery.

For some time Canadian National Railways officials have had an influx of allegedly forged week-end railway tickets from Trenton to Montreal and return. Special Constable Hendricks found the numbers of week-end special rate tickets from Trenton to Montreal were being purchased, the lettering Cobourg erased, and Montreal, P.Q. substituted.

Harrison was arrested Monday after investigations had been completed.

SALVATION ARMY "HOME FRONT"

SALLY EXPLAINS

Beloved friend of the soldier of the first great war and untiring social worker for the past sixty years, The Salvation Army is the victim of a misunderstanding which must be explained to the people of Canada. "Sally", as the Army was affectionately called by the fighting men of 1914-18, is in need of funds to carry on her valued social work on the home front and is making a Canada-wide appeal in September with the full approval of the government at Ottawa.

During the recent Red Cross drive the point was raised in some that it would be the only drive for funds during 1942 since the Dominion Government was financing the war work of all other organizations such as the Y. M. C. A. Canadian Legion, Knights of Columbus and The Salvation Army. While the statement was made in all sincerity at that time, it was not realized that it failed to take into account the valuable work that is being done by The Salvationists among our civilian population.

When that fact was pointed out to government officials they quickly recognized their error and granted permission for a nation-wide appeal but the damage had already been done and The Salvation Army is faced with the task of correcting the misunderstanding in the minds of most Canadians.

The appeal, to be asked will, of course, be much smaller in proportion to the sum realized by the Red Cross but the need is great and the record of The Salvation Army in all branches of social service shows them deserving of the fullest support.

Canadians, no doubt, will understand the position or our "Sally" and make her task easier with a fine spirit of generosity when the appeal is made in September. "As ye sow, so shall ye reap," and if The Salvation Army receives the wholehearted support that it gives our men in the fighting forces its modest request for funds will be far exceeded.

V. G. (JIMMY) RONEY ...APANEE'S FIRST ...AR CASUALTY

Parents Advised Missing Believed Dead

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Roney, Napanee, received a wire from Ottawa last week advising them that their son, William George (Jimmy) Roney, R.C.A.F., was missing and believed dead. Word came from Ottawa in July that their son was reported missing July 22, following action over Germany.

Last week's telegram was sent after word had been received from Germany, through the medium of International Red Cross, that the plane in which Sergt. Roney was flying as Wireless Air Gunner, had been downed in Germany and the crew was all killed.

Jimmy Roney, as he was known to all his friends, was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Roney. He was born 22 years ago in Deseronto, and lived in Napanee since infancy. He attended Napanee Public and Collegiate. As a boy and man he was greatly interested in music and had been a member of the Napanee Rotary Boys' Band and the Town Band. He was an accomplished cornetist and frequently played solos at concert's and entertainments, and played in orchestras from time to time at many places in this district.

He joined in the R.C.A.F. in 1940, and after spending some time at Trenton, Ont., he trained at Brantford, Montreal, and Moncton, New Brunswick. He went overseas in March, 1941. He took part in several raids on the German city of Cologne, Essen and Hamburg.

His death is the first of all the Napanee boys, who have enlisted in the three armed services of Canada. He was one of the most outstanding men in the town and district known, to a large circle of friends.

He is survived by his parents, two sisters, Mrs. Ross Wilson and Mrs. Eileen Mosier, and Minnie (Mrs. Norman Mowers), all at home.

JAIL MAGICIAN IN TICKET CASE

'GREAT GARDINI' GIVEN THREE-MONTH SENTENCE

Corporal Vincent Harrison, known to airmen and civilians alike in this district as "the great Gardini" was sentenced to three months in jail by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd here today when he pleaded guilty to four charges of issuing false documents.

He was also placed on a year's suspended sentence after three months is served.

Gardini, who has mystified many an audience with his sleight-of-hand tricks and mystic art, failed to mystify the police when they began investigating an influx of forged railway tickets. Many were traced and chased at Trenton for short destinations, others for return tickets, and the word "Cobourg" was erased and "Montreal" stamped on its place. The same was done with the Napanee tickets.

In this way the airman was purchasing a ticket costing about $1 and making a trip costing $6.

V

QUICK RESULTS

It pays to advertise in "The Beaver."

QUOTAS FIXED FOR NEW TIRES

Priority Users Given Preference by Ottawa

An order providing quota restrictions by districts on tire replacements, issued by the Munitions and Supply Department topped the week-end issue of official Government announcements.

The plan which will limit various Canadian districts to specific quotas, will allow only enough new truck tires for sixty per cent. of present needs and new passenger tires for a group of essential vehicles, it was estimated by Ian H. Williamson, Controller of Supplies.

Tire-rationing representatives in each district have been instructed to give preference to users with a place on the priority list, and new tires will not be available for trucks used exclusively for transportation of luxury articles and services, the announcement said. Quota figures will not be publicized because they would reflect too closely on war activity in certain regions.

Dorothy Dumbrille Writes Poem for Day of Prayer

The poem "Reconsecration" written by Dorothy Dumbrille Smith, Alexandria, daughter of the Venerable Archdeacon and Mrs. Dumbrille, Rector of St. Mary Magdalene's Church, Napanee, was used as a hymn on Sunday morning at the National Day of Prayer Service in St. Mary Magdalene's Church. The same poem was also used by the T. Eaton Co., Toronto in a full page in the Toronto papers on Saturday drawing attention to the National Day of Prayer. The poem follows:

RECONSECRATION

God, Per this Canada of ours,
This dear old land, so greatly blest,
Take all I have, and all I am,
And use me, as Thou deemest best.
No path too hard to keep my feet,
No sacrifice can be too great,
To this great cause—a ransomed world—

Myself, anew, I consecrate.
To all the young and valiant hearts
Who go to meet Death in the skies,
I dedicate, in memory
The love that knows no end.
To sailors on the mighty deep,
Who guard our shores and keep Us free,

I thankfully this pledge renew
With all my heart's sincerity
For blessings of our unscarred earth
For freedom here, from shore to shore,

For harvest, and the gift of home,
I thank Thee, Lord, for evermore.
I pray for rest for weary ones
For stricken ones release from pain,
For those whose grieve away from home
The joy of living once again.
That right may triumph over wrong,
That Nazi tyranny may cease,
That in Thine own good time, O Lord,
Shall come the day of lasting Peace.

USED MILK CANS TO HOLD GASOLINE

Belleville. — Milk cans are to be used only to hold milk and not gasoline, Douglas Kimmett, Lennox County farmer, found out in court last week, but it cost him $5 and costs.

Kimmett pleaded guilty to the charge before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd, who pointed out that farmers, milk producers and any person coming in contact with such cans should not use them for anything else but milk or cream.

"It is contrary to the War Measures Act."

JAIL MAGICIAN IN TICKET CASE

'GREAT GARDINI' GIVEN THREE-MONTH SENTENCE

Corporal Vincent Harrison, known to airmen and civilians alike in this district as "the great Gardini" was sentenced to three months in jail by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd here today. He pleaded guilty to four charges of issuing false documents.

The magician, who has mystified many an audience with his sleight-of-hand tricks and escape act, failed to mystify the police when they began investigating an influx of forged railway tickets. The tickets were purchased at Trenton for short destinations, and personal inquiries from the word "Cobourg" was erased and "Montreal" stamped on its place, the same was done with the Napanee tickets.

In this way the airman was purchasing a ticket costing about $1 and making a trip costing $6.

QUICK RESULTS

In last week's issue of "The Napanee Beaver" Mr. Robert Reid, who lives on the farm formerly owned by C. A. Lake, Morven, advertised a Case 3-furrow gang Plow for sale. On Thursday, the day after the paper was issued the plow was sold, and within a short time after Mr. Reid had eighteen telephone calls and personal inquiries from prospective buyers from Newburgh, Enterprise, Cataraqui and many other places in the district.

It pays to advertise in "The Beaver."

QUOTAS FIXED FOR NEW TIRES

Priority Users Given Preference by Ottawa

An order providing quota restrictions by districts on tire figures for tires issued by the Munitions and Supply Department topped the weekly issue of official Government announcements.

The plan which will limit various Canadian districts to specific quotas, will allow only enough new truck tires for sixty per cent. of present needs and new passenger tires for a group of essential vehicles, it was estimated by Wan H. Williamson, Controller of Supplies.

Tire-rationing representatives in each district have been instructed to give preference to users with a place on the priority list, and new tires will not be available for trucks used exclusively for transportation of luxury articles and services, the announcement said. Quota figures will not be published because they would reflect too closely on war activity in certain regions.

MRS. REX EATON

Assistant Director of National Selective Service, who issues clear-cut explanations on women's registration.

Because registration of Canadian women will be compulsory under National Selective Service regulations, with the first group registering between September 14 to September 19, Mrs. Rex Eaton, Assistant Director of National Selective Service, has issued clear-cut explanations of who must register so that no women will break the law unintentionally.

The first group to register will be the age classes born between January 1, 1918, and December 31, 1922—in other words, women between the ages of 20 to 24 inclusive. All women must register, with one exception and that group is made up of the women who are employed and in possession of Unemployment Insurance Registration cards 411 and 413 and who are still working for wages or salaries and paying unemployment insurance. Inmates of institutions, such as hospitals, mental hospitals and members of religious institutions need not register.

Any women, however, who did register for unemployment insurance in April and are not now working for wages and salaries, must register again. Women who were registered last Spring but have now left jobs in which they were paying unemployment insurance for those which are not insurable must register again.

For example, a girl working in a factory in April, might have left now to take farm work or domestic service, both non-insurable industries. She would still have her unemployment insurance card as required but must re-register because she is not working in an insurable industry so that the National Selective Service offices would not have an up-to-date report of her employment.

Other groups who must register include housewives, domestic servants, nurses, typists, women employed in hospitals or charitable institutions, where they are not already registered, professional private duty nurses or probationers undergoing training to become professional nurses, women employed as teachers, including teachers of dancing and music who are not already registered; women employed as agents paid by commission or fees, such as real estate and insurance agents; and self employed women which will include those operating their own business, proprietors of beauty parlors, gift shops, etc.

Registration will be conducted in Unemployment and Selective Service offices (formerly Employment and Claims offices of the Unemployment Insurance Commission), where these are set up, and in rural areas registration will be at the nearest post office.

The form which the women are asked to fill out includes questions of their education and training and willingness to go into war work. After all this age group has been registered, the women who seem to be most likely prospects for work will be called for an interview with one of the personnel workers of National Selective Service. The interview will be detailed and explain to the women the urgency of their place in war production.

Mrs. Eaton stresses that all women must not expect to be placed immediately in some essential work, for we must realize that industry and essential occupations, such as nursing, social welfare and nutrition work must be carefully done. Registration will give Canada a complete up-to-date inventory of the workers available to keep guns, tanks and planes supplied to the men in the front lines. Eventually all women will be registered, but registration will proceed slowly until all groups are tabulated.

GENEROUS DONATION NAPANEE RED CROSS FROM MEXICO FRIEND

Gift of $1000 Received from Mrs. F. Lapum in Memory of Husband

At the Saturday meeting of the Red Cross Society, Mr. C. H. Lapum presented the local branch with a cheque for $1000.00 on behalf of his sister-in-law, Mrs. F. S. Lapum, of Mexico City, who gave the donation in memory of her husband the late Mr. Fred Lapum.

Mrs. Lapum, an active member of the American Red Cross, requested that the money be used in the Red Cross Clinic and for the comforts of war boxes.

Mrs. Herrington, the President of the Society introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Hubbard, a Belgian lady who came to Canada some years ago and helped to get back to the rest of her family in Belgium.

Mrs. Hubbard closed her remarks by saying that the Red Cross needs workers and helpers of all kinds and urged us all to carry on and be proud of our job.

ANTI-FREEZE IS ASSURED

OTTAWA TO MAKE ALCOHOL AVAILABLE

Passenger car and truck owners will be allowed sufficient alcohol for anti-freeze radiators this winter, but all types of more stable and antifreeze will be diverted to the making of explosives and other war chemicals, the Munition and Supply Department announced last week.

A new order issued by E. T. Sterne, chemical controller and W. R. C. Berkinshaw, chairman of the Wartime Industries Control Board, prohibits the sale of ethylene glycol type anti-freeze for use in trucks, motorcycles and passenger cars. A previous order banned the use of glycerine as an anti-freeze for motor vehicles.

Mr. Sterne said the supply of ethylene glycol in recent months has not equalled the demand for war purposes. "Immense quantities," he said, "are required by the United Nations for a multitude of war uses, many of them of recent discovery."

Ethylene glycol anti-freeze has been sold to the public under a variety of trade names. In limited quantities it will still be manufactured under the direction of the following equipment: Cranes, hoists, air compressors, power shovels, snow plows, stationary engines, graders, rollers, crushers, mixers, tractors, railroad car refrigerators, air conditioning equipment, sprinkler systems, hydraulic back pressure valves, pneumatic tools, hydraulic jacks, liquid controllers and transformers and power company heat exchanger units.

Dorothy Dumbrille Writes Poem for Day of Prayer

The poem "Reconsecration" written by Dorothy Dumbrille Smith, Lyndhurst, daughter of the Venerable Archdeacon Dumbrille, Rector of St. Mary Magdalene's Church, Napanee, was used as a hymn on Sunday morning at the National Day of Prayer Service in St. Mary Magdalene's Church. The same poem was also used by the T. Eaton Co., Toronto in a full page in The Toronto papers on Saturday drawing attention to the National Day of Prayer. The poem follows:

RECONSECRATION

God: For this Canada of ours,
This dearest land, so greatly blest,
Take all I have, and all I am,
And use me, as Thou deemest best.
No path too hard to keep my feet,
No sacrifice can be too great;
To this great cause—a ransomed world—
Myself, anew, I consecrate.

To all the young and valiant hearts
Who go to meet Death in the skies,
I dedicate, in memory
Their never-failing sacrifice.

To sailors on the mighty deep,
Who guard our shores and keep us free,

I thankfully this pledge renew
While still my breath I breathe sincerely.
For blessings of our unscarred earth
For freedom here, from shore to shore,

For harvest, and the gift of home,
I thank Thee, Lord, for evermore.
I pray for rest for weary ones
For stricken ones release from pain,
For those who serve away from home
The joy of Victory arms again.

That right may triumph over wrong,
That Nazi tyranny may cease,
That in Thine own good time, O Lord.
Shall come the day of lasting Peace.

GRASS ROOTS

There is something very significant about the meeting which was held last week in Port Hope. There, in Trinity College School, 150 lay men and lay women of the Conservative Party, selected from all parts of Canada, met to discuss the future policy of the party. This great party has not held the confidence of the Canadian public these last few years. Perhaps the main reason for the lack of appeal has been the lack of a constructive, progressive policy. The Liberal Party and the Conservative Party were much the same. The dividing line between them was pretty thin.

The failure to present such a policy was, quite probably, due to the unwillingness on the part of the leaders to recognize the impending changes in the political and social life of the country. The pent up forces of revolutions have burst their fetters. There is no use wondering if there is going to be a revolution, or if it can be avoided. The revolution is on now. We have only to think of the way in which almost all our normal modes of living are now under control to realize what revolutionary changes are taking place. The revolution is on now. We are in the midst of it.

To ignore this, to try and stem its movement, would meet with as little success as King Canute's attempt to thrust back the waves of the sea. For a party that aspires to Dominion leadership to hope to achieve office by appeals to party shibboleths is to condemn it to ultimate extinction. A party which will recognize the changing world order, and will give leadership in directing these changes in line with the best traditions of the past, while not fearing to adventure out on to new areas of life, will deserve and receive public support.

The C. C. F. has done a lot of spade work in preparation for the impending changes. It can no longer be laughed out of court as made up of impractical idealists. Recent elections have shown an increasing support of its policies and leadership by the voters. They have a policy; they have an objective, and they are aiming directly at their accomplishment.

It is a matter of history that a new cabinet is rarely entrusted with the peace programme following a war in which it held office. In Canada we may expect, in the natural course of events, that there will be a change in governments following the war. Who is to be enfrusted with the reins of government? Which party will win the support of the people? The Conservative Party will make a serious bid for power only if it has a vigorous modern policy. We must make no mistake about that.

That 150 rank and file Conservatives should meet and make plans is a hopeful sign — "a grass roots movement" — it has been called. They were not entrusted with the making of a platform, but they have given expression to certain governing principles which should guide the platform makers in the future. The Conservative Party has had a great past; it may have a great future if it is willing to cut the shackles which bind it to a social and economic order that is passing, and offers constructive direction to the revolutionary spirit abroad in the land. The meeting at Port Hope has pointed the way. It will be up to the party, as a whole, to adopt or modify the Port Hope suggestions, otherwise there will be keen disappointment throughout the country.

GETTING NEARER HOME

The change in our way of life is realized as each new regulation is passed having to do with the conservation of our resources. Who would have thought a year or two ago that we would not be allowed to buy a tube of tooth paste without presenting an old tube to the druggist or other salesman? We can well imagine what a howl from the public would have gone forth had such a regulation been put into effect before 1939. But we are living in a different world now. Many of the raw materials which we had easy access to, are now in the hands of the enemy. We had grown so accustomed to the things we used in everyday life that we never gave a thought as to where they came from or how they got to us. We took too much for granted.

More than that, we had become a prodigal extravagant people. We were prodigal of our land, of our resources, of almost everything. Indeed, we are picky and fastidious about our food even, scarcely ever giving a passing thought to the other half of the world, which was always in desperate hunger.

Now the stern necessities of war are teaching us the value of some things we had taken for granted, and imposing a discipline on us for which, in the long run, we will be much better as individuals and as a race. If out of the exigencies of war we learn to be less prodigal, less extravagant; if we learn that a balanced diet, and moderation in all things, are necessary to success in battle, it may well be we shall understand that a happy and contented peace can be secured only on the same basis.

V

THE FALL FAIR

The Fall Fair will be held in Napanee on September 28, 29, 30. It is an annual event of importance, both to town and rural dwellers. The crops have been unusually good, consequently we may expect a good exhibit. Prices are higher than they have been and there is more money in circulation. This should be an incentive to a large attendance.

Besides the purely agricultural feature of the Fair, there is much to be said for good clean wholesome entertainment which the Fall Fair provides. Even in war time, relaxation of a healthy sort is essential to public morale. The Agricultural Society goes to a good deal of labor and expense to provide entertainment, and should be encouraged.

A word of warning, however, is not out of place. There are always those who are ready at a Fall Fair, or other gathering of a similar sort, to exploit the public for monetary gain. For the past two years the midway feature at the Fall Fair has permitted games of chance, which are forbidden by law, and leave the Agricultural Society open to severe penalties. The enforcement of the law is placed on the officers of the Society, who may receive the co-operation of local or Provincial police. It is, unfortunately, all too true that many people are unable to protect themselves against those who would exploit their weaknesses. The Provincial Government has placed the responsibility for this, so far as the Fall Fairs are concerned, on the officers of the organization. With a little co-operation from the public these undesirable features of the midway can be eliminated and the patrons permitted to enjoy the wholesome fun of the Fair.

For the guidance of all concerned we append here an extract from the regulations: A Society may lose its claim to receive a grant under the provisions of section 24 of The Agricultural Societies Act, 1939, for the next ensuing year if it permits any of the following on the lands during the holding of its annual exhibition: (a) Any gypsy to operate.. (b) Fortune telling or palmistry reading except when the moneys obtained for such fortune telling or palmistry reading are for charitable or philanthropic purposes. (c) Any kind of slot machine. (d) "High pitch men" who operate gain auctions. (e) Any of the following games: Dice, Crown and Anchor, Shell Roll-Downs, Bucket, Three Card Monty, Dice, Swing 'Ball, Punch Board, Coin Table, Money Wheels, Nail Games, or any game which involves the tossing of coins. (f) Any game for which no prize is given. (g) Doubling or pyramiding of prizes won at any game. (h) A charge of over twenty-five cents for a game. (i) The operator of any game to repurchase any prize won by a player at such game. (j) Indecent burlesque shows, including muscular dancing. (k) Any newspaper or magazine subscription agents, except local persons known to the officers of the society.

CHURCH LEADERS AT BELLEVILLE

Tomorrow — Wednesday — the General Council of The United Church of Canada, will meet at Belleville. This gathering is made up of ministers and laymen in equal numbers chosen from all parts of Canada, Newfoundland, and Bermuda, along with representatives from among the foreign missionaries home on furlough. As the General Council meets only every two years, this is the tenth such gathering since the United Church came into being. Never before has the Council met in this part of the country, though it has met both in Montreal and Toronto. The last meeting was in Winnipeg in 1940.

In connection with this meeting a pilgrimage will be held on Saturday afternoon to the Old Hay Bay Church. This is the oldest United Church — formerly Methodist — in Upper Canada, being built 150 years ago. On Saturday a brief service will be held in the old church and will be attended by the commissioners. It is expected 150 will make the trip by motor from Belleville. The speakers on this occasion will be the present Moderator, Rt. Rev. A. S. Tuttle, D.D., and the Editor of The United Church Observer, Rev. A. J. Wilson, D.D. After the service, lunch will be served by the ladies of the Adolphustown Circuit, in whose area the Hay Bay Church is situated.

Meeting as it does in the midst of war conditions, the Court of the United Church will take on a new significance. There are important matters of organization to be discussed. But there will be other concerns on which the Court will make pronouncements. It will have something to say about the farmers' problem, about workers in the mines and factories, about social conditions in various areas of activity. It will have something to say about the relation of labor and capital. It will face realistically the post war problems.

For these reasons, the General Council, which legislates for the largest Protestant body of Canada, will be listened to with some care by men and women scattered throughout the length and breadth of the country.

To have the privilege of attending such a gathering is one which should be taken advantage of by any one who can from this area be present at one or more of its sessions, and all who can should plan to accompany the pilgrimage to the Hay Bay Church on Saturday, there to do honor to those of our own County who years ago hewed out homes from the forest and established our life on a strong and equitable foundation.

OTTAWA EXPLAINS REGULATIONS

Toronto, (CP.) — Although new ration books have been issued, coupons on temporary ration cards issued July 1st are still valid, representatives of the ration section of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board announced last week.

The "EXCESS" coupons for tea and coffee were valid on and after August 3rd and could be used any time. Sugar ration coupons were valid on successive dates, the last becoming valid August 26th, but could be used any time after that date, ration officers explained.

GOVERNMENT INSURANCE IN CASE OF WAR DAMAGE TO PROPERTY

OWNERS OF PROPERTY ARE URGED TO INSURE AGAINST LOSS BY ENEMY ACTION

The Government of Canada, by Act of Parliament, has set up a Plan of War Risk Insurance against damage to property caused by enemy action—by countermeasures taken against the enemy—by explosions of war munitions handled by third parties.

In terms of general information, it may be stated that the Plan provides a certain limited FREE COMPENSATION for damage to owner-occupied homes and to chattels, but the main feature of the Plan is that owners of most types of property can protect their property by PURCHASE of GOVERNMENT WAR RISK INSURANCE at very moderate rates.

This type of War Risk Insurance is not being sold today by private insurance companies, because of the risk involved. Consequently, the Government has established a national scheme to make it possible for each citizen in Canada to purchase the sense of security that comes from knowing that if his property does suffer war damage (and the war has come much closer to Canada in the last twelve months) he can call on the resources of Canada to help him make good his property loss.

HOW TO OBTAIN GOVERNMENT WAR RISK INSURANCE

The Fire Insurance Agents and Companies of Canada have volunteered to the Government the services of their extensive facilities and personnel, on a non-profit basis, thus avoiding the setting up of the large organization that otherwise would be needed to handle details of this nation-wide Government War Risk Insurance scheme.

YOUR FIRE INSURANCE AGENT OR COMPANY WILL GLADLY SUPPLY COMPLETE DETAILS OF THIS GOVERNMENT INSURANCE PLAN.

THIS ANNOUNCEMENT IS PUBLISHED so that the public may have notice of the Government War Risk Insurance Scheme. The information given above is not intended to be a complete resumé of the Scheme. Full information regarding conditions, exclusions, etc., is available elsewhere.

TO HOME OWNERS HOUSEHOLDERS and OTHERS

Limited free compensation is provided under the Act for War Damage by enemy action to owner-occupied homes up to $3,000. Damage to Householder's Chattels, up to $800—for those of his wife, up to $400—for each child under 16, up to $100—for others, not householders, up to $200.

No policies are needed in this classification but insurance additional to the above amounts may be purchased.

Ask any Fire Insurance Agent or Company for complete details.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, SEPTEMBER 13TH, 1942

JOSEPH SOLD INTO SLAVERY

Lesson Text? Genesis 37:26-36.

Joseph was not altogether blameless. There is no need to try and minimize the wrong which the brothers committed. They put the boy in the pit, leaving him to die, then they sold him into slavery. Both deeds were evil. Yet we can easily see that they were provoked into doing something desperate. Joseph was a younger son of a big family. He was a favorite son, and played into his father's hands by carrying tales about his brothers. He sought to curry favor with his father in this way. Naturally, this did not increase his popularity with the brothers. Then, too, he was a conceited fellow. He had dreams which he did not keep to himself, about his own popularity. No, family of boys wants to hear one of the group tell that some day they will have to bow down to him. Quite likely these vigorous hunters were loaded to action by their brother's manner. And in those days it was quite the thing to take law into one's own hands. So they got him out of the way.

Perhaps, too, there was a certain sense of justice in it. Jacob had been no saint in his youth. He had deceived Abraham, had got the birthright away from Esau, and now, in his old age, he loses his own son. That is the way it works out in life. Our sins catch up to us some time or other. We may think to escape, but sooner or later, justice asserts itself, and we have to pay the price. We pay in middle life or in old age for the sins of our youth. We may evade retribution, but not forever. Some day our sins find us out. Jacob was suffering now paying the penalty for the years of his own scheming indiscretions.

There was an expression of Divine guidance in the transaction, too. For through it God providentially cared for the family and for others when the days of famine and scarcity overtook the nation. Joseph became the instrument in God's hands finally for the salvation of the race. A study of the way in which God takes the evil of men and makes it serve his own purpose over ruling them for good, is illuminating in these days. We must not assume that though the present order is breaking up that this is the end of all. Nor need we suppose that the evil which Hitler has let loose in the world will be the last word. A thousand years in God's sight are but as yesterday, and, in the long run, God will bring out of the present holocaust a nobler and finer civilization.

It was a shock to the sensibilities of christian people even three or four years ago to read of this group of men selling a brother to slavery. Such things belonged — we do say, thought — to the dim and dreary past. And yet, within the past three years, we have seen thousands, yes millions, of men and women enslaved, some links always forged against their will to make a dictator's everlasting slavery is now the lot of a large section of the populations of Europe.

There will be required and demanded great loss of blood, great sacrifices, before freedom is restored. But a day will come when men shall be free, because freedom is one of his most cherished possessions, and he will not permanently relinquish it to some self appointed dictator.

It is well that this should be remembered, for there are those in this and other democracies now willingly forgoing their freedom that others may be free. But that this temporary condition should ever become permanent is unthinkable. It is this that the modern man like Jacob is comprehend. Pres. Roosevelt has so ably pointed out that there is more than one freedom. And to think men are free because they have been granted, or have secured, one or two types of freedom is not enough. Thousands, yes millions of men in the years to come the war will be won. But they will be free only within limits. They will be free to walk the streets, travel the highways, and ride the bumpers. But that sort of freedom was a phonic slavery. Whatever the future decides if it neglects, or fails to achieve freedom from want on a continent and in the other democracies, freedom to work and freedom to live, it will have failed.

"God moves in a mysterious way, His wonders to perform." So it may be if we had eyes to see. It would perceive through all the sorrow, struggle, and bloodshed of the present, Divine purposes unfolding. That is how it was with Joseph. That is the hope that sustains us in these dark and tear stained days.

FARM TOOL SHEDS VALUABLE SOURCE OF METAL SCRAP

Unsuspected sources of scrap metal are found in farm tool sheds, lofts and garages where long forgotten bits and pieces have been stored, and Mrs. Mabel McAlpine, Dist. Dir. Dorion and Mrs. Mabel Dorion, Dist. Dir. Deme Dorion, will have a busy time with their motors.

By September 15, no one may have more than 500 lbs. of scrap metal in his possession without a permit to resell, ruling of the Steel Controller. There's priceless war material in old binder and mower knives and guards; rake and harpoe teeth; metal from harness; bolts, nuts, rivets, staples, spikes and rusty nails, by the hundred and one odds and ends to be found thrown about in nooks and crannies.

When gathering these up, be on the lookout for scrap rubber, too, and bottles. They're all urgently needed now.

THE NEW INCOME TAX

PART I - As it Affects

SALARY AND WAGE EARNERS

1. Question: WHO MUST PAY?

Answer: All persons in receipt of incomes over $660 single—or $1200 married.

2. Question: WHAT FORMS DO YOU HAVE TO FILL OUT?

Answer: Unless you are single, without dependents, and not making payments for allowable personal savings (Item 1D), you should file Form TD-1 with your employer. Otherwise he must deduct the amounts provided by the Table of Tax Deductions for a single person without dependents or personal savings.

If ¼ or more of your income comes from salary or wages, you must file your 1942 Income Return by 30th September 1943. If your income is not over $5,000, and not over $100 from investments, you will use Form T1-Special; otherwise you will use Form T-1.

3. Question: WHEN AND HOW IS YOUR TAX COLLECTED?

Answer: Your employer is required by law to make deductions from your salary or wages on account of your 1942 tax during the period September 1942 to August 1943. Each deduction must be the amount provided by the official Table of Tax Deductions for your current rate of pay, and family status and personal savings as declared on Form TD-1 (Item 2 above).

The Table is designed to collect about 90% of the tax on your salary or wages, leaving a balance of not more than 10%, in most cases, (plus tax on your other income, if any) to be paid with your Income Return to be filed in September 1943.

If your salary or wages are less than ¼ of your income, you must pay tax on your other income by compulsory instalments. (See Part II below).

4. Question: WHAT CONSTITUTES TAXABLE INCOME?

Answer: Your income is made up of your full salary or wages before any deductions whatsoever, plus living allowances, gratuities or bonuses (including cost of living bonus) and the value of any board, living quarters or supplies, etc., given you by your employer. It also includes such receipts as interest and dividends, rents (after taxes, repairs, etc.), royalties and annuities. From your total income you deduct payments (up to $300) into certain types of employees' superannuation or pension funds, charitable donations up to 10% of your income, and medical expenses over 3% of your income (maximum—$400 single, $600 married, plus $100 for each dependent up to four), to find the amount of your taxable income.

5. Question: HOW MUCH DO YOU PAY?

Answer: (A) Normal Tax—(whichever rate is applicable is applied to the full amount of your taxable income from the first to the last dollar).

(1) Single—with taxable income between $660 and $1800—7%
with taxable income between $1800 and $3000—8%
with taxable income over $3000—9%

(2) Married (or equivalent status)—
with taxable income over $1200—7%

(3) Dependents—tax credit for each—$28

(B) Graduated Tax—

(1) On first $660 of taxable income—No Tax.
10% on next $ 1,100 | 11% on next $ 1,000
13% on next 1,100 | 40% on next 7,000
15% on next 1000 | 41% on next 10,000
17% on next 1100 | 70% on next 20,000
19% on next 1100 | 71% on next 20,000
10% on next 3000 | 80% on next 30,000
11% on excess over $100,000

(2) Married (or equivalent status)—tax credit—$110

(3) Dependents—tax credit for each—up to $40

(C) Surtax—4% on investment income over $1100 without exemptions.

NOTES

(1) In no case are you required to pay a net tax (i.e., after credit for dependents) which would reduce your taxable income below $660 single or $1200 married.

(2) If a wife has earned income over $660, then both she and her husband are taxable as single persons, but not amount a wife earns does not affect her husband's right to be taxed as a married person. A married woman is taxed as a single person under all circumstances except only when her husband's income is less than $660.

A booklet entitled "YOUR 1942 INCOME TAX" will be available shortly at offices of Inspectors of Income Tax.

(D) Tax Credit for Personal Savings—
You may deduct from the savings portion of your tax (Item 6) 1942 payments on account of—

(1) an approved employees' (or trade union) superannuation, retirement or pension fund;

(2) premiums on life insurance policies issued prior to 23rd June 1942 (if issued after that date ask your insurance company or Inspector of Income Tax);

(3) annuity or savings policies not postponable without substantial loss or forfeiture, and

(4) principal payments on a mortgage of agreement of sale, existing prior to 23rd June, 1942, on owner occupied property, provided (a) they do not exceed the savings portion and (b) receipts are produced for the payments when filing your Income Return.

(E) National Defence Tax—
This tax does not apply after 31st August, 1942. The deductions made during January to August 1942 apply as a payment on account of your 1942 tax.

6. Question: HOW MUCH OF YOUR TAX IS SAVINGS?

Answer,

(1) Single—the lesser of
(a) ½ the total of your Normal Tax, Graduated Tax and Surtax, or
(b) 8% of your taxable income (maximum $800) plus 1% for each dependent (maximum $100 for each).

(2) Married (or equivalent status)—the lesser of
(a) ½ the total of your Normal Tax, Graduated Tax and Surtax, or
(b) 10% of your taxable income (maximum $1000) plus 1% for each dependent (maximum $100 for each).

You will get back the savings portion of your tax which you actually pay, plus 2% interest, after the war.

IN EVERY PLACE

A man who was obviously not a teetotaller entered a local English public house one cold night during a black-out. He began to behave rather badly, and the landlord refused to serve him.

He went out quietly.

After a little time he sneaked in the side-passage door. The landlord turned him out again.

About five minutes later he boldly walked in the front way. The exasperated landlord shouted at him to get out, or he would throw him out.

Magistrate's Court

On Monday, in the Magistrate's Court, Stanley Sexsmith was fined $15.00 and costs for driving his motor car on the highway at a greater speed than 40 miles per hour.

Mr. Sexsmith pleaded not guilty to the charge and his statement was supported by the evidence of his brother-in-law, Mr. Harry Nugent, who said that he was positive Mr. Sexsmith was not driving his car at a speed of over 40 miles when stopped by the Traffic Officer. Mr. Sexsmith admitted going at from 42 to 45 miles per hour while he was passing a car at the time, but said that afterwards he reduced his speed again to under 40 miles.

The Traffic Officer's evidence was that Mr. Sexsmith was travelling from 48 to 50 miles per hour.

Mr. W. S. Herrington, K.C., Counsel for Mr. Sexsmith, made an ardent plea for dismissal of the case, but the Magistrate, after hearing his judgment, said that in new high-powered cars, such as Mr. Sexsmith was driving it is difficult to guage the speed unless a close watch is kept on the speedometer.

Robert Caron, of Nicolet, Quebec, pleaded guilty to speeding on the highway, and paid a fine of $15.00 plus costs of $2.00.

How the Weather Man Aids Flying Operations

Weather and wind are not the same all over a country. They change too, from one hour to another. Many people don't realize this. Some time ago an officer asked for a weather forecast, and when the Meteorologist ("Met." for short) asked him the place and time, he said:

"Oh, I can't tell you that; it's too secret." I won't tell you what Met. replied!

Some ways in which weather affects air operations are obvious, others are not. A 100-mile per hour wind adds two hours to the time to Berlin and back for a 10-mile per hour bomber. A pilot does not gain on the swings what he loses on the roundabouts. A 100-mile hour rains one way, he loses two hours the other.

Aiding Atlantic Air Travel

A pilot's speedometer tells him only how fast he is moving through the air. It doesn't tell him his speed over the ground. Met. tells him how fast the air is moving and in what direction. This enables the pilot to tell his ground speed and his course, how he must steer to get on his target and whether he'll have enough gas to get there and back.

It's not only for bomber raids that wind matters. Aircraft are flying in all directions between America, Europe and Africa. They must know before they start what the wind will be at their flying level and it is by no means the same along the entire 2,000 or 3,000 miles of the routes. Actually, also the wind may be east at one height and west at another, or north or south, and pilots want to know which height to fly to get across on their gasoline.

Met. gives them this — up till now, accurately enough for their purpose. No planes have been lost through wrong wind information.

There's a special meteorological organization for the Atlantic flights, a joint enterprise, at first, between Britain and Canada and now between Britain, Canada and the United States. Speaking of the Atlantic Mr. Churchill doesn't fly to the United States or Canada and back safely regardless of weather. The same meteorological organization which gets the Bombers across got him across, too, and back.

Then there is cloud. Some operations can't be carried out if there is cloud, others can't be carried out without cloud. You can't take photographs of an objective unless it is from a height of 25,000 feet" if there's a cloud sheet at 8,000 feet, Am't your photographic days may be ruined forever if you try to go below the clouds to do it. You can't drop bombs on your target from 10,000 feet if there is a cloud layer below you. You can't find your own base sometime on a dark night if the cloud is so low that it touches the hills in the neighborhood.

On the other hand, cloud over heavily defended areas on the route to the target is helpful at night and almost essential by day. But it must be a cloud with lovers to line at flying height. It is Met's job to tell the air force what cloud there will be and at what height, and at what height they may get lying.

Thunderstorms are bad enough in the air themselves, but any time an aircraft they are specially dangerous, most so much because of the lightning which very rarely strikes an airplane, but because of the ice which they coat it with, and because of the violent currents which can be bad enough to take the wings off a large plane.

Then there is visibility —fog, mist and haze. What would be the use of sending 1,000 bombers to Cologne if all the pilots could see when they got there was the top of a layer of fog or if, when they got back home, their own airdromes were covered in fog? What would be the use of sending aircraft across the Atlantic if the airports were fog-bound when they arrived? An aircraft can't wait up until fog clears.

It's Met's job to tell the aircraft what the visibility will be — I said will be — not what it is now. It may be quite clear now and quite foggy in a few hours' time.

Consulted Met., Shot Two Jerries

Two months ago, on a certain night of a night fighter airdrome called in his Met. man about midnight and said: "Smith, Jerry's over." — Brookby has closed down. Buckley is closing down. How much longer will it be clear here?" Smith, who was a Met. man with me in France during the last war, had foreseen this and had his answer.

"I'll give you two hours, sir. There won't be thick fog before 2 o'clock."

"I'll have a go at him," was the reply. He went, and landed back just before 2 o'clock, after shooting down two enemy bombers. The airdrome was fogbound at 2.30.

Obliviously, the data involved in issuing this information can't be sent out on one man's weather knowledge, so the Met. men of the Bomber Commands and of the Bomber groups get together each day in a telephone conference with the Met. men at the headquarters. They decide between themselves what the weather will be for the raid and for the return home. They are a specialized "brains trust" and their conclusions are not academic, but vital for our bomber war.

WEDDING BELLS

BUFFAN — CRAIGEN

Bouquets of white flowers decorated the altar and seven-branched candelabra flanked the priedieu of Blessed Sacrament Church, Buffalo, for the wedding on Saturday, August 29th, at 11:30 a.m., of Miss Gertrude Craigen, of Buffalo and Napanee, Ontario, and William Henry Buffan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Buffan, of Arnprior. The Rev. Thomas F. Connors officiated. The bride was given in marriage by H. Frederick Hoeffle. She wore gown of white moussseline de soie and lace, Empire style, with fitted basque and full skirt with a court train. Her finger-tip length veil of French illusion tulle fell from a juliet cap of embroidered mousseline de soie, and she carried a spray of orchids on a white prayer book. The bride's sister, Miss Sadie Craigen, of Toronto, was maid of honor. She was gowned in pale pink net with fitted bodice and full skirt, and wore a matching head dress. She carried a round bouquet of pink roses and white gladioli. Best man was Corp. James E. Buffan, brother of the bridegroom, and the ushers included Ralph Nichols and Charles Phillips.

ON THE BEAM

MARVELLOUS MECHANISM THAT GUIDES, WITH UNERRING ACCURACY, THE FLYING WARRIOR HOME

"How does the bomber pilot find his way back to the aerodrome on a dark or foggy night ?" is a question often asked.

It is, of course, a matter of skill on the part of the navigator and the pilot, but their skill is aided by wireless. Before the war Croydon and some Continental aerodromes were equipped with a beam indicator device which enabled planes fitted with the appropriate apparatus to land with safety in pitch dark or fog. Several systems were being tried, and the needs of war have doubtless led to great developments.

The British standard beam system used by the R.A.F. brings the bombers home unerringly, even though it is officially regarded merely as a means of approach it has frequently been used as a blind-landing device.

On a wireless beam from the home base, signals are sent out which can be picked up a hundred miles away. To pick them up the man in the plane must switch on his selector and tune in to his home station's beam. If he is flying to the left of the beam he will hear in his head-phones a succession of dot signals, and if he is to the right the signals will be dashes. He corrects his course accordingly, and when he is directly on the beam and flying straight for home he hears a continuous and high pitched sound.

The signals become louder and clearer as he approaches his aerodrome. He receives the pilot lights which tell him when it is safe to lose height for a landing. The warning lights are sent as distinctive signals from wireless beacons, known as the outer and inner markers, and he receives the signals as he flies over them.

Knowing the positions of these, and knowing from other instruments the height at which he is flying, he is able to take measures to bring his plane to land; although by the time he has passed the second beacon he should be able to see his landing place, except in bad conditions when it would be necessary to make a blind landing.

Wonderful as the system sounds, this is not the whole story. For on the instrument panel in his cockpit the pilot shows the pilot his way home, as if to confirm what he hears in the earphones. If the plane is on its true course a long pointer remains in a central position, but deviations to right or left of it the plane deviates. Then, when the outer marker beacon is passed a light flashes as the distinctive signals are heard; and on passing over the inner marker another light flashes. As the machine approaches the aerodrome too, a little needle rises on a calibrated glide-path indicator, and shows the required gliding angle.

So the wireless beam leads the flying warrior home. Without doubt it has a big future in the days of peace to come.

TOOK THE TRICK

It was a country railway station, and the village was about a mile away.

A traveller, who was making a call in the village, asked if he might leave his bag there, as he was going away. The porter said: "Certainly, sir. But you should better put a label on it."

The traveller said he was afraid he had not got one, but after searching for some time in his pockets he produced an old pack of playing cards, and said: "Here, stick this king of hearts on."

About an hour later he returned and met the porter, who was grinning and chuckling. The traveller asking him what was the joke, and the man replied:

"Why, sir, just after you'd gone, a gentleman came along and took an ace of hearts out of his pocket. He put it on top of your king and went off with your box."

STEEL CRISIS FACES CANADA

Half a million tons of scrap iron and steel must be added to the piles throughout Canada before the threat of steel freeze-up the Department of Munitions and Supply has announced.

"Canada faces a steel crisis which can be solved only by the active co-operation of every farmer, every manufacturer, and every other owner of machinery," said F. B. Kilbourn, Steel Controller.

"If our steel mills are to keep up production programmes they must every last item of scrap iron and steel must be sold to the collection agent or given to a National Salvage committee within the next few weeks."

The Controller added that a recent order makes it illegal to hoard scrap except by permit, any obsolete machine which is not now serving a useful purpose. Such machines, the scrap iron and steel in all other forms weighing a total of 500 pounds or more, must be disposed of before September 15th, or otherwise must be reported to the Controller of Administrator of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Lumsden Building, Toronto.

"The order does not mean that essential machinery which will be used again next year should be scrapped," said Mr. Kilbourn. "On the contrary, it is essential that the fullest possible use be made of all existing equipment so that new steel need not be used in the manufacture of additional equipment."

The Controller added that the successful outcome of the war hinges on the ability of the United Nations to gather sufficient scrap iron and steel to keep pace with the war operation. "We need the scrap today," he said. "Tomorrow might be too late."

Premier to Consider Temperance Suggestion

Premier Mackenzie King, in a letter to the Canadian Temperance Federation, promised early consideration of suggestions by that body that the Government appeal to Canadian citizens to refrain from use of alcoholic liquors for the duration of the war, it was announced last week.

Rev. A. J. Irwin, Secretary of the Federation, wrote to the Prime Minister, supporting a proposal that emerged in Parliamentary debate on the liquor question urging civilians to curtail alcoholic use.

In his letter, Premier King expressed the view that "far greater and more lasting results will be achieved by persuasion than by coercion," and took occasion to express his "personal commendation" of the efforts of the Federation in the direction of temperance education.

MAKING I EASY

Walking into a hat shop in Birmingham, a sad-faced man said:

"I want a soft hat."

"Certainly, sir," said the assistant. "This is the softest we have."

The customer examined it carefully.

"What I want," he said, sadly, "is something—er—really tender. You see, I've lost a bet, and I've got to eat it."

The best man was Mr. Harold Grooms, brother-in-law of the groom.

A buffet luncheon was served and the happy couple left amid showers of confetti on a motor trip to Toronto and eastern points. The bride travelled in a moss green wool suit with brown accessories. On their return they will reside near Napanee, where the groom is a prosperous farmer.

Is it now ILLEGAL to HOARD scrap steel or UNUSABLE machinery

The Steel Controller has ordered that, after September 15, 1942, no person may retain in his possession scrap iron or steel weighing a total of 500 pounds or more unless he has a permit.

(For the purposes of the new regulations, scrap metal includes machinery, structural steel, or any other article or commodity containing iron or steel, which is not serving an immediate vital purpose.)

The order also provides:

That anyone, coming into possession after September 15 of scrap iron or steel weighing 500 pounds or more, must dispose of it within 20 days.

That any person having a valid reason for not disposing of scrap metal as scrap metal or who believes that it can serve some essential purpose, must send in a report by September 15 to the Steel Controller, Department of Munitions and Supply, Ottawa, Ontario. His report must reveal the exact description, quantity, and location of his scrap metal.

The provisions of the order do not apply to scrap dealers who are already subject to previous orders; nor do they affect metal fabricators and processors who are in legal possession of metal to be used in manufacturing.

A copy of the order, S.C. 16, may be obtained from the Steel Controller, Department of Munitions and Supply, Ottawa.

Infractions of the new regulations are subject to a fine of up to $5,000, or imprisonment of up to five years, or both fine and imprisonment.

HIS HAP-HAP-HAPPY DAY

Two women were talking in the butcher's queue.

"Is your husband musical?" asked Number One.

"Oh, yes," piped No. 2; "he plays the accordion."

"How nice," remarked Number One.

"I'm not so sure," sadly replied Number Two. "He plays tunes like 'Roll Out the Barrel,' and 'It's a Hap-Hap-Happy Day'—and he cries all the time."

"But why the dickers does he cry when he's playing happy tunes?" enquired Number One.

C. H. Lapum Died Suddenly Saturday Night

Mr. C. H. Lapum, one of the most widely known citizens of the County of Lennox and Addington died at his residence, John Street, Napanee on Saturday, September 5th. His death occurred suddenly as the result of a heart attack. During the previous afternoon Mr. Lapum had been down town on business and appeared to be in his usual good health.

Mr. Lapum had been for several years auditor for the County of Lennox and Addington and the Township of Camden, and had acted at various times in past years as auditor for several other municipalities in the county. During the last two Victory Loan campaigns he had acted as Secretary for the County organization and because of his knowledge of the county and its residents aided greatly in bringing the campaigns to successful conclusions. He was also Secretary-Treasurer of the Palace Road Telephone Company and conducted as well an insurance business. For many years Mr. Lapum was an expert Telegrapher and for some time was engaged with the C.N.W. Telegraph Co., in Montreal. He returned to Napanee about 25 years ago and remained here until his death.

Mr. Lapum was a son of the late E. S. Lapum for many years Treasurer of the Town of Napanee, and Mrs. Lapum, both of whom died several years ago. His only brother Fred Lapum die in Mexico about a year ago and he is survived by his wife, formerly Lorraine Patterson.

The fun ral was conducted at the Tennent and Wartman Funeral Home on Tuesday afternoon by Rev. G. M. Chidley, minister of Trinity United Church, of which the Lapum family had been members for many years.

Among the large numbers who attended the funeral were the members of the County Council, the members of the Camden Township Council, County Official, representatives of the Napanee Red Cross and many citizens of the Town and County.

Interment was made at Riverside Cemetery. The pall bearers were Messrs. G. S. Reid, County Registrar; H. L. Vanluven, W. S. Wilson, County Treasurer; J. J. Robbins, Fred J. Neilson, Reeve of Amherst Island; and Edgar Dow, Reeve of Camden.

The Late William T. Huff

The death occurred at Kingston, on Sunday, September 6th, of Wm. T. Huff, who had been a resident of the Bethany district for the past 29 years. Mr. Huff had been in failing health for some time, and his death was not unexpected.

He was born near Bethany about 86 years ago and for some years lived in the United States, before retiring from active work to return to Canada.

He is survived by his wife and two sons, Harry and Frank.

The funeral service was held on Tuesday afternoon at the Tierney Funeral Home and interment followed at Riverview Cemetery.

The pallbearers were: Messrs. Wilfred Miller, Wm. Goodman, Russell Paren, Roy Rombough, Frank Clark and Victor Marlin.

The Late Mrs. Adam Milligan

A very highly respected resident of Tamworth community, in the person of Mrs. Adam Milligan, formerly Miss Jennie Watters, passed away August 14th. Mrs. Milligan spent her entire life of 68 years in and around Tamworth. Forty-six years ago she was united in marriage with Adam Milligan. Five children were born to them, two of whom predeceased her many years ago.

Her home was always open to her pastor and all church organizations, she being a very active worker in church affairs, as well as in community affairs. She was a Past President of the local Women's Institute, and a District President of the W. I. As long as health permitted she gave of her best untiringly.

The funeral service was held at the United Church, where an extremely large congregation gathered to pay their last respects to a departed neighbor and friend.

She leaves to mourn, her loving husband and three sons, Claude, of Westwood, and Clarence and Roy, of Tamworth.

"How nice," remarked Number One.

"I'm not so sure," sadly replied Number Two. "He plays tunes like 'Roll Out the Barrel,' and 'It's a Hap-Hap-Happy Day'—and he cries all the time."

"But why the dickers does he cry when he's playing happy tunes?" enquired Number One.

The Nazis Overhaul Their Spy System

The Nazis have been forced to overhaul their intelligence and espionage system, disrupted by exposures at German spies and Fifth Columnists in the United States and Latin America, according to Die Zeitung anti-Nazi German newspaper published in London.

"The supreme command of the German spy system now has been transferred to Hitler's headquarters from which agents' activities' will be synchronized with military movements," the paper said, in an article reviewing the Nazi espionage network.

The spy ring is operated by three organizations, the Military Intelligence Department, the League of Germans Abroad and the Gestapo, it continued. Chief division officers representing each group have been established in the new headquarters, where orders are dispatched to the main branches and distributed centres for Nazi agents in Spain and Turkey.

The Spanish headquarters, named "Sturtzgruppe Spanien," has been transferred from Madrid to Vigo where the Gestapo headquarters for the Iberian Peninsula and North Africa have also been centred.

"Branch Istanbul" the Turkish control point for Nazi espionage for entry in the summer palace of the Grand Vizier and middle east, has been German Embassy at Istanbul, instead at Ankara. Its most important branch is in the offices of the German consul-general in Alexandretta.

Spies, trained in special centres, take a long course devised by Ernst Bebie of the German Foreign Office, the paper said. To be accepted as candidates they must have a high standard of fitness, a clean political record and ability to speak without accent the language of the country where they are to operate.

Prospective agents first are instructed by old experts, former leaders of Quisling groups, members of former German diplomatic groups, the so-called Aalsmith Gestapo and Fifth columnists who have been allowed to "settle in Germany."

The course for future American saboteurs is supervised by Fritz Thomsen, former German Minister to the United States; the Oriental course by Hans Grobba, former German Minister to Baghdad and the Arabian course by von Thermann, former German Minister to the Argentine.

For the second stage of their training candidates are posted to the military schools and subsequently to the pioneer troops, where they are instructed in sabotage methods and destruction, micro-photography, coding and in the transmission of information from radio to the treatment of carrier pigeons and making invisible ink.

Then they go to a naval or air group for map reading and drawing, parachuting and landing from a U-boat, the paper concluded.

RED ARMY'S STRENGTH IS SECRET

BY LOUIS F. KEEMLE

Prime Minister Churchill's return from Moscow has revived speculation in London on the possibility of a second front but there has not been the slightest indication that a full scale invasion of Europe is planned this Fall.

As the summer draws to a close, it seems increasingly less probable. It is obvious that if the British had felt capable of an invasion this summer, they would have launched it at a time when Hitler was deeply involved in Russia and had drawn on his strength in Western Europe

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN
Hydro Home Economist

SUCCULENT SEASONAL FRUIT

Hello Homemakers! It's the succulent fruit season — when meals are as husky as appetites. You will want desserts that are refreshing—tempting, juicy, raw fruits provide the answer. Since vitamins and minerals have made the headlines, we are "fruit-conscious" and we know, too, that raw fruits contain more of the necessary health-giving elements than cooked ones.

And don't forget that canteloupes, honeyballs, honeydew and Persian melons, and watermelons, require neither cooking nor sugar. Other refreshing fruits now in season are plums, peaches, pears and grapes—may be served either singly or combined in fruit cups.

When you bring your Red Cross committee home for lunch, it's easy and correct to serve a dessert of cracker and cheese along with a bowl of delicious plums or clusters of rich-looking grapes, washed and chilled. For effectiveness, mix your fruits and colours! Serve a deep purple plum with a golden peach and an ivory-white pear—lovely to look at, delightful to eat.

RECIPES

Honeydew Melon with Grapes

2 Honeydew melons, 1 bunch of white grapes (seedless preferred), 8 teaspoons corn syrup.

Cut melon into four pieces. Sprinkle each with a teaspoon of syrup. Arrange the sections of melon on a serving tray and garnish each with a small bunch of grapes.

Luncheon Fruit Plate

On the luncheon plate, arrange alternating and overlapping in a swirled effect. The sliced peaches and red apples, grapefruit sections and balls of melon. Provide French dressing, salad dressing or mayonnaise.

Three Melon Cup

In shallow glass plate first a row of cubed watermelon pieces, then one row of cubed canteloupe. Place Persian melon balls on top. Serve with a wedge-shaped piece of lemon or lime.

TAKE A TIP

Readers who mistrustfully inquire about saving hot water may like to be the limit of safety.

If the British were not ready in June or July, it does not seem probable that they could have accumulated enough additional strength in the short time since then to change the situation.

• • •

It is taken for granted that Churchill and Stalin are in complete agreement on the joint strategy of Russia and the United Nations. If it has been decided that invasion of Western Europe is not feasible this year, it is obvious that Stalin has given assurance that the Red Army can hold the German threats this winter and perhaps even start another counter-offensive on the long central and northern front.

That would mean Russia has considerable reserves, both in the north and very probably east of the Volga. Except perhaps to Churchill and his most intimate advisers, absolutely nothing is known of Russia's reserve strength. Perhaps even the German General Staff only has a sketchy idea, in the absence of a second front, it is, of course, not certain that there will be one—at least two courses are open to the Allies. One is intensification of the air war over Western Europe, the other a campaign in the Middle East. The first is certain and the second possible.

• • •

Since Marshal Erwin Rommel started his drive into Egypt nearly two months ago, the British have had time to get considerable reinforcements to the Middle East, even by the 14,000-mile route around the Cape of Good Hope. Reorganization of the British command indicates that the British are preparing for action there.

Romm'el, too, has been getting reinforcements but the British Navy and Air Force have prevented any steady flow. Reinforcements have been pushed through to Malta, from which land based planes menaced the shipping lane to North Africa and have been taking heavy toll of transports and supply ships.

It is in the air of Western Europe that the combined British and American air forces are capable of striking most damaging blows at Hitler and his war production.

• • •

The Allies have gained definite air superiority and there is no chance for Hitler to regain it now that Allied plane production has outstripped him and is increasing its pace. It may be noted that the large American convoy which has just been disclosed to have reached Britain was composed in large part of reinforcements and material for the United States Army Air Force.

United States Flying Fortresses are in continued action and in the last ten days have made five daylight attacks without losing a plane. The British are going on with night bombings and recently sent over an estimated 300 or more planes, despite unfavorable weather.

During September and October, there is due to be considerable good weather for day and night bombing. We may expect marked intensification of the destructive raids on Hitler's communication lines, factories and shipyards.

V

Party politics in Great Britain are out for the duration. Labor leaders sit in the Cabinet and on all important Government Committees, in the factories, joint labor - management committees work out production problems.

1. Never run a hot water tap any more unnecessarily.

2. Never let hot water taps drip.

3. Save all your personal laundry and do it all together.

4. Soaking dirty clothes overnight saves hot water.

5. Wash all preparation dishes along with the meal dishes, having thoroughly scraped them. Use washing soda in the water to remove grease.

6. Never wash under running water.

7. Fill the bath by running the cold water first, then adding enough hot water to make it lukewarm.

8. Use less water in your bath tub.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. B. D. asks: "What causes sweet peppers to become bitter when baked? Please publish tested recipe."

Answer:

Baked Peppers

1 can condensed mushroom soup 1½ cups cooked rice, 1 tsp. salt, hot peppers, 6 whole sweet peppers, 6 tbs. bread crumbs, 1 tbs. cooking fat.

Parboil sweet peppers for 5 mins. and then heat the soup, rice and pepper and pepper on the electric element turned to "off". Stuff peppers, cover with bread crumbs, dot with fat and bake in electric oven at 375 degrees for 25-30 mins.

Mrs. J. A. asks: "What quantity of apples will go with peaches for peach conserve?"

Answer:

Peach and Apple Conserve

1 lb. sliced peaches (about 1½ cups) 1 lb. apples, sliced (about 1½ cups) 1½ lbs. sugar (2 cups plus 1 tbs.)

Do not peel apples if the skins are tender. Put sliced peaches, sliced apples and sugar in a large preserving kettle and cook on electric element turned to medium and then to low until thick and clear (about 1½ mins.) Stir frequently to prevent burning. Pour in sterile jars, ½ cup Maraschino cherries may be added before the mixture is taken from the stove.

NOTE: It is most patriotic to can peaches this year — the season is short, but not for long.

Supply Line Via Belgian - Congo Speeds Delivery

This arrival of American troops in the Belgian Congo from the Premier Pierlot of the Belgian government in Exile, some interesting items of the Belgian Congo's importance to the supplying of war allies with the tools which keep them in the war.

Agorica is getting into full stride in her chief role. American motor machines are flashing side by side with others of the United Nations all over the world. American planes and tanks are playing a great part in the battle of Egypt while the fighting Chinese are being bolstered by an expanding American air force.

Less spectacular but just as important is the constant flow of supplies pouring from American factories to all the danger spots in the world.

Further revealed that the American troops in the Congo were preceded by American technical missions to re-orientate the flow of supplies across Africa to Egypt, the Middle East and the Far East.

With the opening of Equatorial Africa, the Belgian Congo becomes a highway of supply across Africa which is a short cut and a supplement to the long water route around the Cape of Good Hope. Referring to the Congo as a "great cross-roads of communications by air river and land, Pierlot said:

"Its air fields are multiplying in number and the amount of material carried by railway, road and water is constantly increasing."

The cross-Africa route long has been used to ferry bombers to the Middle East and for the transport of essential materials which can be carried by air. Pierlot's statement about the number of air fields indicates that fighter planes also may be crossing Africa under their own power, and that heavy material also is going overland.

Further indication of shipping space and time saved this route assumes a great deal of importance.

The Belgian Congo extends two-thirds of the way across Africa to the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan and British Uganda and Tanganyika. Communications in the Sudan undoubtedly are being expanded to give access northward to the navigable Nile and perhaps railroad to the American base at Eritrea, on the Red Sea.

The fight to get supplies through the frozen Arctic, around South Africa, across the stretches of the South Pacific and the Indian Ocean and now across Equatorial Africa forms a splendid chapter of the war effort which will be recorded along with military phases as a great achievement.

TRINITY WOMAN'S ASS'N

The first meeting of the season of Trinity W. A. was held on Tuesday of last week, with Mrs. F. H. Henderson presiding.

The meeting opened by singing the National Anthem, followed by a hymn.

Mrs. A. R. Davis took the devotional period and brought many inspiring thoughts by scripture reading and prayer. Mrs. Henderson thanked Mrs. Davis for her talk.

Mrs. Gro Reid gave the Treasury's report, reading many letters of thanks for letters sent during illness and bereavement.

Mrs. W. A. Ashley gave the Treasurer's report, which was encouraging.

Rev. G. M. Chidley, spoke of a committee to be organized to entertain the Air Force men from Collins Bay. Mention was made of the kindness shown our Canadian soldiers overseas. Mrs. C. Hewitt was appointed to form a committee to look into the matter.

It was decided to hold a cash canvas instead of a chicken supper.

The meeting closed with a hymn and the Mizpah Benediction.

BETHANY W. A.

The September meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of Bethany United Church was held at the home of Mrs. James Keech on Wednesday afternoon, with over 20 members and visitors present.

The meeting opened with the usual theme song and a brief devotional period.

Mrs. Wm. Dunn presented a very interesting program which included several solos, duets, readings. Mrs. Martin and Mrs. S. Lowe sang a duet, and Master Joe Laird rendered a solo. The Rev. A. C. McCallum gave a brief talk on the name of his respective native holidays, and read a number of patriotic poems written by Dr. W. A. Black, of Toronto, whom he had the pleasure of meeting.

The President, Mrs. Geo. Bartch, took charge of the regular business period. Mrs. J. Vanluven conducted her financial report which indicated liberal support on the part of each member. The Secretary, Mrs. Orland Martin, read the report of the last meeting.

It was with considerable regret the members received the resignation of Mrs. Jay Chase, who has moved to Napanee, while she continued in an active part in Red Cross and Community. Miss Marie Keech read an address of appreciation of the loyalty and services of Mrs. Chase as a Past President and faithful worker in the Ladies' Aid. Mrs. Victor Martin presented Mrs. Clark with a mahogany paper case as an expression of appreciation. Mrs. Clark suitably replied. The President, and Mr. McCallum, also added words of appreciation, and extended good wishes to Mrs. Clark in her new surroundings.

The meeting closed by singing "Blest Be the Tie that Binds" and the National Anthem.

Mrs. J. Keech, assisted by her daughter and Miss J. Keech, served a dainty lunch, and was given a hearty vote of thanks.

SHEER BLUFF

He was the sort of fellow who must brag.

"One of my ancestors," he was saying, "won a battle against the Normans by skilful use of his artillery."

"Don't be silly," retorted his bored companion. "Gunpowder was not known then."

"I'm well aware of that, and so was my ancestor.

"Then, how did he win the battle?"

"He aimed the artillery at the Normans, and the idiots, seeing the guns, thought gunpowder had been invented. So they hopped it!"

OUR FAMILY went through hard-times once. It taught us that you can't keep your independence without foresight and sacrifice. We learned what we could do without when we had to. So we know that a real nest-egg means more than just compulsory savings. It means all the War Savings Stamps and Certificates we can lay our hands on.

They're safe. And they're an investment every Canadian should make. Why? Because they help equip our fighting men to protect everything we've got. And because, too, they pay back $5.00 for every $4.00 we put aside now. We've got to win this war no matter what it costs — and we've got to prepare against the time when the boys come home.

Buy War Savings Stamps from druggists, banks, post offices, telephone offices, department stores, grocers, tobacconists and other retail stores. Certificates may be purchased for immediate delivery in denominations of $5, $10, $25 from Banks, Trust Companies and Post Offices.

"SYNTHETIC" RUBBER? Goodyear has the "know-how"—based on 15 years' experience

● The big question Canadians are asking today is, "Can 'synthetic' rubber be obtained in time and in sufficient quantities for our fighting forces and essential civilian service?"

Goodyear's answer to this question is : : : Yes! "Synthetic" rubber can and will be made in adequate quantities for all essential needs.

More than fifteen years ago, when the whole world was at peace, Goodyear started work on an extensive "synthetic" rubber research program. We explored hundreds of different chemical compounds, and from the date of our first patent, 1927, we have been granted, or have applied for, sixty-five patents covering the manufacture of "synthetic" rubber.

Out of this work came success....Goodyear Chemigum. (Pronounced Kem'-ee-gum). By compounding, Chemigum can be endowed with qualities definitely superior to natural rubber for many purposes. Having achieved this much, Goodyear built the first complete plant on the continent for producing rubber of this type and began the manufacture of Chemigum products for various industrial uses.

There, briefly, is Goodyear's experience in "synthetic" rubber. Today, as an aid to United Nations' Governments, all that experience, plus sixty-five important patents, have been pooled with the knowledge and resources of other manufacturers, so that a united effort can be made to achieve quantity production at the earliest possible date.

WHAT ABOUT "SYNTHETIC" TIRES?

The first "synthetic" Goodyear tires were made from Chemigum in 1938. These tires actually out-performed, in most respects, tires made from natural rubber. But Chemigum tires were not made available to the general motoring public for the simple reason that the cost was too high. It was seen at that time, that this cost could be drastically reduced only by quantity production.

Today, Goodyear is actively working for that quantity production and for the not too distant day when "synthetic" tires will be produced at or near the cost of tires made from natural rubber.

Please do not misunderstand us : : : there is no apparent prospect of "synthetic" rubber tires, or any other kind, being available for the duration, except tires for war and essential civilian uses. War demands are too great for that : : : and ever growing.

THE SITUATION TODAY IS THIS

The big job has been done—because Goodyear and others were farsighted. That big job was finding and knowing how to use a brand-new material. If, when there was no need to do so, research had not been started, and had not been successful, we would have been facing fifteen years of research today instead of having it behind us.

We give you this information so that Canadians will know that Goodyear, the leader in the rubber industry, is wide awake, straining every resource and making every effort to ensure an adequate supply of "synthetic" rubber in this country.

MARLBANK

Marlbank, Sept. 2. — At the regular weekly Thursday meeting of the Marlbank Unit last week the members were pleased to welcome five visitors from Napanee, namely Mrs. R. S. Ham, Mrs. L. V. Cowling, Mrs. Robt. McFarlane, Mrs. Hubbard, and Miss Lenore Herrington, the latter having been a nurse in France during the Great War, and President of Napanee Red Cross since organization at the beginning of the present war. Miss Herrington has visited this unit on other occasions, and spoke encouragingly to the willing workers on the very worthwhile part they are playing in this war of today in ministering to the human needs. She made personal mention of one member, Mrs. W. O. Asselstine, who wears the Blood Donor pin for her third blood transfusion, and stressed the need of more donors. The Napanee Society plans to furnish 120 comfort or ditty bags for sailors at a cost of $3.00 each. Marlbank plans to furnish several of these bags. Miss Herrington introduced Mrs. Hubbard, a native of Belgium, who spoke of the Red Cross as a world-wide organization and the only medium by which she is able to communicate with her family in Belgium. Her brother-in-law was with the Belgian Army, and her sister wrote that with her two small daughters, she was joining the refugees and motoring to Northern France thus hoping to reach England. This was the last word Mrs. Hubbard has received from them through the Red Cross at Geneva, which disclosed that they were aided by the Red Cross to return to Brussels, where they now live with Mrs. Hubbard's mother. The talk, so impressive and intimate, given by Mrs. Hubbard, was greatly appreciated by everyone present. She is the wife of Mr. Wm. Hubbard the manager of the Marbill Mine, who is well known here, being in the village every day since the plant began operations. This was the first social meeting with the people of Marlbank for Mrs. Hubbard. She and her husband are now residing in Napanee. A social hour was enjoyed while the Lunch Committee served refreshments, which brought to a close a very successful and interesting afternoon. The collection from the lunch amounted to $6.45. OTTAWA MINT KEPT BUSY

The humble Canadian cent piece is lord of the manor at the Royal Canadian Mint these days with unprecedented public demand keeping romance mills turning busily.

H. E. Ewart, Master of the mint, said today demand for cent coins showed an immediate gain after new 1942-43 fiscal year taxation became applicable, resulting in additions of a fraction of a dollar to the price of many items.

The enlarged demand for bronze coin in evidence in 1942 has been piled on the top of other increases in recent years. Mint officials said. During 1941, the Mint operated from 16 to 24 hours a day for the greater part of the year to keep up with the requirements of the Bank of Canada for coin denominations below the dollar.

Officials said the first major increase in the demand for cent pieces appeared in 1940, and in that year $2,000,000 were issued. But this was insufficient to meet the growing demand and in 1941, $7,000,000 additional pieces of this denomination were issued.

In prosperous 1929 the issue of bronze cent pieces valued $122,000, and in 1930 had dropped to $3,400.

In 1939 the production valued $214,600, in 1940, $822,800 and in 1941, $725,300.

Mr. Ewart said the issue of the new Canadian nickel, a new 12-sided coin made of copper and zinc, would be in circulation shortly, the actual date of the inauguration on the demand for five-cent coins from the Mint. A number of blanks of the old design still have to be distributed before the new coin is issued.

The issue of the new coin of any denomination does not result in a net gain in the amount of money in circulation as worn and mutilated coin is withdrawn in large amounts each year.

In 1941, silver coin withdrawn from circulation totalled $189,819, nickel $1,769 and bronze $18,967.

JUST THE MAN

The all-important question had been put to the girl's very wealthy father. He turned to the poor young suitor, and his face went the color of beetroot.

"You impudent young puppy," he raved. "Do you mean to tell me that you want to marry my daughter? Do you think for one minute that you could give her what she has been used to?"

"Er—er—er yes, I think so," faltered the young man. "I have a very violent temper myself!"

On Local Calls

2. Be brief . . . clear the line for the next call.
2. Consult your directory before you call "Information" for a number.
3. Urge your family—especially its younger members—to avoid unnecessary calls.
4. Be a "good neighbour" to the family which shares your party line.

On Long Distance Calls

1. Avoid all unnecessary calls.
2. Whenever possible, use off-peak hours: before 9 A.M.; 1-2 P.M.; 5-7 P.M.; after 9 P.M.
3. Plan your conversation before you lift the receiver—you'll save time and expense.
4. Call by number whenever you can.

These things may look trifling, but on 6,500,000 daily telephone calls, they are very important.

Keep them clear for ESSENTIAL CALLS

MINUTES COUNT; war calls must go through without delay.

But how? Increased local and long distance traffic is already taxing facilities to the limit. And further extension of telephone equipment is ruled out by shortages of copper, aluminum, rubber.

There is just one way out. Every one of us must learn to use his telephone more carefully. We must voluntarily "ration" our talks. We must remember, always, that urgent war calls can't wait.

GENEROUS PRIZES OFFERED EXHIBITORS AT ODESSA FAIR

107th Annual Exhibition to be Held on Thursday and Friday, Sept. 17-18

The 25-page prize-list booklet of the Ernestown Agricultural Society which was issued some weeks ago, contains many inducements to the citizens of the district to exhibit at the Fair which is being held at Odessa on Thursday and Friday, September 17th and 18th.

The Fair is the 107th annual exhibition held in Odessa, a record which is hard to beat in the province of Ontario. Throughout all its history, Odessa Fair has been an event looked forward to each year by a great many people in the district. The president, this year, is Edward Thurlow and the secretary-treasurer is Mr. A. M. Fraser, who has held the position for many years.

Merchants in the County and in Kingston, and many other individuals show their interest in the Fair by their generous donations of special prizes for nearly every class listed in the prize book.

ADDINGTON FAIR WELL ATTENDED--- EXHIBITS EXTRA GOOD

Usual Large Crowd at Centreville

Addington Fair was held at Centreville, last Saturday and was attended by a large crowd from many points in the county. The gate receipts were reported as the same in 1941, when there was almost a record attendance. The exhibits of agricultural, produce and farm stock were the best in many years. There were almost twice as many entries in the cattle sections and the showing of horses which is generally large, was better than in past years. The display of home cooking was not so extensive as in some years, due no doubt to sugar restrictions, but the exhibit of women's fancy goods was excellent.

During the afternoon the entertainment consisted of horse races and ball games, and the patrons in the grandstand were entertained with music by Nolan's orchestra.

There were two classes of horse races for purses of $60 and $65. The starter was J. P. Finn, Enterprise; the judges, R. J. Cousins, Fred Brown and Ervin Jackson, and the timers Ira Salsbury and Rupert Aylesworth.

HISTORY

We in this part of Canada have perhaps more than some others, a deep-rooted local history of which we should be proud. No one else in Canada has done more to preserve the records of that history than W. S. Herrington. We never cease to marvel at the amount of writing he has done and the books and pamphlets he has published. But the best books in the world are of little value unless they are read, and it is quite evident from what we know of our reading public, especially the younger group, that they do not know these books and they should.

We have been reminded of them as The General Council of The United Church of Canada held a pilgrimage to the Old Hay Bay Church, last Saturday. Men and women from all across Canada, from Newfoundland, from Bermuda, and half-a-dozen of those who have just been repatriated from China, Japan, and Korea, met in the Old Church — the first Methodist (now United) — to be built and organized in Upper Canada.

They were thrilled with the story of the Loyalists. They gave thanks for the men and women whose labours and struggles hallowed the sacred spot. It is no useful thing in a country such as ours, to have a building made of wood to stand the ravages of wind and weather for a hundred and fifty years.

But it is much more important that the youth of our district should be made familiar with the stone, whence they were hewn and the pit from which they were dug. We have a beautiful county, a land of farms the equal of any, and homes that would do credit to the best in Canada. Sometimes we are apt to accept these as a matter of course, to take them for granted, forgetting the toil and the hardships of those who have made possible these privileges and who contributed out of the fulness of their lives to our social, spiritual and cultural inheritance. Parents and those responsible for the training of the youth, can do much to light the fires of historic lore in the hearts of their wards, and we can think of no better way of doing this than by having them introduced to the works of Mr. W. S. Herrington.

A WELCOME ANSWER

The General Council of The United Church meeting in Belleville, took time by the forelock, last week, and sent a delegation to Ottawa to see the Prime Minister with respect to the present liquor situation. The delegation made clear to the Prime Minister that it was the desire of hundreds of thousands of people that something should be done to curb the present evil of liquor, and all its attendant evils. They stressed the effect which the unrationed distribution of liquor has on the morale of our fighting forces, and the way in which it interferes with the war effort.

When the delegation returned they reported that the Prime Minister said he agreed with their presentation, a hundred per cent. The Prime Minister, they reported, said that the difficulty of quick action lay in the different provincial policies. The Prime Minister informed the delegation that he intended, in a short while, to make an appeal over the radio on behalf of temperance.

This is some slight concession to the temperance sentiment in this province. Nobody who travels at all widely across this country and is forced to live in hotels, can help but be alarmed at the inroads which the liquor traffic is making on the youth of our nation, both young men and young women. And we are informed by those who know, that the most serious curtailment of production in the munition plants, is due to the expenditure of money on intoxicating beverages.

If the Government is serious in its determination to pursue an all-out war effort, then there is needed something more than moral suasion. Legislation which will put restrictions on the sale and distribution of alcoholic beverages would relieve from the Prime Minister's appeal.

Army Turns Salvage Into A Skilled Trade

The "austerity drive" that is taking place throughout Britain and the United States, has certainly caught on with the British Army. The army's "Make Do and Mend" depot — somewhere in the Home Counties — is turning salvage into a skilled trade. It is saving the British taxpayer thousands of pounds a year and the United Nations great stores of raw materials.

It is to this depot that all the broken radios, signalling sets, guns and gun parts, as well as expensive fire control instruments, when they have been marked "B.L.R." by units.

"B.L.R." means Beyond Local Repair.

It is the depot's job to get fighting equipments, which units and field workshops cannot repair, back into service as quickly as possible.

Shortly after Dunkirk, Royal Army Ordnance Corps depots found themselves cluttered with growing masses of blitzed, damaged or out-of-date equipment. The depots nor major factories could cope with the problem. They were too busy on new equipment.

So the Central Repair Depot was set up. Ordinary men with wide business contacts took charge. They searched in all corners of Britain for gaps in back street firms and tiny engineering shops, where equipment could be sent to repairs. Gradually hundreds of thousands of pieces of equipment that might never have been used again, or would have been sold as junk, found their way back into the fighting line.

One instance of the value of this growing service was during an "invasion scare" last year when old "non-serviceable" generating sets were swiftly patched up and used until production of the newer types was adequate.

Inspectors examine every scrap of "unserviceable" or "beyond local repair" equipment as it is received. Almost within hours it is sent off to some trade or army workshop with instructions for the work required. Now sixty per cent is in first-class repair or is waiting its turn.

Complete equipments that cannot be repaired are out of date are broken down into their component nut, screw, bolt and piece of wire being used to help satisfy the constant call for spare parts. Radios which cannot be sold at Woolwich arsenal as scrap for two dollars are now made worth their weight in gold as repair or wireless parts.

Britain's repair and salvage record is not confined to its field. It continues in an unbroken, efficient line right back to this Central Repair Depot which will "Waste Not, Want Not" as long as the war lasts. Every article it knows that no matter to what peak of production armament firms soar, every scrap of metal, will be needed to crush the enemy.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A CANADIAN REPLY TO W. D. HERRIDGE'S REQUEST FOR AN ENGLISH - SPEAKING LEADER.

To The Editor of
The Napanee Beaver.

Dear Sir, — Since the commencement of the war, The British Commonwealth of Nations, with their backs to the wall, have heard many criticisms directed against the various governments, and those who are endeavouring to carry out, with success the will of the people they represent, but in the opinion of the writer, the most atrocious and idiotic suggestion, under existing circumstances that has been allowed the light of the press, during our crisis, is that reported to have been made before a Kiwanis Club in Ottawa, by one W. D. Herridge. I quote:—President Roosevelt be proclaimed supreme leader of the English-speaking people with the power of a dictator."

Our first surprise was that the Kiwanis Club, even if it is located in our capital, should have allowed anyone to make, what many of us wonder, if it is propaganda of a fifth columnist, or referring to a speech delivered in 1878 by the late Lord Beaconsfield before the Carlton Club in London; a quite unsubtle rhetorician, inebriated with the exuberance of his own verbosity, and lifted with an egostistical imagination that can at all times command an interminable and inconsistent series of arguments to malign his opponents and glorify himself."

As we have watched the actions of those glorious people under war conditions, and heard from those who have witnessed what took place, and the universal satisfaction expressed for the wonderful stand made by the British people, under a British leader, worthy of the best support of all people of our Commonwealth of Nations, where in the whole world can you find such leadership, tradition, name and example. And yet, we apparently see attempts to sew discord and dissatisfaction, not only among ourselves but with our friendly neighbors. Again we ask in all sincerity, for the actual reason it is to look for favor from the great people to the south of us, who are with us to the limit? "There is little doubt in our minds, President F. D. Roosevelt would be last to listen to such nonsense." Both Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt, as respective heads of their own people, are their own work to do, and are doing it well, and we trust, this Mr. W. D. Herridge wants to know full data about Dieppe he has a pit that the General Officer Commanding, or those in charge of operations, did not secure Mr. Herridge's approval before the raid, it is possible there was not time, however, the suggestion might be made, for the gentleman in the rent across to the Axis occupied countries, to inform Hitler that he will see he has the information he lacked prior.

In the meantime, Carry on Mr. Churchill, and let us get on with the war.

Yours very sincerely,
A. S. HUGHSON.

Letter To The Editor

To the Editor of
The Napanee Beaver.

Dear Sir, — May you please allow me a bit of space in your valuable paper?

On August the 15th, the members of the local Red Cross Unit and the Women's Institute held a salvage sale in the Village of Tamworth for the purpose of raising some money for the Red Cross.

Reeve E. J. Courneya gave his services free of charge as auctioneer, and helped in many ways during the sale ready. The Red Cross members gave of their time and energy to help carry the sale to a successful finish and many others helped in the interest of the cause feel it necessary keenly when we get bills such as the following to pay out of the proceeds: For truck drivers collecting scrap, at our sale and hauling same to mill, $3; paid for scrap metal $8.85; for rubber, $5.50; for labor $2.40 and $1.00.

To those who work continuously in the scarcity of labor, it seems ridiculous to have to pay out $57.00 to get the salvage collected, and again to pay $18.25 for scrap metal and rubber that was of no use to those who had it, and yet paid cash for it, to get a little work done in order to make it a little easier for the noble ladies who are facing the task before us, in this country a freedom of work and freedom to carry on their efforts of this kind we, in Sheffield, will be able to say, as they do in Other Tamworth and the people all through the Township responded admirably, and gave of their time freely.

MRS. W. G. RICHMOND.

"Army Trucks" Are Now Being Built In Canada

Canada's first "Army Truck" has been built and is now undergoing tests. Production of the vehicle is expected to start in the near future.

The new truck is a 4-wheel drive, 15-cwt. vehicle, and is the result of a design competition between Canadian and British manufacturers. The Canadian design was chosen because it was considered more suitable for the purpose.

The truck is powered by a 6-cylinder engine, and has a top speed of 50 miles per hour. It is capable of climbing a 60 per cent. gradient, and can ford water 30 inches deep.

OTTAWA ASKS FARMERS' AID

OTHER WORK URGED DURING OFF SEASON

Elliott M. Little, director of National Selective Service, appealed last night to farmers to help in relieving an acute shortage of lumbermen during the agricultural off-season.

In a statement made in answer to reports that men in some sections were leaving logging and lumbering jobs for fear they would be "frozen" to their present jobs under new regulations, Mr. Little gave assurance that there was no freezing of these workers.

He said it made it clear that persons regularly employed in the woods are only required to give seven days' notice before leaving a job," he said. "So far as farmers are concerned, they are encouraged to take off-season employment in the bush as well as other places and should not get the notion that because they are not on the farms they will be frozen to jobs they now are in."

Farmer Category

Anyone who is either working on a farm or was ordinarily engaged in farming — though off on some other job — last March 23, is considered a farmer and has certain rights under the new regulations, Mr. Little said. Such a person is only expected to remain on the farm during seasons when he is needed — mainly during the sowing season and in harvest time. Otherwise he may take any job and retain his right to indefinite postponement of military service no matter where he is working.

"If he wants to take a job on another farm or in the woods trapping, or hunting, he is at liberty to do so, provided he remains at any time that it doesn't interfere with his farm operation. He can also work anywhere — anything from a munitions plant to a lumber mill — for a period up to 30 days without getting a permit.

"If, however, a farmer finishes his harvest and has several months before having to visit his farm again, he may obtain a Selective Service permit to go and work in the bush for any occupation," Mr. Little said. "He can have that permit for the asking."

Rules Relaxed

Reason for the apparent relaxation of the strict regulations covering farm workers, Mr. Little explained, is because the serious labor shortage made it necessary to utilize farmers in other industries during periods when farm work is light. During those periods much labor would be wasted if men were compelled to stay on farm.

Large numbers of men are needed in the woods for the essential pulpwood and timber, and than 50,000 additional men are needed during September and needs for woods operations will be to 110,000 in December. The mal peacetime supply of men logging operations is farmers, ers and men from construction industry, during the slack season In the winter.

Mr. Little said it is hoped that farmers and fishermen and who possible the construction of off-season will continue. The labor needs during the off-season Products of the forest are urgently not only for Canada's effort but also the needs of the ted Nations.

REGULAR MEETING OF V. O. N.

The Board of the Victorian Order of Nurses met in the Lecture Room on Monday, September 14th, with a good representation present.

The inspiring prayer of the Order was read by Mrs. Wilson Aylsworth, president. Reports of the nurse, the treasurer and the nurse-in-charge, receiving full approval. Previously outstanding bills was ordered.

The meeting made arrangements for the annual Tea Dance on September 29th, on the lines of last year's successful event. Mrs. Kellar and Mrs. McPherson were appointed a committee making boxes and tickets for the dance.

A resume of Miss Dodge's report covering June, July and August, follows:

Patients of all ages in all walks of life received service. Bedside care is particularly necessary at present.

The Nurse's office is now in satisfactory working condition, since its opening in June. Perhaps the biggest problem is the excessive amount of walking necessary in the case of the Nurse, in her round of visits. Bicycle transportation is not practical in quick and cheap method of transportation. However, in winter and on rainy days, it will be necessary to use this way. Miss Hall, of the Nursing Service, suggested that the district consider a more permanent solution of the transportation problem as the area covered extends from Vine's Corners to Piety Hill — a distance of over two miles.

The Nurse's new address is Room 3, Shirrell Block, near the Public Library. Her telephone number is the same as before.

During Miss Dooker's vacation in August, Mrs. Percy Asselstine took over the work, making a capable nurse and calls for the month.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, SEPTEMBER 20TH, 1942

JUDAH: AN EXAMPLE OF SELF - SACRIFICE
Lesson Text: Genesis 44:, 18-34.

The story of today's lesson has as its background the larger story of the whole Joseph family. It will be recalled how, because he had displeased his brothers by his boasting and his self-importance, he was sold into slavery. Then follows an amazing story of how this young man — a slave — rises to a position of great importance in Egypt he was served, in turn, as overseer of the household of Potiphar's house and on one occasion was put in prison on a false charge, laid by Potiphar's wife. This is followed by the two years in prison and the strange dreams he had. These, it will be remembered, came to the ears of Pharaoh, and on the advice of Pharaoh's chief butler, Joseph was called on to explain his dreams. It meant that there were to be seven bountiful years and then seven years of scarcity, and Joseph counselled preparation. He was given the chief position in the country, next to Pharaoh himself, and by careful administration, saved the situation. He so conserved the wheat in the days of plenty that in the years of ralsoning in the days of scarcity, all were kept alive.

During the famine Jacob sent his ten sons to Egypt to get food. Joseph, who had known all along the danger of his brothers, desired to test them, to discover whether they had repented of their former sins, and bring their other son. When the time came for the test to be made, Jacob was not willing to let Benjamin go. He remembers what had befallen Joseph. It was then that Judah pleaded on Benjamin's return. And when the sons fall into the trap that had been laid for them, Judah offers himself as a substitute.

Thus, in the early history of mankind we have an example of self-sacrifice which is most impressive and beautiful. We who are Christians or who have even if not officially Christians have inherited the Christian tradition have great cause for rejoicing and gratification in our precious legacy.

We are seeing to-day an example on the State. Individuals and families are subordinated to the nation. But the call of self-sacrifice is rooted and grounded in the worth of the individual and organized society is the servant, not the master, of self-sacrifice for the sake of others.

Christ, while it harks back to the traditions in the life of Him, though rich, for our sake became poor and offered himself a ransom for many.

WHERE, OH WHERE?

Although she was keen on her job, the newly recruited landgirl was evidently finding things very different "down on the farm."

After having an incubator explained to her very carefully, she was asked if she understood how it worked. With a puzzled look in her bright blue eyes, she replied:

"Yes; but I can't see where the men sits."

SOME SPEED

Moss was walking along a country road at midnight when he was overtaken by Sam, who had been running at a great pace.

"What's wrong?!"

"Ah just seen a ghost!" gasped Sam.

"A real ghost? Lawdy, I bet it gave you a start!"

"Brudder," said Sam, "believe me Ah didn't need no start!"

GRACE CHURCH W. M. S.

The W. M. S. resumed its monthly meetings for the fall and winter months on Thursday, September 10, the meetings having been withdrawn during July and August, for the holiday period.

Mrs. S. Booth, the president, who presided, led in reading responsive- ly the 46th Psalm, after the singing of the National Anthem. The corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. Denison, read several letters of appreciation for messages sent to the sick and bereaved members. The supply secretary, Mrs. K. Neely requested that all contributions of wearing apparel, quilts, layettes or any supplies, be sent to her by the first of October for the sale, which will be forwarded to the northern districts.

It was decided to dispense with the serving of any refreshments at the October meeting, as has been customary at both our spring and autumn Thankofering meetings, thus conserving sugar and tea. The theme for this meeting was "The Church in My Community" and the worship period was in charge of Mrs. J. Murphy and Mrs. C. Denison, who presided for this period. Readings, the hymns and the scripture reading were all in keeping with the theme. Also the readings showed the contribution women are making to the upbuilding of the church and its organizations.

A very interesting account of the School for Leaders was given by Mrs. O. S. Reddick. This school is held each year under the auspices of the Bay of Quinte Conference branch of the W. M. S.

Many interesting and outstanding addresses were given by missionaries from China and India, as well as from our own province. The Church from out own province. The Church at Toronto and Welland. These talks were informative as well as inspirational.

Tribute was paid to the women of China for their fortitude and for their courage and Christian spirit toward the Japanese. The price of food in West China is exorbitant, as in other countries at war. Rice is now $170 per bushel and eggs and sweet potatoes $1. each.

Dr. Foster, who works among the non Anglo-Saxons at Welland, spoke of the prejudices that exist against the so-called foreigners here, who in many cases are cultured, knowing several languages and being prefect ent in music and other arts.

Mrs. Booth, on behalf of the la- dies present, thanked Mrs. Reddick for her splendid report.

It makes a lot of difference when everyone answers the telephone promptly

Seconds are Valuable in speeding wartime communications

"A few seconds delay in answering my telephone—what difference does that make to telephone service?"

The answer is—plenty.

For instance, if everybody had been just two seconds faster in answering the more than two billion calls carried over this Company's lines in 1941, it would have meant a time-saving of 75 years!

And even that doesn't tell the whole story. Your calls travel over wires and cables and through central switching apparatus designed to serve many users. This interlocking system is carrying more calls, and more important calls than ever before. The time you save on your office or home telephone speeds other messages—may help some hard-pressed production man, army officer or government official to get his hurry-up call through without delay.

So—please help keep communication lines clear—answer your telephone promptly, avoid making unnecessary calls, and be brief.

THE GERMAN DRIVE TO THE CAUCASUS

BY BRIGADIER GENERAL H. S. SEWELL

For some weeks the German communiques have claimed almost daily advances south of the Don towards the Caucasus. At the moment of writing, the spearheads of their attack are said to have reached the great city of Krasnodar in the west, the oil wells at Maikop and the important railway centre of Armavir in the east. The Russian armies are still intact and are continuing their fighting retreat towards the mountains, destroying everything in their wake, but there is little hope that they will be reinforced from south of the Caucasus, as it does not seem possible for them to counter-attack from that direction.

THREE ROADS ACROSS CAUCASUS

If Krasnodar has fallen to German arms, any Soviet forces that remain in Novorossisk may soon be isolated, and that port will have to be abandoned by the Russian fleet, which will then be reduced to the use of Tuapse and Batum, and the smaller harbors between those two places. But, though the Russians are not in a position to strike back at the invaders, they should be able to hold the Germans in the mountains.

There are three roads by which the Caucasus barrier can be passed —on the west along the shores of the Black Sea from Tuapse to Batum — in the centre by the Aristhoi Pass between Ordzhonikidze and Tiflis — and on the east along the shores of the Caspian Sea between Makhach Kala and Baku. The German troops in Persia and the Balkans performed spectacular feats of mountain climbing, but they have never been confronted by so formidable an obstacle as the Caucasus, and it is questionable if they will attempt large operations beyond the mountains so late in the season.

FLEET'S LAST REMAINING HOLD

There is, however, an objective on the shores of the Black Sea which may outweigh all other considerations. The Russian fleet is based on the 300 mile coastline between Novorossisk and the oil port of Batum on the Turkish frontier. This is their last remaining hold, and if the Germans can occupy this coast, the Russian warships will face destruction or internment in neutral Turkish ports.

The Germans have fought for the control of the Black Sea ever since they launched their first attack in the Ukraine. They paid a heavy price in killed and wounded for Odessa, and their losses in the Crimea and at Sevastopol must have been even greater, and they will not count the cost if they think that now is a favorable moment to storm the Black Sea coastline road past Tuapse and Batum.

The Russian army of the Caucasus will be cut off from Timoshenko's forces defending Stalingrad in the Kotelnikov area and in the bend of the Don, and the Germans need have no fear of interference from the north with any operation which they may undertake on the shores of the Black Sea. Should they succeed in eliminating the Russian fleet, their transports from the mouths of the Danube and from the Rumanian ports will be able to traverse the Black Sea from west to east to the easter ports of Georgia with their supply line to their army before Stalingrad will be shortened by hundreds of miles.

The two prongs of the German offensive towards Stalingrad in the east and the Caucasus in the south are driven deeply into Russia's richest wheat and oil producing country, but they have not yet gained a decisive victory over the Soviet army.

The situation is very grave and the next few weeks will show how Hitler and his military advisers can exploit their gains, and to what extent they can cripple Russia's power to switch from the defensive to the offensive as they did in October 1941.

THE WAY TO WIN THE WAR

Sailing gloriously out of a brilliant sky, with its giant four-motored engine roaring, a British Avro-Lancaster bomber left the base which carries eight tons of bombs in night raids over Germany, arrived in Toronto on Monday, at the Malton plant of the National Steel Car, where production of these giants of the air will shortly begin.

The Avro plane, flown across the Atlantic by an R. A. F. Ferry Command crew, headed by the veteran U. S. pilot, Clyde Pangborn, was greeted by a roar of cheers from thousands of aircraft workers who saw in it a flying symbol of victory. Workers thrilled as the plane taxied to a flag-covered reviewing stand and the crowd got an idea of its tremendous size.

The Hon. Mr. C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply, in a brief speech, pointed to the bomber as the way to victory, and urged production and more production backed by every Canadian on his particular job.

In his address, Ralph P. Bell, Director of Aircraft Production, asserted there is only one way to win the war — control of the skies. "Not only must we defeat the Axis airpower, we must literally wipe it out," he said. "Simultaneously we must destroy the plants in which they build their ships. That is the path to victory, the shortest, quickest, cheapest path in terms of both life and money. On that, we in Canada must concentrate. We must allow nothing to obscure our vision. This is our opportunity, one of the very few, while there is yet time," he declared. "Let us pour into the production of aircraft every effort of which we are capable. A few hundred Lancasters today," he said, "would turn the whole tide of the war."

Air Vice-Marshal G. O. Johnson of the R.C.A.F. wished the workers every success and all possible speed in production. Jim Wark, speaking for the Employees, promised to roll

FIRE DESTROYS STORE HOUSE ON WATER ST.

A spectacular fire broke out about 4:00 a.m. on Wednesday, in the building owned by Denison Bros., near the corner of Water and Robert Streets, formerly used by them for ice-storage. The building, which is stone, was lined with cedar and as a result, the whole interior burned like timber. Flames and sparks shot up into the air for many feet and the sky was lighted over the whole town.

There was nothing in the building at the present time except straw which had been used to cover the ice when it was stored there.

The origin of the fire is unknown. The building, which is one of the oldest in the town, was originally used as a tannery and some older residents remember is as "Day's Tannery."

SUGAR RATION RULE REVISED

Four Weeks' Supply May be Bought at Once

Ottawa. — Revision of the sugar rationing regulations to allow consumers to buy four weeks' supply at one time was announced last week by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Simultaneously, the Board announced abolition of sugar purchase vouchers for home canning after September 30th, and new quota systems for industrial users, public caterers and institutions.

Prior to this order, the announcement said, each numbered coupon of the temporary ration cards represented two weeks' supply at the rate of one-half pound per person per week. The new regulations validate two sugar coupons per month and hence permit a person to buy a full month's supply of two pounds at one time.

Sugar coupons 1 and 2 in the new ration books become valid on Monday, September 7th; numbers 3 and 4 may be used on and after October 5th. The last one, number 24, will not be accepted before February 22nd, 1943. The coupons continue to be good for the purchase of sugar at any time after they are validated. This also applies to unused coupons from the temporary ration cards.

Until the end of September sugar may still be obtained by purchase vouchers for home canning purposes, but it must not be after that date. October 31st. The announcement said the Board will introduce new provisions in plenty of time for the next canning season.

PRESERVING RATIO

To aided, for preserving and canning perishable fresh fruits, the ratio is one-half pound of sugar for each pound of fruit, or, if the preserving or canning is done by the syrup method, the syrup used must not contain more than one part of sugar to two parts of water. Until further notice, sugar for apples may be had at the rate of one pound of sugar for eight of apples. Crab-apples have been classed as fresh fruits for the purpose of preserving them or making them into jelly.

"For the final three months of this year the supervisor of rationing will set the quota of sugar allowed to public caterers, industrial users, institutions, and for ship's stores. This system, more flexible than the previous 30 per cent. cut, will allow for increasing or decreasing supplies for certain of the groups, which comprise a number of population.

"Operators of boarding houses may register in the institutional classification if they wish. Otherwise they operate in the same way as ordinary consumers, with each boarder deemed to be a person in the operator's household.

COUPONS DETACHABLE

"The order provides that a consumer may detach from his ration book the whole sheet or any remaining part of a sheet and leave these with the merchant from whom he regularly buys his sugar. The merchant may then detach the proper coupons as he delivers sugar on the orders of his customer and in accordance with the valid dates of the coupons.

"The order states that any seller of sugar may refuse to sell to any person who he believes has contravened or is attempting to contravene any provision of the order."

"We cannot win this war with a Nineteenth Century psychology and Nineteenth Century politics."
—Lin Yutang.

Make no mistake, readers of this paper. Idle talk of a second front for the sake of a second front will get us precisely nowhere. Our one task, the task we pledge for Democracy, is to win this war as quickly and conclusively as possible. With a constant stream of these Lancasters, these "Ships of Victory" and "Ships of Freedom" streaming over Germany, we can, and we will smash their mighty machine. They will never stomach the treatment under which London survived.

RUSSIAN DEFENDERS AT STALINGRAD STILL HOLD OUT

WEDNESDAY —

Further advances by the Germans at Stalingrad were admitted by the Russians. In the Caucasus, despite bitter fighting by the Russians, the Nazis made further advances against Novorossisk.

• • •

Rommel's retreat in Egypt appeared to have been halted, but the Allied Air Forces were said to be hammering steadily at the German supply lines.

• • •

The Japanese advanced to within 60 miles of Port Moresby, in New Guinea, after six weeks fighting, in which they lost 1,000 men.

• • •

THURSDAY—

German troops forced themselves into the outskirts of Novorossisk, the Black Sea port. The bulk of the Russian fleet was moved to Baturin.

• • •

The R.A.F. continued to strike at Axis supply lines in Egypt, and in raids on Axis convoys in the Mediterranean two merchantmen were damaged.

• • •

Allied bombers were said to have ranged over the whole of occupied Europe from both British and Russian airdromes following the heavy raid on Tuesday night on Frankfort.

• • •

After consolidating their recently gained positions in the Solomon Islands the United States forces appeared to have opened a new offensive in an attack on Gizo Island, 215 miles north of the Solomons.

• • •

Australian troops stabilized their line in New Guinea, checking the Japanese thrust toward Port Moresby.

• • •

FRIDAY—

British launched a powerful sea, air and land offensive on Thursday to secure complete control of Madagascar and thereby neutralize the island and make it impossible to be used as a refuelling base for Japanese submarines.

• • •

Even though the defences of Stalingrad continued to steadily crumble, some hope that the city might be saved was still held out.

• • •

In the Caucasus the Red Army was reported to be more than holding its own in the region of Cromy. The Nazis penetrated Novorossisk, and fierce street fighting was in progress.

• • •

The Japanese reached a point 40 miles from Port Moresby, in New Guinea, and General MacArthur was said to be urging a general offensive by the Allies in the Pacific, the taking of the stronghold, which, if it were lost, would form a menace to the whole north of Australia.

• • •

The lull in the fighting in Egypt continued and the British failure to follow up their advantage was attributed to mechanical breakdowns.

• • •

Big Russian bombers blasted Konigsberg, Berlin and Budapest, and Canadian Airmen attacked enemy shipping in the Friesian Islands area.

• • •

SATURDAY —

Russian troops defending Stalingrad under a "fight-to-the-death" order from Stalin, were reported to have stopped the Nazi advance in one of the greatest struggles of history.

• • •

In the Caucasus, the Red Army abandoned Novorossisk, the Black Sea port.

• • •

British forces advanced into the Interior of Madagascar against only slight resistance by the Vichy French forces.

• • •

The Japanese continued to advance toward Port Moresby, in New Guinea, but the Australians were confident the base can be held.

• • •

Six hundred bombers blasted the great Nazi industrial city of Duesseldorf, on the Rhine. More than 100,000 incendiary bombs were dropped on the city.

• • •

MONDAY—

The situation at Stalingrad was acknowledged by the Russians to be worse. The Nazis admitted a second German gain southwest of the city, but added that they were holding the west of Stalingrad.

• • •

• • •

The Japanese were trying unsuccessfully to dislodge the United States forces from the Solomons and in a recent attempt lost 15 out of 72 bombers, used in an attack on the Islands.

• • •

A heavy blow was struck by Allied airmen to the Japanese threat to the Allied outpost of Port Moresby, New Guinea, when they destroyed 25 tons of Buna, destroying 17 Jap planes, and setting fuel and ammunition dumps ablaze.

• • •

TUESDAY —

On the twentieth day of the attack, the German forces were reported being held by the Russians, north and west of Stalingrad. 1,000 to 1,500 Nazis were said to be slaughtered each day. The Red Army broke through German defences on the northern front, and, at Leningrad, in the Central Caucasus the Russians fell back to Mozdok.

• • •

Russian bombers paid visits to Eastern Germany, Rumania and Bulgaria, while Bremen was given its 100th raid by R. A. F. and R. C. A. F. flyers.

• • •

British troops, supported by light naval forces and heavy R. A. F. attacks, inflicted casualties and damages at Tobruk, Sunday night.

• • •

In New Guinea Allied forces kept the Japanese bottled up in the Owen Stanley Mountains in their thrust toward Port Moresby. Allied bombers also swept the seas around the Island bombing enemy supply ships.

• • •

The British continued to make gains in Madagascar and were not far away from the capital.

Thousands Depend on the Army of Mercy in Time of Need

● A war for democracy places unusual burdens on all of us. But we cannot overlook the needy at home. That would be treason to democracy.

There are many with whom life has dealt harshly. Human weakness, failure of relatives, unfortunate circumstances—one or all of these may have put them in dire need.

Long experience in dealing with human weakness and want qualifies The Salvation Army to be YOUR agent in this work of brotherhood.

That is the reason for this Home Front Appeal. Money is needed. The work MUST go on. With YOUR help, it WILL!

PREMIER PLANS LIQUOR CURB

Premier King told a delegation from the general council of The United Church, in Ottawa, Saturday, that a committee of the Federal Cabinet was studying ways "in which effective action could be taken" to curtail liquor consumption in Canada. It was announced Monday.

The delegates from the Council reported that the Prime Minister told them he accepted their argument for curtailment of liquor as "clear and convincing" and that he would soon make an appeal for temperance in the Dominion in a national radio address.

Mr. King was quoted in the report as having told the delegation that he "fully recognized the seriousness and urgency of the situation" but that prolonged negotiations with the Provinces over financial arrangements had made action by the Dominion Government "difficult." However, restrictions the Government had been forced to make along so many other lines "had opened the way now for action with regard to the liquor problem."

HER METHOD

"My wife," said Mr. Henpeck, "kisses me every time I come into the house."

"Ah," said his friend, "that's affection."

"No," sighed Henpeck, "that's investigation."

Death of Mrs. H. Hinch At Winnipeg, Man.

Mrs. Herbert Hinch, wife of Herbert H. Hinch, suite 4, 394 River Ave., Winnipeg, died Tuesday, September 8th, in McLeod's Nursing Home, 207 Mayfair Avenue. Miss Hinch, daughter of Rev. In 1907 they moved from there to Winnipeg, residing there ever since.

Mrs. Hinch was an active worker in the ladies organizations of Augustine church. Besides her husband, she is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Claude McHea and Jean, both of Winnipeg; a son, Major Reginald D. Hinch, Winnipeg Grenadiers, at Kingston; a brother, Duncan MacEachern, Brandon; and two sisters, Miss Georgina MacEachern and Mrs. Ernest Haffner, both of California. PRESENTATION TO NEWLYWEDS

Misses E. Sills and M. McFee called recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Whitfield, Sandhurst, and presented Mr. and Mrs. Denison, on behalf of the community, with a beautiful set of dishes and three pieces of silverware.

Following is the letter of presentation:

Bath, August 23, 1942

Dear Gordon and Marion:

As time brings about its changes to each and all of us, so has our beloved friend, Sandhurst taken a new and adventurous step in life. It is at this time that a few of your many friends have gathered here this evening to show their appreciation to Marion for all the ways in which she has given assistance in the community.

Marion, as ever a loyal and willing worker, shared her duties in Red Cross, Church, Sunday School and W. A. work alike. At her new home in Bath she will continue to set the tasks.

We wish you to accept this gift of dishes and silver as a remembrance from all your host of friends, and we wish that you may have many years of greatest happiness, and may God grant you prosperity.

These wishes are from E. V. Sills, M. McFee, and Community.

Mr. and Mrs. Denison thank their friends in the community for such a beautiful and useful gift.

WEDDING BELLS

WEBSTER — HART

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized in Bridge Street United Church manse, Belleville, Ontario, on Monday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, when Rev. Semple officiated, when Mabel Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Hart, Roblin, Ontario, was united in marriage to Fred D. Webster, only son of Mr. Ormond Webster and the late Mrs. Webster, Sunset Falls, Ontario.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and looked charming in a two-piece suit of skyline blue wool crepe trimmed with mink. She wore a hat to match and carried pink and a corsage of better times roses. Her only ornament was a cameo brooch, the gift of the groom.

The bridesmaid wore a two-piece suit of a blue shade with matching hat and accessories. Her corsage was of American Beauties.

After the ceremony the wedding party motored to the New Queen's Hotel, where dinner was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Webster left following the dinner for Toronto and other western points. For travelling the bride wore a navy suit of tropical wool sheer and brown accessories.

On their return they will reside at Smiths Falls, where the groom holds a position with the C. P. R.

The bride was a former staff nurse at Smiths Falls Public Hospital.

OBITUARY

THE LATE
MRS. ALFRED SCRIMSHAW

It was shortly after midnight in the early hours of Friday morning, August 21st, 1942, the sad news reached Napanee and surrounding district of the passing of Mrs. Alfred Scrimshaw at the home of her youngest daughter, Mrs. Harvey B. Page, 159 Elwood Ave., Toronto, after several months illness, which she bore with great patience and fortitude.

Mrs. Scrimshaw was formerly Olive Ethel Pinchett, born in Kingston, near Stratford, Ont., on April 25th, 1880, the second child and eldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Pinchett. One of a family of seven, two sisters and four brothers survive. Most of her early life was spent in the Anderson, Hay Bay district, where she lived with her parents on the old Pinchett homestead. A devoted Christian and member of the United Church, of a kind and genial disposition, she enjoyed the friendship of a large circle, and her passing will be regretted by many people.

In 1888 she married Alfred Scrimshaw, who predeceased her on April 3rd, 1938. Since 1904 they had made their home on the farm they purchased on Big Creek. To this happy union, three children were born, two daughters who survive and one son, Cameron Alfred, who died at the age of eight days, in 1918.

She leaves to mourn the loss of a kind and loving mother, two daughters, Ola, Mrs. Harold Dilleber, of Collins Bay, and Ina, Mrs. Harvey B. Page, Toronto; two sisters, Mrs. Almond Scrimshaw and Mrs. Arthur Jackson, four brothers, William, Norman, Oscar and Leonard Pinchett, and four grandsons, Alfred, Dunne and Garfield Dilleber, and Billy Page.

The pall-bearers were her neighbors, M. A. Fred VanAlstine, John Chalmers, Sowerby Fraser, Ray Perry, Richard Hill and Marshall VanAdaine.

The floral tributes were beautiful and flower bearers were a friend and neighbor, Mr. Fred Perry, and three grandsons, Alfred and Dunne Dilleber, and Billy Page.

We cannot, Lord, thy purpose see,
But all is well, that's done by Thee.

Bride-Elect is Guest Of Honor at Party

Miss Lois Taylor, a bride-elect of this month, was entertained last Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Fowler, Bridge Street. The party, which included about thirty friends of the bride-to-be, was arranged by Margaret Fowler and Phyl. Wartman.

During the evening the guest of honor was invited to wind up a ball of string that had been wound in and out of the upstair and downstair rooms. When the ball was completed Mrs. Taylor found a beautiful nest of tables, the gift of her friends.

The evacuees were billeted on the top floor of a hotel. Coming out of their bedroom they searched everywhere for a staircase, but could find nothing but a dark lift shaft. The gate was open, so Liz stepped forward. Her friend peered down into the darkness.

You all right, Liz? she called.

Yus, came a feeble reply. But mind the first step; it ain't half a steep 'un.

FIGHTIN' FOODS

Hello Homemakers! As a worker in the home line of defense, isn't it your job to help Anti-Thirst Month? Of course, making plans is only half the battle — if you abuse cooking principles, you lose the fight.

"Fightin' Food" is baked to conserve vitamins and minerals without changing flavour or appearance. Given good recipes, make sure your baking action is right. Here are some tips to ensure success:

1. Make accuracy your password. People who consistently turn out good foods are not lucky, they are accurate.

2. Good judgment is the next essential. It's nice to have exactly everything you want, but one seldom has, and good judgment will make the best possible use of what you have.

3. Certainty that a dish is good before it is served is a fine point. Tastes differ and we are saving on sugar, so a nibble would satisfy you that everyone will be happy.

Appearance is important — "eye-appeal" food really helps keep up morale at the table.

NUTRI-THRIFT MENU

Cereal with Raisins, Bran Muffins, Honey, Coffee or Milk.

Mock Drumsticks, Green Beans, Browned Potatoes, Radishes and Shredded Lettuce, Berry Pudding.

Vegetable Omelette, Shredded Greens with Russian Dressing, Cup Cakes with Fresh Fruit.

Bran Muffins

1 cup flour, 1 tsp. soda, 1 tsp. salt, 2 cups bran, 1 cup milk, ½ cup of molasses, 1 egg, well beaten (if desired).

Mix and sift flour, soda and salt. Add other ingredients. Bake in buttered muffin tins 30 to 40 minutes in electric oven at 375 degrees. Makes 18 muffins.

Mock Drumsticks

1½ lbs. meat (such as veal) cups cornflakes, 2 eggs, 1 tsp. salt, ¼ cup water.

Cut meat into six or seven oblong-shaped pieces. Roll and fasten with skewers. Roll in cornflake crumbs, then into beaten eggs and again in crumbs. Brown in melted fat in hot frying pan. Add ¼ cup water, cover and bake in electric oven at 350 degrees for 45 minutes.

Note: Bake complete meal in the oven, cutting potatoes and beans in small pieces. Place potatoes around meat, use hot water for beans and pudding so that each dish will be cooked in the given time.

Plum and Apple Jam
(Requested)

3 qts. plums, 6 tart green apples, 1 cup water, granulated sugar.

Wash and cut plums; wash, quarter and peel apples. Combine plums and apples together and barely cover with water. Cook until fruit is soft. Measure fruit and add sugar in the proportion of "1 cup of fruit to 1 cup sugar. Bring to a boil with electric element turned to "High" and cook for about 18 minutes or until jam is jelly-like in consistency. Pour into sterile jars and seal.

If plum stones are stubborn to remove, leave them in until fruit is cooked. They will come to the top and may easily be removed before sugar is added.

TAKE A TIP

1. Remind everyone in your household to use drugs sparingly; Tastes differ and we are saving on sugar, so a nibble would satisfy you that everyone will be happy.

Appearance is important "eye-appeal" food really helps keep up morale at the table.

2. Do not crush fresh fruit if it is to be stored in the refrigerator for a few days; just pick it over and store in a dish without a cover.

3. Do not wash a stain from silk in milk — it's the protein in milk that sets stain caused by an ornament on a beige felt hat ?"

Answer: If the green dress is washable, soak in warm water; let dry, sponge with weak vinegar and launder. "Use a piece of cotton to see if colour is fast. If dress is non-washable, sponge with carbon tetrachloride.

The beige hat should be taken to an expert cleaner if the spot is large. Iron rust soap must be purchased and used according to directions. A Mesh stain may be removed with salt and rubbed with lemon juice.

Miss J. G. asks: "How do you suggest that we take care of zippers, can they be fixed ?"

Answer: Slide them carefully and evenly. After taking off a dress hang it on a hanger and close the zipper. When preparing a garment, close the slide fastener. They can often be fixed, but always take to a store and ask their advice.

Anne Allan invites you to write to her care of The Napanee Beaver for help with your problems on homemaking problems — and watch this column for replies.

TESTED RECIPES

WARTIME RELISHES AND PICKLES

It is possible to fill the Victory shelves with a variety of relishes without contravening the wartime restrictions on the use of sugar. Sour and dill pickles, which form a large part of the meat accompaniment recipes, need no added sweetening, and mustard and chopped pickles, which are more palatable with a little sweetening, do not require such a small amount that the sugar may well be taken from the sweetening or replaced by corn syrup. Sweet pickles require considerable sweetening, and it may be effected by honey or corn syrup or part of both.

Directions for making relishes and pickles, together with many recipes, will be found in the pamphlet "Wartime Pickles and Relishes", which may be obtained by writing to Publications, Experimental Division, Dominion of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Dill Pickles

Place a layer of dill in the bottom of the crock. Fill 3 to 4 within three inches of the top with hooked cucumbers of from three to four inches in length. Add another layer of dill. Prepare a brine, using 1 lb. salt, 1 pint vinegar, and two gallons boiling water. Allow to cool to room temperature and pour over cucumbers. Place a plate and weight on top that the brine completely covers the cucumbers. Let stand ten days to two weeks or until active fermentation has stopped. When scum forms it should be removed. Pack, Seal and store in a cool place.

Sour Pickles, Vegetables
(Onions, Cucumber, Cauliflower and Green Tomato)

These vegetables may be used separately or mixed. Wash and prepare; make a brine, using two quarts of boiling water and 1½ cups salt; pour over vegetables and let stand for two days. Drain and cover with more brine. Let stand two days and drain again. When using onions, take fresh brine and heat to boiling point; put in onions and boil for 3 minutes; drain. Cover vegetables with pickle mixture made as follows :

1 gallon vinegar
1 cup sugar (optional)
4 tsp. peppers
2 sticks cinnamon
2 tablespoons whole spice
2 tablespoons mace

The spice in cheesecloth bag and boil in vinegar 10 minutes; pour over vegetables; bottle.

Royal Bank Issues New Budget Book

Women of Canada are making a new vogue of budgeting. The Income Tax deductions have been a new popularity to the old-fashioned habit of budgeting. Planning personal and family expenditures, once a matter of choice for the few, has become, under constant pressure of the many, regardless of income or status.

This trend is clearly evident, reports The Royal Bank of Canada, from the heavy demand for copies of Wartime issue of its Family Budget Book just published. This book is a public service. Branches throughout the country report daily requests for it. Many high school and factory workers and from housewives in homes to new economies in living costs must be met somehow out of smaller pay cheques and loaner pay envelopes.

The new Wartime Budget Book has the virtue of simplicity. In it the Bank makes perfectly clear that neither this nor any other Budget Book will compel anyone to live within his income or adjust his living habits to new conditions. All the book seeks to do is to provide a pattern by which anyone may plan his spending in order to discharge war obligations promptly and maintain on what is left.

Housewives are warned against some of the common pitfalls of the average budgeteer. "Let your budgeting be a joint enterprise for the whole family. This phase of cooperation is lacking. Your budget forms should be removed. Pack away instead of mutual satisfaction."

The simple rules of budgeting are clearly set forth and illustrated by record sheets, one for each month, are ruled and divided for the use of budgeteers in comparing allowances against actual expenditures as they occur.

Copies of the book are now available at all branches of the Bank.

WESTPLAIN W. A.

The September meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Ben Young. The meeting opened with a hymn, Mr. Cranwell in prayer. The scripture was read responsively.

The roll call was answered by naming a favorite Bible verse.

A letter of thanks from the Red Shield was read for quilts sent.

A hymn and the Mizpah benediction closed the meeting.

Mrs. G. Young had charge of the program, which was enjoyed by all.

All joined heartily in singing the National Anthem, after which lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants.

SWITZERVILLE MISSION BAND

A meeting of the Busy Bee Mission Band was held at the school on Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 9, with 16 members and some visitors present. It was in charge of the Vice President, Mary Brandon, and was opened by singing a hymn and repeating the Lord's Prayer.

With the R.C.A.F.

It wasn't the doctor who ordered a change in environment for Sgt. George Beurling, D.F.M. and bar, of Verdun, Que., but the change certainly made a world of difference to the 20-year old pilot from Canada.

While he was with a Royal Canadian Air Force squadron in Britain, Beurling had an endless ambition to be a Spitfire pilot, but there was hardly the scope for him to put his amazing flying abilities to best advantage. His score was nil while flying over England.

But with a move to the Mediterranean war theatre he rocketed upwards and in two short months became the top scoring fighter pilot on the Island of Malta. In the new setting he has run his string of victims up to 16 destroyed and has a one-third interest in another. In addition to that he has a number of probables and damaged to his credit.

Awarded the Distinguished Flying Medal as recently as July 16, he was given a bar to his decoration the following month.

The tall, loose-limbed Beurling, quiet on the ground, has proved a terror in the air, and has set up some high records at Malta for either fighter pilots to shoot at. One day in July he destroyed four enemy aircraft and damaged several others.

"I was one of a formation of seven Spitfires which went out over the sea to intercept an incoming bombing raid," he said that morning. "There were two lots of German bombers with a heavy fighter screen. I got mixed up with the enemy fighters, and in the melee several Messerschmitt 109's got in my way so I went for both of them. One broke in two. I saw pieces fall off the fuselage of the other, behind the cockpit. Next I chased another Macchi, and got a good burst at him. He crashed on land.

Later that morning the Canadian ship another ME109 into the sea, and severely damaged another for good measure. These successes of Beurling's took place only ten days after he had received an immediate award of the Distinguished Flying Medal. A fortnight before he had established a Malta record by destroying three enemy bombers, and damaging another in a single day.

On another occasion, although outnumbered three to one, he had shot down an Italian fighter, which was the Beurling dozenth. Two of them into the Mediterranean.

Within an hour of this encounter, another flight was ordered out to search for a missing Spitfire. Pilotless another Spitfire he came across a formation of enemy fighters. The inevitable occurred and another Italian fighter was destroyed.

Beurling's life, even if it extends for many years, will never be enveloped in affluence. Around discharge time he will be entitled to a gratuity of $1,000. Two of them into the Mediterranean.

"The secrets of his success are ability to see and move ahead of the enemy, instinctive sense of positioning, and deadly marksmanship," said his R.A.F. Squadron Commander.

Squadron mates of the Verdun ace, who is now a member of a Royal Canadian Air Force fighter unit in England, claim that Beurling's deadly accuracy dates from his first operational sweep. Reason: No conceit, nor fear of the enemy.

Dorothy Vandebyne read the minutes of the last meeting, and an introduction to the next studies for the year, given by the leader.

The worship service consisted of the Call to Worship and response; a hymn; scripture reading about the Good Samaritan, by Mary Brandon; prayer, by Beulah Craig, and the offering, received by Percy Vandebyne and Garnet Craig, and dedicated in song.

Items on Peace, Stewardship, and Temperance were given by Dorothy Vandebyne, Mary Vandebyne, and Beulah Craig, and the first story from the new Study Book was told by Mrs. Walter.

Copies of World Friends were distributed by Neil Moore, and the meeting closed by singing the National Anthem and repeating the Children's Benediction.

DORLAND

Dorland, Sept. 12. — Tomato pickling is proceeding under difficulty, owing to unfavorable weather. The heavy rains also delayed corn cutting, fall plowing, etc.

The old Hay Bay Church was opened on Saturday afternoon for a visit from Commissioners to the General Council, now in session in Belleville. Representatives were present from all the provinces in the Dominion, as well as China, Korea, Trinidad, Bermuda, and Newfoundland, as guests of the Belleville Presbytery. Lunch was served by the Adolphustown Woman's Association. Showers in the late afternoon rather marred the occasion.

Mrs. H. King, who has been ill for some time, is slightly improved.

The local Public Schools have all reopened, with the same teachers in charge.

Mr. W. Rutlan had the misfortune to dislocate a bone in his foot on Friday evening, and will be laid up for some time.

Home Canning Of Fish New For Many Cooks

Patriotic housewives are now taking advantage of every opportunity to can. Home canning of fish is no new art in many parts of this country, but there are yet many places, where this good food is plentiful, and where is has not yet been tried.

All fish suitable for canning may be canned by one of two methods—by pressure cooker when one is available, or by the hot water bath method. With a pressure cooker, proper processing is assured to prevent spoilage. With the hot water water bath method, if great care is exercised to make proper sterilization of utensils and sufficient processing, results usually are quite satisfactory.

Fish to be canned must be handled carefully after it is caught, bled, and cleaned as soon as possible. Remove all blood, especially that clotted under the skin along the backbone. Rub with salt and pack in ice if possible when it is but to be canned immediately. Keep cool at all times.

Examine glass jars for cracks, nicks, or flaws. Rubber rings which are best to insure proper processing. Remove all dirt, wash well, and sterilize for twenty minutes in boiling water. If tin cans are obtainable these can be used by filling with the pressure cooker method. They should be properly sealed and used only once.

large bones that are too much space. Cut fish lengths to fill jars, packing firmly but not to crush or bruise it. only pure drinking water for preparatory purposes.

Exhaust tin cans for 4 minutes then seal tightly with pressure cooker. Jars, when only partially sealed and processed and exhausted at the time with the hot water bath method. Finish sealing them at the end of the process.

With pressure cooker be sure all equipment is working properly. Start timing of all processes when the proper temperature is reached and be sure to prevent cooker from boiling dry. Be sure there is enough to over-cook. Cool as rapidly as possible, to prevent overcooking, being careful not to expose jars to cold drafts, or to chill them in currents of too cold water. Immediately after processing jars in the pressure cooker, place in a cool spot damp, free from drafts and unprotected.

The time for hot-water bath canning varies, but a quart jar requires one hour and fifty minutes to process. For more detailed information write the Department of Fish, Ottawa, for leaflet on

If you have a lot of fish at a low price and good for a change, "THRIFT" is the word for Canadian and to your right in EATING and made to order. Fish is of workmanship and you not only get fits well and lasting wear.

School for Leadership Bay of Quinte W. M. S.

HELD AT WHITBY, AUGUST 31 TO SEPT. 4.

With a registration of over 170 delegates, the Bay of Quinte Branch School for Leaders of the W. M. S. of the United Church of Canada opened on Monday evening, August 31.

Perhaps more than ever this year, the delegates seemed drawn more closely together in ties of church, home, and country.

The keynote, sounded at the first session, and that prevailed throughout the duration of the school, was, in spite of present conditions, that the work of missions must go on. In the first session one sensed the feeling that the church has an important part to play in uniting all nations in christian fellowship, that a permanent peace may be established.

As in previous years the Monday night dinner was the occasion for the introduction of guests and members of the staff. Mrs. W. L. Smythe, the Dean of the School, ably performed these duties. Included among the distinguished guests were Mrs. McClure, wife of Dr. Robert McClure; Miss Stella Cheng, M.A., Principal of the Chengtu Girls' Middle School; Mrs. J. T. Daley, of Cobourg, first President of the Bay of Quinte Branch, and Mrs. D. R. Carscallen, President of the Ottawa and Montreal Conference Branch.

Members of the staff introduced included Mrs. C. H. Carscallen; Miss Winnifred Thomas; Miss Jessie Murray; Miss E. Dunoon, Branch President; Miss Helen Day; Mrs. Wm. Dunk, and Mrs. R. H. Seymour.

During the first evening session, glimpses of the study books were seen in the introductions by Mrs. Carscallen, Miss Thomas and Miss Day, and in an illustrated lecture by Miss Murray.

Each morning session opened with worship and bible study. "Every Day Religion," conducted by Mrs. Smythe, who brought gleanings from various women together with bits of her own commentary. Thoughts running through these talks included : Religion, which, if it is to avail anything, must be more than a profession of lips—it must be lived; Christianity, the only hope of the world; and a dying world is waiting for a praying church, Mrs. Smythe questioned, "Is the state of the world today due to the failure of the church ?"

Group study periods were held each morning, led by Miss W. Thomas, Miss H. Day, Mrs. H. H. Butcher, Mrs. O. G. Holmes, Miss H. Bannister, Mrs. H. D. Gilmour, and Mrs. Allan Mc. Cann. Mrs. D. R. Carscallen opened the auxiliary study period with a talk on "Books"; what to read and how to interest others in reading.

Miss Thomas followed with the study programs, "The Church in the City Streets". The aim of the study is that the church may reach and touch the lives of every man, woman and child in every community, whether urban or rural.

The highlights of the school were the addresses by Rev. Harvey C. Forster, M.A., D.Th. From 8:00 to 6:00 each afternoon he sought to point the way toward a christian Canada and, toward bringing the power of God's Holy Spirit into the hearts of the multitude of unchurched people. The church is but a means to an end, becoming the centre of the community and the community the centre of the church. The relation of the church members to industry, whether in the dusty city streets or on the farm, was outlined. He urged the church to go forward then and meet the plain man, and, said he, "You may be sure the Divine Carpenter goes with you." In additional lectures Dr. Forster spoke of the church and education in its relation to industry, and the church and the non Anglo-Saxon.

With a good attendance, the Mission Circle Conference opened under the leadership of the Secretary of this Department, Miss Constance Wagar. The four-day course was outlined briefly under the headings of membership, meetings, ministers and churches in general. Mission Band study, under the able direction of Miss Helen Day, made "City Shadows" real and vivid.

The importance of the Baby Band Department was brought before the delegation early in the week by Mrs. Wm. Dunk, Branch Secretary of Mission Bands.

The Mission Band meeting-in-conference each morning, under the direction of Mrs. R. G. Holmes, assisted by Miss Helen Bannister, Mrs. H. D. Gilmour, and Mrs. Allan Mc. Cann, gave good and sufficient reasons as to the usefulness of such an organization in the Mission Band, boys and girls learn about children in other lands; prospective missionary leaders for auxiliaries, etc., are trained, and boys and girls are given an opportunity to grow into christian world citizens by practising right in the Band and its activities the arts of friendliness to others.

The class in Handicraft, a new feature of the school this year, conducted by Miss Margaret Seymour, was one of the great attractions of the school, especially for the very junior members of the delegation. Miss Seymour, who is, herself, a genius with her fingers to work out new and novel ideas, has the capacity for passing on this enthusiasm to the members of her group, numbering 15; the youngest, 9-year-old June Bullod, of Peterborough. With equipment easily obtainable anywhere, the girls made plaques of pine cone and acorns; also silhouettes and costume jewellery were fashioned from dried seeds, puffed rice, acorns, hickory nuts and chestnuts, and pins made of acorns were lettered with macaroni and leather. These creations and others of Miss Seymour's own work were on display in the concert hall Thursday afternoon and Friday morning.

Wednesday night was missionary night, when Miss Mamie Collan, of the Church of All Nations, Toronto, and Mrs. R. S. Longley, of West China, addressed the gathering.

The Department of Home Missionary work started many years ago when thousands poured into Canada and hosts of them settled in down town sections of our large cities. Speaking of this department of the work, Miss Collan said these sixty or seventy thousand people, speaking fifty different languages, living peacefully together, are building up a better christian community and a truly christian nationality.

Many stories were told by Miss Collan of the methods used to make christians all, and Canadians all, of these many and varied races, who are helping to bring in a day of international brotherhood, when racial differences and wrongs are forgiven.

The highlights of Mrs. Longley's address perhaps were the tribute she paid to Chinese mothers, who, she said, were of the finest and the bravest. Speaking of the Chinese women, as a whole, who possess great fortitude and courage under constant bombings. In this connection she spoke of some of the horrors of incendiary bombing, of bombings where one rack or bomb will kill 500 people. She told of the trek from East China of thirty million refugees to West China. West China had, previous to the war, taken care of her people financially, but Mrs. Longley wondered what was happening there now with rice at $170.00 per bushel, eggs and sweet potatoes at $1.00 each.

Mrs. Longley spoke of the pride christian American women must feel in having made possible the christian West China as it exists today, because these christian American women shared the gospel of Jesus with China. Illustrated slides relative to her talk concluded Mrs. Longley's address.

"Organized recreation, swimming, fun for all, all for fun," indulged in each afternoon, and "Fun Night" held on Tuesday night, both features under the direction of Mrs. R. H. Seymour, received full recognition as an important part of the school's program.

ABOUT 300 WOMEN REGISTER IN LENNOX COUNTY LAST WEEK

Registration of women between the ages of 20 and 24, who are unemployed, was carried on last week and in Lennox County between 200 and 300 were registered. In Napanee registrations were made at the Napanee Town Hall, where Mrs. Katherine Powell, Mrs. Morley Perry and Mrs. Albert Hill acted as registrars. At the National Selective Service Office in the Napanee Post Office building, Mrs. Harold Denison was registrar.

Registration in the rural areas of the County were made at post offices.

National Selective Service headquarters at Ottawa, announced that registration of the women from 20 to 24 would be continued throughout this week because of the difficulty many farm women experienced in leaving their work on the farms, to register.

The registration of women is for the purpose of securing a picture of woman power in the Dominion, which is now largely employed in essential services.

The registration is compulsory and must be made by all women in the age groups specified who are not now employed in an industry that comes under the jurisdiction of the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

IMPORTANT MATTERS UNDER DISCUSSION BY U.C. GENERAL COUNCIL

Delegates to Council Deal with Many Vital Points

Belleville, Ont., Sept. 28. — One of the highlights of the General Council of The United Church of Canada was the sending of a deputation to Ottawa to interview Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada, with reference to his views on wartime restrictions of the liquor traffic. The deputation was instructed by Rev. Dr. John W. Woodside, former Moderator of The United Church, and the spokesman was Rev. Dr. John Vosburn, Associate Secretary of the Board of Evangelism and Social Service. After pointing out that the liquor bill in 1942 is expected to be not less than $250,000,000, and that there is a wastage of materials, labor power, electrical energy and transportation, to say nothing of lowering of efficiency and national morale through widespread drinking, the deputation, on behalf of General Council, urged upon the Federal Government to take action at once, including the following restricting measures:

1. Reduce the alcoholic content of beer, wine and spirits.
2. Limit the materials used by distilleries, breweries and wine makers.
3. Ration the beverage alcohol released from bond.
4. Ban liquor advertising and overseas shipment of all alcoholic beverages.
5. Hold a conference with provincial authorities and inaugurate a temperance campaign of education on modern scientific lines.

Rev. Andrew Seddon of Vancouver, said that drink was lowering morale. Rev. Dr. H. A. E. Northcott, of Lunenburg, N.S., said that liquor caused indiscreet talk. S. J. Branion, K.C., of Prince Albert, Sask., urged the barning of all liquor advertising for the duration of the war. C. W. Taylor, president of the Laymen's Association, told of huge profits made by the brewers.

The Prime Minister said that he accepted the deputation and the representation one hundred per cent, and that every fact and argument cited would be of himself in discussing the issue.

He said that the Government fully recognized the seriousness and urgency of the situation, and that the way had now been opened for action in regard to the liquor problem. The Government had a Committee of the Cabinet now at work exploring possible ways in which effective action could be taken.

Mr. King announced his intention of making an appeal to the people of Canada on behalf of temperance by means of a national radio broadcast.

In thanking the deputation, Mr. King said that before very long he expected the Government would have a pronouncement to make. He told the deputation that they may report to General Council that the Government of Canada expects in the near future to take definite restricting liquor consumption.

General Council heard the report of the deputation with gratitude, and applauded Dr. Coburn, who presented the report. The Board of Evangelism and Social Service was instructed to inform every congregation of the Prime Minister's decision.

CARELESSNESS ROBS SOLDIERS OF GIFTS

Carelessness in including matches, lighter fluid and other inflammable materials robbed Canadian soldiers overseas of the gifts shown in the pictures above. Major General J. P. McKenzie, Quartermaster General of the Canadian Army, has requested that no inflammable materials be included in parcels or letters sent to soldiers. The pictures show contents of thirty bags of mail for Canadian soldiers overseas were destroyed by fire in an English train started when matches in a parcel sent to a soldier. Upper photo shows cans of food which were spoiled, and below 124 are packages of various gifts, cigarettes, soap, canned goods, clothing and reading matter which will not reach the men to whom they were sent.

POSTPONE OPENING NAPANEE COLLEGIATE TO AID CANNING

Urgent Need for Help Results in Week's Delay in School Opening

Because of the urgent need for help to harvest and can tomatoes, the Napanee Board of Education at a special meeting, last Saturday morning, decided to postpone the opening of the Napanee Collegiate and Vocational School until Tuesday, September 29th.

The school originally was to have opened on Tuesday, September 22nd, but after hearing the urgent appeal from canning factories for help the School Board decided to postpone the opening of the Napanee School for one week The Department of Education urged school boards in canning factory areas to take such action and in some cases made definite requests, late last week by telegram, that postponement of opening be arranged for at least one week.

At least forty pupils of the Napanee School are known to be definitely engaged in canning factories and besides many pupils from rural sections are working on the farms where tomatoes are being harvested.

The extremely hot weather last week ripened tomatoes so fast that without the help of school pupils they could not have been harvested or canned.

Mr. Dolan, the manager of the Canadian Canners factory in Napanee, urged the School Board to take the action which would allow the school pupils to stay at their jobs.

BLACKOUT ON STREETS IN NAPANEE

Napanee streets, like the streets of all the towns in the Central and Eastern part of Ontario, presented a very dull and drab appearance these evenings, following the order issued by the Power Controller, calling for the black-out of window lights and street signs. The order went into effect on Sunday night and the only lights showing are the street lights, which are to be dimmed 20 per cent., and the lights used inside stores, which are still open for business.

The order curtailing the use of power for lighting purposes was made necessary by the shortage of power for war industries.

Householders are also being urged to save electricity whenever possible in their homes, by using fewer lamps and by being careful with their stoves and water heaters.

REDUCE GAS RATION FOR PLEASURE CARS AFTER OCTOBER 1

Much Non-Essential Driving to be Cut Out

Establishment of a new gasoline rationing category for all persons using a car for personal transportation and not for business, reducing the motor fuel available to them, will be effective October 1st, Hon. C. D. Howe Minister of Munitions announced last Thursday.

The Minister said submarine attacks have caused "colossal" damage to oil tankers and cargoes of gasoline are about 20,000,000 gallons less than a year ago, and stocks of crude oil and unfinished products are about 40,000,000 gallons less.

Those to be moved into the new "AA" category are users of cars for other than essential purposes and who can best do without a car if the gasoline supply situation continues to deteriorate the Minister said.

Category "AA" will permit the purchase between October 1 and March 31, 1943, of 16 units for cars in Class One—the lighter types — 18 units for Class Two—the medium size—and 20 units for Class 3—the larger types.

The gasoline unit is three gallons in the Maritimes, four in Quebec, Ontario and the British Columbia and five on the Prairies.

In the present Category "A", the driver is entitled to 60 units a year and his wife 30 units. Between October 1 to March 31 could get 30 units, almost double the "AA" allowance. In Category "A" the dryer with a Class 2 car may receive 34 units every six months and 38 units in Class 3.

SUPPLY PRECARIOUS

Everyone who depends on fuel oil for heating this winter will do so at his own risk since the supply of this fuel is more precarious than it was in the summer, said Mr. Howe, adding,

"In the month of July not one tanker reached Halifax.

"Let us not discount the impact on Canada of submarine warfare."

He could give no assurance there would be sufficient oil for winter heating. If sufficient oil could not be brought into Canada, oil installations that could be converted to coal would be sent to the Maritimes, being transferred to the new category.

"You must understand now, that when your coupon book is exhausted your motoring is finished until April 1 of next year," Mr. Howe said.

"No supplementary book can or will be provided. To do otherwise would make rationing meaningless. Also please keep in mind that the coupons you do not use are a valuable contribution toward solving Canada's gasoline problem".

There could be no hope of the motorist obtaining tire replacements for other than the most necessary war uses.

After staying for about a week it was missed one morning and has not been seen since.

A BUSY SCENE

Perhaps not so many people as might have done so before the gasoline rationing went into effect have visited Deseronto, lately. The scene in the vicinity of the Canning Factory is a busy one. Teams with great loads of tomatoes are lined up along both sides of the street for a block. The landing stage is piled high with thousands of crates of tomatoes, while the factory inside is a place of intense activity. There has been a good crop of tomatoes, the price being paid is good, and there is a general air of prosperity and satisfaction among the farmers and the workers in the industry not evident in recent years.

The tomato crop is one in which the Government is particularly interested. Tomatoes have great nutritional value, and are in great demand to supply some of the most necessary vitamins so essential for health. In a time when people are driven to capacity in this and other countries, the sustaining of health is a national concern, and much research along this line has gone on, of late. The humble tomato which, not so long ago, was looked upon as a poison, has now been recognized as a most essential food. This area is happy to have been able to make a valuable contribution to the health of the army as well as the civilian population, and the community has benefitted immeasurably by the good prices prevailing and the fair wages distributed.

AN INTERESTING PROJECT

Those who remember the achievement of Sir Ernest McMillan who, during the War of 1914-1918, wrote his thesis for a doctor's degree while a prisoner of war in Germany, may not be surprised to learn that there are thousands of British prisoners of war in Germany who now take regular studies in university work and write examinations. Leonora Hannay in a dispatch from London to The New York Times, describes this work carried on through the instrumentality of the Red Cross, housed in the new Bodlein College at Oxford. Speaking of the department of the Red Cross charged with this task, Leonora Hannay says:

"This department acts as a news centre for the intellectual life of the men imprisoned in Germany. During the second year of the war, its small paid staff, helped by over one hundred voluntary workers, has been sending parcels of books to the camps to meet the demands of prisoners of war, for serious literature.

"It has, also," the writer says, "been checking up on what is done with those books and acting as a general information bureau for men inquiring about courses of a study, or seeking advice about careers they want to take up after the war. In most camps, the books received from England have been formed into a library and put in charge of a librarian."

The writer then tells of one camp where there is a flourishing university of six faculties with twenty-two languages taught.

A high school in another camp has over 1,000 students with no less than 63 subjects taught.

And now, students are taking examinations, under strict supervision. About 600 will write examinations this year.

This is an excellent piece of work, and while it is deplorable that so many men should have to be taken out of the productive and professional spheres of life at so early an age, yet it is a satisfaction to know that both in Great Britain and in Germany, those who desire to improve their time are permitted, by both nations, to do so, and are helped and encouraged by the Red Cross Society, who in this way just add one more humanitarian service to their long and impressive list.

WHAT JAPS FACE IF THEY ATTACK RUSSIA OR INDIA

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE,
Associated Press War Analyst

The world's big ears are twitching with the announcement by General Hata, Jap commander-in-chief in China, that the East Asia war is about to take an important step in co-operation with the European war — a statement calculated to convey the impression that Nippon is going to attack Russia or India.

Just what scheme motivates the devious Oriental mind in spreading this propaganda isn't apparent although the odor of red herring is strong along the trail. Maybe the Japs are telling the exact truth — adopting Hitler's tactics of fooling the enemy by announcing his real intentions in advance. It's equally possible that Hata is just lying, for benefit of Mikado and country.

The probabilities are that Japan doesn't want to undertake either of these dangerous adventures. They would be illogical military moves, since her whole business now should be to consolidate her dangerously widespread conquests before the rapidly growing strength of the Allies overtakes her. She will be a fool if she attacks Russia or India.

Still, the importunities of the powerful Hitler may move the Japs to embark on a new war in hopes that this may hasten the end of the Allies. The fall of Stalingrad would be impressive — and this industrial giant of the Volga today is shielding the strategic waterway with a body so torn from wounds that it will be a miracle if the Boche are, thrown back. Should the Jap be panicked into playing cat's paw for the Nazi all-highest, the fall of Stalingrad might turn the trick.

The perils Japan would risk in going after Siberia or India would be many. The most vital consideration, is that in either case she would be seriously weakening her forces of all categories in the southwest Pacific, thereby making the Allied task immeasurably easier.

This would be particularly true as regards India. Overland invasion through Burma and across the towering mountain ranges isn't feasible on a big scale. The Japs would have to employ a great water-borne expedition. This would mean that at a time when they need every transport warship and airplane for use in the Pacific warfare, they would have to make a heavy call on these already badly reduced arms.

FROM STREET TO STREET

Current dispatches from the Russian Front, tell of street fighting in Stalingrad, where the German mechanized army is seeking to oust the Russians. We who live in these peaceful Ontario towns cannot, by any stretch of the imagination, picture what that means. A great city is not easily captured. For months the Russians knew that they might have to defend the city, and laid plans. Streets were undoubtedly mined, ready to be blown up with the pulling of a switch, or the pressing of a button; innocent-looking residences would have behind them, batteries of guns and cannon, all hid until the time of necessity arrived. Tanks cannot operate in the narrow streets. They become targets for the guns of the defenders. Modes of warfare, to a large extent outmoded in this mechanical era, have to be resorted to. Hand to hand fighting takes place. The bayonet, the rifle, the hand-grenade, are called into play as man meets man in the elemental struggle for existence.

But a scene of indescribable ruin, bloodshed, sorrow, and death must mark the conflict. Women and little children are in the way: if not evacuated, they too much bear a load. They must, day and night, be on the watch. They must take their chances with the rest. Bombs play no favorites, but fall with ruthless indiscrimination on the rich and the poor, the weak and the strong, men, women and little children. What a terrible picture it makes! What a scene of utter ruthless destruction and carnage!

In the long history of the race, ever since men fought with bows and arrows, nothing has ever equalled what is now taking place before our very eyes. No longer is war a struggle between two contending armies. It is a brutal effort on the part of each to smash the whole life of the other, industrial, social and economic. How long the human race can endure such trial, sorrow and suffering, is conjectural. But this, at least, we must determine, that in the days to come this shall not happen again. If civilization is to survive, if we are to avoid another dark age, if all we have loved and cherished is not to pass into oblivion; if all the treasures of brain and heart and soul are not to perish from this earth, there must be found some way to insure that all the marvelous inventive genius which has marked our generation, be turned to the arts of peace.

A Committee of Nations, by whatever name it be known, must follow the present holocaust and insure the perpetration of the pursuits of peace. Behind that, in every nation, must reign deep in the hearts of all the will to peace, the will to live and let live, the will to share, and the will to help. Only so can future generations of our own people as well as others, escape the tragedy and the sorrow which is Stalingrad.

LABOR BENEFITS

Our volatile Provincial Premier seems to have done another of those political handsprings for which he is becoming quite well known. His latest somersault is to try and win favor by having his Government declare for collective bargaining. He now lines up with such men as J. H. Sullivan, Vice-President of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, George Burt, Regional Director of United Automobile Workers of America, Paul Fournier. We would be the last to say that this is in any degree less honorable company than that in which Mr. Hepburn has appeared on other occasions, but, can this be the same Mr. Hepburn who, during the last provincial campaign, raised such a furore about the C. I. O. and organized a little army of his own to protect the province against just such men.

Yes, indeed, it is the same Mr. Hepburn. Labor is becoming popular now. The C. I. O. is not really such a bogy as Mr. Hepburn once painted it, and, any way, Mr. Hepburn will need more votes at the next election. The farmers are getting good prices, he cannot capitalize on their discontent, and so our Prime Minister makes eyes at the laborer he once denounced.

This love-making between Mr. Hepburn and Labor, has stirred the jealousy of the Ottawa group, who are not anxious that Mr. Hepburn should succeed in winning the affection of Labor. So, Ottawa is bestirring itself. The consequence will be that with both parties bidding for the good graces of Organized Labor, Labor will get the legislation on compulsory collective bargaining which neither group were willing to grant on the merits of the case.

THE FIGHTING IN NORTH AFRICA: MODESTY OVERDONE

BY BRIGADIER GENERAL H. S. SEWELL

"Nothing could be more unfair than the idea that in the Middle East it is always the Anzacs who attack, and the British who retreat." These were the words of Mr. Fraser Nash, New Zealand Minister to Washington, at a press conference in London, a few weeks ago.

He went on to say that he did not know why the British keep so dark what their troops are doing in Africa, and that he thought the explanation is that, because of the inherent sportsmanship of the British people, they are always eager that little countries like New Zealand get full credit, at the same time they belittle their own case.

TWO FALSE CONCEPTIONS ARE PUNCTURED

On the same day that Mr. Nash's remarks were published, an article by Russell Hill, well-known war correspondent now in Cairo, of the New York Herald Tribune, appeared in that paper. This gave factual information from an impartial and qualified observer. (Mr. Russell Hill is the author of "Desert War" which has just been published in New York. I quote from his article in The Herald Tribune:

"Reports reaching Cairo indicate that there is a fairly widespread misconception in many parts of the United States about the seriousness of the British war effort in the Middle East. The notion — so consistently and clever fostered by Nazi propagandists — has apparently gained ground that the British are letting others bear the brunt of the fighting for them.

"I have just passed several hours in discussion with competent Royal Air Force and army authorities and have obtained statistics which enable me to puncture two false conceptions: that Dominion and Colonial troops have been doing most of the desert fighting; and that Great Britain is letting America carry the burden of supplying the armies out here.

"It may be fifth columnists and it may be axis propagandists. Call them seventh columnists, if you like, but, whoever they are, they are playing into the hands of our enemies by exaggerating the magnitude of American help to the Middle East and minimizing that of the British. The purpose of this is first, to create dissension between the Allies and, second, to encourage complacency in America by making Americans think they are doing more than they are.

"Figures show that in spite of the steady and increasing flow of American supplies to the Middle East, the bulk of the equipment now has been supplied by the British. One may take as a sample tanks and planes, since it is upon these two types of weapons that we have concentrated. I cannot, for security reasons, give exact numbers. I will give percentages, which are just as revealing for this purpose.

"At the present time, according to these figures, which may be regarded as official, slightly fewer than one-third of the aircraft operating in the Middle East are American built. These include Bostons and Mitchell bombers, each of which is as good as any aircraft of its type. Also, we have come from Britain, which depends for its life largely upon air defense. They include the best of the short-range and long-range fighters, the Spitfires and Hurricanes, as well as large numbers of Wellington medium bombers. They include, also, craft like the Hurricanes and Blenheims, which have been useful, even though they are no longer the best in their class.

"As for the air crews, the American personnel is only beginning with their heavy bomber detachments, but it must be recognized numerically they constitute not more than a very small percentage of the Allied air crews out here.

"The tank situation is similar. In the November campaign the percentage of American-built tanks in action was between twenty and twenty-five. Now it has risen to about forty and it includes tanks the Allies have in the desert. Again, the other sixty per cent must not be forgotten. Their light armament has proved to be an inferior position-via-a-via the German cruiser tanks but their crews have gone into action bravely and have done much, in spite of this inferiority, to hold the desert front.

BRITISH COMPONENTS LISTED

"Axis propaganda attempts to create ill-feeling between the British Isles and Dominion troops have been just as vicious and persistent as the efforts to cause misunderstanding between the British and the Americans. The line generally taken is that the Dominions stay behind the lines, while the others do the fighting for them.

"In order to endeavor to analyze the composition of the forces that have been engaged in the present desert campaign since Field Marshal Edwin Rommel began it on May 26, There have been in the Dominion forces and divisions in action at one time or another:

"Of British troops, meaning troops from the British Isles, there have been one infantry division, one over two armored divisions and two armored tank brigades. In addition to that, anti-tank, anti-aircraft field and medium gunners have been predominantly British and all of these have, like the tank men, done heavy and dangerous fighting. The majority of the service ordnance personnel is British. Indian divisions must be counted in the British total because they include over one-third of British personnel. Adding it all up, one finds that about sixty percent of the troops which have been engaged so far are English, Scotch, Irish or Welsh.

"Among them are men of such regiments as the Coldstream and Scots Guards, the Worcesters and Oxford Hussards, the Durham Light Infantry, the East Yorkshires, The Rifle Brigade, the King's Royal Rifles, the Highland Light Infantry, the Northumberland Fusiliers, the Royal Tank Regiment, several mechanized Cavalry Regiments, Royal Artillery and the Royal Horse Artillery.

"In the Royal Air Force, where one also hears a great deal about the Dominion crews, even the greatest share of the burden is being shouldered by the men of Britain. Seventy percent of all the flying personnel in the Middle East has come from the United Kingdom."

GERMAN WARS DO NOT CHANGE

A cable has just been received from Cairo which gives a vivid picture of action in the desert, as experienced by an officer of a tank unit which has been fighting in the desert since last year. No dates or place names are given, and it is not possible to locate the battle in which the fighting took place, though it is probable that there have been many such combats, and that fighting of the same sort is of frequent occurrence in the area where the British and Axis forces are now engaged.

"The account as received is the personal narrative of an officer of the Ninth Lancers, one of Britain's famous cavalry regiments which is now a part or the Royal Armored Corps, as are most of the other units mentioned in his story. All were serving with the First Armored Division in North Africa. The story reads:

"We and the Queen's Bays (Second Dragoon Guards) started off by attacking German tanks firing their eighty-eight mm. guns. Our tanks charged in under a smoke-screen, and the German troops put up their hands and surrendered. But, when our tanks passed through, the Germans dived for their guns and shot our fellows from behind. Our next line of tanks coming up caught those Nazis nicely. Our guns were four eighty-eight mm. guns and sixty fifty mm. guns and 250 prisoners.

"The writer of this Bulletins weekly commentary served in the same brigade with the Ninth Lancers, who were then horsed cavalry, in France in 1918, and was witness to a similar incident during the German retreat from the Somme. At that time the Germans covered their retreat with light machine guns, each with a team of three. These men fought bravely and often to the death.

"The British cavalry, advancing from point to point at the gallop in pursuit of the retiring Germans, frequently swept over these posts, which had been knocked out by artillery and machine gun fire. But on one particular occasion a German machine gun team, which appeared to be dead and had been ridden over by the Ninth Lancers, came to life and shot into the backs of the advancing cavalrymen.

Needless to say this post was overcome by the supporting British troops. But after this incident the cavalry troopers learned that, when they rode over "dead Germans," it was wise to use their swords or lances to make sure of their state. As they said: "If they are dead, it does no harm, and if they are alive, it does a lot of good."

The German character does not change and his way of fighting is the same today as it was twenty-four years ago.

To continue the story called from Cairo:

"Our best show came two days later when a force, made up of Ninth Lancers, Queen's Bays and Tenth Hussars, supported by the Honorable Artillery Company (a London Territorial unit) and a battalion of the Rifle Brigade, fought the Pisa and Twenty-First Nazi Panzer Division. Again and again they threw rush us but, as soon as they were close quarters, our cruiser tanks would sweep around and take them on the flank. Then we would pounced by the fact that our armored armor-piercing shots and flying splinters.

"I take off my hat to those Germans from London. It was no bad for an sitting in tanks, but were out in the open in a hell of bullets, shells and splinters. Time after time they drove up into the infantry and the fifties and sixties [illegible] the tanks under the hottest fire.

"When, at the end of the day, expected a final attack by the Nazis drove off, towing their great machine guns and leaving behind a couple of panzers around us. It was simply a grim struggle.

"One of the smartest [illegible] I have seen took place [illegible] later. Our cruiser squadrons, consisting of eight tanks, attacked a German column, composed of anti-aircraft guns. Under a smoke screen our cruisers overran the enemy guns, captured the whole column, with the loss of only one tank.

"No doubt the Nazi is a fighter, but on equal terms, under unequal terms — our chaps beat him later. Our cruiser squadrons had famous regiments with old traditions also we have complete confidence and confidence."

Anti-Freeze Plentiful Says Controller

Ottawa. (C.P.) — Sufficient supplies of anti-freeze will be available for Canadian motorists this winter, despite rumors to the contrary, Munitions and Supply Department announced last week on behalf of chemicals controller Sterrie.

"The announcement [illegible] were current that anti-freeze would not be available during the coming winter, there is no basis for such rumors, and that their only effect is to overload dealerships distributing the product," Mr. Sterrie said.

"The much - publicised shortage of alcohol in the United States is not reflected in Canada, where there is an ample supply for all war requirements," Mr. Sterrie said. "Panicky flood of orders can only result in delays in shipment."

However, the controller emphasized that if, because of the rush, the shipments are delayed, the public can be assured that every effort will be filled.

Because the ethylene glycol base of anti-freeze now are denied for war and truck owners, the denatured alcohol anti — freeze [illegible]. However, it is expected this extra supply will be ample for a large number of cars on the road, those who intend to keep their vehicles in operation all winter are assured of ample alcohol anti-freeze, Mr. Sterrie said.

COTTON - WOOL

"Why, that girl's so mean, she only pulls the wool over your eyes but it's 90 per cent. cotton!"

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, SEPTEMBER 27TH, 1942

JOSEPH: AN EXAMPLE OF FORGIVENESS

Lesson Text; Genesis 45: 1-15; 47: 11, 12

The scene of today's lesson is one of the most touching in all literature. Joseph had been sold into slavery by his brothers, and had exercised great self-control in maintaining his own position before them and keeping hidden his identity. He knew that they had sinned him; he knew the motives which had prompted them to sell him into slavery. He wondered if the years had tempered their outlook; whether they had been sentenced to the pangs of remorse. And so he tried them. He tested them in several ways.

Now he is sure he knows they are different than they were. He feels in his own heart they are sorry for their sins against him. And now he stands before them, a man of power and influence and of position in his brethren. Would he put them in prison, or would he perchance put them to death. In the story, it is Joseph who does most of the talking. Quite probably the others were too dumbfounded to say a word, but they were doing a lot of thinking the same.

And then he forgives them all as they had done to him. He wiped clear from his memory. He had no resentment. This was not a matter of unbounded generosity because they were living were those who by law, permitted an injured one to administer an vengeance.

This is probably th first time the Old Testament when that of forgiveness appears a prominent. It is a new idea. That a man had been injured should forget all of his own accord, forgive those who had wronged him, was an idea of things. Christ And today it from one point of view, all the finest Biblical teaching is found in the minor prophets and all great prophets. It reaches its climax in the life of Him who in the moment of His extremity, cried from the Cross: "Father, forgive them, they know not what they do."

It is one of the greatest traits in human character, the extent to which, in power, we are able to exercise the spirit of forgiveness. It is true of nations as well as of individuals. We all have a need of forgiveness, for all have sinned against our fellows and against God. We have all done things we ought not to be generous with others who have wronged us. But the story is a practical one. It shows us a very easy way in not necessarily the right way. Indeed the hard way is frequently the right one.

Down through the ages the desire to forgive has met with opposition particularly from those who pride themselves on being "hard-boiled" practical. All stories rarely forgive might be an altogether different world if they did.

This is a question which might be discussed in view of post-war problems.

FARM WOMEN NEEDED TO HELP IN INDUSTRY

Sept. 21. — Farm women whose presence at, least part time is not necessary during the winter months are urged to go to the cities to help alleviate the acute labour shortage which is developing in many industries.

Mrs. Rex Eaton, assistant director of National Selective Service who makes appeal, points out, however, that farm women must not count on staying in city employment permanently. Turning out food is a vital war job and their permits to work will be of a temporary nature. When spring comes they must return to the farms because of the need of maintaining agricultural production.

This winter, however, capable farm women are needed in munitions factories, in hospitals, in transport services and in 'a host of other vital occupations.

National Selective Service included women in the group of workers required to register. Mrs. Eaton points out. The first registration, held in May, included those 1403 to 1920, covered 20 to 24-year-olds who were not engaged in insurable employment.

Many of the farm women who registered will be asked to come to the Selective Service offices for a Selective Service Office for an interview. While they think that a worker is more required in a war plant, and could go with little personal sacrifice, her duty will be plainly put before her.

"No one need wait for National Selective Service to ask her to take a job," Mrs. Eaton states. She can go to the office and make enquiries. "The jobs are there, waiting to be filled and in this emergency there must be no lack of needed manpower machines."

"Farm women have done a magnificent job in this war so far" she recalls. "With their husbands and their sons overseas many have assumed responsibilities which have in the past been shouldered by men.

"We are asking them to do more. We know that many farm women look forward to a winter of comparative leisure. It will be a personal sacrifice to give it up. We are sure that Canadian women will not hesitate. We know that those who can help will help. We are counting on them."

NEW RENTALS POLICY FORMED

Ottawa, (C.P.) — A new type of rentals control, whose members will personally investigate housing accommodation at frequent time was indicated following a Wartime Prices and Trade Board order issued last night.

The order, published in the Canada Gazette, empowers a rentals administrator to "appoint any person or persons as committee to function in such areas and with such powers as the administrator may designate."

Under provisions of previous orders the rentals committee throughout Canada, in addition to those existing when present rental regulations were set up at the end of last year, usually consisted of a county judge and, in Quebec, of judges and magistrates specially appointed.

It was learned that the new type of committee will probably simplify procedure in areas where housing difficulties exist by inspecting housing room accommodation and making rental determinations.

The new order also gives the rentals administrator power to "declare" C. R. DeMara wider authority to fix maximum rentals and prescribe the grounds upon which rents may be varied, their orders to be subject to confirmation by the Board of Governors, prices board chairman.

The order was effective September 12th.

PORKLESS MEAT RECOMMENDED Y WARTIME PRICES BD.

Porkless meals until the commencement of November form one further way in which Canadians can prove of marked assistance to the hard-pressed and heavily - rationed people of the United Kingdom and also assist their country in fulfilling its overseas food commitments, it is pointed out by Erwin C. Cossitt, Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Stressing the fact that the situation had become quite serious, he said that civilian consumption of fresh pork, bacon and ham must be greatly curtailed during the next few weeks if Canada is to make the shipments to Britain of the pig products contracted for under the bacon agreement. After that time, marketings of hogs are expected to increase in sufficient volume to permit these shipments being made and at the same time to leave a fair surplus for the home market.

H. M. Higgins, regional foods officer of the Board, points to various foods with high nutritional properties which are available as alternatives. There are, he says, good supplies of turkey in storage and more will be available as the early date. Fowl and chicken are also plentiful and are coming forward in volume. Eggs may be frequently substituted and fish is readily obtainable in various centres. Before the bacon ration contract for cheese is almost filled, it is also in good supply for home consumption. Mr. Higgins pointed out that all of these alternative foods which are obtained here with not much difficulty, are scarce in Britain, where Canadian pork products are vitally required for the armed forces as well as for the civilian population.

He recalled that when a similar appeal was made to Canadians last year, the reduction from consumption of pork until the bacon contract for that period had been completed, there was a most satisfactory response to the repetition of which at this time will be of very material assistance to British food supply.

TWO MEATLESS DAYS PER WEEK FORECASTED

Ottawa. — Meatless days are on the way — not too many of them but a couple a week — according to intimations in official circles.

The days which are being considered for this abstinence are Tuesdays and Fridays. As it is on Friday, a large part of the population does not eat meat as a matter of religious observance.

Many others, not for religious reasons choose Friday on the ground that it is as good a day as any for a menu of fish and eggs.

The two days which are being considered for this abstinence are Tuesdays and Fridays. As it is on Friday, a large part of the population does not eat meat as a matter of religious observance.

Many others, not for religious reasons choose Friday on the ground that it is as good a day as any for a menu of fish and eggs.

The meatless days of which so much has been said and written, is, of course, not at all. What started with beef has turned to pork. When shortages occurred in the supply of beef, people turned to hog products. The appeal to cut down on if not lay off beef for a while has had to be followed by another appeal to do that about pork.

The need of conserving both is important, for a while anyway, the meatless days are being prepared for. People then can eat fish, eggs, vegetables, or anything but meat.

Fundamentally, at the base of all these shortages, are two factors — the enormous requirements of armed forces and workers in war industry and increased purchasing power. Perhaps the latter is the more influential when so many people are working overtime and have not been never indulged in them in the drab days of depression.

The requirements abroad for bacon are 600,000,000 pounds a year and are not ahead of this. In home domestic consumption, increased since the war became scarce.

However there are supposed to be six million fattening pigs in the country.

One of the elements contributory to the shortage is the rush to get rid of cattle with 1,200,000 marketings a year, but the disinclination of farmers to buy heifer cattle to fatten stockyards till they are properly fattened or finished. Every hundred weight counts.

Important Matters

The Council unanimously confirmed the report of the Board of Evangelism and Social Service which asked for full support of the Board's war effort, equitable sacrifice by all groups in the community cause and a "reformation doctrine" that all things essential to communion in extreme necessity be accepted by the Christian and Board as a guiding principle.

Rev. Dr. J. T. Stalg, of Winnipeg, asked if this meant conscription for overseas service. Dev. Dr. J. R. Mutchmor, Secretary of the Board of Evangelism and Social Service, who presented the report, said it certainly did. Council applauded.

A resolution on mandatory collective bargaining was referred to a Sessional Committee.

Rev. Dr. J. C. Cochrane, Superintendent of Home Missions in Northern Ontario, was elected Secretary of the Board of Pensions, succeeding the Rev. Dr. S. Wesley Dean, who has resigned from active work.

On the question of the tenure of the Moderator, the General Council by a narrow margin, voted that there be no change in the present terms of two years.

The suggestion had been made that the term be changed to one year. If that had met with the approval of the Committees on Remit Council would have had three Moderators, each to serve one year, in succession.

The Report of the Committee on the Colleges, named by the Board of Christian Education, was not accepted. A few minutes after Principal R. O. Wallace, of Queen's University, presented the Committee's Report, Principal A. E. Kerr of Pine Hill presented an amendment which recommended the carrying on of the eight Theological Colleges of The United Church under their present status, that the basis of grants to students be not changed, and that the grants to colleges be as liberal as possible. This was seconded by the Missionary and Maintenance Committee. Principal Wallace's amendment was passed by the General Council.

The Report of the Committee on the Finances of the Church was presented by Rev. Dr. W. J. Gallagher, of Toronto. The Council agreed with the Committee's recommendation to set up a Board of Finance and that a general oversight of the finances of the Church and to determine large broad lines of financial policy and administration of the Church. The Board shall consist of a Chairman, the Treasurer of the Church, the Secretary of the General Council, representatives of various Boards and Committees of the Church, one member from each Conference and eleven additional non - ministerial members.

The Council also agreed to amend the Basis of Union so that various Boards of the Church may reorganize, if they wish to do so. This will now be left to the Boards.

A third recommendation of the Committee on the Finances of the Church — that the duty of the Executive or General Council shall be to carry out the instructions given by the Conference, Board or Council — was referred to Council by Mrs C. M. Loveys of the Woman's Missionary Society, Rev. E. Hincks of Niagara Falls, who has been appointed Secretary of the newly created Camp and War Production Committee, and Miss Vera Pullman, field secretary of the Young People's Societies and the Y.W.C.A. and the Y.M.C.A., the United Church is rendering a vital service to men and women located in the war industry areas Council was told.

One whole afternoon was given to hearing fraternal greetings and addresses by: Dr. Liu Shih Shun, Minister Plenipotentiary of the Republic of China to the United States and Canada; Rev. J. Shackleford Daverty representing the Western Section of the Alliance of Reformed Churches; Rev. Luther A. Weigle, President of Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America; Rev. Dr. R. H. Bingham, representing the Canadian Committee, World Council of Churches; Rev. Dr. A. Irwin, of the Canadian Temperance Federation; Rev. George G. Webber, of the Lord's Day Alliance; Rev. J. Morton Freeman o fhe Fellowship for a Christian Social Order; Wing Commander Rosse Brown, R.A.F. Chaplain, who brought greetings from Great Britain and Empire. Responses by Dr. A. E. Byers, Secretary of the Board of Christian Education.

In the Canadian Committee, World Council of Churches, Rev. Dr. A. E. Irwin, of the Canadian Temperance Federation; Rev. George G. Webber, of the Lord's Day Alliance; Rev. J. WARTIME PRICES AND TRADE BOARD NEWS

URGE TEMPORARY HALT OF PORK CONSUMPTION

Canadians are being asked by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board to refrain from eating fresh pork, ham, and bacon until the beginning of November so that sufficient supplies may be available to meet shipments to Britain required under the bacon agreement. It is pointed out that bacon is vitally required overseas for both the armed forces and the civilian population and that substitutes which are readily available here are difficult to procure in England.

BARBER RETIRES TO GET LICENSE, FINED

Because Emile Vachon, a Cornwall barber, failed to comply with a demand of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board that he should take out one of its licences and told an investigator that he would not have the government running his shop, he was fined $35 and costs in Cornwall police Court by Magistrate Bergeron. An additional charge of increasing his prices was dismissed by the magistrate because of improper preparation of the information relating to the case.

MAYTAG BOOKS STILL AWAITING CLAIMANTS

A considerable number of ration books which the Post Office did not deliver because their holders had changed their addresses still await claimants in Ration Offices of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Those lacking such books because they have changed their addresses should notify their appropriate ration office, giving both their former and present addresses.

NEED NAMES, ADDRESSES FOR BABIES' RATIONS

Simply stating that rations are required for "Baby" will not automatically procure ration books from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. When applying for such books for infants, their parents or guardians must give the name, age and address of the children, so that they may be properly endorsed and so that lea and coffee rations may be extracted in the cases of all children under the age of five years.

FALSE OPPLICATION BRINGS $100 FINE

Because an application card signed by him requested rations for "William, aged six" when "William" was actually the family dog, a Tortonto man was fined $100 and costs in police court there and severely censured by a magistrate. This prosecution was one of several recently undertaken by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board for violation of the rationing regulations.

WOMEN'S ORGANIZATIONS SHOULD BE REPRESENTED

In a statement addressed to the various Women's Organizations throughout the Dominion, Byrne Saunders Head of the Consumer Branch, Prices and Trade Board, requests each women's organization in Canada, wherever situated and however large or small its membership, to name a liaison officer of the Branch through the Women's Regional Advisory Committee of its Province meeting this fall. She is also advising all women's organizations to refrain from issuing refreshments involving the use of sugar, tea or coffee, so that these commodities may be conserved.

EXTRA SUGAR FOR CANNING PURPOSES

Housewives may continue to obtain extra sugar for home canning and preserving during the month of September by use of purchase vouchers obtainable at their retailers. This privilege will, however, expire on September 30. The sugar so purchased must be employed for canning and preserving before the end of October.

MAXIMUM PRICES FOR HONEY FIXED

Maximum wholesale and retail selling prices for extracted honey and for pasteurized granulated honey have been fixed by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board in order to maintain uniformity of supply throughout the Dominion. Specific maximum wholesale prices are set and retailers are required to apply a mark-up of 20 per cent or the cents per pound, which ever is lower.

SILLSVILLE W. A.

The meeting of Sillsville W. A. on Friday, September 8th at the home of Mrs. Perry Young, was well attended. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. McLean and was opened by the singing of a hymn and scripture reading by Mrs. Wesley Young.

The meeting was called to decide whether or not to hold an anniversary dinner. The church needs repairs but food restrictions make holding a dinner difficult. It was decided that Mrs. Harold Hough and Mrs. Ross Merritt canvass for funds.

There are several quilts on hand which the ladies are working on whenever possible.

After the close of the meeting lunch was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Phyllis Hough. Lunch fees amounted to $1.51.

H. Garrison, Napanee. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. C. W. DeMille.

The bride was attended by Miss Janet Hartwell, who was a Windsor Rose wool dress with navy blue accessories and a corsage of mauve orchids. The only witnesses were the bride's two sisters, Elizabeth, of Toronto, and Christobel, of Napanee.

Following a short honeymoon at Limberlost Lodge, Muskoka, the couple will live in Hespeler.

McFARLAND - ROBINSON

A quiet wedding of local interest was solemnized in Napanee on Wednesday, September 21st, at 7.00 p.m., when Mrs. Cora Robinson and Gwen McFarland were united in marriage. The Rev. R. J. Dumbrille of St. Mary Magdalene Church, officiated.

The bride, who entered the living room on the arm of her son-in-law, Albert Martin, wore a street-length dove grey sheer ensemble with embroidery trim. Her corsage was of sweetheart roses.

A reception and dinner was held at the bride's home, which was beautifully decorated with autumn flowers. For travelling, the bride chose grey Harris tweed, with large grey felt hat.

The couple will reside on Bridge Street, Napanee.

The Late Perrie Wagar

Perrie Wagar, a well known resident of Napanee, died in Kingston General Hospital, on Monday, September 21st, after a very short illness. He had not been well for several months, but had been around as usual until last week-end, when he was taken seriously ill and was removed to the hospital on Saturday.

He was born in Napanee, seventy years ago and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lester Wagar, who lived for many years in South Napanee. All his life he had worked as a millwright. As a young man he worked at Lieb's Lumber Mill. Later he went to the Model Lumber Mill and after it closed he returned to Lieb's and continued to work there after the business was taken over by The Lennox Lumber Co. Following the fire at the Lennox Lumber Co. mill in the early spring of this year, he gave up work because of ill-health.

In his earlier days "Si" Wagar, as he was familiarly known, was a well-known hockey and football player, and was a member of Napanee teams which were famous in the district. He was also a keen follower of all sports, and his interests in sports.

His funeral is being conducted at The Tierney Funeral Home, today (Wednesday) at 2.30 p.m. and interment will follow in Riverside cemetery.

Mr. Wagar, who was unmarried, is survived by two sisters, Miss Gertrude Wagar, Napanee, and Mrs. Tomokika, Watertown, N.Y., and two brothers, Levi, Syracuse, and Fred, Winnipeg. He was predeceased by two sisters, Miss Nellie and Mrs. Jacob Robinson, and three brothers, Ephraim, Archie and Charles.

TRINITY MISSION CIRCLE

The members of Trinity Mission Circle met again after the summer months at the manse here on September 10th. Following the supper, reports were given by the secretary, Mrs. Ray Stewart, and the treasurer. The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. G. Ewans and Miss Ruth Ewans. A new study book "City Shadows" was introduced by Mrs. W. A. Ashley.

The October meeting will be held in the banqueting hall of the church. Mrs. Ray Stewart will be in charge.

APPEAR THURSDAY ON DRUNK DRIVING CHARGE

Teddy Evans, Cheddar, Ont., was arrested and placed in the Napanee jail on Tuesday, charged with a charge of driving a car while intoxicated. His brother, Gordon Evans, was charged also with being intoxicated in a place other than a residence.

The charges were laid following an accident about 2:00 p.m. on Tuesday, at the C. N. R. bridge at the east entrance of the town, in which Evans' car collided with a car owned and driven by Dorland Perry, R. No. 1 Napanee. Perry's car was only slightly damaged, but Evans' car was almost completely wrecked.

Evans and his brother were remanded for trial until Thursday of this week.

POWER-SAVING HINTS OFFERED

Ottawa, (C.P.) — The well-meaning housewife who turns off her electric hot water heater at night and thinks she is doing a good deed for a few hours may not be achieving what she hopes in the way of saving power for war industries, officials say.

She will make a greater contribution to solving the power shortage if she assures that no low draining the night and turns it off during the hours of peak load on power services, they think.

Under an order issued last week, advertising signs, show windows and highway lights are to be extinguished throughout a wide area of Ontario and Quebec, beginning on the evening of September 20th. Householders were urged to reduce their power bill by 20 per cent in the power-shortage areas.

Officials said the peak load on power services comes between 6:30 and 8:30 a.m., between 11:30 a.m. and 1:00 p.m. and between 5:30 and 7:00 p.m. Stoves, ovens and toasters then are used to the greatest extent.

It would assist if hot water heaters were turned off during these hours.

WEDDING BELLS

BREEZE - JOYCE

The marriage of Mary Eileen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Joyce, Selby, and John Vincent, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Breeze, of Forest Mills, was quietly solemnized in St. Patrick's Church, Napanee, on Monday, September 7th, by Rev. Dean Leacy. The wedding music was played by Miss Agnes Cavanaugh.

The lovely bride, given in marriage by her father, wore white floor length, silver. She fingertip veil, with halo shaped headdress, was caught with orange blossoms. She carried American Beauty roses and Maiden Hair fern.

Her only attendant, Miss Helen Breeze, was attired in turquoise blue sheer and shoulder-length veil. Her bouquet was of red roses.

The groom was attended by Mr. James Brady.

After the ceremony the wedding dinner was served to the immediate families, at the bride's home.

After a wedding trip to Sainte Anne de Beaupre, Mr. and Mrs. Breeze took up residence in Kingston.

WEDDING BELLS

EVANS - HINCH

The Church of the Annunciation, Chumpawa, was the scene of a very pretty wedding, Tuesday morning, September 8th, when Rev. Father Sullivan united in marriage Mary Elizabeth Josephine daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hinch, Enterprise and Bluch Leo Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Evans, Moscow.

The bride looked lovely in a floor-length gown of pink net over taffeta with inserts of dainty frills, fashioned with a gracefully flared skirt. A coronet of orange blossoms held her shoulder-length veil and she carried a nosegay of sweetheart roses with an amethyst and gold rosary, the gift of the groom.

Miss Eileen Hinch, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, wearing a frock of pearl pink sheer over taffeta with dress shirring at the waistline from which the skirt fell in frills in the floor. She wore a matching coronet and veil and carried a colonial bouquet of roses and gladioli in pastel shades.

Mr. James Evans, brother of the groom performed the duties of best man and the altar boys were Donald Murphy and Joseph Clair. Mrs. Mildred Kenny presided at the organ and Miss Francis Dowling sang appropriate numbers. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold compact, to the best man a travelling bag and to the altar boys and organist suitable remembrances.

After the ceremony a wedding dinner was served to the immediate families at the Hotel Prince Edward. The out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Archie Dillon, Timmins; Mrs. Alex Parrell and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Draper of Toronto. After a short honeymoon to eastern points, the young couple were tendered a reception at the Community Hall, Enterprise, where they were the recipients of many beautiful gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Evans will take up residence in Moscow.

"We are determined to fight for Egypt and the Near East, as if it were the soil of England itself."

GRAIN SURPLUS PLAN REVEALED

Ottawa, (C.P.) — Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Agriculture Minister, announced a major agricultural program to make use of vast stores of grain now available and increase the output normal industry for Canada and her Allies.

The Minister outlined steps in the program as follows:

A new agreement will be signed with the United Kingdom for the provision of bacon, with the figure of 975,000,000 pounds mentioned as the possible export in the coming year, compared with 600,000,000 lbs. in the contract now ending in about seven weeks.

Farmers will be urged to breed more sows from now on to ensure success for the hog production program.

2. As soon as possible pork will be restored to full volume on the Canadian market without interfering with British requirements. When this has been done, the adequate supply of pork for Canadians will release beef for the United States market. This will permit the Americans to release beef from their home markets for shipment to Britain.

3. A program will be undertaken to encourage the feeding of young cattle until they are at least three years old, and to bring about an increase in the number of animals turned into beef.

Mr. Gardiner said that at last supplies of grain were sufficient to permit planning for a two-year program.

HOW TO SAVE ELECTRICITY IN THE HOME

Hello Homemakers! The order of the Dominion Power Controller regarding the use of electricity indicates the acute Power situation. However, the saving that is hoped to be accomplished through this regulation is only a small portion of the total required to meet the growing demands of war industries. Thousands of munition manufacturers — from the Tiny Villages machine shops to the huge industrial plants—must push forward in the great crusade for Victory.

By taking on the duty of "Electrical Power Warden in the Home" each homemaker can do her share. Here are suggestions that will help you save electricity as well as keep your electrical equipment in service for the duration.

LIGHTS —

Turn out the lights when you leave a room.

Place trifle or table lamps to enable several persons to read or sew and the children to play games on the floor.

Try to accomplish your job in the attic, cellar or clothes closet quickly and then shut off the lights.

Watch your porch, garage and hall lights, too.

Keep lamps, reflectors and shades clean so that no light will be wasted.

Do not use decorative or coloured lamps as they absorb light.

RADIO —

Turn off the radio unless you are listening to it.

This will save electricity as well wear out the tubes.

HOT WATER HEATER —

Turn taps off tight and have leaking or dripping taps fixed.

Use cold water to soak cooking utensils.

Soak cooking utensils up and wash them along with the dishes at the end of the meal.

For the dishes, run the cold water first, then turn on the hot water to bring the temperature to lukewarm.

Do not wash under running tap.

WASHING MACHINE —

Fill your washing machine only to the water line with hot water.

Operate only long enough to rinse a more fabric soil — not stains.

Use warm water in the first rinse only.

Do not operate machine while clothes are wringing.

ELECTRIC IRON —

Small articles of fine fabrics can be pressed while your iron is heating.

Don't let your iron get so hot that you have to wait for it to cool.

Clothes can be partly dried by the dampness taken out can be pressed after the iron is heated.

ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR —

Do not leave the refrigerator door open longer than necessary — or open it more frequently than you need to — let the condenser system become clogged with lint and dust.

Clean your refrigerator regularly — never allow more than one-eighth inch quarter inch of frost to accumulate.

Do not place refrigerator near the range — leave space around each side and at the top.

Do not load the refrigerator with packages, bottles and cans that may be stored on pantry shelves.

Do not place warm foods in refrigerator; wait till cool.

ELECTRIC RANGE —

Turn electric element to "Off" as room or tea kettle begins to sing. The heat stored in the electric element will bring the water to boiling.

Don't boil more water than you need, and keep the kettle free from lime.

ELECTRIC TOASTER —

Do not leave toaster on continually for staggered breakfasts. Use toaster only while making toast.

OTHER SMALL ELECTRIC APPLIANCES —

Use them only when the electric range is not in use and then only as long as necessary.

COOKING —

A small amount of warm tap water is sufficient for cooking vegetables.

Do not boil potatoes and other vegetables violently — gentle heat uses less power and will cook them better.

Use flat-bottomed pots with close-fitting lids.

Always place small utensils on small electric element.

Vegetables "Cooked" for as little time as possible, then turn to "Low".

Whenever possible use your well-cooker or refrigerator.

To cook skillet meals, use your deep fryer or skillet. Such meals mean a saving in electricity since they require only a fruit cup to complete the meal. For example: Delectable Medley, Flank Steak Cycolo, Vegetable Dishes, etc.

Use a double boiler to heat left-over meals, if possible. The lower part can be used to cook eggs, fish, etc., for use next day as devilled eggs, cold tongue, etc.

Conserve power when using the oven by baking or roasting as many dishes as possible whenever it is on.

Do not leave oven elements on till the last minute. Make use of stored heat to finish the cooking.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. M. J. asks: "(1) Recipe for Dill Pickles, stating size of cucumbers and whether they need to be boiled first. (2) Jiffy Mayonnaise Recipe.

Answer:—

Dill Pickles — Fermented Process

Place in the bottom of the jar a layer of dill. Then fill the jar, to within two or three inches of the top, with washed cucumbers of as nearly the same size as practicable — about 4 inches long. Add another layer of dill. It is a good plan to place over the top a layer of grape leaves. They have a greening effect on the pickles. Pour over the pickles a brine made as follows: One Pound of Salt to one Pint of Vinegar; two Gallons of water.

Never use a hot brine as the bottom of the fermentation jar. Cover with a board cover or plate with sufficient weight on top to hold the cucumbers below the brine. If the cucumbers are packed at a temperature around 86 degrees F. (the temperature for raising bread) an active fermentation will at once set in. This should be completed in from seven to two weeks. The scum which forms on the surface should be skimmed off. As soon as they are sufficiently cured, which may be determined by their appearance and odour, their green color transfer them to glass jars, fill right up to the top with brine or with a fresh brine made as above. Add a small quantity of dill. Bring to the boil, pour over the pickles and seal down tightly. Set the jars tight and store in a cool place.

Jiffy Mayonnaise

Three eggs, unbeaten
Six tablespoons Corn Syrup
One and one-half teaspoons salt
Two tablespoons dry mustard
Three-eighths teaspoon paprika
Three-quarters cup vinegar
Two and one-quarter cups Marzola
Three-eighths teaspoon pepper
Three-quarters cup cold water
Two and one-quarter cups of boiling water.

Put the eggs, syrup, seasonings, vinegar and Marzola in a large bowl but do not stir. Make a paste by mixing cornstarch with cold water, then add boiling water, stirring constantly, until thick. Cook until clear (about ten minutes). Add this cooked starch mixture to ingredients in mixing bowl and beat with Dover beater. It thickens and also emulsifies beautifully. Yield: three pints.

EAT VEGETABLES FOR VITAMIN "C"

Scarcity of imported fruit is giving rise to considerable anxiety over deficiency of vitamin C should result. Fruits are boiled upon by a large public as the main source of vitamin C, and mothers who have come to regard orange juice as indispensable for the artificially fed baby and desirable for all children, are often at a loss to know what to use as a substitute.

This very general reliance upon fruit, especially the citrus fruits, it is stated by a popular knowledge of their value as anti-scorbutics in early voyages. It overlooks the fact, none too well known even to those interested in nutrition, that on the whole most vegetables are much richer sources of vitamin C than most fruits. The mother about "an apple a day" would have been much nearer the truth if it had run "some cabbage-leaves daily." Apple whose main source of this vitamin is a daily apple get from it only about one eighth of their vitamin C requirements. Plums, blackberries, grapes, pears, melon and bananas are also poor in vitamin C. Brussels sprouts, cabbage cauliflower and the salad vegetables, especially mustard and cress and watercress are seven or more times as rich in vitamin C as the group of fruits last mentioned. Some of these green vegetables, if they are cooked in such a way as to preserve the vitamin, can provide more of it, weight for weight, than does orange or lemon juice.

The optimal amount of vitamin C (ascorbic acid) needed by an average adult is 75 mg. daily. As a matter of convenience an estimate has been made showing the number of hours supply of vitamin C yielded on this basis by 4 oz portions of all the well known fruits and vegetables. Typical examples, arranged in order of merit are as follows:

Number of Hours Supply Of Vitamin C Given by Four - Ounce Portions

Blackcurrants	73
Brussels Sprouts, cooked	35
Mustard and Cress, raw	28
Strawberries, raw	25
Broccoli, cooked	24
Cabbage, cooked	20
Cauliflower, cooked	19
Watercress, raw	19
Oranges, raw	16
Lemons, raw	15
Gooseberries, raw	15
Spinach, cooked	13

It will be observed that potatoes are not included in the table, since the method of preservation does not take account of the fact that they are customarily eaten in quantities many times as great as two ounces daily will supply 1/3 hours requirements.

Vitamin C however is not among the most stable of the vitamins. It begins to go off at 70 degrees F. and vegetables are glibbered . . . This loss continues during storage. Part of the vitamin C may be destroyed in the cooking water and prevention of this loss is one of the many advantages of cooking potatoes unpeeled. Quick rise of temperature and fast cooking — so rapid destruction of the enzyme which would otherwise destroy vitamin C — lead to a greater preservation than the alternative methods of gradual heating from cold water. All cold cooking methods, including lavishes cookery, result in loss of vitamin C. Deep frying cooking of alkalies like bicarbonate of soda increases the loss of vitamin C.

Canned fruits and vegetables may contain about 50 per cent of the 50 per cent of the vitamin C of the fresh materials, the amount varying with the fruit or vegetable and the method of canning.

Dried fruits and vegetables, rubbed through a sieve, can be given to young children. Of raw vegetables such as swedes or carrots can be finely grated or pulped and sieved. Thick pieces of carrot can be finely grated or pulped and sieved.

Careless Jelly-Making Is Waste In Wartime

With careless waste in war-time on a par with wilful sabotage, we can't afford to overlook any mistakes in jelly-making. A satisfactory jelly can be obtained only when sufficient pectin is present in the fruit juice, the amount naturally present varies with the kind of fruit and its degree of ripeness. Slightly under-ripe fruit should be chosen for jelly-making and the following simple test should attend by Indian capital. The number of cotton mills is now of thirty-four in 1922 . . .

BATTLE OF PRODUCTION

Britain an Island of Factories

BY JOHN L. YOUNG

Sir Walter Venning, British Quartermaster General, giving an account of his stewardship on the eve, in August 1942, of his retirement, to an assembly of world journalists in London that although, after a year of war, less than 5,000 tons of munitions weekly came from the manufacturers of Great Britain, "to-day, after three Years of war, output has increased to more than 50,000 tons each week."

On that same August day other world journalists flew, on test flights over a British airdrome, in a thirty-ton Avro-Lancaster bomber of a type which had proved its capacity for carrying eight tons of bombs and could fly a there-and-back journey of 3,000 miles; a type which headed-hopped over Germany in daylight to bomb factories in Augsburg. In 1939 the R.A.F.'s heaviest bomber weighed little more than ten tons, fully loaded. The maximum bomb-load in 1940 was only one-quarter of the eight-ton load which the Avro-Lancaster is capable of carrying today.

These are only two illustrations of the increasing ferocity of the British "Battle of Production", a battle which has been fought for three years under the gravest handicaps.

When war broke out, Nazi Germany was able to launch against its victims vast armies, backed by an industrial organization which for seven years had been geared to a high pitch of preparedness, behind his industrial organization, on the other hand, was geared only for the peace she strove in the end to preserve.

The shift from peacetime consumption goods to war products was necessarily slow at first, but after Dunkirk was vigorously speeded up. People accepted the fact that to produce armament goods for war it was grimly necessary to produce less of the things to wear.)

Great Britain, in 1939, had little more than the nucleus of an army, little more than a "token" output of arms, and hardly enough war to not only had to fight the enemy but, at the same time and under fire, to lay the foundations for providing a means to fight. She has had to build under fire; her citizens have had to create her power midst destruction.

Today her own armed forces are trained for counter-attack. The armies of the United States and Canada, and the free armies of conquered nations already trained in Canada, and the momentum of war production is steadily rising to the time when her armies will be able to launch the long-planned offensive in Western Europe. Britain's war industries are steadily achieving the momentum which will drive her armed forces across Europe to Berlin.

The shortage of basic machine tools and one of Britain's gravest handicaps when war broke out but, by May of 1940, machine tools were being produced six times more quickly than in normal days. The story has been told of how two Scotsmen, finding their plant shattered after a night's bombing, rescued a couple of machines and set them up in an outhouse. Today a bombed house, and began that day to produce machine tools. That emergency room has now expanded to a small factory.

In the twelve months preceding June of this year the output of weapons as a whole doubled. Between January 1941 and June 1942 output per person has increased by one-third.

Aircraft production is now three times as great as it was on the eve of war, despite the increasingly complicated pattern of planes. A fewer than 5,000 bombers, using nuts and bolts, have to be made and assembled for the Avro-Lancaster, a bomber operation in the construction of this machine, which originally employed twenty-four hours, is now completed in nine; overall production times have been cut by fifty percent.

A modern tank may be composed of 6,000 different parts, yet with the advent of spring this year Britain was producing five times as many tanks as in July and August, 1940. The total output of tanks, jeeps, and other mechanized vehicles in Britain alone had reached a rate of 257,000 yearly by June 1942.

When 1942 opened, twice as many guns were produced as at the peak of production in 1914-1918. By July, 60,000 guns, two-pounders and upwards — excluding aircraft cannon —were being sent into action from British factories.

Army supplies as a whole are now ten times as great as on the outbreak of war.

Twice as much merchant shipping and four times as much naval shipping was produced by British shipyards during the last quarter of 1941 as in the last quarter before the war broke out.

The battle of production is not only increasing, it is also intensifying. Anthony Eden, Britain's Foreign Secretary, has said that there is good reason to believe British factories are now turning out more munitions in proportion to the population than any other country in the world, not excluding Germany.

Britain has become, even more than in the nineteenth century when it was known as the workshop of the world, an island of factories.

Oliver Lyttelton, Minister of Production, said recently: "We are not yet at the peak absorption of labor in industry, though," he added, "we are very near it."

The curve of the graph of output is still rising. After three years of war Britain has reached almost the limit of expansion, and is now concentrating on intensification, producing more units per machine, more output per man. Regional Commissioners are appointed throughout the country to decentralize control so that problems may be solved by a man on the spot, with intimate knowledge of local conditions.

Hitler may brag about his temporary victories in the field, but the roar of battle production rising to a crescendo from 'factories is also sounding the knell of doom in his ears.

PSYCHOLOGICAL CLINICS PROBE TROUBLE, CURE IT

BY CAPTAIN PETER NATHAN, R.A.M.C.

Captain Nathan, at twenty-seven is one of Britain's youngest military psychologists. He studied medicine at the Middlesex Hospital in London, and psychology with Seif in Munich, and Adler, Stekel and T. A. Ross in Britain. His book. The Psychology of Fascism, will be published shortly.

A young soldier found he could not keep up with his companions on manoeuvres as he was always short of breath and suffered from palpitations. The battalion medical officer sent him to a heart specialist, who passed him on to a psychologist because heart and lungs were normal. Accordingly the soldier was sent into hospital where psychological cases have individual treatment.

Then the following story came out. Eighteen months before he had joined the army, his sister had been killed by death following a violent quarrel with him. He had never got on well with her.

His sister's final weapon in any family battle, when all else failed, was to faint. This time she went into the kitchen and fainted near a lighted gas fire. He rushed and elderly were soon ablaze. This brother, passing the kitchen door, saw her on fire, and instead rushed to the ground. Then the mother arrived and managed to put the fire out.

EFFECT OF A SISTER'S DEATH

The girl was taken to hospital and died from her burns in four days. Before she died she asked to see every member but one of her large family and took an affectionate farewell of them, but she never inquired after this brother, and he did not go to her.

When he had as good as murdered his sister was made abundantly clear by the young man, not only by his sense of guilt, but also by his mother, who told him so at the funeral; by the fact that day his whole home had been undermined by a sense of guilt.

This was particularly hard for him to bear as, earlier in childhood, he had been closely associated with the girl by his grandmother and as a baby sister, and recently had lost his best friend in the navy. This, while out realizing it, he had come to regard himself under a curse.

When this had been fully discussed by doctor and patient, the latter realized that his palpitations and shortness of breath had come on suddenly, badly at bayonet practice, the time when the full significance of war had been brought home to him. Intermixed by guilt, he could not face the idea of killing; and he also realized that he had inevitably killed in battle — as a "murderer" deserved to be.

In this and this had been clearly understood by the patient his symptoms disappeared. But more than this happened: his whole attitude to his family and to life conflicts he had lived through, changed. He was able to deal with them in a reasonable and understanding way and, finally, he returned to his job in the army, not only able to keep up with the others, but with a normal attitude towards war and fear.

This case is one of many being treated in army psychological hospitals. These hospitals were founded in the last war, when the problems of "shell-shock" forced themselves on the attention of the authorities. After the war a commission was set up to inquire into the problems of "shell-shock" and war neurosis, and to collect experience and opinions which might be useful for possible future wars.

This report gave great prominence to the psychological approach to such cases. Since then psychology has made steady progress in Britain. Many of the best Viennese and German psychologists settled in Britain after they could no longer work in their own land like Adler, Freud and Stekel all died here.

An important factor in this development has been the Commonwealth Fund of the United States, and the Carnegie Trust, which established Britain to start the Child Guidance Council and Child Guidance Clinic.

When World War II came Britain was well prepared to deal with psychological cases. Many civilian cases were expected as a result of the air raids. The absence has been one of the surprises of the war but cases from the services arrived as expected.

TREATMENT FREQUENTLY SUCCESSFUL

For it is obvious that not everybody is able to stand up to the changes in life which Service conditions bring. They suffer from the lack of privacy, the toughness, discipline and obedience, the actual conditions of battle and, what they had not all expected, the inevitable boredom. Many who were able to live normally in a sheltered home become depressed, nervy or ill.

In the army's psychological hospitals these cases are sorted out. An attempt is first made to treat all cases. In many the treatment is successful and these men are able to go back to the conditions under which their originally broke down, and carry on normally. Others are able to go back to duty after being transferred to some job in the army which suits them better.

Some of the cases which come for treatment are "boarded out" of the Service as it is considered that they will never make effective soldiers, whereas they are capable of being useful in the national war effort as civilians.

CHURCHILL'S VIEW OF STALIN

London, England, — A striking word portrait of Stalin was given the House of Commons by Premier Churchill. Reporting on his mission to Russia Mr. Churchill said:

"The main purpose of my mission was to visit Moscow and this was accomplished without a break from Cairo to Moscow, except at Teheran where I was accompanied on this part of my mission by Mr. Averell Harriman, personal representative of President Roosevelt, who was able to speak with the august authority of the President.

"We spent four days in conference with Stalin, having talks of five to six hours, and entered into everything with utmost candor and thoroughness. The Chief of the Imperial Staff and Gen. Wavell had discussions on technical matters with two leading military men of Russia, Marshals Voroshilov and Shaposhnikov.

"We went into all kinds of subjects which I cannot give, still less the conclusions reached. I reported three to the War Cabinet, and Mr. Harriman reported them to President Roosevelt, but they must remain secret.

* * * *

"One thing I can say, however, the Russians did not think we or America have done enough. Take the weight off them and this is not at all surprising in view of the terrific onslaughts they have withstood with marvellous tenacity.

"It is difficult to make the Russians comprehend the difficulties of ocean transport in Russia is essentially a continent while we are an island. It is difficult to explain all these things, and when I asked the war effect of various countries, they, I am sure, made the leaders feel confidence in our loyal and sincere resolve to come to their aid as quickly as possible without regard to sacrifices and losses involved, as long as the contribution is towards victory.

"It is my experience of great interest to meet Mr. Stalin. The object of my visit was to establish in our relations the most personal and the same way I established them with President Roosevelt. I found him in spite of the extent of the Tower of responsibility, possessed, a man of barrier, we succeeded to a considerable extent.

* * * *

"It is very fortunate for Russia to have this great leader at the head at the head in her agony. Stalin is a massive and strong personality, suitable to the stern days of the times in which he has lived. He is a man of inexhaustible courage and will, which is of high importance to all men, but supremely of importance great men and great leaders. Stalin also left upon me the impression of deep civil wisdom and complete absence of illusion of any kind.

"I believe I made plain that we are good and faithful comrades in this war. But deeds and not words will prove that.

"As I flew back to Cairo over vast mountain ranges and deserts I bore the conviction that in the British Empire, the United States and the Soviet Union, Hitler has forged an alliance and partnership which is strong enough to beat him to the ground and steadfast enough to carry on until the full account has been punished and at least some of the wrongs he has caused have been repaired."

NOTHING TO HER

The new recruit to the W.A.A.F. was wandering round the balloon site looking very unhappy when he was by an officer noticed her.

"What's the matter?" he asked.

"I've lost a spanner, sir," she replied dolefully.

"Nonsense!" he snorted. "You can't lose a thing like a spanner."

"Can't I? Two minutes ago I lost a ruddy balloon."

STELLA

Stella, Sept. 18. — The Island was visited by a mild thunder storm on Tuesday night last and the home on Harry Hoover's farm at Point Ann was struck by lightning and burned to the ground, together with another barn and two hay and some machinery. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

Quite a number attended Odessa Fair this week.

Mrs. Brown is getting out the lumber to build his barn, which was burned some time ago.

A well known resident of the Island passed away on Monday in the person of John A. Turwell at the age of 69 years, after a serious illness, which confined him to his bed for three months. The late Mr. Turwell put spent his entire life on the farm, and for a number of years was in the butchering and droving business, which made him well known throughout the township and surrounding district. The deceased took an active interest in the Amherst Island Agricultural Society and had served for years on the Board of Directors, being a member at the time of his death. He was also a member of the Canadian Order of Foresters. The large number of floral pieces showed the esteem in which the deceased was held. The funeral, which was held on Wednesday from his late home, was very largely attended. The service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. LeGrow of Wolfe Island. Interment was made in the family plot in Glenwood Cemetery. The pallbearers were R. G. Marshall, Wm. McCormack, A. N. Hitchins, M. Scott, A. Drumgoole, and Ross Filson. Surviving besides his widow, formerly Christina Kilpatrick, are two sons, Gordon and Robert, at home, and one daughter, Mrs. Francis McKee of Stella; two sisters, Mrs. Samuel Miller, of the Island, and Mrs. Geo. Botting, of Kingston; also two brothers, Irwin, of the Island, and Arthur, of Kingston. The following friends from a distance attended the funeral: Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Kilpatrick, of Pittsburg; Mr. and Mrs. John Fleming, of Buffalo, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Mrs. Brooks and family, of Hay Bay; Mr. Frank Briceland, of Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. R. Aylsworth, of Cataraqui; Harry Laidley, of Kingston; Herb. Laidley and Mr. and Mrs. C. Miller, of Bath; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McKee, of Kingston; Mr. Reg. McCallister and mother, of Kingston.

CAMDEN EAST

Camden East, Sept. 19. — Rev. W. G. and Mrs. Fletcher, Yarker, called on several in the community on Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. George Black spent the past week with their niece, Mrs. Hunsden, and family, Odessa.

Mr. and Mrs. Fairfield, of Hanilton, spent the past week with the latter's sister, Mrs. Bertha Snider.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hinch, of Toronto, have been guests of Mr. Hinch's mother, Mrs. Anna Hinch.

Mrs. A. Perry and Mrs. T. Jackson spent Tuesday in Kingston.

Miss Nellie Burgoyne is returning to her home in Kitchener, after visiting her sister, Miss P. Burgoyne, and brother, John, and family.

Mrs. James Dee MacKay, accompanied by Mr. W. Patterson and Mr. R. Sault, were callers in Napanee on Thursday afternoon. Mr. Patterson was, on that day, celebrating his 74th birthday, and is enjoying splendid health.

Mrs. Bert Martin, Bethel Street, spent an evening recently with Mrs. Garnet Jeffrey.

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Boulton have had several letters from their son, Pte. Victor Boulton, who is taking a special course at Port Knox, Kentucky. Victor's many friends wish him much success.

ENTERPRISE

Enterprise, Sept. 19. — A pleasant event took place in the Orange Hall, Enterprise, on Tuesday evening, September 8th, when a presentation and shower was held for Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ritchie, who were recently married. The bride, who, before her marriage, was Miss Helen Cummings, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cummings, looked very charming in her wedding dress. Miss Cummings was well known in the community and had acted as clerk in Mr. W. S. Penwick's store. Many guests were present to extend best wishes. The evening was spent in games. Later Miss Marguerite Raymond read an address and Mrs. William Fenwick presented Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie with a set of dishes and a sum of money on behalf of their friends of this community. Many beautiful gifts were received from other friends also. The bride and the groom thanked their friends and extended to all a cordial invitation to visit them at their new home in Moscow, after which all joined in singing "For they are jolly good fellows." BETHEL

Bethel, Sept. 21. — The extremely hot weather we had during the past week ended in a cold wave on Saturday night, which was certainly a decided change in a very few hours. Mr. Frank McLaren, of Moscow, is doing some ploughing with his tractor and disc plow for Messrs. Allenbrack, Salisbury, Jaynes, and Jackson.

A large crowd attended the Colebrook Anniversary Service on Sunday morning, and enjoyed a fine message delivered by Mr. Lawson, his text being "The Church in the Community".

Mrs. Jack Beattie, who has been confined to her bed for the past week with the grippe, is better. Her daughter, Mrs. Hazold Peters, has been home caring for her.

Mr. John Meredith has recently installed the Hydro power in all his buildings, and also added a new milking machine and erected and filled a new silo.

Mr. Albert LaVeck, who has been a resident here for the past eight months on the farm formerly known as the Middleton farm, and at present rented by Mr. V. Drew, of Moscow, is leaving this week and will be succeeded by Mr. Archie Babcock as tenant, who comes from the Moscow district. Mr. LaVeck was a good neighbor and he, with his wife and children, will be missed. Mr. Babcock comes well recommended, so we welcome him and his family.

Rev. Mr. Lawson was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. P. Galbraith on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Armstrong, mother and son motored to Moscow and Mr. and Mrs. E. D. McKnight on Sunday, and attended the anniversary services.

We have been in very extensive training this last month or so. I guess they are getting us ready for something to start. They work like h— — all day and then pull out at all hours of the night for mock raids, etc. I guess most of us will be glad when something does start. It gets pretty monotonous playing soldier all the time.

Well, the nurse says I can't stay propped up any longer and whatever she says seems to go around here, so will have to close for this time. Will write more later. Lots of luck and write soon.

LETTER DESCRIBES BOMB EXPERIENCE CANADIAN SOLDIER

The following letter received by Mrs. Robert Potter, Enterprise, tells of a Canadian soldier's experience during a bombing raid in London, England.

Monday, August 10, 1942.

Dear Friends:— Well here I am in a Canadian Military Hospital. I went through on a week-end leave last Friday evening and got too near a bomb in an air-raid. Nothing very serious but I got banged up considerably. I lost about half the skin on my back. Before me I feel like I went through a threshing machine. The Doctor says I will have to stay in bed a couple of weeks. But I guess I was pretty lucky. The Nursing Sister says they found me in the street after the raid passed, with half a four-storey building down around me. There were quite a few other people in the street I don't know what became of them. I was with a buddy but he managed to make an air-raid shelter before the raid started. Anyway, I now have a great respect for bombs.

We have been in very extensive training this last month or so. I guess they are getting us ready for something to start. They work like h— — all day and then pull out at all hours of the night for mock raids, etc. I guess most of us will be glad when something does start. It gets pretty monotonous playing soldier all the time.

Well, the nurse says I can't stay propped up any longer and whatever she says seems to go around here, so will have to close for this time. Will write more later. Lots of luck and write soon.

As ever,
LEON.

HYDRO MANAGER ISSUES WARNING ABOUT USE OF LIGHTS

Power Controller's Order Must be Obeyed

C. A. Walters, local Hydro Manager, in an interview with a representative of The Beaver, on Tuesday, stated there was a commendable spirit of co-operation being evidenced by the majority of the citizens of this district in curtailing the use of electric power and complying with the recently issued order governing the use of outside lights. But, Mr. Walters said, there are still some people who either do not know about the regulations or who are careless about observing them. A recent check-up, he said, showed quite a large number of porch lights still being left lighted at homes in the town of Napanee and in rural communities. The use of porch lights, except in public buildings, where they are allowed for safety, is not allowed.

There is a paragraph in the Power Controller's order which reads: "No supplier shall supply electricity for any purpose to any person who, to the knowledge of such supplier, uses electricity contrary to the provisions of this order."

If a consumer fails to observe a warning it will be in order for the Commission, without warning, to discontinue the service.

Recently the street lighting in Napanee has been reduced by twenty percent, by the use of adjustors, and all street signs and window lights have been turned off.

The housewife can give material aid in her kitchen if she will not heat water before it is required. When cooking on an electric range if she uses high heat for as little time as possible then turns to "low," she will be using stored heat and will be saving power. Whenever possible the oven should be used for cooking complete meals, rather than the outside elements. Only one element is required for the oven process, while three or four elements are required when using the cooking surface.

She should remember to open the refrigerator door only when necessary, and close it as quickly as possible. Another thing, hot food should not be placed in the refrigerator until they are cool.

It is a temptation for many housewives to switch on the radio in the morning and leave it blasting all the day. Make it a practice to turn the radio on only for the programs desired.

This power saving really boils down to using good old-fashioned common sense and in this the people in the towns and villages as well as in the larger centres of population can do a great job. Householders should reduce their power consumption by twenty percent, if this power saving is going to work.

WARTIME PRICES AND TRADE BOARD NEWS

DETACHED COUPONS ARE NOT ACCEPTABLE

Unless they are detached in the presence of a merchant or his representative, coupons in ration books have no value, says the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Merchants are warned that it is definitely contrary to the regulations for them to accept any coupons that are so detached.

OLD RATION CARDS STILL HAVE VALUE

Although they are now replaced by the ration books which have been distributed, the former temporary ration cards still possess value for the purchase of sugar, tea and coffee, provided any coupons remain on them. Moreover, coupons in the ration books which are not cashed at their regular time continue to be valid at any time thereafter.

BEEF MAY BE RATIONED BECAUSE OF SHORTAGE

Donald Gordon, chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, has issued a statement in which he says that body is considering further action in regard to the "acute" shortage of beef and that consumer rationing and allocation of supplies may become a necessity. The Board, he added, is also studying methods of establishing ceilings on the prices of live stock in addition to the present ceilings on the prices of meat.

THEATRE PRICES ARE UNDER CONTROL

An order of the Administrator of Services, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, governs the rental and exhibition of motion picture films and fixes a ceiling for admission prices, which cannot be increased for "added attractions" or otherwise. Use of any automotive vehicle for the purpose of advertising any theatre, product or any exhibition of any product is also forbidden under the order.

PRIVATE TRUCKS AND TRAILERS CONTROLLED

On and after November 1st private trucks and trailers will be limited to a radius of 5 miles under an order of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, and no vehicle of that description except as otherwise provided may operate beyond such a limit from its registered address without a special permit. Trucks and trailers registered or licensed in any province as public vehicles on August 1st last are not affected by the order, nor does it apply to vehicles used by farmers for transporting agricultural commodities or moving them to or from a farm. Other exemptions include transportation for the purpose of implements, boilers, sawing machinery, threshing machinery and trucks operating for grain elevators or manufacturing plants.

TYPEWRITER REPAIR CHARGES CONTROLLED

Under an order of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, no person shall charge more than $1.50 per hour for the work of inspecting, servicing and/or repairing any used typewriter. The cost of parts or materials actually placed in or on any such machine is in addition to such charges. The order furthermore stipulates that no rebuilt typewriter shall be sold or delivered in any consumer unless it is accompanied by a written warranty that the machine is in good working order that it will be repaired within six months from the time of delivery in the event of the machine or its parts becoming defective, broken or worn through any defects existing at the time of delivery.

W.P.T.B. INSPECTORS CARRY IDENTIFICATION

Every representative of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, it is pointed out by its regional office, carries authorized credentials and is required to produce them if they should be demanded. The credentials not only identify the holder as a representative of the Board but set forth the position which he occupies.

CONSERVATIVES LIKELY TO MEET AT WINNIPEG

Announcement was made early last week, by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Conservative Party, that a National Convention of Conservatives will be held in the near future.

It will take about a month to arrange for the convention. In all likelihood it will be in Winnipeg in early November. The general set up of the last convention, here in Ottawa, will be followed, but streamlined, perhaps fewer delegates from each county but with all counties represented.

The two big questions will be leadership and policy. It is thought that there will be interlocked and interdependent. He for example, the rather radical proposals of the Port Hope reconstruction should be endorsed, it would call for leadership of one type of school.

If the adopted policy be more attuned to traditions of the party then the leadership would be entrusted to one of the more conservational type.

Whether Mr. Meighen will go on, or retire, causes much speculation and various forecasts. He alone is in a position to affirm his wishes. The convention will either confirm his choice by the Conference in Ottawa last November, or select someone else.

SEVERAL MENTIONED

Who that would be provides opportunity for conjecture.

It is easy to recall the names, so frequently mentioned, in the past, Hon. M. A. MacPherson, of Regina; President Smith of the University of Manitoba; Col. George A. Drew, Ontario Conservative leader; J. H. Harris, Howard Green and J. G. Diefenbaker, M.P.s.

ANOTHER ACCIDENT AT JOHN STREET INTERSECTION

Another accident occurred Tuesday afternoon, at the intersection of John and Thomas Streets in Napanee, which has been the scene of numerous motor car crashes in the past several years. About three p.m. an ice truck belonging to The Napanee Fuel & Supply Company, collided with a Ford car driven by Mr. Jack Murphy, Marlbank. Mr. Murphy sustained a cut on his forehead and Mrs. Murphy had one of her legs cut and bruised. Mrs. Murphy was also suffering from shock. Another passenger in the car, Miss McGuire, Marlbank, escaped injury.

The Murphy car was travelling east on Thomas Street and was said to have nearly passed through the intersection, when the ice truck, driven by Percy Thompson, Napanee, collided with it. The Murphy car was turned completely around and the rear bumper was knocked off when it struck a pole on the northeast corner. Glass in the car was smashed and the car was badly damaged. The radiator of the truck was smashed and the right fender and running board were crumpled. The driver of the truck and another employee of the Fuel Company, Harry Lewis, were not hurt.

Chief of Police T. S. Moore, investigated the accident and had the injured people to Dr. Hall's office for treatment.

SHORTAGE OF LABOR REDUCES EXHIBITS AT NAPANEE FAIR

Quality of Stock and Produce Good

Labor difficulties in the rural areas and restrictions on the use of gasoline undoubtedly made themselves felt by reducing the number of exhibits and the attendance, to some extent, at the fall fair which was held in Napanee on Monday and Tuesday and again to-day (Wednesday).

Exhibits in some classes were about equal to last year, but were down in the number of entries in other classes. The cattle horse barn was fairly well filled and the quality of the animals shown certainly made up for any lack of numbers. There were some very fine horses displayed by local farmers and by exhibitors from a distance, including some beautiful black horses shown by a large wholesale firm.

The entries in the swine class seemed unusually large. This was partly accounted for by a number of entries in the export bacon class, which were all sold at the end of the fair and for which generous cash prizes are to be awarded when the pigs have been killed and graded.

The exhibit of poultry was considerably smaller than last year and not quite as many breeds were shown as in former years.

The entries in considerable interest is centred around the Black and White Day, which is the feature of Wednesday afternoon. It is expected the showing of Holsteins will be as large as usual.

The exhibits in the Palace were not as numerous as usual. The women's handy work exhibit was much smaller than it was years ago, but the entries in the domestic science classes were surprisingly good, considering the shortage of sugar. As usual there was an effective display of flowers, and near them were quite a number of good quality apples.

The work of the Red Cross and the I.O.D.E. was very well set forth in displays in booths in the Palace and the War Finance Committee operated another booth, which was used as a base from which the Miss Canada's of the County sold War Savings Stamps and took orders for War Savings Certificates. The Salvation Army also operated a booth in the interest of their Home Front Campaign.

The Dominion Department of Agriculture had an effective display in the Palace, where the production of ham, poultry and eggs and sheep was featured.

Local merchants who had displays were Bramsky's, who showed furniture; The Canadian Department Stores, furniture and radios; and L. D. Spencer, who had an attractive display of Swift's concentrates. The Ladies

A LONG AND SENSITIVE EAR

Our Provincial Premier has his ear to the ground. His ear is extremely sensitive, and capable of picking up political and economic earth tremors with alacrity and precision. The latest rumble is from Alberta, where a C.C.F. candidate was successful in a recent by-election. A previous earth tremor was heard in the election of Mr. Nosworthy, sometime ago, another C.C.Fer. There are little disturbances in other ears which indicate a growing public opinion swing to a left wing position. The success of Russian defence of their home land, a success which our Prime Minister, in a notable address a year or more ago, implied was impossible, has had a sobering effect on some who, a short time ago, saw nothing but evil in any movement seeking to change the status quo. And then those economic and socially-minded visionaries who were pooh-poohed a while ago, are listened to, now. The Archbishop of Canterbury, in his latest address in Albert Hall, London, on Sunday reiterated his demand for government control of credit, and a new and more equitable distribution of wealth in the post-war world.

Little wonder then, that Mr. Hepburn, with his eye on the main dance and his ear to the ground, should urge upon the Minister of Justice that the Communists, who voluntarily submitted to arrest, should be given their freedom. Mr. Hepburn has been as unkind, as ungentlemanly and as discourteous to the representatives of the Christian Church, during his term of office as anyone could possibly be, and as condemnatory of their efforts at social reform as he was of the Communists. It would not be at all surprising if Mr. Hepburn hearing of Premier King's kindly response to the recent delegation of churchmen, should come out as the champion of the Church and all it stands for. That might seem improbable, it would be were we thinking of anyone else but the present Premier of Ontario. But, with him, nothing is impossible.

It is hardly to be expected that the people of this province will be misled by the political gymnastics of Mr. Hepburn. The public, even that section of it which at any given moment basks in the sunlight of his favor, will hardly trust him, knowing that to-morrow, their time may come, if his political ear should catch tremors of a swing to reaction in the country.

V

A SECOND FRONT

The statement of Wendell Willkie, that the Russians are becoming anxious about a second front, and his call that one be opened at once, has renewed newspaper discussions of the subject. There are two opinions on the subject and one maintains that even if the United Nations are not ready, they should take risks in order to relieve German pressure on Sussia. Such an attack, they point out, would be of more value now than next spring, for the Germans may establish a fixed line in the East, leave comparatively few troops to guard it, and then turn their main force against the West.

On the other hand, there are those who contend that the risk of failure is too great. They point to Dunkirk, Crete, Greece and Norway, as examples of what can happen if an invasion is attempted without some pretty fair hope of success. They argue as well, that the raids on Germany, coupled with the amount of munitions arriving at Russian ports, are evidence that the war is wearing down the adversary.

As between these the experts differ. There is, in all quarters, a feeling of deep sympathy with the Russians and admiration for their noble, courageous and determined stand at Leningrad. But the failure of another attempted invasion would be a sore blow to the morale of the Allied nations. Granted that in war we must take risks, yet there is a point where risks are foolhardy. The loss of Canadian effectives to the extent of sixty percent. in the raid on Dieppe, shows conclusively that there must be an abundant reserve of everything, if an invasion is to be successful—tanks, men, planes, ammunition, and above all, ships. It would be sheer madness to attempt an invasion until the military authorities were reasonably sure of success.

Doubtless, the Russian officials know of the plans of the Allied Nations. Russia is her self one of them, and we may rest assured that no matter what may be said in an unofficial way, all "in the know" are aware of the when and how of future military movements. Perhaps it is best to leave it at that, except to say all this talk of a second front serves a useful purpose in the war of nerves, by keeping Germany guessing.

V

PERCENTAGES

One tendency against which we must be constantly on our guard in these trying and exacting days, is that which calculates everything in terms of percentages, while neglect-

"THAT GO DOWN TO THE SEA"

The loss of the destroyer "Ottawa" adds another page to Canada's epic of the seas. It seems that yesterday "Canada's Tin-Pot Navy" was a by-word and a joke among us all. But what a change has taken place! Speaking on Sunday night, Major Clement Atlee, Britain's Deputy-Prime Minister, paid a restrained but sincere tribute to Canada's Navy and the part it is playing in the war. He expressed, too, his sympathy with those who had been bereaved by the loss of the Ottawa.

Canada has been so busy getting organized for war, that not enough attention has been paid to the publishing of her achievements. The result is that we not only depreciate our own effort, but others, especially our Allies in the United States are not sufficiently aware of what her smaller Northern Neighbor is accomplishing. It must have come as a surprise to most people to learn, as we did in a dispatch from Ottawa on Monday, that Canada in nine months has built fifty ten-thousand-ton ships. Such a feat would have seemed incredible, three years ago.

The Navy has done magnificently. The full story will thrill future generations as they read of the heroism, service and bravery of those who go down to the sea in ships from all parts of our country — from the Prairies, as well as from the sea-girt coasts.

To keep Britain fed, Canada is giving food and money, but by far the greatest contribution we are making to provisioning the Mother Land is by human lives, given willingly, as those who protect the convoys fall prey to the undersea craft. The stories told by survivors indicate, in a vivid way, the extent of this human sacrifice for others. Writing in the Toronto Daily Star, Eric Hutton thus reports Petty Officer John B. Smith of Toronto, who was on the "Ottawa":

> "We went around the ship, checking up on the casualties — and there were lots of them. Lieut. Pullen (First Lieut. T. C. Pullen, R.C.N., Oakville) and Petty Officer Arthur Hard of Swift Current, Sask., went where the men had been sleeping forward, cutting down hammocks to release men who were trapped in the wreckage, and bring out the wounded. That first torpedo killed nearly all the men who were quartered in the lower mess deck, and there was a heavy toll among the communication ratings and watchkeepers, too.
>
> "When the second torpedo hit, I was blown over the side, semi-conscious, and swam around automatically until Petty Officer Don Currie, of Ottawa, pulled me on to a raft. We had no paddle, as they had been lost in the explosions, and we paddled around with our hands. There were 25 men on our float to begin with, but every now and then a big wave would lift us and turn us over, and when we scrambled back to the raft one or two would be missing. Not more than twenty of us remained when we reach the side of the corvette."

ing to take account of the human factors so often involved. "Five of our planes failed to return," is a despatch reads, and then the commentator goes on to say that this was only two percent. of those taking part in the raid. Yes, it may be only two percent. and yet there are five planes, each with a crew of five or six. It is little comfort to the wives, the mothers, the sweethearts and the children of the occupants of those planes, to be told that only two percent. did not return. For every one that did not return there are a score of relatives and friends who will be torn by anguish, and broken by sorrow and anxiety. The necessity for thinking in percentages is perhaps occasioned by the relatives of life, but after all, life is more than statistics in a table, it is bound up in a bundle of human concerns from which we never depart, save at the loss of something deep and pure and lovely in our characters.

We are reading of the great grain crop in Western Canada. Probably 650,000,000 bushels of wheat will be harvested, with a total crop of over 1,250,000,000 of all grain. A truly magnificent crop, and yet, here and there, there have been storms and significant losses. We have just received letters and papers from the Killarney area in South Manitoba, where a terrific storm broke over a small area. It smashed houses, blew some half a mile away, demolished others, tore fences, uprooted fence posts. Hail as large as golf balls flattened every blade of growing crop. All the work, all the labor, all the expense that had been put into the fields was wiped out in the twinkling of an eye. To be sure there is a bumper crop in the West, and the loss and loss around Killarney is a very small percentage of the whole. But those who lost are real people, their loss of property was real for them; their sorrow is their own sorrow; their anxiety and grief a personal and family affair. Napanee has many former citizens in and around Killarney. Mr. Carson, brother of Mrs. Mark Graham, is the Mayor of the Town; and Mrs. Charles Lewis, formerly Miss Grace Bowen, of North Fredericksburgh, is also a resident. The town itself was not injured. Steps have been taken by the Government, by the town, and by voluntary gifts, and labor, to restore in some measure the loss sustained in a moment of time by this section of Manitoba.

The destruction will hardly make a dent in the statistical return of the crop, but, all the same, there are men and women and little children who will suffer for years. Some have seen the work of their whole lives wiped out in the twinkling of an eye. A bit of imagination when reading statistics, will prevent us from becoming too cold-blooded and too dehumanized. Beneath all the statistics of accidents, deaths on land and sea and air, are human factors which lie deep in the emotional, social and communal life of all of us.

GREAT BRITAIN FIGHTS ON TWELVE FRONTS

British armies have fought on twelve fronts; the British Navy has never ceased to fight on the Seven Seas; and the R.A.F. has been engaged in daily battles, minor and major, in the air in every quarter of the globe, including Russia. Lord Croft, the British War Office's Joint Parliamentary Secretary, made this statement when viewing Britain's activities recently.

He said that this had only been made possible because Britain has been able to produce more munitions and more ships than any country of its size in all recorded history.

From the day British troops entered Belgium, British armies have not ceased for a single week to fight. A list of British victories on some of these fronts would include:

GERMAN AMBITIONS FRUSTRATED

The reconquest of British Somaliland.

The destruction of Italian forces in Ethiopia and restoration of that country to its people.

The occupation of the whole of Syria in a campaign against Vichy-French opposition, which was brilliantly brought to a successful conclusion without either side suffering heavy casualties.

In Iraq the British swiftly and effectually quelled an Axis-inspired rebellion and frustrated German ambitions towards the vitally important Middle Eastern oil-fields.

The great importance of these British victories was not only in freeing vast territories from Axis domination or menace, but also in the overthrow of huge armies by numerically inferior British forces.

If this had not happened the British in Libya and Egypt would have had to meet more than sixty-eight of Rommel's forces, but also the powerful Axis armies from East Africa, and possible attack from Syria and Iraq.

The British have also supported Iran and joined hands there with Russia, while Madagascar has been safeguarded from the Japanese.

In Ethiopia British forces covered 1,900 miles in ninety-four days before reaching Amba Alagi, where the Duke of Aosta surrendered.

WAVELL'S GREAT TRIUMPH

General Cunningham's troops in the Southern Ethiopian campaign at no time exceeded 20,000 infantry with never more than sixty-eight field guns. In this mountainous region it was impossible to supply more than three brigades at any time in any offensive operations, yet the British destroyed an army of 170,000, of which 96,000 were infantry with 400 guns.

But the greatest triumph was that of Wavell's army of 30,000 who, in two months in Libya, accounted for 250,000 Italians in an advance of 400 miles.

Lord Croft showed how, in addition to these twelve battle fronts, another colossal front had to be built up, stretching from the Western Desert to the Caspian, thence along the whole northern frontier and the whole of the east coast of India.

But this is not the sum-total of British commitments. Other important places have had to be heavily armed and sustained: Gibraltar, Malta, the West Coast of Africa, the Faroes, Iceland and Northern Ireland. In the last two are now strong forces from the United States.

The key to Malta is known to all the world. Last April more than 600 aircraft, mostly German, came in endless waves to subdue this island fortress which had only two or three airfields.

At one time the defense was reduced to a dozen fighters. Since then the strongest aircraft have been sent to Malta, including those delivered by the American aircraft carrier Wasp.

Lord Croft announced that the total casualties suffered on land, sea, military forces alone were at least 250,000. This greatly exceeds the total of the British military casualties on all fronts.

The number of Axis prisoners in British hands is in excess of British soldiers captured.

To fight in all these fronts has greatly increased demands on shipping space. Many millions of tons were needed to transport men and supplies in the last two years from Britain, the British Empire and the United States. Here are the transport figures:

VAST PROBLEM OF TRANSPORT

950,000 men, 4,500 tanks, 6,000 aircraft, nearly 5,000 pieces of artillery, 50,000 machine guns and more than 100,000 mechanical vehicles.

While these huge convoys were on the high seas the British Navy had to protect them, at first alone, and then with the help of the United States fleet. There were also convoys of food and raw materials for the British Isles.

Side by side with all these activities is the building up of the forces in Britain which will launch the front in the west. These forces have to be equipped with the latest weapons, tanks, and guns, and prepared for the day when, taking the initiative on land, they turn their faces and their weapons to Berlin.

THIS SCHOOL IS THIRTY FEET UNDER THE SEA

BY VINCENT BROME

She was one of the old 1919 "H" class of submarines, but her lines were still sleek and trim and she rode the swell easily. There were many peculiar things about this submarine. And, for instance, two crews, one normal and fully trained, the other a shadow crew learning its job.

As the submarine dived, the shadow crew quietly absorbing every move for the time when they would themselves take control.

The captain has at the eyepiece of the periscope. In the control room with him are the first lieutenant ready to keep the submarine trim after the captain had given orders for the course, speed and depth.

INSTRUCTING UNDERSEA RECRUITS

A series of levers similar to a signal lamp carried out the work. The manipulation of this or that lever forced water into the ballast tanks or into them, with obvious results. The recruits watched intently.

Now the engineer-lieutenant manipulated the hydroplanes aft, and the second crewman gave the wheel control the forward hydroplanes: they are actually horizontal rudders. The first lieutenant watching carefully, trimming depths. By manipulating the hydroplanes—they kept the submarine dead-constant! Again the students followed every move.

Another member of the crew was busy explaining the precise workings of the hydrophones, small microphones of a specially sensitive type. Bound travels long distances through water and these microphones are capable of picking up the slightest whisper. Valve amplifiers increase the sound waves enormously. They can then recognize the screw beat of a passing ship — the exact type of vessel has a characteristic beat.

Absolute quiet is vital with enemy destroyers about. Even a cough may mean disaster.

For half an hour this strange school thirty feet under the sea, went its stealthy way. Every gadget, every instrument was demonstrated in action, every normal or emergency move worked out.

AT THE MOMENT OF ATTACK

Then, the recruits gave warning of a dummy attack. Clothed in sweater and shorts he kept his eye fixed to the periscope somewhere up on the surface a large ship was manoeuvering. Then, quite suddenly, the lens ceased moving into a position. Instructor Lydria was a business woman. She made up her mind quickly. She did not look around to see what others were doing before she acted. Once she was moved by the presentation of the Gospel story, she gave herself to it wholeheartedly. She immediately took the missionaries to her home and shared her public opinion for the deep new conviction she had arrived at. The sequence is logical and necessary — a definite identification with the beloved community, work and service for the cause.

CANADIAN RECREATION CENTRE OPENED AT BARRIEFIELD BY BRIG. F. L. ARMSTRONG

Will Cater Only to Privates and Corporals and Members of the C.W.A.C. Expected to Be Forerunner of Similar Establishments in Other Military Districts Across Canada.

Kingston, Sept. 25. — A specially designed dry canteen and recreational centre, Barriefield Village was officially opened last night at the Canadian Ordnance Corps Training Centre, Barriefield, by Brigadier L. Logie Armstrong, O.B.E., Officer Commanding Military District No. 3.

Expected to be the forerunner of similar establishments in other military districts across Canada, the canteen and recreational facilities are enjoyed also by members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps stationed here.

In addition to making such entertainment available as billiards, ping pong, checkers, dancing and variety shows, the canteen, also provides a comfortable lounge, reading and writing room, and an up-to-date refreshment booth. Cost of furnishings and equipment were borne by profits arising from previous C.O.C.T.C. canteen operations.

Lieut.-Colonel E. A. Steer, M.C., training centre commandant, urged the soldiers and C.W.A.C. members to make the canteen a home. He said he believed in the old "All work and no play makes a dull boy."

Plans for the new venture were first submitted to Military District No. 3 headquarters for approval, and then forwarded to National Headquarters for its sanction. At the ceremony opening the canteen, colonels, majors and captains, the guests of honor, were piped aboard, and followed shoulder to shoulder by other officers and other ranks as they danced to the Ordnance Training Centre Band.

Interesting Process Used In Reclaiming Scrap Rubber Piles

What happens to the old rubber boots or worn out tires you've been lining up at the curb and which was turned in for salvage? After it has been sorted at the salvage, piles of it have been collected all across Canada in trucks operated by the Dominion Rubber Co., which is Government-owned, and the scrap shipped overseas by the big plants in Montreal and Toronto. There it is sheared and chopped into small pieces. Then old rubber is treated with chemicals and put through a shower bath and pressed into sheets of reclaim.

Here is what that reclaim is used for; war vehicles, tires for trucks and aeroplane detachable pontoons, ground sheets and shoulder capes, gas masks, steel helmet lining, respirator masks, tank bogie wheels, armoured cars, army duffle bags, army shoe, war industry belting, tank tracks, tires and crash pads, army trucks, life saving jackets, and many workers' protective clothing, such as rubber boots, rain coats, rubber gloves and many other articles.

The reclaiming process is used on very efficiently. Only about 40 of the old rubber is lost in the process. 2500 pounds of scrap rubber will produce 2000 pounds of reclaim rubber.

GARDEN GROWN TOMATOES GOOD BET FOR CHRISTMAS IF PROPERLY STORED

It is possible to have garden grown tomatoes for Christmas says Dr. Hamilton Dyer, Dominion Entomologist at Ottawa. The tomatoes must be picked when mature, given conditions which will suffer injury from frost. They must be thoroughly dry, clean to start with, and are free from any disease or insect injury. Wrap each tomato separately in paper, two-ply tissue is good, and place in shallow boxes or in drawers. Keep in a cool, dry storeroom where the temperature can be maintained at about 50 degrees. The use of small quantities of sulphur candles will help to sterilize the air and prevent moulds from ripening.

Another method is to pull the plants before there is any sign of frost injury and hang the entire vine, with the fruit on, from rafters in the ceiling of the cellar. The chief advantage of this method being that ripening of the fruit proceeds with the necessity of handling the tomatoes. A temperature of 50 degrees is best for this method, too.

FAITH IN CHRIST AS OUR PERSONAL SAVIOUR

Lesson Text; Acts 16: 13 - 15. Romans 5: 1 - 11

The little group of missionaries who were carrying on their work in Europe were puzzled, for the first part at this time, among the Jewish people. In Philippi there could not have been very many Jews, for there was no synagogue. The Hebrews used to meet out by the banks of a river, and there carry on devotions. They chose a spot by the river presumably to be near water which was used in the ritual of the service. As much time was required for service the missionaries engaged them in conversation. The emphasis that in the text the reference is to women. Quite likely the comment that one makes about the churches being full of women, is not a new one.

Lydia was the first woman convert to Christianity in Europe. She evidently was rather comfortably well off, as she dealt in an expensive dye which could only be purchased by a wealthy clientelle. Hearing the missionaries she was stirred to commit her life to the new way, both for herself and family. The fact that she spoke for the whole family may seem strange to us western individualists, but in the Orient or the Middle East the family is the unit, and there is much firmer family discipline there than among us. It is not unusual to find whole families, on occasion, moving into a position. Incidentally Lydria was a business woman. She made up her mind quickly. She did not look around to see what others were doing before she acted. Once she was moved by the presentation of the Gospel story, she gave herself to it wholeheartedly. She immediately took the missionaries to her home and shared her public opinion for the deep new conviction she had arrived at. The sequence is logical and necessary — a definite identification with the beloved community, work and service for the cause.

In Romans we have a brief description of the way in which men and women are redeemed. It is a matter of faith. We are "justified by faith," Paul insists. The religious society into which Paul was born and in which he had been brought up taught that salvation was achieved through works, through adherence to the laws of the Church. Not so, says Paul. It is by faith a person is saved. Commitment on a basis of faith is all that Jesus asks. Through this faith changes everything, for if we have faith in the God of Christ, the life takes on an ultimate meaning. Everything else is set in its proper relation to this. The ultimate is found in the general scheme of the universe. Faith in God enables people to see, in their trials and frustrations, the purpose of God for them. What a message for today! In the whole world embroiled in bloodshed and war, and millions suffering forcing people to ask ultimate questions, how essential to people's mind that men and women have a definite hope. Nothing else will do to Yarker or Napanee.

"Christ died for us," says Paul. Probably no verse has been more grossly misused than this. In English there are two meanings to the word "for". In one we say "I worked for him last year at the election," meaning "along with and on behalf of him." In another we say "I worked for him last week," meaning I worked in his place instead of him. The word in Greek has a different word for each of these meanings and the New Testament uses is the one which like our example, means "on behalf of" or with," and not "instead of". That not been taken account of in many wires, army duffle bags, army shoe, war industry belting, tank tracks and crash pads, army trucks, life saving jackets, and many other workers' protective clothing, such as rubber boots, rain coats, rubber gloves and many other articles.

The reclaiming process is used on very efficiently. Only about 40 of the old rubber is lost in the process. 2500 pounds of scrap rubber will produce 2000 pounds of reclaim rubber.

BUT GEORGE WAS AT DIEPPE!

NICE fellow, George—one of the lads from the office. Remember, you had him out for dinner one night. He made a great fuss over your kids—and your wife was very pleased. And then, all of a sudden, he slipped away and joined up. So this guy is dead, his girl and his future. And he was at Dieppe, dragging up the beach into a murderous rain of steel—fighting for you and your wife and those kids of yours he played with. And that same night you slept well, didn't you . . . in a soft bed. You had an egg for breakfast too. But George didn't. And you've still got a good job and you wear good clothes.

And being conscientious, you worry about these things a bit. But you just haven't been able to push yourself into doing much more than pay your taxes. Well, those taxes aren't enough. Think of what George gave up, and then sit down with your wife and ask yourselves, "What else can we do?" Sure, you've given up a few little luxuries. But there are lots of things yet that you can cut down on. Do it gladly. Because you'll really get a kick out of investing the money you save in Victory Bonds, and in knowing you're not letting George do it all.

Just keep thinking about George and what he gave up. And remember, those Victory Bonds you buy aren't giving—they're lending your country money to help protect you. That money will come back to you with interest.

REGISTRATION LAWS CHANGED

ALL MUST COMPLY

Ottawa, Sept. 26 — At least 500 persons daily lose their national registration certificates, said Labor Minister Humphrey Mitchell in a statement outlining the procedure under which all persons resident in Canada who have attained their 16th birthday, must register, if they have not already done so.

The announcement said the regulations under which the national registration of July, 1940, was taken have been amended in a number of particulars to meet present-day requirements.

Mr. Mitchell said that in August 21,000 persons applied to have lost certificates replaced. This was the peak month, but persons losing certificates numbered at least 500 a day throughout Canada.

Procedure in this case is as follows :—

A duplicate can be obtained by completing a form of affidavit, obtainable at any post-office. It can be forwarded and sworn to before the postmaster free of charge except for payment of three cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to send the form to the officer who issues duplicate certificates.

Anyone finding his original certificate after receiving a duplicate must return it immediately to the chief registrar, the statement said.

National registration, until recently under jurisdiction of the national war services department, recently has been transferred to the labor department. Registration material in future will be handled by the chief registrar of Canada, Mr. Mitchell said.

He stressed that every person, man or woman, British subject or alien, resident in Canada, who has reached his or her 16th birthday, must register if he or she has not already done so. The phrase "resident in Canada" refers to everyone who has been in Canada for a continuous period of more than six weeks.

The statement recalled that a person may register at any post office in Canada by filling out a questionnaire provided there.

Every registered person changing his or her address must notify the chief registrar at Ottawa. Persons failing to notify a changed address are subject to a fine not exceeding $50.

Every registrant who married must report the marriage by going to the post-office and completing a form provided for the announcement said. The registration of marriage of the wife in her maiden name is to be surrendered. The new registration will issue a new one in the wife's married name. Changes must be reported within 14 days.

Mr. Mitchell also said that registration certificates must be carried at all times. Employers employing persons of sixteen years of age must require such persons to produce registration certificates. If they failed to do this they were subject to heavy penalties.

A similar rate will apply on farm properties and their contents, including private garages, barns, outbuildings, farm implements, automobiles, livestock and produce.

Churches, hospitals, educational institutions, religious institutions and libraries, museums and public buildings will receive the rate of 15 cents for $100 but 90 per cent of the premium will be obligatory.

RED CROSS NEWS

The Red Cross Room is a hive of industry these days, with many of the summer vacationists back at work. . . . Miss C. Johnston and Mrs. J. L. Haycock were hostesses at the afternoon tea on September 19th . . . Saturday, September 26th, Mrs. Rod Sharpe of Gilmour and Mrs. D. Mayhew, were hostesses with some forty workers at the room. . . . Many knitted garments are being turned in, articles that require much knitting, such as seamen's stockings and the turtle neck sweaters ,proof of the manly hours of work the women of our Association have done through the busy summer months. . . . There are still many of the sheets, destined for Russian relief, to be stitched. Anyone who cannot go to the work room, but would like to help at home, may take these sheets and put them together. Our quota is 400 sheets, and as they are in three strips, they represent a great deal of stitching. . . . 120 comfort bags are being packed for Christmas mailing under the capable supervision of Mrs. G. Challies and her committee. . . . We would like to remind you again, workers are urgently needed if our quotas are to be kept up to date, whether you can sew or not, your services can be used even if it be only for an hour each week.

NO EXTRA RATIONS SUGAR, TEA, COFFEE FOR SOCIAL EVENTS

Because of numerous requests which it is continuing to receive for the granting of extra rations of sugar, tea and coffee to be used in connection with the holding of teas, suppers, banquets and similar affairs under the auspices of church, fraternal, or other organizations, the regional office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board wishes to make it clear that such applications cannot be granted under the existing supply situation.

That situation is such, it points out, that it is quite impossible to meet requests of this nature without affecting stocks which must be conserved to meet legitimate requirements under the rationing regulations now in effect. In view of heavy losses of cargo tonnage by enemy action, it becomes increasingly necessary to husband these stocks by every means that can be employed, and the office asks as a special favor the consumption of the articles now rationed shall be reduced even below ration allowances wherever this is practicable.

EARLY CLOSING UP TO OWNERS

Ottawa. — "Mandatory" closing of retail establishments throughout the country is no nearer now than before authorities of the Wartime Prices Board said recently. But there is nothing to prevent merchants in any trade or all trades in any community banding together for greatly shortened hours. Ottawa suggests, for instance, have unanimously agreed to such early closings.

The retail administrator did "draft" a series of rules and regulations which were suggested as suitable if and as, and when the trade, on a survey, agreed to them. There was no such agreement.

A majority supported the idea but the minority was most outstanding. One of the difficulties is the many stores which are family enterprise, with the owner and his family serving the customers. No great saving in help would result from early closing them.

The government is leaving the matter wholly to the Price Board which is unlikely to act at least till there is a closer approach to agreement.

TWEED FAIR FRIDAY, OCTOBER 2

Officers and Directors of Tweed Fair, to be held next Thursday and Friday, October 1st and 2nd, have planned one of the finest programs in history. Head-lining the show will be two good horse races, the 2.22 class and free-for-all; a midway of rides and general entertainment. The Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental Band, and a bandstand program. President T. C. Graham has stated that with good weather, Tweed Agricultural Society hope to break all attendance records. The drawing match for home cooking, baby show and novelty contests are likely to draw a big entry lists. Mrs. Mary Forster's dancing group of Belleville, always a popular attraction, will be on hand with several new numbers. Altogether, Tweed Fair should provide an interesting, interest, entertainment and education for everyone. One of the oldest established Fairs in the district, the Tweed Exhibition should more than go over the top this year.

GREAT BRITAIN IS NAZI ENEMY NUMBER ONE

BY WICKHAM STEED

Three years ago Great Britain declared war on the Third German Reich of Adolf Hitler.

Why?

No act of aggression had been committed against Britain. Not even Hitler was anxious not to come to grips with the British just then. He was ready — suspiciously ready — to offer respect to British interests if we would leave him a free hand against Soviet Russia in the East.

Britain's relations with Soviet Russia were not then marked by today's cordial friendship, but a still sound, if obscure, instinct warned us against a betrayal of the freedom of Europe which, once it had been replaced by German domination, would have undermined the basis of freedom on the whole world.

CHIEF OBSTACLE TO WORLD MASTERY

Hitler was, in fact, already beginning to put his "one by one" plan into operation. He meant to conquer Poland as he had already faithlessly seized control of Czechoslovakia, and then make himself master of Europe. He would not then long refrain from attempting to overthrow the chief remaining obstacle to German mastery of the world — Britain, the head and heart of the British Commonwealth and the main maritime safeguard of the United States.

This was at first only dimly perceived in Britain. In September 1938 the British people, through their representatives in Parliament, had reluctantly accepted the sacrifice of Czechoslovakia by the Munich Agreement with Hitler as a deliverance from the peril of war. Almost alone of outstanding public men Mr. Winston Churchill had termed it an "unmitigable disaster."

When, on March 15, 1939, Hitler entered Prague, a revulsion of feeling set in. Hitler's "ore by one" method of destroying possible opponents began to be understood. So the British pledge to aid Poland against aggression was widely welcomed at the end of March, as not only a realistic undertaking, but as earnest of Britain's determination to resist the growing threat to Europe's freedom. Hitler sulked for a month. Then on April 28, 1939, he tore up both the Anglo-German Naval Agreement of 1935, and his non-agression pact of 1934 with the Poles. The scene was set for the conflict he had resolved to provoke.

Nevertheless he strove assiduously to keep France and Britain neutral. As we know now, powerful influences in France were on his side. He may have felt sure French hesitation would paralyse the British. Here he was wrong. Our word was pledged, and the eyes more than half of mankind were not disposed to evade the great decision. Something higher than any material interest was at stake.

Vast hours of anguish, hours of anger preceded the decision. Poland was attacked at dawn on September 1, 1939. With shame and grief the people on the evening of September 2, when it appeared that not only had we not declared war on Germany, but that the Government was still considering the question of "settlement by negotiation" if Hitler would recall his troops from Polish soil.

In my fifty years of political experience I can remember no other moment than that night of Saturday, September 2nd, 1939 — so relief more intense and widespread than that prevailing on Sunday morning, September 3rd, when the nation learned that its word to Poland had been kept by a declaration of war against Germany.

In that grim hour Britain stood alone — as she was again to stand in desperate isolation nine months later, France then on the brink of indecision. Members of her Government were working with and for Hitler, unknown to their people and unknown to us. The coming tragedy of France and its shadow before.

On June 14, 1940, Hitler entered Paris. He hoped to enter London on August 15. By that time his aircraft had fought and were losing the Battle of Britain. On August 25, an organ of Dr. Goebbels — Das Reich — wrote:

"England has still big resources and she is the toughest and most formidable enemy — no victory will be of any avail to us, no sacrifice worth while, unless the British are laid low."

AND AGAIN HITLER ERRED

This refrain recurred at intervals in the Nazi press: and even on June 22, 1941, the day of the attack on Russia, the leading organ of the Nazi party — Voelkischer Beobachter — wrote:

"A bitter fight has now broken out on the European Front, but it doesn't initiate any new war since it is merely another phase of the struggle against England."

Only the imperative necessity of crushing England explains Hitler's onslaught against Russia. He felt that he didn't dare leave an undefeated Russia at his back. Ill-informed of Russian strength, he imagined that before a fortnight or three weeks' time the Red Army would be annihilated, and the whole might of Germany set free for the decisive reckoning with Britain. Again Hitler erred. In December 1941 the Russians, turned upon him and brought him to the verge — as he himself confessed — of total disaster. Yet even after the furious reorganization of the German offensive this year, the Voelkischer Beobachter wrote on July 19:

"Germany's force is a short interval in the battle we must become fully conscious of the fact that the real enemy is Britain."

If I were a Nazi leader I too should have this opinion. Not only is Britain the chief base for constant economic war against Germany, and a potential base of dangerous counter-offensive in the West, but British freedom, British institutions, and the whole spirit and principles which were proclaimed from England in the seventeenth century, have inspired the Western civilization that Hitler would fain replace by his new creed of "Blut und Soil."

Hitler hates the idea of freedom with all the fervour of a semi-literate megalomaniac mind. He is utterly resolved to extinguish it — as the British are utterly resolved to defend it. He has already triumphed, or believes he has triumphed, over the principles of the great French Revolution of 1789, over the freedom, equality and brotherhood enshrined in their name; but he suspects, with the brutal sureness of a semi-literate's intuition, that he cannot triumph ultimately unless he can crush in their English homes the ideas that lay beneath the English revolution of 1688, which, interpreted by Voltaire — gave birth to French encyclopaedism, and brought it to the Declaration of Independence of 1776, and the French Revolution of 1789.

Here Hitler is theoretically right. Britain, whose undaunted resistance was the foundation on which the United Nations could build up coordinated power, will however prove him grievously wrong by defeating his purpose. And on September 3rd we may remember thankfully and with steadfast determination the morning of September 3, 1939, when, literally, Britain arose to fight for her soul and led the way in saving the freedom of mankind.

TEA PACKAGES TO MATCH OUPONS

Ottawa. (C.P.) — To match tea packages with the new ration coupons, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has issued a special order setting specific sizes of containers in which tea may be packed, it announced in a statement, last week.

On and after October 1st, tea packed for Canadian consumers must be in packages of two, four, eight or sixteen ounces or a multiple of 16 ounces, except in the case of individual tea bags, which must contain two ounces. Sale of packaged tea packed otherwise is prohibited.

This order issued by foods administrator G. D. Taggart, conforms with the purchasing validity of the coupons in the permanent ration book. Each coupon is good for two weeks' supply, which is two ounces per person, and the coupons become valid in pairs, at intervals of four weeks so that the holder of a ration book may have four ounces at one time, and a dumily with several rationed books issued to members more than twelve years of age may purchase a proportionately greater amount.

The order does not affect the sale of tea packaged by the seller in the premises in which the tea is sold to consumers, except that the quantity sold is to be two ounces or a multiple. Tea packed in carton, packages or individual tea bags prior to September 21st, is also exempted.

Except by written permission of the administrator, tea packaged in any carton or package other than an individual tea bag put up for the consumer must have printed on the package or a tag the net weight of tea.

NURSES ASSIGNED IN BRITAIN FLYING AMBULANCE SERVICE

"Seven aerial nurses fly in Britain's Red Cross air ambulances, which shift patients to and from hospitals throughout the country. These flying nurses are volunteers. They are classed as non-combatants and don't wear parachutes. Even if they did, they couldn't use them, for it is their duty to stay with their patients "to the last."

An air ambulance is small. Behind the pilot and co-pilot there is just room for two stretchers. The nurse sits beside them on a wooden box under the roof. Her equipment she carries in a first-aid kit and a small case of surgical instruments, ready to perform a minor operation if necessary.

Part of the nurse's job is to keep the patients amused. Pilots are content to breathe the oxygen apparatus. She carries a first-aid kit and a small case of surgical instruments, ready to perform a minor operation if necessary.

Bay Postoral Charge Rally Day Services

Rally Day was fittingly observed in special services at Sand Hill, Anderson and Gretna, last Sunday, with fair attendances. Superintendent Hubert Dillenbeck took charge of the service in Sand Hill. Mrs. Dillenbeck told the story and the Rev. A. C. McCallum gave an address.

There was a splendid turn-out at Anderson where Mrs. Wilfred Baird took charge of the service and was assisted by Mrs. Ross Card, Samuel Baird and Rockwell Parks. Robert Walsh and Mary Hambly sang a duet and the Rev. A. C. McCallum gave an interesting address, "Looking unto Jesus." A special offering was taken for missions. Mrs. Kenneth Hambly presided at the piano.

Mr. W. C. Joyce took charge of the Gretna service with Mrs. H. Mellow at the organ. Rev. A. C. McCallum gave the address, and the choir sang an anthem. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers.

PALMER — In ever loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Annie Elizabeth Palmer, who departed this life four years ago to-day, September 29th, 1938.

A beautiful memory of one so dear,
I cherish still with love sincere;
A day that comes with sad regret,
And one that I will never forget.
I miss her love, her cheery ways—
With her I spent my happiest days.
I miss her when I need a friend—
On her I always could depend.

RUTTAN — In loving memory of a dear brother, Archie Sharpe Ruttan, who was called away October 3rd, 1939.

We often sit and think of him when we are alone,
For memory is the only friend that grief can call its own.
Like live on and the withered oak, when all other things decay.
Our Love for him will still keep
Fresh and never fade away.

PALMER — In ever loving memory of my dear mother, who passed away four years ago, September 29th, 1938.

Two dear bright eyes, a tender smile
A loving heart that knew no guile.
Deep trust in God that all was right;
Her joy to make some other bright.
If sick or suffering one, she knew
Some loving part of love she'd do.
No thought of self, but of "the other one."
I know He said: "Well done, dear mother."
Ever remembered by her son,

Just a thought of sweet remembrance,
Just a memory, fond and true.
Just a token of affection

More and more each day I miss you
Though my thoughts are not revealed.
Little do they know the sorrow
That is within my heart, concealed.

Lovingly remembered by her husband,
JOSEPH WALTER PALMER.

Sweetly, tender, fond and true—
There is not a day, dear mother,

OTTAWA SETS SIX HOLIDAYS

Ottawa, (C.P.) — By Order-in-Council, the Federal Government declared that only six statutory holidays should be observed by employers and employees for the duration of the war, apart from Sundays or weekly days of rest apart from Sunday.

The Government order set forth the following as statutory holidays: New Year's Day, Good Friday, the first Monday in July (in lieu of July 1st), Labor Day, Thanksgiving Day and Christmas Day.

In his announcement of the order, Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, Labor Minister, said that in the interests of the war effort and to promote uniformity among employers and employees in the observance of statutory holidays throughout the Dominion, "the Government has found it expedient to declare its policy in the matter."

"The order is designed "to remove the present uncertainty as to whether employees generally or any group of them are required to work on each such holiday."

Selby Sunday School Rally Service

A most successful Sunday School Rally Service was held at Selby United Church on Sunday afternoon, September 27th, at 2:00 o'clock, end, despite the stormy weather, a large attendance was recorded and a record offering was received.

Mr. Percy Hudgins, Superintendent of the Sunday School, was in charge and opened the service with the call to worship. The choir was under the leadership of Mrs. Alma Wood, and Mrs. George Robinson, pianist, rendered two very appropriate numbers in a most delightful and inspiring manner.

The scripture selections were read by four girls, and prayer was offered by the pastor. The story for the occasion, "The Mother and Her Son" was recited by Mrs Chas. Gray in such an appropriate and impressive way that it will live in the hearts of all who heard it for a long time.

After singing the familiar hymn, "I think when I read that sweet story of old", the baptism of the baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dorland Jackson, of Selby, took place, adding a very interesting part to the service. This was followed by an address by the pastor, Rev. W. R. Merrick, on "By Suggested Hymn: "Looking Unto Jesus".

Before closing Mr. Ross McConnell, Grading Officer for the School, presented the diplomas and seals to all who had qualified to receive them. Then the Secretary from each Class gave reports.

The benediction was pronounced by the pastor, and one of the most successful Sunday School Rallies was concluded by singing the National Anthem.

OCTOBER 4 TO 10 FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

Once again, by Proclamation of His Excellency the Governor General of Canada, the week of October 4th to 10th has been set aside as Fire Prevention Week.

WHAT A FIRE PREVENTION WEEK ?

Fire Prevention is a matter which needs attention fifty-two weeks in the year. It has been found desirable, however, for the past twenty-two or more years to devote a special week in which the public conscience can be impressed with the enormous cost of our waste in the hope that conditions may be improved and carelessness reduced.

CANADA'S FIRE WASTE IN 1941 amounted to more than $28,000,000 in property loss and 323 lives lost. It we are to give of our best in this war against Nazism, Fascism and Japanese Imperialism, we must reduce our fire waste by many millions of dollars. We must realize that every fire is a national calamity, something that cuts into our reserves of much needed material or slows down production. Fire is one of the ways by which the enemy hopes to defeat us and it doesn't matter whether it is of accidental origin or act by a saboteur, the same purpose is accomplished.

CARELESSNESS is the greatest saboteur to date in Canada. We can eliminate that threat to our war effort by being more careful with fire in our daily life. All fires are small in their beginning but they may develop into conflagrations. Our duty is to see that they don't start.

FIRE PREVENTION is really an application of common sense, such as for example, being sure that your cigarette is out before you throw it away, examining your heating appliances for defects before starting up the winter fire, seeing that there is nothing near your stoves that could catch fire in your absence. There are many other ways in which fires start, but by being careful, we can remove the conditions which so often result in tragedy. Let us resolve to be careful not only in Fire Prevention Week but during the other fifty-one weeks of the year. Your local fire chief can help you. Co-operate with him in removing fire dangers from your home or factory and thereby add one more to your efforts to win the war.

POTATOES PROVIDE ENERGY

Hello Homemakers! Rivalry continues between New Brunswick and Ontario as to which grows the best potatoes; there is much talk of soil, climate and what have you! But the truth is that potatoes are good food whatever province they grow in.

Using potatoes often on your budget menus is a practice based on sound reasoning. The fact is you get a lot for your money when you eat a potato. You see, the potato has much of what the body needs to keep it going — sugars, proteins, calcium, phosphorus, iron and some of the vitamins—it's a potent list. So let's be thankful for potatoes.

English people now serve potato cakes instead of cookies. Again we take a hint from the stalwart British, and suggest new ways to serve potatoes. There are so many potato dishes you could have a different one every day of the year. And to save time and electricity, we recommend cooking enough potatoes for more than one meal and varying the method of serving.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. N. H. asks: "In making mint jelly could I substitute canned apple juice for the apple liquid?"

Answer: No, used under-ripe crabapples or apples that are not "sweet apples" and wash, cut in pieces (leaving skin and core in), cover with water. Then cook until tender and drain.

Mr. B.A. suggests: Adding a little lemon juice to the steeped tea to bring out he flavour — a good idea when cream is not used.

Mrs. R. J. asks: "Recipe for Spiced Pastry."

Answer: This has been mailed to you direct, Mrs. J.

LIVER LOAF

Here's a recipe for liver loaf that your family will live even if they think they can't eat liver:

One pound pork liver, two cups breadcrumbs, one medium onion, one-quarter cup tomato juice or vegetable juice, one teaspoon of salt.

Put liver through the meat grinder. Add bread crumbs, onion, tomato and salt. Put in greased baking dish and place in pan containing warm water. Bake slowly 30 to 40 minutes.

No Guesswork Allowed With Sugar in War-Time Recipes Apples

One of the Home Economists in the Consumer Section of the Department of Agriculture has been experimenting to find out just how much can be done with a basket of apples and a pound of sugar. Under present rationing, one pound of extra sugar was made available for every eight apples were cooking, this amount bought for cooking purposes. Dutchess and Wealthy apples are the best buys for cooking during the early months of September.

It was found that a family of six could have generous servings of five different desserts, which exactly used the sugar and the apples. Of course there could be no guesswork allowed in the sugar measurements, but all who tasted the desserts agreed that they were amply sweet.

First on the list came that old favorite, apple pie, which took 8 apples and two-thirds cup sugar.

Applesauce was made from six apples cooked in one cup of water, then rubbed through a sieve to remove the skins and cores. Three tablespoons of sugar were then added. Had we added the sugar while the apples were cooking, this amount would not have been enough. The rule about adding sugar after the fruit is cooked applies to all stewed fruits, fresh and dried.

Apple dumplings are always popular, and these were extra-special, served with a maple sauce, six apples and four tablespoons sugar were used for the dumplings.

An apple crisp was made next, and this took a larger proportion of sugar than any of the other desserts. It is suggested that brown sugar be borrowed from the family ration, and be replaced with the three-quarters cup of white from the special allowance for this recipe.

Eight apples,
Three-quarters cup sugar,
Three-quarters cup flour,
Three tablespoons butter,
Half-teaspoon cinnamon,
Half-teaspoon cloves.

Mix sugar, flour, and spices and rub in the butter till the mixture is crumbly. Slice the apples in the bottom of a buttered baking dish and cover with the sugar mixture, which should be patted down. Bake about twenty minutes in a moderate oven —350 degrees till apples are tender and top is browned.

There were now two apples and two tablespoons of sugar left, and these were used to make a Dutch Apple Cake, using the following recipe:

Dutch Apple Cake

Two cups flour,
Three teaspoons baking powder,
One egg,
Two apples,
Half-teaspoon salt,
One-quarter cup butter,
Two-thirds cup milk,
Two tablespoons sugar,
One-quarter teaspoon cinnamon.

Mxi and sift the dry ingredients except the sugar and cinnamon. Cut or rub in the butter, add the milk and beaten egg gradually. Spread half-inch thick on a shallow buttered pan. Pare, cut the apples in sections, lengthwise, and set in rows on the dough with the thin edge pressed halfway into the dough; sprinkle the top with sugar and cinnamon, bake in a hot oven 400 degrees, 25 to 30 minutes. Serve with cream.

Canada as a whole, has a good crop of early apples this year, and it is the pleasantly patriotic duty of Canadians to help eat them up as these early apples are not suitable for winter storage or for export.

Pork Bound for Britain So Substitute Dishes Must Be Found

Canadian pork products must be packed for Britain at the rate of only 11-per-cent more than in 1941. Canada contracted to send 620,000,000 lbs. of bacon and hams to the British people by the end of October and war and shipments have been falling behind schedule lately because Canadian consumption of pork products has increased. Consequently, Canadians are being asked not to buy pork until such time as Britain's requirements have been met. At the same time the Department of Agriculture announces that Canadian made cheese is now essential and the announcement will be welcomed in many ways.

Cheese of course is a protein food plus as meat is and cheese dishes can be substituted for meat at the lunch meal at least once or twice a week. Cheese, too, adds flavor and zest value to many supper dishes and rarely a meal finds a cheese dish in the lunch box of the workman and the student.

The following recipes have been tested in Canada's Kitchen in the Consumers Section of the Department of Agriculture.

Cheese Roast

Two cups grated cheese
Two cups cooked kidney or navy beans,
One-quarter cup finely diced celery
One teaspoon minced parsley
One egg slightly beaten
Two cups soft dry bread crumbs
Two tablespoons butter
Salt and pepper
Thin bacon, mash with fork and add with celery and parsley to cheese. Add egg and mix thoroughly. Melt butter in saucepan. Add crumbs, mixing well and cooking until slightly brown. Add to cheese mixture until stiff enough to shape into a loaf. Roll in remaining crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven until heated through and nicely browned. Serve hot with tomato sauce. Small onion finely chopped or grated may be added, if desired.

Corn and Cheese Casserole

One cup corn
One cup bread or cracker crumbs
One cup grated cheese
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-half cup milk
One tablespoon melted butter
One teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce
Two tablespoons chopped green pepper
Two eggs

Combine all ingredients except eggs and milk. Beat egg yolks and add with milk. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Place in a buttered baking dish and oven-poach in a moderate oven (350 deg. F) until firm—about 40 minutes.

PATCHES HELP

Will Delay Need of Clothes Rationing

Ottawa. — Patches on clothing may be more numerous than they used to be, but such evidences of economy will delay the need of clothes rationing will not be necessary for quite a time, informed sources said recently.

Canada has sufficient fabrics on hand to meet the normal needs of buyers for some months to come, and the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has stressed that the law forbids a Canadian buying more than his "normal" requirements of any commodity—including clothing. Officials said they had heard rumors that the spare coupons in ration books which went into service last week were to be used later for clothing rationing.

"The fact is that no one knows what these coupons may be used for — if there are ever used," one spokesman said. "They have been placed in the ration books purely as a precaution against a condition that may arise in the future."

He recalled a statement of W. Mackenzie, Chief of the Board's supply, distribution and rationing section, in Toronto, circulating rumors like the one about clothing rationing are hampering the war effort.

"The only people who could benefit would be unscrupulous salespeople using such rumors to move stocks which would not otherwise readily find buyers," Mr. Mackenzie said.

Supplies of fabrics now available for civilians have been made in colors and patterns for civilian use only and are not likely to be taken over by military authorities, whose needs keep mills working at capacity. Much of the ready-made clothing to be sold this year has already been made.

Clothing trade officials have made clear that the supplies of clothing are not sufficient to permit enlarged sales in comparison with past years, and if more than normal amounts are disposed of rationing will be a more immediate prospect.

They said that by making their clothing do longer and giving it care and attention, the ordinary Canadian will be helping to make materials and labor available for essential war purposes, at the same time making rigid government control of clothing supplies less likely.

THE MAGIC OF MICA

Once of Little Use, It Is Now the Versatile Handmaiden of Electricity

No aeroplane could leave the ground, and any kind of means of transport above, without mica, that glass-like substance which housewives know as the element in their electrical irons and toasters. Originally used for commercial purposes, Indian princes, this material is today as indispensable to both civilians and the armed forces that it has been aptly described as the handmaiden of electricity.

Mica is absolutely necessary for spark-plugs, in aeroplane engines because it gives perfect insulation against any interference from that engine's ignition system. With the exception "The underseers, too, in all tobacco-growing areas, are trying to make use of mica, and such devices, for detecting asbestos, as radio locators and sonic detectors are relied upon this versatile mineral. So far, no substitute has been found to equal it for standing up to ever-increasing heat and high temperature. Even the propellers on aeroplanes are made of mica.

Mica, which is known as books, it is split into layers as thin as tissue paper and sometimes even thinner. So highly technical is the grading and packing of this mineral that very few white men have mastered the art. India not only leads the world in the production of mica, she produces ninety per cent. of the world's supply.

Before the war Germany bought all she could from India, for lack of it was practically confined recently to Germany's downfall in the last war. Japan also was another big buyer, who bought less than Germany, but India is rich in every variety of mica and, in the opinion of Dr. Woolnough, geological adviser to the Commonwealth, has the most valuable fields in the world. Another authority says that 1,000 tons could be annually obtained for 25 years from the knotch Australian fields, but recently these deposits were mined only by Italians, who were

THERE IS A POWER SHORTAGE

● Hydro power hundreds of plants that produce the weapons to bring peace. The temper of their effort is unbelievable . . . More weapons must be produced . . . As a result, the demand for electricity is intensified.

Before the War . . . there was power to spare . . . now, even with greatly increased supplies . . . as a result of important new developments, either of supply or power construction . . . a critical power shortage threatens our War Effort.

To meet this shortage, lights in streets, shops, show windows and signs are being strictly curtailed or turned out by Order of the Dominion Power Controller. This however, will provide only part of the saving necessary.

Why these restrictions now? The effect of the shorter hours of daylight and the seasonal changes in the use of electricity during the Fall and Winter months together with added war load, impose greatly increased demands on present plants now loaded to capacity.

ELECTRICITY MUST BE CONSERVED —UNTIL THE WAR IS WON

Each one of us must do our "bit." In the home, office or shop, the "turning-on" of one unnecessary switch is a waste of Hydro. Our plants must have the power they need. Do your part—see that they get it! Save electricity today and every day in every way possible.

Miss Margaret Donaldson, a former school teacher here, was a caller at Mrs. Evalina Loyst's on Saturday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Loyst spent Thursday with their daughter, Mrs. Guy Huycke, at Hawley.

Several from here attended the meeting at the Old Hay Bay Meeting House and all enjoyed the address given by the new Moderator of the United Church, the Rev. Dr. Sclater, and also the historical address given by the Rev. A. J. Wilson, B.A., D.D.

Large flocks of black ducks are now flying over Hay Bay and spend part of their time in the grain stubbles, and the rumrod who bags any of them will be lucky indeed.

DORLAND

Dorland, Sept. 26 — The anniversary services conducted in the United Church on September 20th were enjoyed by many. The weather was pleasant, after the sharp electric storm of the night before. Rev. A. L. Sheerin, B.A. B.D. of Wolfe Island, was the special speaker at both services and preached interesting and helpful sermons. The choir assisted by Miss A. Powers, rendered pleasing music. Beautiful flowers decorated the altar. A thankoffering is being given instead of the customary chicken dinner.

The service last Sunday was withdrawn in favor of anniversary services at Conway.

Miss Edith Foster, of Ottawa, arrived on Wednesday for a short visit with her brother, F. E. Foster, and family.

Mr. Stephen Mack, who has been seriously ill is able to be around again.

Mrs. W. Reynolds is in bed suffering with rheumatic fever.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Church, of Milford, were dinner guests of the home of the latter's sister, Mrs. Andrew Mason, on Sunday last. Mrs. Mason and Mr. Alex. Mason accompanied them home.

Mrs. J. W. Duffett is spending a few days in Kingston with her daughter, Mrs. F. Harkness, and family.

The continued gales of wind have literally blown many apples and the ground is very rough making it rather difficult to get on with fall work. Picking even, Tommie picking is being completed. Frost has been seen, but no damage is reported. Quite a few potato patches have been struck by blight, but the extent and damage will only be known until more have been dug.

MR. MINIVER'S THREE YEARS OF WAR

BY JAN STRUTHER

Jan Struther was born Joyce Anstruther forty-one years ago, and adopted her pen name at the early age of fifteen. She has been in the United States for the past two years, with her two youngest children, writing and lecturing. Her oldest son, James, is eighteen, and is in England. He enters the army this Fall. Her husband, Anthony Maxtone-Graham, of the Scots Guards, was recently taken prisoner in the Libyan campaign. "Mrs. Miniver" ran ten weeks this summer in Radio City Music Hall.

• • •

A great deal has been said and written lately about Mrs. Miniver, and the American public has been good enough to show a deep and sympathetic interest in all her doings. It occurs to me that this same warm-hearted public might be interested to hear more about the present situation and activities of her husband, Clem Miniver.

The following is, I think, a pretty accurate account of how the first three years of the war have affected him — and most of the other men of his age and position in the British Isles, whether their names happen to be Miniver, Macdonald, Morgan or Micklethwaite.

Up to three years ago, Clement Miniver was considered pretty comfortably off. He earned about £1,500 a year (£6,000 according to the present rate of exchange). This was enough to enable him to have a goodsized house in the country within commuting distance from London; he could keep a car, and a motorboat on the river; he could go away to the seaside or to Scotland with his family for the summer and even take trips abroad with his wife occasionally.

THE DAYS THAT ONCE WERE

He had a fairly good, though small, cellar; he expected his sherry before dinner when he came home from the office and a highball later in the evening. His suits were made up for him by his favorite tailor and when he and Mrs. Miniver went up to London to see a show, once or twice a month, they sat in the higher priced seats.

Friends came to their home for week ends; there were automobile expeditions in the countryside on Sundays and summer picnics on the river.

Clem Miniver was mainly an architect of public buildings — hospitals and swimming baths and play centres were his specialty. He was particularly interested in this type of work because his tastes lay in the direction of community planning. He did not consciously have any strong views on civic duties, but I think he vaguely liked to feel that the was contributing to the general welfare.

He was forty-five when the war broke out — too old for the forces. The bottom fell out of business; his firm was idle for many months — no town councils were spending money on public works and his few private clients were certainly not building. He had some money saved up, however, and for the first six months of the war he did not feel the pinch. Privately, he was rather worried him and he chafed against his enforced idleness.

He threw himself into his volunteer war work — the river patrol; he dug up his garden and turned the tennis court into a vegetable garden. His motorboat was one of those which went out across the Channel at what might to help bring back the British soldiers from Dunkirk and so much. Of this experience he talks very little.

But after Dunkirk things changed. Like almost every other civilian, Clem was called to an urgent job — he himself was attached to the Ministry of Works and Buildings. All over Britain, in the remote parts of the countryside, new factories were being hurriedly and secretly built. Weapons of war of all kinds and the British Army had lost all its equipment at Dunkirk and much was expected daily.

For a while men and women were working sixty hours a week to turn out the guns, planes and tanks. Britain stood alone against the Axis, and everyone in the land was mobilized to fight or to provide the fighting men with what they needed.

CLEM CALLED FOR EMERGENCY WORK

Clem was put on to building hostels for the young ladies and gentlemen who would be moved from their homes to work in the new factories. It was a hurry job. Billets were giving out and the workers had to be housed.

Clem now lives near his work in London in a small apartment that he shares with a friend, who also works in the Ministry. The days of his wife's car, the small car, the well-filled cellar and the vacations in Scotland are over. His salary is about half of what he earned in the old days, and of his salary he pays more than a quarter to the Government in taxes.

He is now fortunate it is, he tells his wife, that he doesn't earn that much now, In fact he reckons that he and his family now have about £400 to live on — and he knows that he is very lucky; many of his friends who had an income equal to his own before the war have less than he has now.

He cannot see his family very often. He has given up the car — for no one is allowed gas for private use now — and he cannot afford train fares.

The two younger children, Judy and Toby, are going to the village school, instead of to the private school which was picked out for them. When he does get down for the week end, he helps in the house and the garden, for Mrs. Miniver runs the place almost single-handed now — Gladys, the maid, and Ada, the cook, have both been drafted into war industry; the gardener is a sergeant in Egypt.

HANDY MAN ABOUT THE HOUSE

A good deal of time is spent, during these precious weekends, putting things on the roof and repairing fittings, for it is about impossible to get even jobs done — the carpenter's man and the plumber's mate and the electricians are all in war work. But even his ingenuity can't make new fittings and new light globes, and no one else can supply them. Mr. and Mrs. Miniver share the one reading lamp that is left in the living room.

The drink before dinner is no more; a precious bottle of sherry is brought out on special occasions, when Vin, his Air Force son, gets leave; but the highball before turning in is a matter of memory only — with whiskey at £6 00 a bottle. Mr. Miniver is very nearly a teetotaller now, and Mrs. Miniver declared a year ago that she always preferred milk anyway—till the milk ration came in and she found that only a week could carry a glass of milk a luxury too. Both of them miss their cigarettes, but Clem smokes a pipe or two a day.

It was rather unfortunate that, just before the war, Clem had decided to have two new suits made, so that, in happy anticipation of this, Mrs. Miniver gave away two old suits of his to the Czech refugees. When the war came, Clem cancelled the orders for the new suits, and decided to carry on with what he had. But some months ago his suits began to look really threadbare, and one Saturday evening he decided that on Monday he would go and buy a hand-me-down suit from a cheap tailor. That very afternoon, clothes rationing was announced on the radio.

His shoes were worn, he needed a new raincoat very badly, and Mrs. Miniver said that Mr. Thomas were a disgrace. It he got all of these and his suit he would use up at least fifty of his allowance of sixty coupons, which has to last fourteen months. And sometime during the coming winter he will have to get woollen socks (the officers are cold rooms in which to work in wartime.) These will take two coupons for each pair.

ONE SECRET ANXIETY

When last seen, Mr. Miniver was looking a little slightly worried for him and his shoes were patched. The suit is one of the new utility suits, made of Government standard cloth. Clem doesn't like the cut very much, but Mrs. Miniver says that it is becoming. New cuffs have been added to his old shirts; fortunately the cloth available was not the same color as the rest of the shirt. Clem has one secret anxiety: there is very little staving power left in his braces — I mean his suspenders. And he still not be able to buy any more.

Mrs. Miniver is pleased about one thing the war has done for Clem. He was getting rather broad around the middle, and although he is fond of tennis now and no long walks on hanpy vacations in Scotland the Miniver family have not had a vacation since war began, and it looks as if they will not be able to take holidays till the war is over, either) he has in fact lost fifteen pounds in the last two years.

"This is partly due to digging — turning six acres of garden into his own kitchen garden. He has also been

Mrs. Walter Hudson, R.R. 6, Napanee, received recently a letter from Mrs. L. Debonnaire, St. Allyn's England, acknowledging receipt of a parcel of clothing given by Mrs. Hudson, for air raid victims in England.

The recipient, Mrs. Debonnaire, expressed her very sincere gratitude for the gift of clothing, which she said was most welcome since her home in London, had been bombed and she and her family had been evacuated to St. Allbon's.

Mrs. Debonnaire said in her letter: "I wish you and your family every success in the wonderful work you are doing. I can tell you it is a great comfort to us people, who have lost our homes and everything, to know there is someone who thinks and cares about our welfare."

EXCELLENT RESULTS V. O. N. TAG DAY

Following the usual custom for the past several years, the Napanee branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses held a Tag Day on the second day of the Lennox Fair.

The generous response to the appeal is taken by the branch as an indication of increasing esteem of the public of the work done by the Victorian Order Nurse, Miss K. P. Docker.

ONE CANADIAN GIVEN VICTORIA CROSS AFTER DIEPPE RAID

Many Other Canadians Awarded Decorations

BY H. G. MACLEAN

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 5. — Dieppe — a name which will forever stand alongside Vimy Ridge, Ypres, Hill 70, Passchendaele and the Somme, as a place where Canadian soldiers proved their inherent mettle and resourcefulness as fighting men—has given four more Canadians the right to heroes. Although the work of the Canadians in that memorable August morning attack upon the French coastal town proved the battle power of the nation for the first time on land, in this war, and all the troops fully established themselves as heroes, certain special tributes have been bestowed by a grateful Empire upon those whose bravery and resourcefulness in battle was especially prominent.

Defence Minister Ralston has announced that 178 Canadians have been honoured in the list of awards made in connection with the Dieppe raid. One young regimental commander receives the coveted Victoria Cross. He is Lieut.-Col. Charles Ingrasall Merritt of Vancouver and Belleville, former athlete and son of a Canadian officer who was killed at Ypres in 1915.

Twelve officers including Major-General J. H. Roberts, M.C., Kingston, Ont., receive the Distinguished Service Order. Sixteen officers receive the Military Cross and 24 are mentioned in despatches.

But officers were not the only ones

NAPANEE WOMAN HAS REASON FOR PRIDE IN FAMILY'S RECORD

Six Members of Family in Navy at Present Time

Mrs. Stephen Waltson, Napanee, has just cause for feeling proud of the record of service which her family has given and is still continuing to give to the British and Canadian Navies.

Six of the men in her family are at present in the Navy — three brothers in the Royal Navy and three sons in the Canadian Navy. Two other brothers, who died some time ago, as a result of accidents while on active service, were also members of the Royal Navy. Besides, Mrs. Waltson's father and grandfather, who are now deceased, were also in the Royal Navy.

The record of this family would undoubtedly be difficult to duplicate in Canada. Mrs. Waltson, when interviewed by a Beaver Representative, was reluctant to have the information broadcast, but in her own quiet way indicated that she is proud of her family's record and was prevailed on to allow the story to be told.

Mr. and Mrs. Waltson have lived in Canada for some years, coming to Napanee from England, which had been their previous home. Mrs. Waltson's parents have died since the last war broke out and her 98-year-old grandmother died a short time ago, after her home had been bombed and she had spent several weeks in a bomb shelter. All the members of Mrs. Waltson's family, still living in England, have been evacuated from their original homes and it is some time since she has heard from them.

Mr. and Mrs. Waltson's three older sons, William aged 23 ,Stephen aged 18½ years and Maurice 17½, are in the Royal Canadian Navy and their youngest son, who is still in young boy wants to enlist as a sea cadet. The youngest boy in the Navy, Maurice, is now on a month's leave , an event each time closing event in connection with the Ladies section of the Golf Club, which had enjoyed a very successful season.

The arrangements for the bridge and tea were carried out by the Social Committee convened Mrs. W. T. MacKenzie and Mrs. W. S. Wilson.

A LABOR CONVENTION

The American Federation of Labor, better known as the A. F. of L. is meeting in convention in Toronto. The convention represents about five and a half million workers. It is one of the two great labor organizations on the North American Continent, the other being the C. I. O. There has been a lot of rivalry between these two groups and a lot of bitterness. Instead of concentrating on their common object they have, on occasion, spent much time and money fighting each other. The struggle was sometimes very bitter, which is nearly always the result when members of the same family disagree:— and yet, their ultimate aims have always been the same — the interest of the worker.

Now that the war is upon us, both of these organizations have concentrated on production and consequently are having somewhat of a truce between themselves. Given a certain period in which all are working for a common end, it is altogether likely that many of their differences will be forgotten, and these two great labor organizations will come together or at least arrive at some working agreement. This is an end devoutly to be wished. It will be a great day for this North American Continent when one responsible group representing all labor, will be able to present the case for the working man under all circumstances.

The Convention meeting in Toronto is presided over by William Green, who has been president for many years. He has already promised the full support of Labor for the National Effort, and hopes that, before long, the skies will be crowded with planes. Speaking on Monday at the first meeting at the Royal York Hotel, he said: "Let us win the Battle of Production, and cheer those in the battle lines, by filling the Heavens with planes and the seas with ships. Then, when victory is won, let us call upon the civilized world to see that Hitler, Mussolini, and their dictator pals, shall pay the penalty for their crimes, just as they have murdered countless hostages."

These are brave words, and they are spoken with conviction, and will be listened to with sincerity by all workers everywhere. In none of the Axis Nations are labor unions permitted. There labor is a commodity to be exploited and forced to bend to their tasks at the command of the task master.

The Laborers know the issues at stake. The A. F. of L. leaders are fully aware of the cause for which the Nations are at war and as this speech of President Green's points out, are whole-heartedly behind the present United Nations' effort.

STALINGRAD

The fate of Stalingrad hangs in the balance. Hitler has told the German people that the German armies will take this strategic city. Its capture by the Germans is essential. It is necessary for German morale. Having declared the city would be taken, it would be a disastrous blow to German prestige abroad, should the Germans fail, and would leave the German populace a bit in doubt as to the invincibility of their armies.

It is for this that the Germans are making untold sacrifices; for it they are paying a price in blood beyond anything ever exacted in modern history. The displanes which describe the massed attacks of the Nazi power, tell of the utter disregard for human life which marks the onslaught. Wave after wave of men are thrown into the fray in a terrific endeavor to achieve their object. But, so far, the Russians have defended every inch of ground. Their loss of life, too, must be heavy, though they have the advantage over their foes in that they are the defenders.

Even as we write, men and women are at death grips, blood flows like water, the dead cannot be given a decent burial. We have wondered at the human endurance of these Russians. They have, for so long, withstood the hammer blows of the world's mightiest fighting force. They are fighting for their homes, they are fighting for an ideal. For centuries these people were peasant folk akin to serfs. It is only within the past twenty years that the shackles by which they were held have been cut. It is only within the past twenty years that they have learned what freedom means, that they have had a stake in the land, that they have had access to education, leisure, recreation and some of the amenities of modern life. They fight with a fanaticism of men and women defending their own families. They know what they now possess, and remember the condition from which they so recently emerged. They know, too, that defeat at the hands of the Nazis will mean for them, a condition of slavery even more than that which was endured under the Czars. Under those circumstances, their valor, courage, determination and military skill, are perhaps understandable.

GETTING ON

Quite likely by the time this appears in print, the Dominion Government will have made drastic regulations with respect to the sale of alcoholic beverages. All indications point that way. This will be sad news for our contemporary The Kingston Whig-Standard, which has recently taken The United Church of Canada to task for sending a delegation to Ottawa on the subject, and suggesting that there was little likelihood of the Dominion Government doing anything about the request of the delegation.

We are rather surprised at the lack of information on the subject displayed by the Kingston paper. In an editorial on September 22nd, it said: "The General Council of The United Church of Canada, which has been meeting at Belleville for the last two weeks, has approached the Government at Ottawa, asking for a reduction in the manufacture and sale of alcoholic liquor . . . . If the General Council of The United Church felt some action should be taken it would have been in a much stronger position if it had first of all tried to get the other Churches of the country to join in presenting its petition."

As readers of this paper know full well and as the editors of The Whig-Standard ought to have known, that is the very thing The United Church of Canada did. Can it be that The Whig-Standard did not know that twice was an increase in cases from 1023 in 1939, to 1664 in 1941. recently, delegations composed of every prominent denomination in Canada, Roman Catholic and Protestant alike, made just such representation to the Government as The Whig-Standard says they ought to have done? The Churches twice made their united petition to the Government, and on both occasions, were treated cordially and were promised consideration.

Then, too, in this same editorial, we read: "It is difficult to say just what the Dominion can do at the present time with regard to this age-old question. The sale and distribution of liquor is really in the hands of the Provinces, and we doubt very much if the Dominion Government would attempt over-riding legislation on such an issue. This newspaper deplores the increase in the amount of drinking due to the war as much as anyone, but we feel that this is not the time to enforce any drastic legislation in regard to it."

The answer to the first part of this paragraph is that the Government has over-ridden the Provinces to a very large extent already, and seems on the way to do so to a much greater extent. And then it seems a strange sort of reasoning which would deplore the increase in drinking but argue this was not the time to take drastic action in regard to it. If conditions are wrong, now is the time to right them.

We have no idea, yet, what the new legislation is to be, but reliable forecasts from Ottawa indicate that the restrictions will be exactly those which the Churches of Canada have asked for twice; which The United Church of Canada at its recent meeting pressed for and which both Manitoba and Saskatchewan have recently enacted — a ban on advertising, shortening of the hours of sale, and a limitation on the amount of "hard liquor" released from bond, for sale. That is what the Churches have asked. If the regulations are as forecasts indicate, it will demonstrate, once more, that in spite of those who say "it can't be done" anything can be accomplished if the people wish it so.

WILL HELP CANADA

The new Anti-inflation Bill, signed by the President of The United States, last Friday, will help the situation in this country. In The United Statese, cost of living has been mounting and wages and salaries have been increasing. The vicious inflationary spiral was already at work. In this country, wages, prices and salaries have been frozen. But so closely is the Dominion economy tied with that of The United States, that it was becoming clear that unless inflation in The States was checked, the price control legislation in this country would be in difficulty.

After three weeks of bitter debate, Congress finally adopted the Anti-inflation Bill, and in an hour and three quarters after he received it from Congress, the President had signed it and the Bill became law. By it, prices including farm prices, wages and salaries, will be frozen at the rates existing on September 15th, 1942.

The struggle in Congress had centred around farm prices. The farm block had put up a strenuous lobby to have farm prices exempted from the price ceilings. But the President had made it known that it was essential in order to stabilize the cost of living, that farm products be included in the regulations. This was finally done, except that a face-saving clause was included which requested the President to give "adequate weighting to increased wages paid farm help."

Now that the Bill has become law in The United States it will be easier to make some adjustment on beef prices, for now it will be impossible for American beef to continue to increase in price while the Canadian price remained fixed. It was this disparity which has led to the present beef shortage. With the prices frozen in both countries, it ought not to be long before the available beef will be on the market.

The present situation is but another indication of the very intimate relation existing between these two great peoples on this North American Continent.

V

CAUCASUS AND THE MIDDLE EAST

BY BRIGADIER GENERAL R. S. SEWELL

The front on which the United Nations are facing the main Axis forces, on the line which stretches for 2,000 miles from the mouth of the Nile, is closely linked strategically, and its flanks are of particular importance.

The points of entry for allied supplies for Russia are behind these two flanks, through Murmansk and Archangel in the Far North, and through Iran in the South.

The southern supply route, from the Persian Gulf and India, was secured last year by British action in Syria and Iran, and by Russian-British action in Iran.

Road and rail communications from the Persian Gulf and India to Russia have since been improved and developed by Allied effort.

NEW COMMAND FORMED

Russian armies defending the Caucasus will become increasingly dependent on supplies from this direction. The Caucasus, Iran and Iraq consequently are still further bound together as one strategic unit. Winston Churchill's visit to Premier Joseph Stalin must have been largely concerned with this problem of supply and support for the Russian armies.

In the course of his long journey, Mr. Churchill transacted important business in Moscow, Tehran and Cairo, and on his return to London came the announcement that a new Iraqui-Iranian command had been formed, with General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson in charge of it.

The new command is a strategical expansion and the new improved road from the Persian Gulf to Russia, must be fully employed with the transit of munitions to the Russian armies.

THE PROBLEM OF SUPPLIES

Egypt and Syria are separated from Iraq by a great sandy desert, and Iran is divided from India by the mountains of Afghanistan and Baluchistan. These topographical features are an obstacle to the easy movement of supplies from either direction. The Persian Gulf is the natural means of entry for overseas traffic to either country, and for this reason also it is desirable that the lines of communication should run both Iran and Iraq. At the moment, the support of Russia's army in the Caucasus is the immediate concern of General Wilson's new "Iran-Iraq Command," and for this task it faces North.

The army in Egypt, Palestine and Syria remains under the Middle East Command. It faces West and at the time of writing is engaged with Axis forces on the western approaches to the Nile Valley. General Sir Harold Alexander is the new commander in the Middle East, with Lieutenant-General Montgomery as leader of the Eighth Army in Egypt. All sea-borne supplies reach the Middle East Command by the Red Sea route of Suez, from which port they are distributed by rail as far forward as Palestine and Syria.

The Indian Command also forms an important part of the Allied military strategy in the East. It faces East and the Indian Army is at present actively engaged with the Japanese on the Burma frontier.

In South Russia, German attacks are being strongly pressed towards Stalingrad from the bend in the Don and along the railroad which reaches the city from the southwest. In the Caucasus, columns are driving towards Grozni from the west, and from Krasnodar they are operating south towards the western end of the mountains where the foothills rise from the shores of the Black Sea. Fighting at this point is, as the crow flies, 400 miles southwest of Stalingrad but the two operations are a part of the same plan.

Stalingrad is a definite objective for the Nazi 1942 offensive. The city has not fallen but situated as it is on the enemy side of the Volga, it is not a suitable position for a prolonged stand.

FIGHTING WITH RIVER AT THEIR BACKS

The main railroad to the North is cut, and — unlike Moscow — there are no rear communications by which fresh troops can be brought up. Stalingrad's defenders are fighting with a broad river at their backs and with no hope of reinforcements except by ferry-boat across the river. The narrow neck of land between the Don and Volga. This meagre terrain is barely forty miles wide and is not provided with communications.

The Germans are throwing all out in their attempt to overwhelm the great city and however they fail it will be solely due to the Russian's brave stand, and because Hitler's communications are stretched too far because of this problem of supply, not forgetting immediate needs due to the greater needs of approaching winter, that they are pressing towards the Black Sea with the object of seizing the whole railroad line from Rostov to Stalingrad and attempting to get into working order before the snow flies.

If the Nazis can take Novorossisk and if they can make it impossible for the Russian fleet to continue to use the ports of Adler and Batum, it would then be possible for them to send supplies from Axis ports in Rumania to Novorossisk, and thence by railroad to Stalingrad and Astrakhan.

The mouth of the Danube is 400 miles from Novorossisk and from there the distance by rail is 400 miles to Stalingrad. This is the normal and probable route and its use would ease the strain on the long overland route through the Ukraine and the Russian fleet can still enable to attack from Russian guerillas based on the Crimea.

At least eight ships, in excess of 2,000 tons displacement each, are said to be available for Axis use in Rumanian and Bulgarian ports, where at least 100 Danube barges are now concentrated.

These shipping facilities, though modest, would be very useful to relieve pressure on railroads and road transport. How far the attack will be able to use them depends, of course, on Russian opposition in the Caucasus and the fate of the Russian fleet in the Black Sea.

Novorossisk is said to be strongly defended and the terrain of the western Caucasus is well adapted for holding tactics. The Russians seem to have checked the invasion in this area. It is not likely that the Nazis can spare any fresh troops while every available soldier appears to have been thrown into the struggle on Stalingrad.

Should the siege of the great city on the Volga drag on, as it may well do, the problem of supply for the defenders will grow more grave. The rail and road system, over which Russia must rely, is thought to have little advance bases in the Donetz and the Caucasus, are limited. Every day of fighting will add to the strain on the national strain.

So long as the country remains dry, mechanical transport can move anywhere and by this means the burden of supply will may be replaced. But a break in the weather will make all movement difficult on the plains of the Don. Heavy rains are reported in Moscow and, though still far from the battlefield of the Don, this is an indication of what may happen at Stalingrad before many weeks are past.

Some idea of the quantity of material which must have to follow the German army in the field may be gained from a comparison of the needs of a British division.

One thousand tons of ammunition actually accompany a British division and for every mile it advances it requires a like tons of supplies.

The Germans are said to be employing 1,000,000 men (more than sixty divisions) in the attack on Stalingrad. An army of this size, on the Russian front, would be comparable to required in excess of 100 tons of gasoline a day for every mile that it moves. Over and above this, the consumption of ammunition will be considerable and all must be replaced from the base. Food, medical and hospital supplies, etc., have also to be brought up.

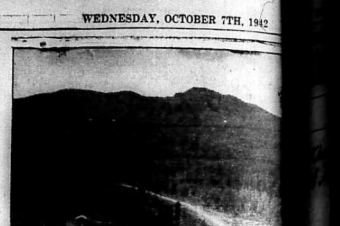
Vancouver, British Columbia, probably has the narrowest building in the world. It is only six feet wide and is located in Chinatown. It has shops on the first floor, living quarters on the second.



THIS WAY TO ALASKA

GREAT CITIES OF AN EARLIER AGE

Far away to the south-east of Jerusalem a few miles west of Moab on the Hejaz railway, are the wonderful rock-cut temples of the Roman city of Petra — "the ever-red city half as old as Time"—carved by masons and sculptors in the red sandstone cliffs of the narrow, tortuous ravine Wadi Musa.

In Iraq, near Bagdad, the Arabian Nights' city of the Caliphs — most famous under Haroun el Raschid in A.D. 800 — is the traditional site of the Garden of Eden. Some sixty miles to the south lie the ruins of Babylon, buried beneath yellow mounds, until archaeologists revealed their secrets to verify in a remarkable degree Old Testament history. Not far away stood the Tower of Babel, and Kish, which after the flood became "the leading city of the world." The remarkable discoveries of Leonard Woolley, near Ur, too, illustrate not only the character and trade of Abraham's contemporaries but also the account of the Flood.

Nineveh, Sennacherib's Assyrian capital, lies just across the Tigris from modern Mosul. A landmark on the airway from Baghdad to Basra is the great arch of Ctesiphon, remains of the palace of King Chosroes, ruler of the sixth-century Parthia.

Iran, no less than Syria and Iraq, has its archaeological treasures. When Cyrus, King of Persia, in 550 B.C., became "the greatest conqueror in history till then recorded," he built his city of Pasargadae. All that is left of his city and palaces are a marble column, a tomb-like building, and a pillar inscribed in three languages, "I am Cyrus, the King, the Archaemenian." The tomb of Cyrus, lonely amid fields, erected his body in a golden casket described the hideous exhibition:

King Darius, whose name is familiar in Bible story, built his capital at Persepolis, on a great terraced platform, upon which after were built the palaces of Xerxes (485-465 B.C.) the King Ahasuerus of the Book of Esther—and of Artaxerxes. Persepolis was burned by Alexander the Great, in 331 B.C.

Both Persepolis and Pasargadae lie near the road from Shiraz to Ahwaz, on the way to Iraq.

Still more interesting in many ways are the rock - sculptures of Behistun (Behistan), on the highway from Kermanshah to Hamadan (famous as the burial place of Esther and Mordecai). "LOYALTY TO CHRIST"

Lesson Text: Mark 3: 14-17. John 6: 66-69. Philippians 3: 7-11

To-day, loyalty is something more than that which a noted British writer once designated it "The last refuge of the scoundrel." It is more than these because it now, in its highest forms, does not refer to the political organization of the State. In the modern use of the term it refers to ideas and ideals for which the state or community stands. The opposite of loyalty is Treason, Communism, to Nazism, or to Democracy.

This development in the object of loyalty from state to an ideal, is interesting. It brings into clearer perspective the Christian hope, aims and obligations. For the Christian, there is no loyalty, that can exceed loyalty to Christ, to His revelation of God, and to His way of life. In the early church the Christians were as loyal to Christ and His way or life, as fanatically loyal as the Germans, Italians, Russians and Japanese are to the ideology of their respective national leaders. It was this which led finally to the conquest by Christianity of the pagan religions of Rome. Mr. Churchill translated important business in Moscow, Tehran and Cairo, and on his return to London came the announcement that a new Iraqui-Iranian command had been formed, with General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson in charge of it.

The new command is a strategical expansion and the new improved road from the Persian Gulf to Russia, must be fully employed with the transit of munitions to the Russian armies.

THE PROBLEM OF SUPPLIES

Egypt and Syria are separated from Iraq by a great sandy desert, and Iran is divided from India by the mountains of Afghanistan and Baluchistan. These topographical features are an obstacle to the easy movement of supplies from either direction. The Persian Gulf is the natural means of entry for overseas traffic to either country, and for this reason also it is desirable that the lines communication should run both Iran and Iraq. At the moment, the support of Russia's army in the Caucasus is the immediate concern of General Wilson's new "Iran-Iraq Command," and for this task it faces North.

The army in Egypt, Palestine and Syria remains under the Middle East Command. It faces West and at the time of writing is engaged with Axis forces on the western approaches to the Nile Valley. General Sir Harold Alexander is the new commander in the Middle East, with Lieutenant-General Montgomery as leader of the Eighth Army in Egypt. All sea-borne supplies reach the Middle East Command by the Red Sea route of Suez, from which port they are distributed by rail as far forward as Palestine and Syria.

The Indian Command also forms an important part of the Allied military strategy in the East. It faces East and the Indian Army is at present actively engaged with the Japanese on the Burma frontier.

In South Russia, German attacks are being strongly pressed towards Stalingrad from the bend in the Don and along the railroad which reaches the city from the southwest. In the Caucasus, columns are driving towards Grozni from the west, and from Krasnodar they are operating south towards the western end of the mountains where the foothills rise from the shores of the Black Sea. Fighting at this point is, as the crow flies, 400 miles southwest of Stalingrad but the two operations are a part of the same plan.

Stalingrad is a definite objective for the Nazi 1942 offensive. The city has not fallen but situated as it is on the enemy side of the Volga, it is not a suitable position for a prolonged stand.

FIGHTING WITH RIVER AT THEIR BACKS

The main railroad to the North is cut, and — unlike Moscow — there are no rear communications by which fresh troops can be brought up. Stalingrad's defenders are fighting with a broad river at their backs and with no hope of reinforcements except by ferry-boat across the river. The narrow neck of land between the Don and Volga. This meagre terrain is barely forty miles wide and is not provided with communications.

The Germans are throwing all out in their attempt to overwhelm the great city and however they fail it will be solely due to the Russian's brave stand, and because Hitler's communications are stretched too far because of this problem of supply, not forgetting immediate needs due to the greater needs of approaching winter, that they are pressing towards the Black Sea with the object of seizing the whole railroad line from Rostov to Stalingrad and attempting to get into working order before the snow flies.

If the Nazis can take Novorossisk and if they can make it impossible for the Russian fleet to continue to use the ports of Adler and Batum, it would then be possible for them to send supplies from Axis ports in Rumania to Novorossisk, and thence by railroad to Stalingrad and Astrakhan.

The mouth of the Danube is 400 miles from Novorossisk and from there the distance by rail is 400 miles to Stalingrad. This is the normal and probable route and its use would ease the strain on the long overland route through the Ukraine and the Russian fleet can still enable to attack from Russian guerillas based on the Crimea.

At least eight ships, in excess of 2,000 tons displacement each, are said to be available for Axis use in Rumanian and Bulgarian ports, where at least 100 Danube barges are now concentrated.

These shipping facilities, though modest, would be very useful to relieve pressure on railroads and road transport. How far the attack will be able to use them depends, of course, on Russian opposition in the Caucasus and the fate of the Russian fleet in the Black Sea.

Novorossisk is said to be strongly defended and the terrain of the western Caucasus is well adapted for holding tactics. The Russians seem to have checked the invasion in this area. It is not likely that the Nazis can spare any fresh troops while every available soldier appears to have been thrown into the struggle on Stalingrad.

Should the siege of the great city on the Volga drag on, as it may well do, the problem of supply for the defenders will grow more grave. The rail and road system, over which Russia must rely, is thought to have little advance bases in the Donetz and the Caucasus, are limited. Every day of fighting will add to the strain on the national strain.

So long as the country remains dry, mechanical transport can move anywhere and by this means the burden of supply will may be replaced. But a break in the weather will make all movement difficult on the plains of the Don. Heavy rains are reported in Moscow and, though still far from the battlefield of the Don, this is an indication of what may happen at Stalingrad before many weeks are past.

Some idea of the quantity of material which must have to follow the German army in the field may be gained from a comparison of the needs of a British division.

One thousand tons of ammunition actually accompany a British division and for every mile it advances it requires a like tons of supplies.

The Germans are said to be employing 1,000,000 men (more than sixty divisions) in the attack on Stalingrad. An army of this size, on the Russian front, would be comparable to required in excess of 100 tons of gasoline a day for every mile that it moves. Over and above this, the consumption of ammunition will be considerable and all must be replaced from the base. Food, medical and hospital supplies, etc., have also to be brought up.

Vancouver, British Columbia, probably has the narrowest building in the world. It is only six feet wide and is located in Chinatown. It has shops on the first floor, living quarters on the second.

THIS WAY TO ALASKA

GREAT CITIES OF AN EARLIER AGE

Far away to the south-east of Jerusalem a few miles west of Moab on the Hejaz railway, are the wonderful rock-cut temples of the Roman city of Petra — "the ever-red city half as old as Time"—carved by masons and sculptors in the red sandstone cliffs of the narrow, tortuous ravine Wadi Musa.

In Iraq, near Bagdad, the Arabian Nights' city of the Caliphs — most famous under Haroun el Raschid in A.D. 800 — is the traditional site of the Garden of Eden. Some sixty miles to the south lie the ruins of Babylon, buried beneath yellow mounds, until archaeologists revealed their secrets to verify in a remarkable degree Old Testament history. Not far away stood the Tower of Babel, and Kish, which after the flood became "the leading city of the world." The remarkable discoveries of Leonard Woolley, near Ur, too, illustrate not only the character and trade of Abraham's contemporaries but also the account of the Flood.

LESSON 1. — OCTOBER 4TH

"YOUR INTEMPERANCE"

BY J. M. HILL

Because of our war effort, Canada is calling for skilled workers. More doctors, engineers, pilots and mechanics are needed. Our universities are increasing the number of months of study in some courses in order that students may soon take their place with the armed forces. Technical schools are offering day and night classes to fit young men and women for specialized work in industry—a shortage of nurses is reported.

Before many years have passed you young people will find yourselves at college, preparing to be doctors, dentists, engineers — in hospitals, training to be nurses — in industry, helping to produce goods — or, in the army, navy or air force.

For this reason you must train more than the young people of any previous generation needed to train, to be dependable, capable and useful. We believe that the cause for which we fight is a righteous cause. We call upon God to help us as we go forth to battle tyranny and oppression. We must not forget that we have to do our part. We cannot say to Him: "Make me clear-eyed, wise in my judgments, quick in action, controlled in thought and speech" and then do the things that dull our sight, befuddle our judgment, slow our action, and make us loose in our thoughts and tongue.

"The Reader's Digest" carried an article, last year, with the thought-provoking: "What is Your Intemperance?" It implies, as we all realize, that each of us does certain things to excess, and that all excesses are damaging.

What is your intemperance? Did you read "to all hours of the night" and go to school tired too often? Is your best work next day? Do you eat a candy, then another and another, until the box is empty and you feel slightly ill? Do you indulge in sports until you are so tired that you cannot study at night or help with the work at home? Do you have too many radio programmes to which you listen? Radio can be a fine excuse for putting off tasks, being late for meals, staying up too late, and generally disrupting the smooth running of family life.

"But," you say, "none of these is very bad. We think of intemperance as meaning cigarettes and, of course, alcohol."

Perhaps we had better make sure of what we mean by "intemperance." A certain English dictionary says that it means "want of moderation or due restraint; excess of any kind; specifically habitual indulgence in the use of alcoholic liquors especially with intoxication."

Nevertheless, it is the young man and the young woman who can master some not-too-serious intemperance who are less likely to fall a prey to habit-forming drugs such as nicotine and alcohol. The most successful students, athletes, business or professional workers know that they must not yield to these lesser excesses if they are to do their best work. They learn to curb their desires day by day in the interest of ambition of purpose.

Learn to put first things first. If school work is of first moment in your life then let nothing interfere with your best performance. And above all, let nothing fatigue you beyond the limit where a good night's sleep refreshes you and sends you with a clear mind to school next day. Household tasks must be done (and when mothers and fathers are busy with the Red Cross and other war work part of the home tasks must be carried by the young people) then let nothing interfere with that.

Set a clear goal for yourself. Would you like to be a doctor, a pilot, an engineer, a nurse, a teacher? Then strive to overcome your every intemperance—what ever it may be. Strive for the necessary physical mental and spiritual vigour to attain your goal. This means having a strong well-developed body resistant to disease; a keen, alert, well-stored mind capable of "thinking straight through" problems, and a spirit striving constantly toward the finest things in life. It means fresh air, exercise, physical and mental effort, rest, recreation which restores depleted energy's food which builds up body, and, above all, a reliance upon God to enrich your life and sustain you in your endeavour. In that way you may be of great service to Canada. Perhaps you may even help your country to attain a better way of life than any it has ever known.

One of the greatest hindrances in our national effort towards building strong bodies, minds and spirits is the use of alcohol as a beverage. Industry and science alcohol plays a vital part in this world of lessons we shall consider the effects of alcoholic drinks on human conduct. There is no great consumption of beverage alcohol for the public good. Eight countries, including Canada, have adopted "Government Control", yet we know that "Government Control" fails to "control." We read of appalling accidents—children struck down in the streets, grieved for life or perhaps killed. If this were done by the bomb of an enemy, we would cry: "Such a thing must be wiped from the world." But, unfortunately, it is done by "nice" people, by men and women who, when sobered again, are shocked by their deed. They did not mean to hurt or to kill. They can never throw off the feeling of guilt, never again be wholly at peace with themselves. Their only crime was that they took into their bodies a drug that caused them to behave as they never would normally have done.

Under "Government Sale" or "Government Control" as it is called, drinking has increased. Even during the war the retail sales have risen from $179 million in 1939 to over $250 million. Nor has "Government Control" put an end to bootlegging of liquor. The above totals do not include any item for illegal sales. According to Hansard, 1939, the estimated illegal sales in Canada were $20 million.

Perhaps as we study this subject, "Intemperance," during have five weeks some ideas may come to you —the youth of Canada—for the removal of this great evil. We must look to you, our young people, for leadership in the near future. We, who are older, have tried to do our best—but our best has not been good enough.

QUESTIONS

1 Name five types of intemperance which you have noted and tell how each hinders. (10 marks)

2 Write a short essay (about one page) explaining how the physical fitness of teen-age young people will be of service to our country. (10 marks.)

HERE'S HOW CANADIANS WASTE POWER

So that our war production may not suffer, householders are asked to conserve light and power. The Department of Munitions and Supply order applies to Ontario and Quebec where many war plants are situated and perhaps 24 hours a day. Canadians by now have started to see and feel the effects of the war in their daily lives. The restrictions on the use of gasoline, sugar and the brownout are some of the reminders. Others are still at the required distance. But perhaps the most far-reaching restriction pertaining to conservation with the daily necessities of life is the order to householders to conserve light and power. Watch your lights. Turn off lights in rooms which are not being used. Make sure that your radio, oil, electric stove and fuel burning furnace are operating efficiently. Have them serviced. Watch your fuel bills. Make sure that your refrigerator is operating efficiently. Have it serviced. Watch your electric bills. Make sure that your refrigerator is operating efficiently. Have it

RUSSIAN ARMY SORELY PRESSED HOLDS STALINGRAD

WEDNESDAY —
The fight for Stalingrad still continued with unabated fury. Streets and buildings within the city changed hands hourly, but the Russians refused to give up the battle.

• • •

R. C. A. F. planes took part in an air attack on Kiska in the Aleutian Islands.

• • •

United States flyers blasted Japanese positions in Southwest Yunnan province, China, for the third day in succession.

• • •

Reports persisted that General Von Bock had been ousted by Hitler from command of the German forces in Russia.

THURSDAY—
The Germans succeeded in making a small advance in one sector of Stalingrad in northwestern outskirts. North of Stalingrad a Russian counter-thrust made some gains.

• • •

In the Caucasus the Red Army completely smashed an entire Rumanian division.

• • •

General Rommel was reported to have gone to Berlin, presumably looking for reinforcements for his North African army, which remained stalled.

• • •

The south shore of the St. Lawrence River, for a distance of forty miles from Rimouski to the Gaspe has been made a blackout area in order to prevent lights being of assistance to enemy subs.

• • •

The United States Admiralty announced the loss of ten troopships by enemy action in the Solomons.

• • •

Japanese forces were reported returning after losing to McArthur's Australian troops a strongly fortified ridge, 32 miles from Port Moresby, in New Guinea.

• • •

FRIDAY—
The Germans were reported preparing a new offensive on Stalingrad, with what may be their last drive before winter toward the Gromy oil fields. Stalingrad still held out despite heavy attacks from the air and on the land.

• • •

Italy and Germany reported a strong British attack on the southern end of the Alamein line in Egypt. The Allies attacked from the air, the Axis bases at Tobruk, Bardia and Salum.

• • •

SATURDAY —
The Russians undertook fresh counter-attacks both inside and outside the city of Stalingrad and their latest German power drive was limited to 200 to 300 yards in the northeastern suburbs.

• • •

Further toll was levied by the Russians against the Germans in the Mozdok, Leningrad and Novorossisk areas.

• • •

The British after winning new positions in the El Alamein front in Egypt, prepared to consolidate their gains and make ready for the next round in the battle for Egypt.

• • •

The Japanese withdrawal in the Owen Stanley Mountains in New Guinea continued, but the Australians advanced cautiously ,fearing ambush.

• • •

R. A. F. bombers in large numbers, blasted the German U-boat yards at Flensburg and other objectives on the Baltic coast. Nearly 400 bombers took part in the raid and seventeen were missing.

• • •

The United States Navy announced that Japanese submarines had sunk five Japanese ships, probably sunk two others and damaged one more in Far Eastern waters.

MONDAY—
Incessant Nazi attacks in Stalingrad were beaten off, and the Red Army advanced northwest of the City. As a result the whole German army attacking Stalingrad was reported to be put in a dangerous position. At Voronesh, 300 miles south of Stalingrad, Soviet troops broke into German lines and took some defence positions. In the Caucasus the positions of the two armies remained much the same.

• • •

In New Guinea, Australian troops pursued the Japanese along the upward trail of the Owen Stanley Range, approximately six miles. Allied bombers hit three Jap cruisers in the Solomons and two other ships were believed to have been damaged.

• • •

The United States Army was reported to have established new bases in the Aleutian Islands, 250 miles nearer the Japanese bases in the North Pacific.

• • •

TUESDAY —
The Germans began another heavy drive in the northwestern suburbs of Stalingrad and made some slight gains. But north of Stalingrad the Russians improved their position in what is a relief offensive against the extended Nazi flank. In the mid-Caucasus, Russian defences were said to be holding. In the Baltic, the Russians reported the sinking of a 10,000-ton enemy transport.

• • •

The Japanese were able to land reinforcements on Guadalcanal in the Solomons.

New Jap attacks were made in Kiska in the Aleutians and Washington announced the loss of the United States submarine Grunion.

• • •

After advancing for several days in the Owen Stanley Mountains of New Guinea, the Australians were reported to be meeting stiffer Japanese resistance.

Magistrate's Court

There was a long docket of cases in the Napanee Police Court on Monday afternoon. Several of the cases were for violation of the Liquor Control Act.

James Dellow, of Toronto, pleaded guilty to being intoxicated in a public place and $10.00 fine and costs of $5.00. Bernard Scott, Mallorytown on the same charge as Dellow, paid $10.00 fine and $7.50 costs.

S. T. Burns, Napanee, pleaded guilty to driving a car while intoxicated and also to dangerous driving. On the drunk driving charge he was sentenced to serve ten days in gaol and his car was impounded for three months. On the latter charge he was ordered to pay a fine of $5.00 plus costs.

Harry Mackenzie for having liquor in a place other than his residence, paid $10.00 fine and $6.00 costs.

Charles S. Scott, Kingston, charged with driving a car while intoxicated and also with dangerous driving, was remanded for hearing until Thursday, October 8th.

Hugh Kearns, Sheffield, pleaded guilty to being intoxicated in a public place and paid a fine of $10 and costs of $14.10.

Herb. Asselstine, Napanee, for failing to stop his car before entering an intersection, paid $5.00 fine and $3.65 costs.

Durland Windover, for failing to stop his car before entering an intersection, paid $2.00 fine and $3.00 costs.

A charge of careless driving laid against Bernard Deir, driver of a Martin Transport, was dismissed. The charge was laid on information given by Charles Kennedy, who claimed that Deir crowded his car off the highway, about three miles west of Odessa, causing Mrs. Kennedy to be thrown against the glass in the door. Kennedy claimed that Deir did not give any signal of desire to pass and that when he did pass he kept over on the wrong side of the road. Deir and the drivers of two other Martin Transports, which were following, stated that Kennedy prevented the transport passing for some distance, and only on the fourth attempt was Deir able to get by him.

Noah Wheeler, Napanee, pleaded guilty to the theft of $21.00 from Pidgeon's Pool Room and was remanded for sentence until Thursday, October 8th. Wheeler was in the pool room and while the attendant, Harold Aikenbrack was at the rear of the premises went to the cash register and stole the money. Aikenbrack heard the bell on the register and thus caught Wheeler and took the money away from him. J. M. Simpson, Napanee, for Wheeler, stated that Wheeler had been returned from England in March, 1942 and was discharged from the army after being overseas since November ,1939. On account of a nervous condition, Mr. Simpson asked that Wheeler's mental condition be checked before sentence was passed.

EMPIRE HONOURS DIEPPE HEROES

whose service at Dieppe merited nomination for decorations. The privates, sailors, sergeant-majors, lance-corporals, corporals and sergeants comprised the bulk of the lists of recommendations for twelve Distinguished Conduct Medals, 45 Military Medals and 66 who were "mentioned in Despatches."

For sheer bravery, total disregard for the venomous fire from the enemy machine-guns, and the ability to attack the Nazis with the cold steel of their bayonets, the Canadian raid on the German stretch resort will ever stand out as an ideal sample of the fighting ability of Canadians. The citations which accompanied the awards produced as many thrills to their readers as those of the Great War. In fact the citations in themselves were probably the best literature to come from any of the battle fronts in this conflict. Certainly Hollywood could not conjure up more exciting scripts.

Take a few examples. Lieut.Col. C. C. I. Merritt, winner " . . . Although twice wounded Lieut.-Col. Merritt continued to direct his unit's (South Saskatchewan Regiment) operations with great vigour and determination and while organizing the withdrawal he stalked a sniper with a Bren gun and silenced him. He then coolly gave orders for the departure of the remaining platoons to hold off and 'get even with' the enemy. When last seen he was collecting Bren and Tommy guns and preparing a defensive position which successfully covered the withdrawal from the beach."

Lieut.-Col. Dollard Menard, D.S.O., Les Fusiliers Mont-Royal, " . . . When finally taken on board a landing craft (tank) although wounded for the fifth time he still insisted on organizing anti-aircraft defenses and looking after his men."

Hon. Capt. the Rev. James Porter Browne, Canadian Chaplain Service, " . . . With total disregard for his own safety and while subject to a continuous mortar and machine gun fire he repeatedly went to exposed positions rendering every possible aid and assistance to the wounded."

Lieut. W. A. Ewner, M.C. R.S.E., wounded early in the attack, " . . . When more of his men were wounded he carried a 75-pound charge of explosives as far as the Casino."

Lieut. Paul F. Lorrange, Les Fusiliers Mont-Royal . . . "During the withdrawal he refused assistance and although his legs were hurt, he crawled towards the beach and had the wounded where he was finally hoisted into an L.C.T. His courageous actions and self denial are worthy of the highest consideration."

Sergt. Ernest R. Thirgood, M.M. Royal Regiment of Canada, . . . "Although seriously wounded, Sergt. Thirgood demonstrated a cool, stubborn determination to carry out his tasks and set a fine example to his men."

Lance-Corpl. George A. Alfred, M. M., R.H.L.I., " . . . He was one of the first to enter the Casino where single-handed he attacked and destroyed a German stronghold in the building at considerable personal risk."

Pte. John H. Mizon, M.M., Essex Scottish, " . . . He was in charge of a mortar. After penetrating the enemy's wire obstacles he brought this weapon into action effectively. The enemy replied with a four-inch mortar and machine-gun fire but failed to silence Pte. Mizon's mortar."

Lance-Corpl. George W. Sargent, M.M., Cameron Highlanders : "He disposed of the snipers and cleared two houses effectively and was first in all opposition and allowing the platoon to advance."

Pte. Oliver O. Fenner, M.M., South Saskatchewan Regiment. " . . . His platoon came under very heavy fire from a hilltop and could not advance further because of the open ground in front. Pte. Fenner jumped up and firing his Bren gun from the hip advanced up the hill. Although wounded he continued to advance until his ammunition was exhausted."

Lance-Corpl. Guy Bernard Bethelot, D.C.M., South Saskatchewan Regiment, " . . . When the platoon commander and most of the senior N.C.O.'s were put out of action, Hickson assumed command and led the platoon to the Casino where strong enemy opposition was nullified. Using grenades and rifle fire through the walls to reach a large concrete emplacement from them another charge blew in the steel door killing a gun crew of five. He then destroyed the defended room and two machine guns after infantry had cleared the post."

The foregoing excerpts, taken at random from the citations bespeak the cold, calculating courage of the Canadians. Every one of the Dominion's soldiers in the raid that memorable August 19 morning were heroes and so they came from the farms and the factories, the mines, the fisheries, the lumber camps, the offices and the professions of the nation they will give a fairly good cross-section of what kind of an account they will give for themselves in future engagements with the enemy.

LOCAL RATION OFFICES TO BE SET UP

The Wartime Prices and Trade Board is taking steps to reorganize its ration system, the chairman, Donald Gordon, said this week. By enlisting local people with an intimate knowledge of community conditions, it is planned to set up local ration offices in the municipal buildings at some 500 centres across Canada.

While final plans have not yet been determined, Boards will be so located as to give representation to all areas.

The local boards will be staffed by volunteers chosen from among leading citizens of the communities concerned, who will work without pay as part of their war effort. Mayors and reeves are being asked to act as chairmen of the local ration boards and to submit nominations for local members. The boards will be made up of people representing agriculture, trade and industry, labor, the professions, and women.

"The move is designed to give better and more understanding service to the people of Canada with a minimum of expense and inconvenience," Donald Gordon, chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, explained. "It will bring the local knowledge to bear upon local ration problems."

The local boards will have wide powers in administering local matters relating to rationing. This includes such work as issuance of ration books for new born babies, collection of the ration books of deceased persons, replacement of lost books, special allowances to soldiers on leave, allowances for preserving, or other special circumstances, changes of address and similar business, which it is believed can best be handled by persons familiar with local conditions.

OCT. MEETING U.E.L. CHAPTER I. O. D. E.

The October meeting of the United Empire Loyalist Chapter, I. O. D. E., was held on Monday, October 5th, with the Regent presiding. After the Prayer of the Order, and Saluting the Flag, reports were given of a splendid report of the war work accomplished from June 1st to October, was read by Mrs. A. Woods in the absence of the war work treasurer, Mrs. Egan, and also of money raised.

During September, 10,284 lbs. of salvage were sold, including rubber, metals, rags and paper.

A report was given of the I. O. D. E booth at the Palace during the Fair, when a splendid display of war work was held. Tickets were sold on a "Star of Bethlehem" quilt, made by Mrs. H. M. Wagar.

Members were reminded to buy and sell tickets on the Retail Purriers $25,000 Campaign for the War Charities of the Order.

Mrs. J. Diamant, Educational and Empire Study Convener, read a letter from the adopted other members of the Chapter, following the Semi-Annual meeting in Kingston.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

BY TAP KEYES

Doug Fairbanks, Jr., was one of the first stars to enter the services. Since then little's been heard about him. But he hasn't had it easy. Advices from London admit that he has called the sea in almost every kind of large war boat . . . Commander John Ford who directed "How Green Was My Valley," got into picture business with Brigadier Francis Ford, the old-time star, got him a job as prop boy. He directed more than 200 westerns before he was 25, which proves that there's no substitute for experience, even in the film business . . . Sam Goldwyn's spent a million dollars trying to make a star of Anna Sten, the Russian beauty. It didn't help. Now she'll be back in "Seventh Column" as the wife of General Mikhailovitch, the Serb guerilla leader.

Raymond Massey will play opposite Ruth Gordon in "Action in the North Atlantic." She's one of America's greatest actresses whose film appearances have been all-too-scarce. They appeared together in several stage plays. . . . Jeanette MacDonald, who left MGM after many years, is on a road tour and will return to film soon for another studio . . . John Cootes, one in leave from the RCAF, has returned to active duty after working in "The Commandos Strike at Dawn." He's stationed at Ottawa. . . . Gail Patrick, who was to have served with the Canadian Navy, Farrow will direct Alan Ladd's next picture, "China."

Anna Neagle and her director, Herbert Wilcox, who made "Wings and the Woman," aren't ready to make a film with a Canadian background, as reported. Canada has certainly won a more honest presentation lately than at any time in the past. . . . Paramount's picture to be titled about "Calgary Roundup" because the war made it tough to shoot. . . . Who do you think will play the lead in Noel Coward's play, "The Astonished Heart"? Maria Manton, daughter of Marlene Dietrich. . . . Lew Lehr, the funny Movietone man, will be back after a long illness. He's been missed, with his "Monkeys are the funniest people!"

You'll soon be hearing plenty of song-and-dancing. Hollywood desiring to balance the large amount of war films, has 59 musicals scheduled. . . . All-star films are on the way. Fox's "Stage Door Canteen" has a raft of them and no less than 33 will appear in Paramount's "Star-Spangled Rhythm." Now "Stage Door Canteen" is the way with Benny Goodman, Katherine Hepburn, Helen Hayes, Benny Goodman and anyone else you can think of. . . . Leave it to Bette Davis to be different. She didn't divorce her husband—he divorced her. And for desertion. . . . A new game is on the way—"Movie Quiz." The screen presents the questions, you jeer the answers out of a provided sheet and get war certificates and bonds.

Did you know that children under 16, unaccompanied or not, are not allowed in Quebec theatres? The law was passed because of a tragic fire years ago. The government wouldn't relax it for Walt Disney's "Dumbo." . . . Don't think those stars have an easy time on their bond tours. Bette Davis is the fifth star to fall ill after the strenuous jaunt.

. . . Wild, cowboy stars headed for the army the cowzirl msy come back. The early alerts featured some. Now one studio has signed trick rider, Evelyn Finley. Westerns will be fewer, due to film rationing, but they'll be bigger and better. Columbia has "The Desperadoes," a Technicolor shooter.

MR., MRS. J.M. JOYCE MARRIED 60 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Joyce, well-known residents of this province, celebrated the 60th anniversary of their marriage at their home on Robert Street, on Monday, October 5th. The day was spent quietly at their home where they received a great many of their friends who came to offer their congratulations and good wishes.

Mr. and Mrs. Joyce, who are 83 and 79 respectively, were married on October 5th, 1882, at the Methodist Church parsonage at Morven, by Rev. T. H. Macdonald. The attendants at the wedding were Miss Nettie Huffman and Mr. Joyce's brother, Sheldon Y. Joyce.

Following their marriage they lived at the Joyce homestead in North Fredericksburgh, where they resided until 1918 when they moved to a farm in Richmond, near Napanee. They came to Napanee five years later and have since made their home here.

Mr. Joyce, who is of Irish descent, is the last of five children. His wife, also before her marriage was Marjorie F. Cuthill, was born in Scotland, where her father died. With her mother, who later married Mr. William Baird, she came to Canada when she was four years of age, and lived in North Fredericksburgh. Mrs. Joyce has one brother living and two sisters have died.

Since coming to Napanee, Mr. and Mrs. Joyce have been members of Grace United Church. Mr. Joyce is a member of the Official Board and Mrs. Joyce is active in the Women's Association and the W. M. S.

Mr. and Mrs. Joyce have three children living, S. R. Joyce, Rochester, N.Y.; Jessie, Mrs. F. A. Collins, Hillsboro, Ohio; and Arthur Joyce, Newburgh. Another daughter, Marjorie, died several years ago.

WEDDING BELLS

PARROTT - REID

A very pretty autumn wedding took place Saturday afternoon, October 3, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Denyes, Fourth Line. Pivestown, when their only daughter, Mildred Jean, became the bride of Cecil Kensal Parrott, Pinedale, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Milton Parrott, Wilton.

The bride looked charming in a street-length dress of pink triple sheer over taffeta and carried a bouquet of Briarcliff roses and maidenhair fern. The bride was given in marriage by her father and Mildred Jean Denyes was matron of honor. She wore a floor length dress of blue taffeta and carried a bouquet of yellow roses and maidenhair fern.

The groom was attended by Mr. Lloyd Reid, Napanee, brother of the bride, and Mr. Milton Parrott, Wilton, brother of the groom.

During the signing of the register, Mrs. Ethel Lloyd "Breaux" accompanied by Mrs. James Robson, who also played the wedding march from Lohengrin and other bridal music during the ceremony.

Following the buffet supper toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Merrick and was replied to by the groom.

Later the happy couple left amid showers of confetti on a wedding trip to Toronto, Hamilton and other points in Western Ontario.

For travelling, the bride chose a dress of navy crepe with matching hat and accessories.

The bride and groom were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts.

W.M.S. Executive Meet For Interesting Rally At Gretna Church

The executive of the South Napanee section of the W. M. S. Belleville Presbyterial, met recently at the home of Mrs. Rev. C. D. McLellan, to draft a program for the annual rally to be held at Gretna Church, on October 15th.

There will be a morning session commencing at 9.15 a.m. and an afternoon session convening at 1.30 p.m. Mrs. C. D. McLellan, secretary of the presbyterial will preside at both sessions. The Gretna ladies will serve a dainty lunch at noon and supper at night.

The guest speaker will be Miss Dorothy Pearson, M.A., of the School of Homemaking, Neemuch, India. At least two of the Presbyterial secretaries will be present and there will be inspirational devotional periods in addition to solos and dramatics. Each auxiliary will give a two-minute account of its outstanding event in its work. You are cordially invited to attend as in these dark days we need such inspirational rallies, as never before.

The Late W. H. Vannest

W. H. Vannest, one of the best-known farmers of the Enterprise district, died on Sunday, October 4, at the home of his son, H. Elgin Vannest, in his 81st year.

Mr. Vannest was a lifelong resident of the district, being born on the farm adjoining the farm now operated by his son. He was a prosperous farmer for many years and was also a skilled mechanic. He retired from active work about fifteen years ago owing to failing health. For many years, so long as his health permitted, he took an active part in the Enterprise United Church.

On March 2nd last, Mr. Vannest's 8ith birthday, many friends and neighbors from many miles around joined in a community birthday celebration in his honor.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Ada P. Jackson; one son, Elgin; two grandchildren, Vivian and Lloyd and two brothers, Levi of Moscow and Turner Gladwin, Michigan. He was predeceased by two sisters and one, brother.

MISS D. SCHELL, KELOWNA, B.C., BECOMES BRIDE OF CORPORAL A. K. BOND, ON SEPT. 3RD.

Father, Former Resident of Lennox County

A wedding ceremony, uniting two pioneer families of Rutland district, Okanagan Mission, took place Thursday evening, September 3rd, at 8:00 o'clock, in St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral, Dawson, Yukon Territory, when Doris Lillian, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Schell, of Rutland, became the bride of Corpl. Ainslie Kenneth Bond, R.C.M.P., elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil H. Bond, of Rutland. Rev. R. O. G. Dixon officiated.

A "profusion" of Yukon - grown flowers afforded a lovely setting for the military wedding, while the colorful scarlet and gold uniforms of the groom and his attendants made the ceremony one of the most picturesque ever seen in the city.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Serg.-Major F. C. Heath, Royal Canadian Signals, was lovely in a gown of white lace and chiffon cut on becoming Princess lines. She carried a bridal bouquet of red carnations and yellow roses.

Miss Solway Dines, the bride's only attendant, wore a turquoise gown with matching hat and accessories, offset by her bouquet of yellow and white snapdragons.

As the bride and her attendant entered the church to the strains of a wedding march, they were preceded by the two ushers, Constable Weiko and Constable Kasper, both clad in full dress uniform. Constable F. M. Smith was the groomsman.

Mrs. Chris Goodle, Bear Creek, accompanied by P. Boyle, at the organ sang "Through the Years" during the signing of the register.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Inspector and Mrs. W. Grennan Receiving with the bridal party, Mrs. Grennan wore a gown of Queen's blue crepe and a corsage fashioned from two floral yellow roses.

Units of the B.y. Scouts and the Cubs, in which the groom has taken a keen interest since arriving in the Yukon, formed a guard of honor at the wedding.

After a honeymoon spent at Rock Lake, Crystal and Mrs. Bond will reside in Dawson for the next three years.

Prayer Book Donated To Brussels Church By Yarker Church

A large black leather-bound Prayer Book formerly in use in St. Andrew's Anglican Church, Yarker, Ont. (Quebec East Parish in Ontario Diocese) has been given to St. John's Church, Brussels, Ontario, for use at the Communion Table. Rev. M. F. Oldham, who was in Yarker recently, brought it back with him. Recently the kindness of Rev. R. W. Spencer, Rector of the Parish and Dr. J. H. Oldham, M.D. warden of St. Andrew's Church, Gasoline lamps from the same church will be used in St. George's, Walton.

On ten nights during the first half of September the R. A. F. dropped nearly 10,000,000 pounds of bombs on Europe.

THANKSGIVING!

Hello Homemakers! Don't mind the joy of a real old-fashioned Thanksgiving dinner even in these war days. Not in any part of Europe, not in Russia nor in the British Isles for that matter, can Thanksgiving be celebrated this year. So every Canadian citizen should usher in this old-time harvest feast with a sincere prayer of Thanksgiving for a free country where the harvest is plentiful; where wood and coal for winter fires can still be had; where hearty laughter of young and old can still be heard; and where citizens may worship on the Sabbath as they wish.

Thanksgiving Day may be kept in the traditional way — with family gatherings — but don't forget to keep your home open, too, to some of the lonely boys and girls in the war services. You will get a thrill from sharing your Thanksgiving dinner and giving the good old turkey all his glory to some of these young folk.

RECIPES

Braised Capon

4-pound fowl, cleaned and trussed; two slices of fat salt pork, ¼-inch thick; five slices carrot cubed; half an onion, sliced; two sprigs thyme; one sprig parsley; one bay leaf; two tablespoons of butter; two cups boiling water or chicken stock.

Try out pork. Strain fat, add carrot, onion, parsley, and bay leaf. Cook five minutes. Add butter and fowl. Cook until surface is well browned, turning often. Place on trivet in deep pan, pour over fat, and whichever stock. Cover and bake in electric oven at 350 deg. until tender, adding more water if needed. Strain stock, remove fat, and use for sauce or gravy.

Pumpkin Cream Pie

Pastry for 9-inch pie, two eggs slightly beaten, one-quarter cup corn syrup, one-quarter cup of brown sugar, one cup canned or cooked pumpkin, one tablespoon corn starch, one-quarter teaspoon salt, three-quarters teaspoon of cinnamon, one teaspoon ginger, one and three-quarter cups of rich milk.

Line 9-inch pie pan with pastry; flute pastry edge. Bake in hot oven 450 deg. F. for five minutes; remove from oven. To slightly beaten eggs add all the other ingredients except one-quarter cup of the milk. Pour into partially baked shell; pour remaining one-quarter cup carefully on top. Bake in an electric oven 450 deg. F. for ten minutes; reduce heat to 350 deg. and continue baking for thirty minutes or until a silver knife inserted in the centre comes out clean. When cool, serve a tablespoon of whipped cream, flavoured with orange flavouring, with each serving.

Spiced Loaf Cake (eggless)

One cup sour milk, one cup of corn syrup two and one-third cups all - purpose flour, one-half teaspoon salt, one and three-quarter teaspoons baking soda, two teaspoons ginger, one teaspoon cinnamon, half-teaspoon cloves ore - quarter cup melted shortening.

Method: Combine sour milk and corn syrup. Sift in the dry ingredients; stir vigorously; add melted shortening. Pour into loaf pan 9 in by 5 in. by 3 in. lined with waxed paper and greased. Bake in electric oven at 350 deg. for thirty minutes. May be baked with roast turkey for supper meal.

TAKE A TIP

1 Save leftover cooked breakfast cereal to serve for next day's supper. Slice cold cereal and fry until brown. Serve with cheese sauce. It's real good.

2 Remember to use a dry cloth to remove warm glass dishes from the oven. A damp cloth may cause the utensil to crack.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. D. Me asks: "Recipe for serving ripe cucumbers as a vegetable."

Answer: Cucumbers in Cream

Six medium cucumbers, half tablespoon fat, one and one-half tablespoons butter, one and one-half tablespoons flour, one and one-half cups milk, half teaspoon salt, one tablespoon chopped parsley, dash of paprika, pepper, mace.

Pare cucumbers, quarter and remove seeds. Cut in half. Cook in boiling water, salted, with fat added. When tender, drain, saving the liquid. Melt the butter; blend in flour and the double gravity for three minutes. Slowly add the milk. Cook and stir until thickened; add seasoning and heat; pour over cucumbers and sprinkle with parsley.

Mrs. M. G. suggests: "Crisp toppings for your fruit puddings. Wheat flakes, corn flakes or rice crispies, a mixture of these, saves a third of the sugar required."

Anne Allan invites you to write to her in care of The Napanee Beaver. Send in your questions on homemaking problems and watch this column for replies.

PLAN TO USE YOUR OVEN TO ITS FULLEST CAPACITY

When you use your oven do you fill it to capacity? If not, try out these tips and you will be surprised at the saving of both time and gas.

Begin by putting your top shelf on a high heat and the lower shelf or ovens from the bottom and bring your oven ten minutes before you need it, putting the gas at top pressure and reducing to medium when you are ready to bake.

Cook your meat dish on the top shelf and also your potatoes, either boiled or baked, in their jackets on the bars.

On the second shelf put a fairly large dish containing vegetables, a cup of water, a nob of butter and seasoning and cover with an iron oven tray. By using a tray instead of the usual lid you create an extra shelf on which you can bake a jam-roll or pastries, and still have sufficient room under its protruding end for yet another dish — soused mackerel.

To prepare, cut off the heads and wash. Leave to drain in a colander, and when dry, put in a covered dish with ten peppercorns, a bay leaf, two cloves, a pinch of cinnamon and cover well with vinegar. Bake for about one-half hour to thirty minutes to taste. They can be put in the oven at the same time as the meat and then give place to a 'milk pudding or tart.

FOR SLOW COOKING

Few people realise that the bottom of the oven itself can be used for all slow-cooking dishes, providing that they are covered to exclude the possibility of gas fumes.

Here again, if you use an oven tray as a lid you make space for one large pudding — using an aluminium one.

Either off as many wafers as possible from your dry loaf ends and put them with any crusts on the tray in a heap; when they are crisp and well-browned they make a substitute for biscuits, and can be ground into breadcrumbs with a rolling-pin.

Seven items baked together in one oven? Certainly — but don't tell the gas company or they'll want to put up their prices!

PLAN CHRISTMAS BOXES TO SAVE SHIPPING SPACE

To insure Christmas parcels reaching Service men overseas in good time, postal authorities at Ottawa advise mailing not later than November 10, earlier, if possible.

Auxiliary Services, Department of National Defence, concerned particularly with the welfare of men in the Services, advises families and friends to club together this year and send one substantial Christmas parcel instead of duplications in several. Everyone must remember, however, the need for conservation of shipping space for war materials. See that parcels will stand up to shipping by using good corrugated cardboard reinforced with thin wooden strips and sealed with gummed brown paper. See they are firmly packed to avoid being crushed in by the weight of others. Address boldly and legibly on both sides.

It is anticipated turkey and chicken will be on the Christmas fare of Canadians overseas this year as previously. "Send us more turkey and turkey sauce" Auxiliary Services appeals. Let's see if we can "do better" than touches lacking in past years. Cranberry sauce, mince pies, Christmas puddings in vacuum-sealed tins; mixed spice powder to make lemonade; concentrated orange juice; meat cubes; cocoa with powdered milk and sugar added, are high up on the list, not to be included. Avoid anything with glass containers. Those attractive fancy cheese unless sealed in tins or cellophane; soaps, etc. that will penetrate to other foods in the parcel.

With the R.C.A.F.

BY FLIGHT LIEUTENANT T. C. McCALL, R.C.A.F.

You don't have to budge off this continent to find a part of it that is at war with you, and you and on a round-the-clock basis.

First, if you can, this base where a Bomber Reconnaissance squadron is stationed and within five minutes of your arrival it will be made clear to you with a pronounced degree of clarity that the war which has already engulfed most of the earth, is already right on the North American doorstep.

It is being fought twenty-four hours a day by lads from point even home town. They live in remote outposts along our coasts, on their jobs quietly and effectively and succeed in helping to maintain the lifelines from the New World to the Old.

They miss out in the glory that accrues to their brothers overseas. There are no communiques about their work. But you'll find morale and sports as high as anywhere in the world. They're fighting a war they're doing a man-sized job and doing it well. They're living A-hd where it hurts him the most—spoiling the carefully laid plans of the last ten years to destroy Britain and her Empire by cutting her supply routes.

This Bomber - Reconnaissance Squadron is just one of the Royal Canadian Air Force units stationed in the vital task of searching out sea raiders and preventing shipping from the security of submarine wolf-packs. Its planes — huge, twin-motored craft — range far and over the North Atlantic every day and night. Bad weather, poor visibility, extreme icing conditions mean little to these lads. When the seagulls are thumbing rides, the planes of this squadron are still in the air in search for subs. They find them, too. Security does not permit revelation of details of attacks and the results achieved, but when the story of this war is written, some names will be devoted to the exploits of this group.

Visit the squadron at their base and you'll be struck very forcibly by one fact. A bomber crew is not a collection of individuals but rather a well-coordinated unit. It is in many respects like a football team. The pilots and navigators are carefully selected for both their aerial and their leadership qualities. And there is the same high degree of skill in the gunners, wireless air gunners and engineers. Each has been trained for his specialty and each has been selected with care.

It is interesting to watch the crew of one of these planes as they prepare for a flight. Each man is busy with his own particular job to see that the plane gets there in safety and that the mission is successfully accomplished. Each man is a specialist in his own line, but each has been trained to be familiar with the duties of his fellow aircrew members.

In the first place, the aircraft and its aircrew must be ready for any emergency at every hour of the day or night. Each man is responsible for the safe operation of his own particular piece of equipment. Before the plane leaves the ground, every piece of equipment is checked and double-checked. Then, when the plane is in the air, each man is responsible for the safety of his fellow crew members. Each man is trained to be familiar with the duties of his fellow crew members.

In the bomber-reconnaissance squadron, the aircraft carries a crew of seven and far from its base, the pilot is responsible for the safety of nine men. If any man in the outfit gets the slightest bit careless, he is promptly reminded in no uncertain terms that his carelessness might result in the death of his fellow crew members.

In the air, the aircraft is constantly on the alert. Any suspicious object is reported without difficulty and that fact alone relieves a lot of the strain. The navigator is to see that the aircraft keeps to the course laid down and that it reaches the objective at the right time. The pilot has a full supply of maps, but the navigator has his own charts and instruments and he is responsible for getting the pilot with the plane to the right place at the right time.

The gunners, wireless air gunners and engineers all have their own particular jobs to perform. Each

IS NO TIME FOR

LONG-WINDED TELEPHONE TALKS

On a telephone system loaded with wartime business, long talks are out . . . for the duration.

Joe forgets that an important call may be waiting for him or his golfing crony. He forgets, too, that the telephone on his desk is part of a vast communications system which he shares with key men in aircraft and explosives plants, at army posts and in government offices. They have important messages to put through, every hour of the day.

Remember . . . existing equipment is carrying many more calls than ever before. So please limit the number of your telephone talks . . . and keep them brief.

Decide, today . . . not to waste time on the telephone . . . as long as the war lasts!

Balance of List Next Week

"I'm glad I live in Canada. My family is safe here. There is no Gestapo, no hunger, no brutal aggression. I have a good job, and I am free, and unafraid.

'In many lands, the people have been robbed and beaten, their money and possessions forcibly taken from them. Here in my country, I can lend my money and know that it is safe, backed by all the resources of Canada, and that I will get interest on it, too. I am gladly doing without some things so as to be ready to lend every dollar I can to the country that has been so good to me and my family."

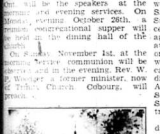
GRACE UNITED CHURCH WILL CELEBRATE 100TH ANNIVERSARY

Special Services Start Next Sunday Continue for 3 Weeks

Next Sunday, October 18th, Rev. W. H. Cochrane, M.A., Toronto, will be the speaker at Grace United Church at the first of a series of special services on three successive Sundays, to mark the 100th anniversary of the church. Dr. Cochrane will speak at both morning and evening services, and after the evening meetings a social hour will be held in the Sunday School hall.

On Monday, October 26th, a reunion of former ministers of the church, Rev. C. E. Craig, Grace Church, Toronto, and Rev. Dr. R. T. Richardson, Centennial Church, London, Ont., will be the speakers at the afternoon and evening services. On Tuesday, October 26th, a congregational supper will be held in the dining hall of the church.

On Sunday, November 1st, at the morning service communion will be observed, and in the evening, Rev. W. P. Woodger, a former minister, now of St. Paul's Church, Cobourg, will preach.



According to information in Mr. R. R. Symington's History of Lennox and Addington, the first Methodist Episcopal Church in Napanee, was erected on the present site of Grace Church, in the year 1842. It was completed in 1884 and was known as the Wesley Church. The John Bailey was the Presiding Elder and Rev. H. H. Johnston was the Minister in Charge.

In 1911, when Rev. S. G. Stone was appointed minister of the church, he realized there was need of a new church and started a movement toward that end. With the generous co-operation of the late John Gilbard and other interested members of the church, a new church building was erected and in October, 1873, the present Grace Church was completed, at a cost of $17,000. Since that time many improvements have been added and changes have been made.

The present minister, Rev. C. D. McLellan, has recently completed his second year as pastor of the church. The recording steward is Mr. G. F. Smith. The president of the Women's Association is Mrs. B. M. Black and the president of the W. M. S. is Mrs. S. Booth.

The other former ministers of the church who are still living are Rev. A. J. Terrill, now retired and living at Colborne, and Rev. W. P. Rogers. The ministers of the church from 1860 to the present are: 1860-1864, Rev. S. T. Bartlett; 1904-1906, Rev. J. R. Real; 1906-1911, Rev. W. H. Hughes; 1911-1914, Rev. Dr. J. F. Wilson; 1914-1917, Rev. C. E. Craig; 1917-1921, Rev. W. P. Rogers; 1921-1926, Rev. A. J. Terrill; 1926-1933, Rev. W. P. Woodger; 1933-1940, Rev. R. T. Richards; 1940 to the present, Rev. C. D. McLellan.

ANSWER CHARGES FALSE PRETENCES NAPANEE COURT

Magistrate Garvin, in Napanee Police Court on Thursday, remanded Garth Sharp, Belleville, for one week, charged with obtaining money on false pretences.

Sharp is alleged to have represented himself as a government inspector of sewing machines with power to repair machines or to collect them for salvage if he found them beyond repair. He collected money in the following amounts for repairs to machines belonging to six residents of Adolphustown: William Allen, $3.25; Mrs. Hugh Instant, $2.25; Dorothy Gallagher, $5.00; Arthur Allison, $8.50; Mrs. Harold Haight, $8.50 and James Spearing $9.00.

SENT TO GAOL ON DRUNK DRIVING CHARGE

Charles S. Scott, an inspector at the Locomotive Works in Kingston, pleaded guilty in Napanee Police Court, last week, to dangerous driving and driving a car while intoxicated. On the former charge, Magistrate Garvin imposed a fine of $10 plus costs and on the latter Scott was sentenced to serve one week in gaol and in addition his car was impounded for three months, and he was ordered to pay the costs of the court.

Provincial Constable, in his evidence, stated he was called to the scene of an accident a short distance west of Napanee about 7.30 p.m. on Saturday, October 3rd. He found Scott's Studebaker coupe across the centre of the road in a badly damaged condition and a short distance away a Motor Coach Transport disabled on the north side of the road, near where it had been struck by Scott's car. Scott was in an intoxicated condition at the time, the officer stated. A passenger in Scott's car, Ernest Scott, had some cuts on his face, but Scott himself and the driver of the transport were uninjured.

The transport was sufficiently damaged to require the load to be transferred to another transport before it could be towed. Scott's car was wrecked beyond repair.

Another charge against Scott, "having liquor in a public place," was dismissed when no evidence was offered in the case.

J. M. Simpson, K.C., acted for Mr. Scott.

REHABILITATION OF MEN IN ARMED FORCES THEME OF ADDRESS

Given by Children's Aid Inspector at Board Meeting

In an address given before the members of the Board of Directors of the Lennox and Addington Children's Aid Society, on Thursday evening, Mr. L. C. Eckert, Inspector of Children's Aid Societies forecast the probability of the Children's Aid Societies in the Province of Ontario playing a large part in the work of reconstruction and the rehabilitation of returned men, after the war is ended.

Mr. Eckert outlined in his address the growth of the society and pointed out that as a result of its gradual development, and greater assumption of social duties, the Society is particularly well fitted for the task which may be assigned to it after the war. Already the workers in the Society have been given considerable responsibility with regard to soldiers' dependents.

Mr. Eckert stated that the experience gained following the first Great War has led the Government officials to realize that their responsibility toward returned men does not cease with monetary assistance. Many of them will come home to face changed conditions in their families and many of the soldiers themselves will present problems in readjusting them to civil life.

Mr. Eckert did not suggest that any branch of the Children's Aid would be forced to take on extra duties in aiding in re-establishment after the war, but said that the decision to do so or not to do so would rest with the board of each society. But he did urge the directors to give the matter consideration and if possible to pave the way to help in this very important task. He said that the superintendents could not do all the work alone and assistance will need to be provided by additional paid workers and by voluntary work on the part of the members of the board and private citizens.

Mr. Eckert showed how the Children's Aid Society had developed since its formation in 1893 from a society which was entirely operated on a voluntary basis, with no assistance from the government, to its present position which is that of a branch of the Provincial Welfare Department operating at the expense of the municipality.

The Society has greater power vested in it concerning the control of children than any other agency and the set-up of many other similar societies in other countries is based on that of the Ontario Society.

Tribute was paid by Mr. Eckert to the excellent work done by Mr. W. F. Lennox, the superintendent of the Lennox and Addington Society. The extent of the territory under his control makes his work unusually more difficult and calls for all the assistance that can possibly be given by Board members. Mr. Eckert impressed upon the Board members the need to study the problems of the Society and to consider carefully the question as whether or not it would assume greater duties in the reconstruction period following the war.

COUNTY CHAIRMEN OF WAR LOAN COMMITTEE ASKS CO-OPERATION

To The Citizens of Lennox and Addington :-

The Third Victory Loan Campaign starts on Monday, October 19th, 1942. Men, implements of war, and money must be forthcoming — without the money our part in the war cannot be maintained. The war outlook is brighter but we must press steadily and relentlessly, that we may be assured of Decisive Victory as early as possible. There can be no lasting peace without a crushing defeat. Our part is clear: Money must be loaned to carry on and everyone must unselfishly and earnestly co-operate. All must save to lend.

Yours sincerely,

W. A. GRANGE, Hon. Chairman,
D. R. HALL, Chairman.

BANKS WILL ASSIST 3RD VICTORY LOAN INVESTORS

When the curtain rises on Canada's Third Victory Loan for $750,000,000 on October 19th, hundreds of salesmen and canvassers throughout Ontario will find added ammunition in their kits with the announcement that the chartered banks of Canada will co-operate fully by placing their facilities at the disposal of the Government and the public.

The general plan of the banks will greatly help the purchasers of Victory bonds. The banks' co-operation will include lending money to investors to finance purchases, receiving and distributing the bonds to the purchasers when they are paid for.

An important contribution of the banks is that they will put up money where customers want to buy on instalment or credit. Under the arrangement it is understood the investor will pay Ten Per Cent. of the face value of the bond and the balance over six months. In these cases the banks will charge interest at the coupon rate. If the customer wants to extend payment beyond the six months' period, the banks will lend him the necessary funds at a slightly higher rate of interest. After the extended period any outstanding indebtedness will be treated as an ordinary loan.

A very important feature of the bank plan which will directly aid the salesmen is that where customers subscribe to the Loan out of their savings deposits they will not lose the bank interest on the amount of their subscription for that quarter. Normally, interest on deposit is calculated on the minimum quarterly deposit. Thus, if a man has $2,000 in the bank and withdraws $1,000 or if during the quarter, his interest is calculated on $1,000 for the quarter even though he may have had $2,000 on deposit for most of the period. However, under the new arrangement, if $1,000 is withdrawn to buy Victory Bonds it will not count as a withdrawal for that quarter, therefore, he will be credited with interest on the full $2,000.

TWO HOLIDAYS

Two North American holidays synchronized this year. Thanksgiving Day was observed in this country on Monday, and in the United States, Columbus Day was celebrated. Thanksgiving has its roots in the dim past, when man lived entirely off the soil, and when his dependence on the winds, and sun, and rain played a great part in the lives of a greater number, than it does in our more diverse civilization. But the instinct which led men to give thanks for the harvest, is sound. And the custom of setting apart one day at the close of the harvest, for thanksgiving, has continued through the years. It is a recognition that even in our complex society, there are forces inoperative over which man has no control and which determine the destiny of men and nations.

While in most of the world today men and women and little children are starving, we in Canada have reaped one of the largest crops in our history. Planning, careful cultivation, and hard work have been contributing factors, but without favorable weather conditions at the proper time the efforts would dhave failed. We have great cause for gratitude, and gratitude is not an expression of words merely. To be genuine it must show itself in a willingness and determination to share our blessings with others from whom the exigencies of war have robbed food and clothing, of which we have such an abundance.

Columbus Day, this year, celebrates the 450th anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus. This great Continent, with all its matchless wealth, and natural resources was discovered as the result of an accident. Columbus was seeking a short way to India, when he found the new great Continent blocking his pathway. Again, who had financed the voyage of Columbus, was not particularly interested in the Continent itself. But France and England saw its possibilities and fought for its possession. And after England had conquered France, and badly ruled the Continent, it ceded the greater part to the United States of America, the northern part remaining loyal to the British Crown.

Here on this North American Continent, rich beyond compare in natural resources, two great people have been at work, engaged in the greatest experiment in democracy the world has ever known—each in its own way. The standard of living achieved here was the highest ever known. Many commodities which, in other places were luxuries, were here taken for granted as the minimum requirements for decent living. The average man and woman scarcely ever stopped to appraise their heritage and their blessings. And now all these are challenged, our way of life, our possessions, our political theories, our freedoms. This challenge has brought home to every person the priceless heritage which is his, and has developed a new sense of his appreciation and of the tragic necessity of defending them with all the resources available.

In this sense, both Thanksgiving Day and Columbus Day call attention to the preferred position which we, on this Continent, occupy among the nations of the world, and serve to emphasize and underline the responsibilities resting upon those so highly privileged.

A STEP FORWARD

Great Britain, United States and Canada have notified China that they are going to renounce their extra territorial rights in China as soon as the war is over. The news has been received with great delight and deep appreciation by the Chinese people and Chinese leaders.

This is something definite and popsitive which the United Nations have promised to the solution of the post - war problem. The effect will be immediate throughout the whole East. For it is upon this extra territoriality that the Japanese have pointed as evidence of of the white man's feeling of race superiority and not without some success. Certainly the Chinese were nevery very happy about it. For the nations of the West to set apart sections of China as belonging to themselves and refusing to allow their own nationals to be tried in the Chinese courts of justice may have been necessary years ago when different standards of justice prevailed. But with the increased intercommunication between East and West, with the western ideals of justice becoming more generally known in China, the need for these extra territorial rights has diminished.

Now that the Allied Governments have renounced their rights, one of the great stumbling blocks to racial equality has been removed. The Japanese will be robbed of one of their chief arguments against the West. The Chinese will recognize as their leaders have already said that the United Nations are fighting that others may share the privileges which are theirs under a democratic form of government.

SAVE AND SERVE

That the citizens of the United States are a passionately enthusiastic people possessed of a great gift for organization makes their war effort of inestimable value. This has been demonstrated in many ways since Pearl Harbour, but in no way more dramatically than in the present nation-wide campaign for scrap metal. The appeal from Washington for scrap metal met with an immediate response. In a recent trip by the writer through Western New York he saw this campaign at its height. On the curbs of all towns and cities metal of all sorts was set in piles large and small. And then, one day they were collected by voluntary workers who gave their time and the use of their trucks voluntarily. In Buffalo the one day's campaign netted 1,410 tons of scrap. This was sold to the scrap dealers at a price of $12.00 a ton fixed by the Government and the money turned in to Army-Navy - Relief Funds. These funds in this instance were lettered by $16,920.

The schools are playing a large part in this effort. Great heaps of scrap have been collected by the children. In one school which the writer visited, ninety-three children appeared with their hand-wagons, and in a perfectly organized system, set out to canvass for scrap. They were dismissed from school and presented an attractive and impressive picture as they set out all in order. Tons upon tons of metal was the result. The children became intensely interested and did an excellent job. It was not unusual to see larger boys bringing the chassis of an automobile on a little handcar, to the scrap heap. This amount from the schools is not included in the 1,410 tons mentioned above. The school piles are still growing and will be sold and included in the next general collection.

We have had our scrap and aluminum collection in this country. This great united effort in which all, both old and young are engaged on the North American Continent, serves to do, at least, two things. It provides the material so badly needed to mix with the ore in the production of munitions, and it makes even the children aware of the necessity of saving. We have been a prodigal people, and often it has been more convenient to throw things away than to try to salvage them. But now, under the stress of war, we are learning anew the value of many things we once thought valueless.

LETTER FROM AIRMAN AT GIBRALTAR

The following letter was received recently by Mrs. Roy McGill, Newburgh, from her son, Sergt. Jack McGill, written while he was at Gibraltar, about a month ago.

The letter came by mail.

Gibraltar.
September 9, 1942.

Dear Mother and Max:—

Here is a letter, the first in a long time. I have not written since I left Harwell, nearly a month ago, but I have cabled you every week and hope you got them. I still don't seem to have much to write about. We have been here well over two weeks and are still held up. I don't know whether we will be going on or back.

Everything is cheap here. Lots of fruit, and cigarettes are about the same as they were in Canada before the war. Chocolate is dearer here than in England, but there is lots of it. There is plenty to eat also. The weather is getting cooler but I am getting a nice sun-tan. We go bathing in the Mediterranean. I can't tell you much about the Rock as it is covered with defenses, but the stamps will give you some idea. Most of the Tradesmen in the town are Spanish. There are four cafes but they are generally booked in advance. I hope you are not sending parcels as I probably won't get them and I don't need anything anyway. I haven't had any mail for over three weeks but suppose there will be a lot when I get to my destination. Continue sending mail there. I will continue to cable every week as I don't have much time or opportunity to write except at times like this and I can't say much anyhow.

We had a slight accident our second day here, when landing. We ran into another plane but no one was hurt. I have a piece of perspex from my turret as a souvenir. It can be made into a nice ring or brooch sometime.

Well, guess this is about all for now. If I am here much longer will be again. Hi Max is saving the stamps. G's letter will have a different one.

All my love, Jack

OVERSEAS LEAGUE ASKS FOR AID FOR MINESWEEPERS

The Toronto Branch of the British Minesweepers Auxiliary to the Overseas Parcels League in session at Room No. 41, 12 Hoor St. East, Toronto—Telephone Midway 7126.

The function of this Branch is to supply to the Royal National Mission for Deep Sea Fishermen in England, the much needed foolless and leather help for persons required by these men on the minesweepers, for they know there is little aid available in Britain.

Donations of money are urgently needed to keep up our wool supply for the many knitters and to assure a steady shipment of sweaters, balaclava helmets, mittens, scarves and seamless socks, for our men to come. Directions and wool at cost price for any of these articles may be had from the above address. There is no season of the year when these garments are not needed. The weather in the northern area, where the minesweepers mostly operate, changes merely from intense cold with snow and ice, to sleet, rain and fog with penetrating winds.

We ask for the support of all those interested in this work and willing to contribute to His fund for those brave men, who, under the most arduous conditions, are keeping open the life lines of Britain by patrol duty and sweeping the channels clear of mines.

In making our appeal for donations for this work, we would point out that the entire proceeds received go to the work carried on by the Auxiliary, inasmuch as all of the overhead, consisting of office space, telephone, equipment and incidental expenses, is donated and the time of the workers involved is entirely voluntary.

Cheques should be made payable to "British Minesweepers' Auxiliary, Toronto Branch."

WEAKER BEER PREDICTED

Ottawa—The possibility of a much lowered alcoholic content of beer — but quite as drinkable or so hard, however as the two per cent type purveyed in Ontario in the last war—is envisioned in the consideration now being given to the country's drink bill. Some brewery interests are persuaded that this may come about.

Premier King said last week, when asked about the liquor policy, that no matter what is being taken up with the provinces.

What this is understood to mean is that the provincial governments are being consulted as to their reaction if the Dominion were to embark on any or all of the suggested remedies.

There is no intention of invading the field of provincial jurisdiction, Anything that can be done will be wholly within the competence of the Federal authority. Nevertheless, it is possible for a Dominion policy, materially to affect the provinces, particularly in the line of revenue. The Federal treasury would also be affected.

That is why the provincial [illegible] are being invited. An agreement is adopted would be [illegible] scope. It is being considered [illegible] three particular—beer, [illegible] ertising, the man-power [illegible] the industry, and the [illegible] its diversion, and the question of [illegible] cohole content — the [illegible] both in spirits and [illegible] beer. What can be weakened what beer can lightened though, if recent [illegible] its imported, or in bond, this [illegible] fing" process. It is said would be difficult. The time to determine alcoholic content is when the [illegible] ding is taking place. Then [illegible] distilleries to make industrial [illegible] but is primarily a munitions [illegible] but closely related to the [illegible] question."

WAR PRISONERS SENT PARCELS

Toronto. (B.U.P.) The Canadian Red Cross is now shipping over [illegible] 600 food parcels every week to Canadian and British prisoners of war in Europe, Dr. W. Roscie, national commissioner, revealed last week.

As soon as Canadian prisoners of war are reported in Germany or Italy, a "missing parcel" campaign Comforts is dispatched direct to them from the overseas office of the Canadian Red Cross in London in [illegible] plained.

This service is undertaken to make sure the men have necessities [illegible] ing the period before they receive [illegible] from home. They contain such articles as shaving materials, [illegible] underwear, tobacco and [illegible] ficient for emergency needs.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, OCTOBER 18TH, 1942

"GROWTH IN CHRIST"

Lesson Text: Luke 2: 40, 52. II Peter 1. 1-8.

During the past season the writer had the interesting experience of hearing a heated discussion on the method by which people enter the church. It was a church court. Men who had a long experience in the Christian Church as leaders took part in the debate. There was a distinct cleavage, with the group divided into two parts. There were those who held that the only way in which people could enter the church was the only method of entering the Kingdom.

On the other hand, the younger group in the Court protested that the revival method was outmoded. That children could grow up Christian, unfolding their Christian life as a flower unfolds from the bud. The debate was long and earnest. The result is not important; what is important is that the matter was discussed and the two points of view brought into clear focus.

The clear lesson of today's study from the Life of Jesus, is that His growth was that of a normal child. He grew. He was filled with wisdom and the Grace of God was upon Him. He advanced in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man. If the life of Jesus is to be taken as an example, we have to acknowledge that He grew intellectually, physically, spiritually. He developed in God's favor, and He increased in His social responsibilities. There was not, as far as we know, any upheaval in His emotional, spiritual or intellectual life. It is true that at his baptism

BOARD MEETING OF THE V. O. N.

The Executive met at the home of Mrs. Wilson Ashley on Saturday evening last. Most of the members were present. After the usual reports were passed, the results of the recent Tag Day were discussed and found most satisfactory. The problem of transportation was examined and an attempt is being made to meet it. The president was in the chair.

Miss Docker's report follows in condensed form: September was a very busy month. Two hundred and twenty-one visits were made. 156 for bedside nursing care, 31 for instruction only and the equivalent of 34 others when two confinements were attended. Nursing care given to three mothers and babes, 22 hours spent in school and ten hours in Child Hygiene Conference. Though 56 minutes was the 1941 average time per visit, some of these calls often required one and a half and even two hours to complete. Three visits were made by the relief nurse. Nursing care and service is steadily increasing in our county.

The Nurse's office has amply proved its worth.

INDEPENDENTLY KILLED BEEF NOW UNDER CHECK

Ottawa, Oct. 12— A check on beef purchases by retailers who have an animals slaughtered for them, rather than buying from packing plants, is imposed by a Wartime Prices and Trade Board order dated October 10, it was learned this week.

A section of the order provides that no person selling beef at retail may, without the authority of Foods Administrator Gordon Taggart, buy or otherwise acquire, or have persons acquire on his behalf, any quantity or portion of beef at a delivered cost in excess of the maximum prices for sales at wholesale for the zone in which he lives. The cost of transportation from the buyer's nearest railway station to his place of business may be added.

Any person who acquires and slaughters any cattle, or has such cattle slaughtered for him, will be deemed to have acquired beef.

"No person selling beef at retail shall acquire any beef by acquiring and slaughtering any cattle or having such cattle slaughtered for him unless he regularly acquired beef in that manner during the basic period from September 15 to October 11, 1941," the order said.

In the past the board has been able to maintain a close check on "beef prices through the records of packing houses, but members of city butchers made their purchases direct from producers and the check in such cases was less easy to maintain.

Under the terms of the new order, butchers who may have started purchasing from producers since beef shortages became evident in some areas will be unable to continue this practice.

GIFT BOXES FOR THOSE IN UNIFORM

Hello Homemakers! High time to think your Christmas gift boxes for those in uniform . . . on the land or on the sea . . . in the air. You may also be thinking of the families of the men in the armed forces and, too, of the folks in the homes of indomitable Britain who so cheerily "make do".

During the next three weeks such great numbers of parcels will be going through the mails that it is important to pack your boxes so as to speed up deliveries and make sure your parcels will travel well. Here are some suggestions:

1 First of all, choose a stout box, preferably of the carton type which combines lightness with strength.

2 Packing or inner lining is necessary for a light weight box such as corrugated cardboard. Cotionbatting or socks pushed along the sides and into the chinks can be used. Little packages of raisins or something that will not melt may be used as fillers.

3 Contents. Foods should be wrapped separately and labelled so that the recipient may undo things as they are wanted. We suggest baking the fruit loaf in cocoa tins. When cooled put the lid on and you have fruit loaf and container ready. Cookies carry well when packed in baking-powder tins with wax paper. There are also many acceptable packaged goods such as powdered milk and eggs, cocoa, soups, etc.

4 Put everything into the box as closely together as possible. Close the box; tie firmly with twine and put on one set of address and declaration labels, just as though the box were not going to be wrapped.

5 Then cover the box with factory cotton (say, a washed flour bag), fold the ends like the back of an envelope, and stitch, using thin, strong twine in darning needle. The the box firmly again and put on a second set of labels. It is much better to put on an alternative address than a return address — a civilian relative or friend in the old country may be named on the overseas label.

6 Check on the rates with your postmaster (overseas boxes up to 11 lbs. cost 12c per lb.) It is advisable not to pack the maximum weight. Remember, civilian rates are different and certain gifts may be on the dutiable list, a point you want to check.

Be sure to send only what is needed — as shipping space is precious. Lists of general items needed will be seen upon request.

Wash Feather Pillows Heavy Lukewarm Suds

When feather pillows get soiled after much use, don't hesitate to wash them just as they are, without bothering to transfer the feathers to a linen bag. First cut a slit about four inches long at one end of the pillow, and sew a square muslin securely over the slit. This lets the feathers out but not entirely. Then soak the pillow at a time in the washing machine, using a mild soap and plenty of heavy lukewarm suds so the feathers will be soft and pliable. If the water becomes dirty or feathers go flat, mix fresh suds. Bad spots on the cover may be rubbed with a bit more soap. Rinse three or four times in tepid water and squeeze out the excess moisture. Hang carefully by two corners and change position during drying to help restore the fluffiness of the feathers.

Cheese Is Digestible When Properly Cooked

The use of cheese as a substitute for meat is recommended by Nutrition Services. One pound of cheese contains approximately as much protein as two pounds of round steak, and is an exceptionally rich source of calcium.

Even young children digest cheese well, especially if it is combined with other foods which dilute it somewhat, as cereals or vegetables. Always remember that too long cooking or too high temperature toughens cheese and makes it less digestible.

It is not always realized that cheese can be substituted for part of the milk ration. A piece of firm cheese like Canadian Cheddar, one inch square and one inch thick is equal in food value to a half-pint of milk. Cottage cheese contains more moisture, and being less concentrated, it takes one and a half cups to equal the food value of half a pint of milk.

Nutritious Main Course Is Found In Fish Dishes

Such dishes as fish loaf, casseroles of vegetable and fish, baked fish cooked with vegetables and fish chowder, give a complete and nutritious meal for the main course in one dish. In this way fuel and dishes are kept at a minimum, while the loss of food value in cooking is also diminished. In cooking a chowder, for instance, the water and fish stock used in cooking the vegetables with any dissolved nutrients in them are part of the chowder. Thus the food value of fish dishes can be made very high.

Dried salt codfish is a fish product that is not as widely used as it might be. It is easily kept and quickly prepared and is a good package to have on hand for emergency meals.

To freshen tear in pieces and toss in a bowl of cold water for a few minutes, changing the water when it becomes milky with salt. Drain in a sieve and run water through the fish, tossing it with a fork. Place in cold water on the stove and bring to a simmer for a few minutes. Drain and further freshen if you like, or cook it at the same time. Never boil it since the fibres toughen it. Various recipes for dried codfish are available in "100 Tempting Fish Recipes," a booklet available from the Department of Fisheries, Ottawa.

Cleaning Of Furniture Becomes Big Business When Fall Rolls Around

Cleaning furniture can become quite a business. Particularly in the fall when "clean-up" is in order and when furniture is taken from attic and a brownie. Consumer Information Service points out that it is wise to remember how best furniture may be cleaned.

Specifically, take soft cheesecloths or any other soft cloth for dusting. Don't use a feather duster, and don't use one that leaves lint.

Wash furniture with "green soap" a good grade soft soap sold in most drug stores. Put a teaspoonful of it in a quart of water, dip a cloth in water and rub it on the polished surface until a heavy lather is worked up. After this, take another cloth dampened in tepid water, wipe the surface clean. Complete the job by wiping it a second time with a soft dry cloth. White soap that is pure and neutral will do but be sure that it is pure and is not an alkali soap.

Always rub with the wood with the grain. White spots on furniture that has been finished with varnish can usually be removed by rubbing lightly with a piece of flannel dampened of course, if available, followed with essence of peppermint or spirits after a few minutes with an application of furniture polish.

National Temperance Study Course For Sunday Schools, 1942

BY J. M. HILL

LESSON II. OCTOBER 11TH

Why do people drink? How would you answer that question? Perhaps you would reply: "Some people think it is smart to drink." Yes, that is true.

And what makes them think it is the smart thing to do?

That being true, we ask, why does the church urge you to practise total abstinence and why does it oppose government legislation which tends to increase the consumption of alcohol? We wish you would think about this, and give an honest answer. Is there any harm in drinking alcohol? Can you think of one danger connected with it? Can you think of two? If you can think of even two dangers, is not the church well advised in urging total abstinence?

Let us return to our subject—why do people drink? Our first thought was that it seems to be "the smart thing to do." What shall we say about that? It is true that some excellent people use alcohol. Let us admit at the very beginning that traditions die hard, that customs differ in various countries, and even in the same country among different groups of people. Let us not criticize others for their beliefs in this matter, yet we do feel free to make our own decisions.

Because among certain people drinking is considered the smart thing to do, situations such as this arise:

A group of ten or twelve young people have spent the evening dancing. Someone suggests that they go over to the beverage room for a drink. There is general agreement. Mary is disturbed. She suggests to Bob, her escort, that he take her home. "You needn't leave me," he assures her. "You can have ginger ale. Come on, Mary." "What is Mary to do? Ginger ale certainly would not hurt her, but her parents would be greatly distressed if Mary went to a beverage room. Mary, herself, would not feel happy about it. In the same group is Ted. Ted's family definitely disapproved of alcoholic drinks and take it for granted that their son feels as they do. Ted does. Yet if he goes to the beverage room his situation will be even worse than Mary's because she can order ginger ale without arousing comment but he will probably be mercilessly teased if he does. What is the solution? If Mary will refuse to go it will be up the party but make things easier for Ted. If Ted refuses to go it will strengthen Mary's position. If both are man weak to take a stand both will suffer personally and both will cause distress to their parents.

It is often much easier to write or to talk about the strong thing to do than actually to do it. Emerson understood this when he wrote:

"A hero is not fed on sweets,
Daily his own heart he eats."

What is the cause of alcohol? Why is it unwise for young people to drink even in small quantities? One reason is because alcohol is a narcotic. That is it is a substance that has a numbing effect upon the nervous system. In a very interesting book, "Alcohol Problems Visualized," produced by The National Forum, Chicago, Ill., the harm done by alcohol is shown. The following is given as follows:

(1) A small quantity of alcohol affects the mental skills acquired through education and experience. Judgment, caution, reserve, self-criticism and sound judgment are impaired.

(2) A larger quantity of alcohol affects the physical skills such as walking, seeing, hearing, athletic and technical skills.

(3) A very large quantity of alcohol affects the basic biological activities such as breathing, circulation of blood, and digestion.

This book quotes Professor W. E. Dixon as follows: "It has been shown that attention, judgment and the higher intellectual processes are retarded at once by amounts of alcohol insufficient to intoxicate."

From this we see that you cannot use even small quantities of alcohol without doing yourselves at least temporary harm. You may think harm will it do in the long run?" you ask. Alcohol creates an appetite for alcohol. It is a habit-forming drug. Therefore, if you use alcohol because it is the smart thing to do," you may pay a price for it—a price that most young people, proud of their strong bodies and keen minds, are unwilling to pay.

There are, of course, other reasons why people drink. Some people drink because they like the taste of alcoholic beverages. But this is an acquired, not a natural taste. In time the use of alcohol impairs the power to taste.

Some people drink because of unsatisfactory living conditions. Drink helps them to forget their troubles. In all classes of society there are people who claim that they drink to escape from their worries. One does not have to be very old or very experienced to realize that facing and solving one's problems is a better way than temporarily forgetting them under the influence of alcohol.

You will no doubt be able to think of other reasons in answer to our question "Why do people drink?" You might find it interesting to work out, at the same time, the arguments against these reasons.

As we pointed out in the beginning, some very fine people use alcohol. But there are many men and women just as good, and we think wiser, who do not. They think of the welfare of others as well as of themselves. They do not wish their example to mislead others.

QUESTIONS

1. State in full the three ways in which alcohol is harmful to the mind and body. (10 marks)

2. State three reasons why people drink alcohol. Give the opposing arguments in favour of abstinence. (10 marks).

RETAIL SHOPS, HARD HIT BY WAR — CUT DOWN ON SPACE AND PERSONNEL

How war has hit Britain's retail shops comes out in newly published figures showing the reduction during the twelve months ending with June 1942.

Department stores lost twenty-five percent of their space and thirty percent of their personnel. Co-operative stores lost five and fifteen percent in each category. Multiple shops are eleven percent fewer with twenty-two percent less staff. Chain stores are four percent fewer with twenty-six percent less staff.

These losses are due to rationing and to the Government's policy of concentration of industry to conserve manpower and raw materials.

Regionally, business differs widely. London's centre and West End shops showed a twenty-five decline in sales last May, due to a similar pre-war month a few other sections benefited, new trade brought by workers and troops and munitions ranging from fourteen per cent in the Midlands to twenty-five in Scotland.

Concentration of industry caused 250,000 persons' businesses for war work. In fourteen months 350,000 persons of store space have been for more essential activities.

A Critical POWER SHORTAGE THREATENS OUR WAR EFFORT

Save ELECTRICITY IN THE HOME

Our mounting production of weapons of war places an ever-increasing demand on Hydro for more and more electricity. Today there is not enough for every need. The drain on vital power is serious. Remember this . . . when you're using a toaster, grill, waffle-iron, coffee-maker or electric range . . . turn the switch 'OFF' promptly as soon as the job is done. Divert more and more power to war industries. Electricity is urgently needed to produce the vital weapons of war. SAVE IT.

HERE ARE SUGGESTIONS HOW YOU CAN DO YOUR PART

- Remember that stored heat is your electric range oven will continue the cooking process after power is turned 'OFF.' Plan to use this stored heat and save electricity.
- Turn 'ON' such appliances as coffee-makers, sandwich toasters, waffle-irons and grills only when you are ready to use them.
- Operate your toaster only as toast is required; do not leave 'ON' when not toasting.
- Save on lights, don't use two if one will do. Never leave lights 'ON' in empty rooms.
- Remember the turning 'ON' or leaving 'ON' of one unnecessary switch is a waste of power urgently needed in the present emergency.

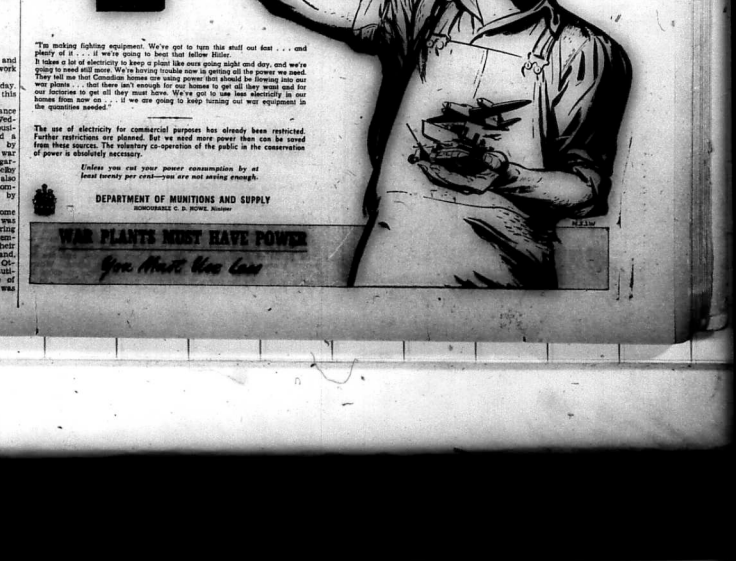
HOME POWER or WAR POWER?



"I'm making fighting equipment. We've got to turn this stuff out fast . . . and plenty of it . . . we're going to beat that fellow Hitler. It takes a lot of electricity to keep a plant like ours going night and day, and we're going to need still more. We're having trouble now in getting all the power we need. That tell me that Canadian homes are using power they should be saving into our war plants . . . that there isn't enough for our homes to get all they want and for our factories to get all they must have. We've got to use less electricity in our homes from now on . . . if we are going to keep turning out war equipment in the quantities needed."

The use of electricity for commercial purposes has already been restricted. Further restrictions are planned. But we need more power than can be saved from these sources. The voluntary co-operation of the public in the conservation of power is absolutely necessary.

Unless we cut your power consumption by at least twenty per cent—you are not saving enough.

THE COMMANDO DAGGER

The Commando Dagger, the proud symbol of Canada's Third Victory Loan campaign and the weapon which has made Canadian soldiers carried with them on the Beaches of Dieppe, has a history. This Dagger, or fighting knife was designed by Major W. E. Fairbairn. It is officially known as the "Fairbairn-Sykes" fighting knife and is manufactured by the historic War Office Sword Company of England. The Dagger is an issue to all troops in the Commando Services.

The knife is carried in a leather sheath. It has a 6½ inch blade with grip 11½ inch. The length of the sheath is 13½ inches. The width of the blade at the hilt is 1¾ inches. It is a true dirk or a stabbing weapon with a double-edged, short pointed and edged blade.

In close-quarter fighting there is no more deadly weapon than the Commando Dagger. The soldier flashing one of these is frequently enough to strike fear into the opponent, causing him to lose confidence and surrender.

Major Fairbairn in the past thirty years has been connected with the Shanghai Municipal Police in the toughest police assignment in the world. He armed with the things and terrorists. As per Fairbairn-organized and led the famous Shanghai Riot Squad and devised the system of close-combat fighting used by present day branches of the Fairbairn's task was to produce a style of fighting which would enable the outnumbered constabulary to kick the Jap and other gangsters to a standstill. It had to be better than jiu-jitsu. It had to be quick with or without weapons. It had to serve every requirement of the man who could not call for help when often had to battle several assailants, come out alive and bring in the erstwhile killers.

When war was declared Major Fairbairn was called home to England to teach his methods to Commando during and parachute troops. The "Fairbairn System" is now standard instruction for the British armed forces. In his book entitled "Get Tough," Fairbairn demonstrates his system and his tricks that he calls Chinese "knacks."

BATTLE BRITAIN MARKED A WORLD CRISIS

BY ADMIRAL SIR HERBERT RICHMOND K.C.B., C.B.

Admiral Sir Herbert Richmond, K.C.B., C.B., retired from the Navy in 1931, and has been Master of Durning College, Cambridge, since 1936. He is the author of many publications on naval history, training and warfare.

To say the Battle of Britain was the decisive battle of the world is no more a figure of speech. There can be no shadow of doubt that a German victory in that battle would have resulted in the immediate German domination of Europe during 1941; a not distant domination of the Middle East and Africa, completed probably by 1942; and the ultimate domination of South America, with it, practically, not difficult to discern, upon the whole American continent.

That battle which raged throughout August and September 1940 and continued in varying degrees of intensity during the months that followed, decided whether Germany should become the undisputed master of the world.

Greatly as the instruments of warfare have changed during the last three centuries, the processes of strategy have repeated themselves. The would - be continental despot, from Louis XIV onwards, has never failed to recognize that he must eliminate England from the list of opponents if a long, exhausting and possibly unsuccessful war was to be evaded.

With an almost monotonous regularity, the despotic aggressor has employed three successive forms of attack on England. He has let loose a horde of commerce - destroying vessels from the beginning, with the object of damaging England through sea-borne trade, and diverting the British Navy from other purposes. Secondly, and sometime simultaneously, in order to deal a single decisive blow, he has attempted to invade the island, either launching an invasion without warning, or as soon as possible in the course of war. If he were successful in landing an army that invasion would infallibly bring England to her knees, for her land forces were never on a scale or in a condition to meet the trained legions of a continental army.

Thirdly, when invasion proved impracticable, an intensive effort has been made to break England economically by a large-scale sustained campaign at sea against her trade routes, and by closing the ports of the continent to her commerce. The resulting economic ruin would force her to sue for peace.

Events have followed the same course in the present war. Germany began with an attack on shipping with submarines and cruisers, an attack which did not spare a neutral even on the open sea and when engaged on traffic unrelated to war.

When in June, 1940, campaigns on the continent had placed all ports in Western Europe, from North Cape in Norway to the South of France, in German hands, she proceeded to strike the decisive blow of invasion. When that blow failed, she launched an intensive attack with every available weapon — submarines, cruisers, battleships, mines, light craft, aircraft — against all shipping, irrespective of nationality, destination and the hitherto admitted rights of neutral nations. That effort is still in progress, directed against the Allied Nations.

IMPORTANCE OF RUSSIAN RESISTANCE

If, as the leaders of Germany appear to hope, Russia is crippled during the coming winter, the whole weight of the German air arm may be expected to be concentrated on the destruction of Britain from the air — the new form of invasion.

The Battle of Britain was the opening phase of the intended invasion of the summer 1940. It was aimed at destroying the forces which held the Channel against invasionary transports. In all past schemes in which an invasionary army was to be thrown across the Channel from ports in Holland, Belgium and on the Straits of Dover the opposition that had to be eliminated was that of a flotilla of small vessels.

Today that flotilla consists of destroyer forces of the Navy and the aircraft of the Royal Air Force.

The naval flotilla was weak in August 1940. Its strength reduced by the policy of disarmament before the war, it had suffered serious losses during the campaigns in Norway and the embarkation of the army from Dunkirk; it was heavily occupied in meeting the attack on shipping by submarines, and a portion had to be sent to the Mediterranean to meet a new enemy—Italy.

ATTACK ON SEA POWER FAILS

Nevertheless there were flotilla craft to be got out of the way, and there was the yet greater obstacle in the air. So the initial blows of the German Air Force were directed against shipping, naval ports, coastal airdromes and aircraft. The attack, delivered on a vast scale and in the fullest confidence of success, was beaten. If it had succeeded, if the British air forces had been destroyed or disabled, Britain would have been invaded by an army equipped with a vast preponderance of artillery, tanks and aircraft.

Though trained men had been recovered from Dunkirk, their equipment had been lost, tanks and artillery were lacking, and victory in the air must have been followed by victory on land. Victory on land would have given the enemy possession of the ports of commerce — Liverpool, Bristol, London and Glasgow. All imports would thereby have been throttled. The naval ports would have been occupied, and the Navy driven from the Island. Wherever it might have gone, it could have given no further defense to the country, for its sources of supply, provisions, fuel and munitions stores would be lost. The British people would have been, ruthlessly starved into an unavoidable surrender.

With the fall of Britain, the Dominions and Colonies would have been entirely at the mercy of the enemy. Widely separated and individually weak they could have offered no prolonged resistance to a powerful enemy who could deal with them in detail. The enemy could have dictated what terms he might choose.

There can be no illusions as to the nature of those terms, for the writings of the Germans, maps that they have published, and the treatment Germany has applied to conquered nations, afford an ample picture of the dismemberment that was in store for the British Empire.

DUCE PLAYED LOSING GAME

Whether the Duce, flying hastily and at the latest possible moment to the aid of the conqueror, would have been in time to obtain from the Fuehrer the recognition of his services in the shape of the possession of Egypt, of Malta and Gibraltar, and of the lands in East Africa, may be doubted. It is more than probable that he would have had to be content with rewards far below his hopes and desires. The lion's share would have gone to the lion, and the jackal would have got only what the lion didn't want.

The Suez Canal would have been reserved for Germany, as it would be needed to ensure her communications with the colonies in East Africa, destined for her possession; but the Canal is of little use if the approaches to it are insecure, so Gibraltar and Malta must be German bases, and protests from Rome would find no listeners in Berlin.

In the Atlantic there must be no risk that the sea lanes leading to Germany could be interrupted or closed. Even though Britain were beaten in the present struggle, precautions must be taken against her possible revival. She would still be as a breakwater across the approaches to Germany by the northern route and the English Channel. To secure the northern route, Ireland must be occupied as an advance base, and to double-lock that door, the Orkney Islands with the base of Scapa Flow. To secure the way by the Channel and western approaches, a base or bases in Ireland — Bere Haven and Cork — would have been taken.

The eyes of Germany have long been directed to South America and its particularly Brazil, with its 900,000 persons of German blood. With the British fleet out of the way, and any recovery of British strength at sea, either in the form of ships or aircraft, rendered harmless by the possession of these advanced bases, the stage would have been set for 'the next step; the step to South America.

For that, another base would be needed; Dakar. France, reduced to a mere toothless cypher or province of the Reich, would have been in no position to oppose either the open or veiled acquisition of that commanding port. From Dakar to Bahia is a mere 1,715 sea miles. This short line of passage — for it is short in terms of modern fight — lies far from the sphere of influence of the United States, and we who now have intimate acquaintance with totalitarian Norway and the Low Countries through Hitler; in Abyssinia, Albania and Greece through Mussolini and in China and the Pacific through Japan, need no great effort of the imagination to foresee that technique can be put into practice against South America.

There is no more difficulty in making secret preparations at Dakar and despatching a powerful force across that stretch of water to appear out of the blue off Bahia than there was for the Germans to launch their surprise on Norway, or the Japanese theirs on Pearl Harbor. The timing of its arrival would coincide with, or be little before, the delivery of an ultimatum — that is the integral element in the technique as witnessed in Poland, Holland, Belgium, Albania and Greece; and what is sauce for the European is sauce also for the Brazilian. The ports of Brazil would be in German hands, and airfields in the occupation of German air forces long before any air or sea forces could arrive from the United States.

Who that has watched the processes of Axis aggression and its treacherous methods of diplomacy can shut his eyes to the danger to which Canada would be exposed if she supported if the Battle of Britain had resulted in a British defeat? And who, too with the experience at our disposal would suppose for a moment that the ambitions of the Nazi would be satisfied with conquests in South America?

WHERE JAPAN WOULD HAVE MOVED

One further region would have been affected. India would have been open and inviting when British rule collapsed, as it would infallibly have collapsed with the conquest of Britain herself. The world would have been told that India must be protected as the lesser states in Europe had to be protected against internal disorder and foreign aggression; whether that aggression would be attributed to Japan or Russia would have depended on the needs of the situation at the moment.

The question of whether the "protecting" of India would have hastened the entry of Japan with her pokey of a "prosperity zone" in Asia, is mainly one of time, depending on the speed and energy with which the occupation could be carried out, but it is hardly open to doubt that the fall of Britain would have precipitated Japanese, Dutch and British possessions and the Philippines would have been left alone for

GAS RATION CUT TO THREE GALLONS FOR AA-1 COUPONS

Makes Ration Uniform For All Canada

OTTAWA. — To conserve Canada's diminishing supplies of gasoline, the Munitions and Supply Department announced, last Friday, a reduction in value of gasoline ration coupons in Ontario, Quebec and the four Western provinces, from four to three gallons.

The reduction, effective after the close of business Saturday, means that gasoline coupons will have a uniform value throughout the Dominion. In the Maritimes, the unit value already is three gallons.

When gasoline rationing was first introduced last spring, the value was five gallons everywhere in Canada. Since then, there have been a number of regional alterations to meet local supply shortages.

STOCKS REDUCED

G. R. Cottrelle, zoil controller, who issued the reduction order, recalled that Hon. C. D. Howe, Munitions Minister, had said in a speech on September 17 that Canada's reserves of gasoline were about 20,000,000 gallons lower than a year previously and that stocks of crude oil and unfinished petroleum products were lower by 40,000,000 gallons.

"Unfortunately," Mr. Cottrelle said, "the position has not improved and our supplies are still dwindling.

Available transportation facilities at present are not adequate to bring in enough crude to meet current demands.

The oil controller said demand for oil has increased to record proportions and added "as long as this falls short of total requirements, the motorists of Canada may expect to receive less and less gasoline."

SENT TO GAOL FOR ONE MONTH FALSE PRETENCES

Garth Sharp, Belleville, appeared before Magistrate Garvin in Napanee Police Court on Thursday, October 15, and pleaded guilty to obtaining money on false pretences from six residents of South Fredericksburgh and Adolphustown Townships. Sharp was sentenced by the Magistrate to serve thirty days in the county gaol.

Sharp, who is about 21 years of age, is a sewing machine repair man. Recently he visited a number of homes in Lennox and Addington, along No. 33 Highway, where he told the householders he was a representative of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, sent to repair their sewing machines. He informed them if the machines were beyond repair they were liable to confiscation for salvage. In each case where he called and collected money for repairs ranging from $3.50 to $9.00, he claimed to have made replacements of worn parts, which was later found to be untrue, as no parts had been renewed.

Mr. Pringle, of Belleville, representing Sharp, told the court that Sharp had no previous conviction recorded and was married and had one small child. He further stated that Sharp had had very few advantages in life and could neither read nor write.

The Magistrate was inclined to be lenient in passing sentence, but when it was learned that restitution of the money collected was not possible, he gave Sharp a sentence of one month in gaol.

SCOUT APPLE DAY IS GREAT SUCCESS

The Boy Scout Apple Day, held on Saturday, October 17th, was an outstanding success due to the wholehearted cooperation and support of the citizens of this town. Some 27 barrels of apples were distributed. Over $100.00 was added to the funds of the No. 1 Napanee Troop which is three times the amount realized last year.

This money will be used to further ...outing activities in town and thus help towards the development of better citizens.

The Scouts are indebted to a number of individuals for their kind support and assistance. Special mention should be made of Mr. John Wilson who gave the Scouts the use of the store on John Street as Apple Day headquarters. Citizens who donated the hundreds of empty baskets which the Scouts collected are also extended thanks.

The Scouts themselves worked hard and long at making a success of the day. The apples were all transferred, from the barrels, polished and placed in the baskets. Handbills were distributed, orders taken, apples delivered and collections made. Every boy from the Troop Leader to the newest Tenderfoot put in a really excellent job as is indicated by the financial success of the campaign.

LARGE ATTENDANCE NAPANEE ARMOURIES LOAN DEDICATION

W. S. Herrington Gives Address — Kingston Band in Attendance

Mr. W. S. Herrington, K.C., was the speaker at the Third Victory Loan Dedication Service held in the Napanee Armouries, last Sunday afternoon. Venerable Archdeacon R. J. Dumbrille, who was also scheduled to speak, was taken suddenly seriously ill in the morning and was removed to Kingston General Hospital, so was unable to fulfil his engagement.

Mayor D. R. Hall, Napanee chairman of the County War Finance Committee, was chairman and music was provided by a massed choir under the leadership of Mrs. J.E. Madden, and the Canadian Legion Band of Kingston conducted by the Bandmaster, Gilbert Snowden.

Seated on the platform beside the chairman and the members of the choir, were W. A. Grange, honorary chairman of the War Finance Committee, Rev. C. D. McLellan, minister of Grace Church, and the following Reeves of rural municipalities. In front Victory Loan flags were presented. Reeve A. E. Gall—South Fredericksburgh; Reeve W. H. Ward, Newburgh; Deputy-Reeve Wm. Brandon, Ernestown; Warden W. A. McLeod, Reeve of Richmond; W. J. McCabe, North Fredericksburgh, and Reeve J. G. Daly, Napanee.

Following the address by Mr. Herrington, the chairman led in reading in unison with those present, the Victory Pledge, and the Victory Loan Flag was raised by Donald Elliott, Boy Scout Patrol leader.

Preceding the meeting in the Armouries, the members of the 47th Battery, in charge of Lieutenant Gerrard Doyle, paraded the streets of the town.

Mr. Herrington in beginning his address, said that at least one good thing has come out of the war and that is the people of the Empire have been drawn closer together and are united as never before in the single purpose of winning the war. The war, he said, is obliterating all distinctions of class, race and religion.

Taking as his theme the slogan Stop—Look—and Listen—Mr. Herrington said it was a good time to stop and ask what we are doing to make Canada what it should be. There has been too much complacency and not enough concern as to what can be done in the practical way to further the interests of our country. There can be no exemption to anyone in a crisis such as we are now facing and each has a responsibility and must do his part.

We should look into the past, the present and the future to see just where we stand. In the past we considered our country far more beautiful we lived in the fairest land on the earth and asked nothing better than to be allowed to go on living in peace. To-day we find there are terrible tragedies being enacted in Europe and even our own country. Loves the danger of invasion. Our cities, which we thought far from the war zone, now lie in peril of being bombed.

Our future is none too secure because Germany has been looking with envious eyes upon Canada. The Germans feel they are the only people fit to have such a rich prize as Canada. The conquest of Canada by the mighty legions of the Fuhrer's Canadian does everything possible to defeat Hitler. We can avert this calamity by doing our share toward bringing about a victory which will extinguish Hitler and his gang. This can only be done by Canada having a better army, better tanks, planes, guns and ships than the enemy. This end can be attained by lending the money necessary, to buy the necessary equipment.

Mr. Herrington closed by appealing to everyone to subscribe to the limit to Canada's Third Victory Loan and pointed out how easy this was being made by arrangements which the canvassers and bankers are able to make for purchasers of Victory Bonds.

FIRST IN SERIES SPECIAL SERVICES AT GRACE CHURCH

The first in the series of three special services in celebration of Grace United Church's Hundredth Anniversary was held last Sunday, with Rev. Dr. R. B. Cochrane, the general secretary for Missions of The United Church of Canada, as the special preacher. The attendance at the services both morning and evening was good. At the evening service members of Trinity Church were also present and Rev. G. M. Chidley, the minister of Trinity Church, took part in the service.

In the morning Dr. Cochrane took as his subject "A rich prize" and in the evening "Whose is this?" Both subjects were treated in a most interesting manner.

Dr. Cochrane's evening subject was "The Field is the World." In his address he pointed out the changes which had come over the world in the past few years, which have drawn peoples of different lands together and made the world in the interests of another. Dr. Cochrane urged a still greater interest in the welfare of others, both in our own country and in other countries, if the conditions which brought about the present world war are to be done away with.

The minister of the church, Rev. C. D. McLellan, made an appeal for a generous anniversary offering, part of which is to be used to start a church improvement fund to be expended following the war.

The music for the two services was in charge of the choir leader, Miss Letha Scott, with Mrs. H. Black at the organ. The anthem in the morning was "His Works of Love," by Simper, and in the evening the anthem was "Praise my Soul the King of Heaven," by Sullivan. Miss Milton Martin sang during the offertory "Thanks be to God."

Following the evening service a social hour was held in the Sunday School hall, during which light refreshments were served.

Next Sunday, the Anniversary services will be continued and the preachers will be two former ministers, Rev. Dr. R. T. Richards, minister of Centennial Church, London, Ont., and Rev. C. E. Cragg, Grace Church, Toronto.
